KILLED BY SON

MARYSVILLE, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Cleo Delores Claro, 54, was killed as she slept Tuesday by a shotgun accidentally fired by her four-year-old son. Police said the boy lifted the 16-gauge gun from a closet and dragged it toward his mother. The charge hit her from two-foot range.

JUMPS THROUGH WINDOW

NORWICH, N.Y. (AP)—A frightened deer wandered into the city's business district Tuesday, became bewildered by the people and traffic and tried to jump through a store window. The 150-pound buck was severely cut by the breaking glass and was shot by police.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, December 8, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You may be faced with a shortage of various things, including time and equipment. But do the very best you can, and you can improve situations, make advancement.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Be tactful, and be careful not to evade the truth. Don't cater to anyone who is unprincipled. Maintain inner calm.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — This is a day for thinking of all the good and nice things about others not their faults. Short temper and high-handedness are in the air!

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Give where you can aid another, and don't regret or recall "how much ingratitude" there is or already has been. Throw yourself to yield to oversensitiveness.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Aim to reach solutions to problems that have honestly gone on for too long a period. Also, stay out of the private affairs of others. Diplomacy!

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — It will be an easy day if you will read and heed suggestions in the Signs Cancer and Leo, for you are just as vulnerable to these errors today. Look at matters from a truly objective viewpoint.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — There's no time like the present for making needed corrections, finishing incompleted tasks and getting better acquainted with your own self.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Take cognizance of whether you are wasting time and energies and still not accomplishing as you should. Don't spend what you could invest wisely instead.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagitarius) — Do not be misled by well-meaning but not too careful people, or by flattery. Give the "other fellow" a chance to show his talents and responsibilities. Staunchly fair play.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Don't be sidetracked by objections or other obstacles to your plans. Keep the sense of duty and your ability to achieve foremost; stride forward.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Take everything with a grain of salt now. But remember true values regardless of trends or the pressure of others. Handle things first with and without anxiety. Give details proper attention.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Walk sturdily onward, with confidence and ambition. Do not let anyone's pessimism dampen yours, but be sure you are headed in the right direction.

You born today have many talents and characteristics that spell high success and happiness, if you use them daily, developing them along best lines and recognizing your faits as you go along. You are capable of seeing possible outcomes of transactions beforehand — a valuable aid in any field. You make friends easily, are loyal, jovial, noble and generous. Don't let your fine qualities be obscured by a blunt exterior; neither be too sensitive to slights.

Strong Backs and Long Poles Winning Fight for Vessels

MONTREAL (CP)—Strong backs bending over stout wooden poles toiled on today to speed some 30 vessels to Montreal's ice-free harbor waters before freeze-up.

Th picturesque battle against ice continued through the night on the 10 locks of the Soulanges and Beauharnois canals, last two legs of the multi-million-dollar system linking the Great Lakes with navigable reaches of the St. Lawrence river.

Extra men with long, wooden poles, tipped with steel hooks, chipped ice from the lock gates, and sieves round the clock to keep it from jamming them shut. Tugs were standing by to pull vessels through should the canal clog.

But expectations are that barring bitter cold the 80-odd ocean-going vessels and about 10 lakers will reach Montreal by Saturday, when navigation officially ends for the season.

"This happens every year," said a veteran lock master on the nine-mile Lachine canal above Montreal harbor. "This year it just started a bit earlier, that's all." Navigation ended Dec. 15 last year.

But in 1932, a lot of vessels were trapped, too, which started freezing in October, was ignored as a mild condition and upbound traffic continued. The ice stayed, however.

The normal labor complement of 80 men on the five locks of the Lachine canal has been increased by two to four men per lock. It is back-breaking work, handling poles weighing from eight to 15 pounds and 15 to 25 feet long on the slippery, ice-crusted canal walls.

Traffic has slowed a lot despite their efforts compared with maximum summer-time flow of up to 50 vessels each 24-hour period. It now is 14 vessels or less for the same period. A few vessels are still steaming upstream for inland ports, where they will winter.

Father Marrocco Named Auxiliary Toronto Bishop

OTTAWA (CP) —Rev. Francis Anthony Marrocco of Peterborough and Ottawa, a leader in the social action and co-operative movement within the Roman Catholic Church, has been appointed Auxiliary Bishop of Toronto and Titular Bishop of Lindse.

Announcement of the Pope's appointment of the 48-year-old priest was made today by Most Rev. Giovanni Panico, apostolic delegate to Canada.

Father Marrocco, who has been rector since June of the Cathedral of Peterborough, his home town, will be the second auxiliary bishop of Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto. The other is Most Rev. F. V. Allen.

IN SOCIAL ACTION

The new bishop has become well known—in church circles and beyond them—for his work in social action fields.

In 1942 he became first director of the English-speaking section of the social action department of the Canadian Catholic Conference—the church's hierarchy in Canada. Working from Ottawa he supervised the establishment of housing co-operative groups in 13 Ontario cities and towns.

His pilot co-operative housing project was at nearby Deschenes, Que. Members of the group acted as their own contractors and did much of the labor themselves. The finished housing centre bears his name and became the pattern for other such projects.

IN VARIOUS FIELDS

—He also established the Catholic Social Life Conference and has been active in education, immigration and other social and cultural activities.

He studied at St. Augustine's seminary in Toronto and was ordained in 1938. For five years he served as a curate in the Peterborough diocese until 1943, when he went to the Catholic University of Washington to study social action. On his return he was director of the Social School of Peterborough for two years.

He then went to St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, N.S., to study the co-operative movement developed there. In 1948 he came to Ottawa to head the social action department and remained here until he was called to Peterborough last June.

Posthumous Award Given To James Dean

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — James Dean, who died in an auto crash two months ago, was named the best actor of the year in the first audience awards poll Tuesday.

He won the posthumous honor for his first starring film, "East of Eden."

Jennifer Jones, the Eurasian doctor of "Love is a Many-splendored Thing," won the award for best performance by an actress.

Sponsors of the audience awards poll, who include the leading producers and theatre owners, estimated that more than 15,000,000 film fans voted for the awards.

FREED FROM SHOAL

MONTREAL (CP)—The 83-ton canal service vessel Argosteel has freed itself from a shoal in the Ottawa river, where it stuck Friday while picking up river-marking buoys.

Soviet and Burmese Premiers Demand Cession of Formosa

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Bulganin headed back to India today on their South Asian tour. Before they took off, the Soviet and Burmese premiers issued a joint demand for cession of Formosa to Red China and a ban on nuclear weapons.

Burma's Premier U Nu saw his Russian visitors off at Mingaladon airport after the seven-day visit in which the Russians used every opportunity to attack the West.

The joint communique by Bulganin and U Nu, bound in handsome red leather covers, was signed with a ceremonial flourish in the ornate throne room of Burma's presidential palace. The views expressed were what both countries have been plugging for some time.

Besides the demand that Formosa—now held by Nationalist China—be handed over to the Communist Peiping regime, the two premiers also called for:

1. Settling Indochina's political future in accordance with last year's Geneva conference ending the Indochina war. The armistice terms call for elections next July to unify pro-Western South Viet Nam with Communist-held North Viet Nam. The South Vietnamese do not favor rushing into these elections.

2. An unconditional ban on atomic and hydrogen weapons and further experiments with them, plus a sharp reduction of conventional armaments.

3. Unification of anti-Communist South Korea and Communist North Korea.

4. An end to power blocs, which they said cause fear and distrust among nations.

Before the communique was issued, Khrushchev added a chapter to the briefing attack he has made on the west—particularly Britain—during the Kremlin leaders' swing across India and Burma. Speaking at a political rally here, he took a swipe at former prime minister Churchill.

Khrushchev referred to the "notorious directive" he said Churchill issued to Field Marshal Montgomery near the end of the war to stack captured German arms for release to German prisoners against any continuing Russian advance into western Europe.

(Churchill disclosed the order in a speech last year. He said he could see no advantage in freeing Europe from one kind of totalitarianism "if we allowed so much of Europe to fall into the grip of another totalitarian regime from the east.")

Canadians Have Ignored Aussies For Too Long

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canadians have been ignoring Australia too long, said F. I. Ker of Dundas, Ont., returning from the Commonwealth press conference at Canberra.

"We must turn our eyes to our fellow-Commonwealth country," he said in an interview Monday. "It is up to our businessmen and leaders to strengthen our links with this 'rapidly-growing friendly nation.'"

Mr. Ker, former publisher of the Hamilton Spectator, is chairman of the Canadian section of Commonwealth Press Union. He headed a delegation of 14 Canadian newspaper men to the Canberra conference.

"I feel that the countries with the greatest potentialities of development today are Canada, Australia and New Zealand," he said. "The Australians realize that they must develop their great open spaces if they are to withstand the pressure from the over-populated Orient."

He said the Canadians were much impressed with Australian plans for development.

Mr. Ker is a director of the Southam Co. Ltd., and a former president of The Canadian Press, Canada's national news co-operative.

Is Little Life As Australia's Election Near

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Australia's sleepy federal election campaign showed few signs of life Tuesday though Saturday's polling is only four days away.

The party leaders are energetically stumping the country but seem to be arousing little public interest.

Prime Minister Robert Menzies Tuesday night appealed to voters to "pull their weight" and ensure a Liberal-Country party (Conservative) coalition victory in the Senate.

There is a record electorate of 5,000,000.

Labor party leader Herbert Evatt is concentrating on the key state of South Australia at the climax of his campaign.

MIGHT DECIDE

Voting for a new House of Representatives and half of the Senate is compulsory. Failure to vote can bring a fine of £5.

Menzies is asking the electors, including many thousands of immigrants, to vote the government into another three-year term of office to enable it to combat inflationary pressure and continue its "policy for prosperity."

O.P.P. CRACKDOWN ON SPEEDERS SHOWS NO LETUP

This morning with the weekly session of the court underway, the number of traffic offences listed was greater than in previous weeks since the crackdown started.

In all there were some 129 traffic offences on the docket, ranging from failure to have a proper sign on a truck to various degrees of speeding.

The crackdown still continues unabated.

Y Will Hold Basketball School On Saturday

The Physical Education Department of the Belleville YMCA, in conjunction with the Ontario Board of Approved Basketball Officials is conducting a basketball officiating school Saturday, Dec. 10th.

This school will be run under the leadership of Slim Moodie, eastern zone secretary of CABA, member of Toronto and District Board of Approved Basketball Officials; Jack Cuiney, president of Toronto and District Board of Approved Basketball Officials and one of Toronto's top officials, and Bruce Blackburn, secretary of the Ontario Board of Approved Basketball Officials.

The school will start at 1.00 p.m. Saturday with theoretical work in the afternoon and practical work in the evening.

Senior Citizens Celebrate 2nd Anniversary

The Senior Citizens Club of Belleville celebrated its second anniversary last evening at the Kiwanis Centre with 68 members attending. The club originally met in 1953 under the auspices of the Belleville Recreation Committee, began with a membership of 39. Because of inclement weather and a number of persons being ill, a full membership was not represented at this anniversary get-together.

Miss Dorothy Dickey and her dancing troup were on hand and gave a very thrilling and exciting dancing exhibition. Mayor-elect Mrs. Jane Forrester attended the meeting and gave a short resume of congratulations. Mrs. Forrester was introduced by the chairman of the Recreation Committee, Mr. William Van Tassel, series for the evening's activities went to Mrs. W. B. Davidson, Mrs. M. Conway, Mrs. A. Thorn, Mrs. A. Robinson and Mrs. M. Burrowes. Lunch was served at the end of the evening. Two large suitably iincandled cakes for the occasion were consumed with a large portion going to the sick members who are in the hospital.

SEIZE REST HOME

BERLIN (Reuters) — East Germany has rejected a protest by the Roman Catholic bishop of Berlin against the forcible evacuation last month of a Catholic rest home for mothers, church officials said today. Officials said Bishop Weskamm wrote from the home, on a state farm just outside Berlin, will not be returned to the church.

Makers Produced More Cheese In Control Ontario This Year With Fewer Factories Working

Although there were 53 factories operating in 1955 — three less than last year — production was up by more than 4,500 boxes, J. M. Bain, chief dairy instructor for central and western Ontario, told the 38th annual convention of cheese makers here yesterday.

The total production figures for this year were 126,523 compared with 121,909 in 1954.

Mr. Bain was speaking at one of the final sessions of local cheese makers here. The convention ended yesterday evening after a busy round of speechmaking, prize-judging, banqueting and judging of exhibition cheese in the 30th British Empire Show, an integral part of the convention.

The forward look in Ontario's cheese industry was emphasized all the way through the convention, with most addresses and discussion items centering around changes, both possible and probable, in the industry's future setup.

Subjects ranged from such items as possible introduction of plywood boxes as cheese containers, down to the possibility that cheese factories one day may be manufactured by law with pasteurized milk.

In between was a plethora of items concerning the temperatures necessary to the proper aging of cheese down to the need for a quick start at producing more diversified products other than the standard cheddar.

Mr. Bain prefaced his report at the morning session with the remark that the present cheese-making season had been a successful one throughout the province and particularly here in Central Ontario. In this particular region cheese makers were doing an excellent job on producing a safe, palatable cheese for consumers.

FEW LOW-GRADE CHEESE

Of the total production No. 1 grades had numbered 120,224, some 6,118 had been listed as No. 2 and only 172 as No. 3. Defects listed were 1,643 rancid cheese; 1,790 fruity and 1,132 open and loose.

The last defect listed was considered the most important by his department. Among the chief causes for the defect was thought to be culture in milk supplied cheese makers.

"Culture is used its type and propagation has been getting a lot of consideration by all departments," he said.

"All we know now is that we are having too much culture failure," he added.

To eliminate what was thought one of the causes of culture failure—antibiotics — reconstitutions of milk are the future practice will be tried this winter with government assistance.

"We feel that it may be a step in the right direction," he told the meeting.

A reconstitution may give a more satisfactory whey by using the solids contained in the milk from night to 10 per cent.

"It is more or less all the experimental stage in Canada but we feel it has possibilities," he said.

The openness in cheese also was referred by an eastern Ontario cheese instructor, J. F. Robinson, who noted it as one of the serious defects in the industry in that part of the province. "Cultures," he said, "were almost the direct cause of this condition."

"I feel there is also special effort should be made to get a good source of reliable culture supply," he said.

A subject which sparked much discussion at the morning session was the use of a proper type of cheese box, the bulk of it revolving around a new plywood box, which has been used several times in overseas shipments.

PLYWOOD BOXES USED

Tabling the report of D. M. Bestlie, associate chief of dairy, products grading and inspection services, H. M. Ward, Dairy Products Division, Quebec, told the meeting of new types of boxes that had been used in overseas shipments during the year.

There were exceptional reports on the condition of the plywood type (dubbed "shadrumps" by the trade) on arrival in Britain after shipment.

Although these reports it would appear that the cheddar has a definite place in the export of "cheese, cheese," the report said. Photographs of the cheesrums on arrival in Britain showed it definitely superior to fibreboard containers and the standard veneer boxes at present the only ones under recognized by government regulations.

Francis Murphy, dairy produce grader, thought if a box was available to get cheese satisfactorily to its destination the government would approve of it and legislate commercial certificates on it.

Charles Heath, secretary to the Ontario Cheese Producers, said "very glowing reports" were still being received about plywood chedrums.

Mr. Ward thought it was logical to presume the department would sponsor any box satisfactory for the export of cheese.

FLYWOOD CHEAPER

Cost of the plywood box is estimated at 75 cents compared to 90 cents for the standard veneer box, but most of the assembling costs of the plywood box this increase would be offset by eliminating breakages, possibility that cheese shrinkage in plywood would fetch a premium price and that increased demand would lower or even eliminate the boxes.

Mr. Heath noted the exporting of cheese had been largely a seller's market to a luxury one and shipping cheese in plywood boxes was no answer to the trade.

"An improved box was in order," he said, adding the trade also was due for a new type of box for the home market.

Mr. Bestlie's report also went on to note the branding of the Canada die on cheese is necessary requirement for export shipments after January 1st, 1956, next year cheese not having the die will be graded in the regular way. A certificate will also be issued nor will the boxes be stamped with the marks. In addition a form will be issued which will enable the factory to collect the premium and which may also be used for trading in Canada.

Makers who would prefer the regular certificates, or whose buyers insist on receiving these, should take up immediately to have their Canada die in proper working order. . ." the report said.

ENTHUSIASM QUITE STRONG

Only other address to the morning session was that by J. F. Robinson, who told the gathering enthusiasm in the industry in Eastern Ontario was quite strong, despite reports.

He also laid particular emphasis on the recent Ottawa Winter Fair cheese show and the mature classes exhibited there.

A sidelight on this was given by Mr. Bain, who lidded those particular classes at the show. He suggested to the cheese makers to hold cheese for maturing down to 38 or 40 degrees until a month or so previous to the show and then increase the temperature.

He also told of aging of aged cheese should be given more time if ladies is to be done its quality. Judges should spend more time ascertaining flavor and tenality in old cheese rather than on its grading as is the case with regular classes.

Mr. Bain also exhibited old cheese should leave the original finish on the cheese," he also cautioned.

Mr. Bain also stressed entry in exhibitions as an important boost to the industry, adding that Ontario cheese producers should be proud of their record in this special.

"Participation in British shows such like that at Olympia, London, was of particular importance in that it placed prize-winning Canadian cheese in competition with the top cheese of other nations," he said.

PASTEURIZED MILK

The possibility that pasteurized milk may one day be required by law for cheddar cheese manufacturing was raised at the afternoon session.

The subject was broached to members in an address by Douglas Bullock of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

One big advantage gleaned from the use of pasteurized milk is that it makes for a more uniform product and also gives a slightly blander yield, he said.

Only a relatively small amount of cheddar now is being made from pasteurized milk because of the cost factor in installing equipment for its utilization and due to the bland flavor it produces in cheese.

However, cheese is the only dairy product in Ontario not required by regulation to use pasteurized milk in its manufacture.

CHEESE CHEESE SOLD

"This practice of selling 'green cheese' to people has possibly led to the cast to consumption of milk-born diseases to the public," he opined.

Such possibilities would be eliminated by pasteurization, he said, adding: "It is possible that some day all milk going into cheddar cheese will be required by law to be pasteurized."

The rest of his address was a lengthy outline of experiments at the Guelph college to reduce the peculiar bland flavor of cheese made from pasteurized milk.

Submitting a view of new and wider horizons to the industry he said a greater variety of cheese than that now being offered would result in increased consumption, in fewer returns to the milk producer and greater chances of profit in manufacturing operations.

He submitted a list of cheese that could be marketed were they available or which could be developed.

Among these was washed curd cheddar, Colby and Brick cheese. Ontario also has the facilities for manufacturing Swiss, Gouda, Edam Limburger and Camembert, he noted.

SHOULD NOT LOSE MARKETS

"It is perhaps sufficient to say that expansion in all the lines should take place just as rapidly as the demand will permit, and that should certainly not lose possible markets to foreign producers by default.

"However diversified manufacturing also requires diversified personnel in the plants and a diversified management. It is the industry is to achieve this state more personnel must be found to fill these positions," he said.

Other speakers at the convention were Dr. Hopkins and Russell Martin, Western Ontario Cheesemakers' Association and Bob Gillam.

Both morning and afternoon sessions were conducted by President Earl McNeil.

A special meeting after the convention again returned Earl McNeil, Moscow, to the presidency and treasurer for the coming season with Mrs. L. Matthews, Belleville, and Murray Heath, Campbellford, as secretary and vice-president respectively.

Directors for the new season are: Tom Wannamaker, Demorestville; Bert Jones, Belleville; Robert Rowe, Hallowey; Harold Elliott, Foxboro; Roy Huffman, Cobourg; and Claude Reid of Campbellford.

Obituaries

MRS. JOSEPH N. McCAREY

In failing health for a short time, Mrs. Dorcas McCarey, 122 Hastings Drive, Belleville, died in the Private Patients' Pavilion of the Toronto General Hospital late Wednesday evening.

She was born at Arnprior, 43 years ago, daughter of Clarence and Mrs. Priscilla Murphy and the late Oliver Murphy and for the past ten years, with the exception of two spent in Montreal, had resided in this city. She was an active member of the new St. Joseph's parish in the east end of the city and also of the Catholic Women's League. Mrs. McCarey was also interested in the Parent-Teacher Association of the parish.

Surviving are her husband, Joseph N. McCarey; her mother, Mrs. Priscilla Murphy; two sons, Michael and James at home; one brother, Bernard C. Murphy, of Quinzy, and one sister, Mrs. R. (Eunice) Ramsay, of Marathon, Ont.

Resting at the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien, 30 West Moira St., where the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

ALFRED MAGGIE

The funeral of Alfred Maggie was held Saturday, December 3, from the chapel of the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. Rev. W. E. G. Dovey conducted the service.

Interment took place in Belleville cemetery.

The late Alfred Maggie died at his home at Wallbridge on Thursday, December 1st, after being in failing health for some time. He was born in Quebec 64 years ago but had lived in the Wallbridge community practically all his life, where he was well known and highly respected. He had been retired from farming for some years.

Surviving are his wife, the former Hannah Larahy, one daughter, Mrs. Arthur (Bessie) Clare, of Wallbridge; one grandchild and one great grandchild.

MRS. FRANK YOUNG

CONSECON — A large number of friends from this village attended the funeral service of Mrs. Frank Young held at Weaver's Funeral Home, Trenton, with interment in Carrying Place cemetery, on Wednesday, with Rev. G. Rennison officiating.

The late Mrs. Young was for many years a resident of Consecon and was highly respected and honored member of the community. It is with deep regret one learns of her death.

During the last few years she made her home with her daughter, Helen, in Toronto, but as long as her health permitted she returned for brief visits to relatives and friends in this district, and at Carrying Place. Even her health failed she became a patient in the Prindle Nursing Home, Belleville, and later was admitted to Belleville General Hospital.

She is survived by two sons and two daughters. The youngest son, Reggie Young, gave his life in World War II.

WILLIAM J. T. KELLY

The funeral of William J. T. Kelly was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Wednesday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. Keith Daniel, who also said the committal rites at White's cemetery on the Trent Road where interment took place.

PRODUCE MARKET

The egg market was firm on large and steady on other grades. Offerings were lighter with demand steady.

Quotations, provided by the Dominion department of agriculture, in fibre cases, graded: A large 51; A mediums 47-48; A small 41; B 45; C 38. Wholesale to retail: A large 56; A medium 52-53; A small 49; B 50; C 43.

Butter solids: Canada, first grade, Ontario 58; western 59½.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Wednesday's close was 99 15-16 cents. Pound sterling $2.80, unchanged.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trade was slow with few sales made on medium and common slaughter cattle at the Ontario stockyards today.

Receipts: cattle 165; calves 107; hogs 182; sheep and lambs 31; carryover from Wednesday 1,300 common killers, stockers and stock calves.

Prices: medium steers 13-19; commons 12-15; some medium heifers 14-16; commons 12-14; bonus steers and heifers 8-12; a few medium fed yearlings 15-18; commons and medium cows 8-9.50; canners and cutters down to 6. No sales on bulls.

Replacement cattle: medium stockers 15-17.50.

No good and choice veal calves Monday 20-25; commons 12-20; grass calves sold for slaughter 9-12.

Hog prices: grade A 24, two loads 24.50; over 18 dressed 23; stags 13 dressed.

Lambs steady at 20 for good handyweights at 90-100 pounds. Good lambs over 100 pounds discounted 3 a hundredweight and more; bucks discounted 1. Common and medium lambs 18-19; good light sheep 10; yearlings 12; common and heavy sheep 7.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — A mild upward tendency marked first-hour stock exchange dealings today as business continued the slow pace of recent sessions.

Utilities, papers, foods, steels and refining oils moved higher in selective buying. Price changes were small, few issues moving as much as a point, though a 25-share block of Chrysler was off $3.50 at 92½. A lively interest continued in B. A. Oil on rumors of a deal with Canadian Gulf Oil for exploration purposes. The stock advanced at to 35¼ then backed down to 34 with 11,000 shares traded.

Between 75 cents and $1 ahead were Ford A, Gatineau and Powell River. Bank of Nova Scotia slipped 75 cents.

Gains in mines were noted chiefly among lower-priced issues. A few retreated in profit-taking. Base metals posting advances up to 10 cents included Golden Manitou, Copperstone, International Rankwick and Mentor.

Falconbridge added ¾ among the seniors.

In golds, Pato was up 15 at $3.30 and Thompson-Lundmark 10 ahead at $190. Most of the traded uranians advanced but only pennies. Algom added ¼.

Griddl led western oils higher, up 65 at $9.40. Husky and United Oils were other winners. Canadian Williston eased a dime at $2.05.

Hearing Aids For Needy Are Being Sought

The National Society of the Deaf and the Hard of Hearing is seeking used hearing aids for the use of those who are unable to purchase this equipment. Cash donations will also be welcome to purchase aids for children, who are supplied with new aids only. The Society's address is 2 Bloor Street East, Toronto 5.

"Many persons who desperately need a hearing aid cannot possibly afford to buy one. They range from preschool children to those on Old Age Security. It may be a mother in the low income group, or one who needs a hearing aid means employment.

"The Society receives requests for aids from hospital clinics, otologists, departments of welfare and public health and other health and welfare agencies.

"Two things are necessary before an aid is provided by the Society. The recommendation of an otologist — and the assurance that purchase of an instrument is not possible.

"Due to the special interest of newspaper columnists, Daughters of the Empire, hospital auxiliaries, women's institutes, service clubs, hearing aid manufacturers, distributors and dealers — it is impossible to name them all — the Society has received many excellent hearing aids.

"Today we seek the donation of transistor hearing aids because of the burden of battery cost, frequent repair and dearth of parts on older vacuum tube aids.

"With the latest models now on the market, these earlier transistor models are frequently being turned in on exchange and the dealer would receive our sincere thanks for any of these transistor aids he or his customer may send on to us. Some dealers, feeling they do not wish to offer their customers the older models, still held on inventory, have sent them in to us. As well, many ultheartedly persons have mailed in an aid no longer in use and they, along with the dealers, have been the means of bringing much happiness to many who, without this generosity, would have spent another lonely year.

"For children, where purchase is impossible, we seek the aid of other organizations, and cash donations, as children are supplied with brand new transistor hearing aids only."

Chief Probert Warns Of Impersonator

A sharp warning to city merchants to pay strict attention to cheques handed in over their counters was issued here today by police chief Walter Probert.

Chief Probert's warning followed the alerting of district police to another alleged cheque artist who may be operating in this area.

This time, the chief stated, it is Harry Ernest Huestis, who is using clerical garb in his attempt to dupe victims.

Police say Huestis is posing as a Roman Catholic priest, and is attired even to the correctness of a clerical collar. He is posing as a "Father J. A. Sullivan" (who is native of Burwash Industrial farm) and possibly "Father J. A. McMann."

He is reported to be a smooth talker and buys expensive merchandise. Toronto police hold a warrant for his arrest.

In issuing his statement Chief Probert particularly emphasized that this is the busy season of the year, and one also when much temporary, inexperienced help is hired to supplement sales staffs.

All merchants and store personnel should be on the alert against attempts to pass fake cheques.

Police Bulletin

With the exception of a fatality at Marmora (reported elsewhere) the OPP detachments had only routine matters to deal with.

City police also experienced much the same kind of night. One man reported to police he had run over a dog at the corner of Church and St. Paul Streets. Police still are investigating the find of a young boy who came upon two electric drills on the Bay shore near Foster Avenue.

Art Exhibition Will Be Shown At Trinity College

Artists interested in the Central Ontario Amateur Art Exhibition are asked to attend a meeting to be held in the council chambers, city hall, on Friday evening.

Port Hope and Cobourg are sponsoring the opening of the Central Ontario Travelling Amateur Art Show at Trinity College, Port Hope, on February 27th.

An interest in last year's show was so great that 74 centres in Central Ontario have invited it back again. Last year's inaugural exhibit, which opened in Belleville, toured the district from Oshawa to Kingston and north to Peterborough and Haliburton and was viewed by nearly 3,000 people.

Aim of the show is to create an interest in painting and to increase appreciation of art throughout the district.

Management committee for the 1955-56 season is composed of: J. E. H. Munro, of Peterborough; D. G. Stewart, of Port Hope; Mrs. R. F. Richardson of Port Hope; Walter C. Bernard of Collins Bay; Miss Joan Lambert of Oshawa; Miss Mary Moult of Belleville and Mrs. Margaret O'Connor of Madoc.

GRANT CLEMENCY

HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP)—United States army headquarters announced today that it will grant Christmas clemency to soldier-prisoners in its European rehabilitation centre whose terms are due to expire by Jan. 15. The number of prisoners eligible for release before the holidays was not announced.

Truck Is Upset, Driver Unhurt

Robert Boyd, 19, of R.R. 3, Belleville, escaped with little more than a shaking up early today when his empty livestock transport left the highway 4 mile west of the city, struck a culvert and a hydro pole and overturned in the south ditch.

Driver for Holland Livestock Transport, Mr. Boyd told police that he had been blinded by approaching headlights with the result that his big truck veered off the pavement of the roadway and struck the culvert.

The truck struck the culvert with heavy impact and was almost completely wrecked. The trailer and his livestock rack were damaged to the extent of about $1,000. A headlight from the tractor was found on a lawn three houses away.

Provincial Constable G. M. Robertson investigated.

SLOGAN OF NON-CONFORMITY

The Kingston Whig-Standard quotes, with approval, the words of Sidney Hook, from New York University, in an address at the meeting of the Eastern Association of Deans and Officers of Administration. "What is commendable in dissent as such?" asked this philosopher, as he assailed what he termed a new slogan often heard in educational quarters, "the importance of non-conformism."

"The production of conformists or of non-conformists, is not the business of the schools," says the Whig-Standard, stating that what is required is independent judgment.

The Whig-Standard is, of course, right. And yet there is a grave danger that its argument may be misinterpreted.

One of the first Canadian educationists to sound the cry for non-conformity was, we believe, Dr. Sydney Smith, president of the University of Toronto. For who have read Dr. Smith's addresses will labor under the misapprehension that he is the kind of man who regards dissent as positive proof of intellectual watchfulness. Yet his call for non-conformity was timely. Our minds differ so widely that, where everyone uses independent judgment, some are certain to dissent from the opinions of the many. It follows that, where there are no non-conformists, there must be many who are not independent in their judgments.

Yet is not by thinking of one or the other (conformity or non-conformity) as an aim to be achieved or as an ill to be avoided, but simply by helping students to think with independence and thoroughness for themselves," says the Whig-Standard. "Independence means not being afraid to agree or disagree with anybody. Today such a state of mind requires not only courage but the sturdy belief in the superiority of reason over habit-thinking and slogans, but the skills, such as reading and speaking the language, which will give that courage the weapons it must have."

It was because too many of us were growing afraid to agree or disagree with certain persons and groups that Dr. Smith urged intellectual watchfulness, with the utility and heartening. But to make a creed of unconformity would, of course, be merely to endeavor to make dissent, instead of assent, popular; to change the nature of the pattern to which people were being urged to conform.

SHOULD PRESERVE ACCESS TO LAKES

"We'd like to see a definite program laid down for the preservation of free access to our lakes by the general public," declared the Toronto Telegram in a recent editorial.

The Telegram's comment was occasioned by remarks at a recent meeting of the Bruce Peninsula Resorts Association, at which a member pointed out that there was at least one lake in the area which was "virtually inaccessible to the casual visitor unless he trespasses on private property."

What has been happening in the Bruce Peninsula could happen in North Hastings. The time to make certain that the general public always has access to its many lakes is now, before they are all dotted with cottages, rather than later, when owners of the land find a brisk demand for lakeshore lots.

Owners of property around these lakes should not be blamed for a natural desire to make a profit by the sale of lots. There is no good reason why they should provide the general public with access to these lakes free of any charge. On the other hand, to permit all these lakes to be fringed with "No Trespassing" signs would be, as the Toronto Telegram says, to rob our children of a portion of their national heritage. Fortunately there are enough lakes in North Hastings to make it possible to satisfy the needs and desires of everyone. A little planning would make it possible to assure cottagers of privacy, to provide tourists with good bathing and boating and to preserve for the nature lover a few secluded spots unspoiled by man and his "progress."

Only to assure that the public will always have access to some lake or beach in any district, it will be necessary for some public body to purchase small tracts of lakeshore property, easily accessible by road, and set these tracts aside for public use.

The only question which remains to be settled is what branch of government should take the required action. This is one field in which the Federal Government cannot be saddled with the responsibility. It belongs either to the townships or the province. Several Bruce Peninsula townships have made a start by setting aside small areas of beach and picnic grounds on the Lake Huron shore. This is a praiseworthy action. Still, the townships could argue, with sound logic, that most of the people using these areas will not be residents of the township and that the cost of providing these areas should not be borne out of township taxes. It would be fairer, and probably safer, if the responsibility were assumed by the province. In that way it would be possible to follow a uniform policy throughout Ontario.

THE GIFT OF MEMORY

Of all the gifts which God has given to warm and cheer
The soul of man
The gift of memory is supreme,
the crowning jewel in His plan.

Without it all that's good would fade and love would have no tenderness
There'd be no keepsakes of the past, no little shoes or faded dress

Without the gift of memory
To nurture joy by-gone delights,
The hours would lonely be and long, and dull and dreary all our nights.

The dead would then be truly dead and lost to us beyond recall,
And every joy which we have claimed would vanish when the shadows fall.

Friends would be ours for just a day, their gifts would be treasured be.
We could not read the splendid past without the book of memory.

And every deed of greatness here which makes the world a better place
Could not endure to thrill and rouse the children of a future race.

God's precious gift of comfort for the lonely mother when she weeps.

His inspiration for the brave, His pledge divine which makes it sure
That love is an immortal joy and all that's good shall long endure.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 8, 1935

Mrs. Maude Elliott, Bridge Street, was hostess at an enjoyable euchre and bridge party under the auspices of Bethlehem Shrine on Monday. The first prizes were won as follows: Mrs. Fred Woodley, Mrs. Harry Carmichael, Miss Irene Ethier, Mrs. Arthur Snare, Mrs. Tom Lynch and Mrs. Albert Crew. Winners at euchre were: ladies' first, Mrs. Dugald Bennett, Miss Bell, Mrs. Williamson; men's first, William Coles, second, G. Adams, third, R. D. Adams.

Three constables on the local police force appeared on the streets today wearing tall fur caps, which are the latest thing in the winter. The caps certainly make the constables appear much taller and more imposing.

From files of this date in 1915: The managers of the two leagues drafted the rules in uniform, so that if the weather remain cold the alleys will be open for business next Monday evening. (Note 1935). The alleys were, one near the "Devil's Elbow" on West Dundas St., and the other in the rear of properties at the foot of William Street. The sport was very popular in the 'nineties, and gentlemen, boys and girls who engaged in the sport looked very smart in their white blanket outfits, toques and colored sashes.

December 8, 1925

Belleville has elected Robert J. E. Graham, barrister, over Harry Greenleaf as mayor for the year 1926 and has selected what appears to be one of the strongest and most representative councils in many years. Only one member of last year's council was returned in the person of Robert Gourley, who served part of last year. Two left the council to run for council to nine members for a term of two years, the remainder for one vote being 1644 in favor and 1740 against the by-law. The by-law to lease the site was not an English company for thirty years was carried with a majority of 1071 votes; the vote being 2224 for and 1153 against. The votes cast for Mayor were 2373 for Graham and 1355 for Greenleaf. The aldermanic election resulted in the following order: Wilmot, Duff, Ross, Connell, Gordon, Hall, Sinclair, Dr. Proctor, Hyde, Gourly, Cherry, Walker, A. B. Collins, and J. L. B. Wallbridge. The following candidates for aldermen were defeated: Trevertus, Rollins, Patterson, Macaulay, Tice, Foster, Rutan, Thompson, Rowsome, A. H. Ketcheson, Panter, F. Harrison, Robinson, G. E. Ketcheson, D. Harrison, C. Bumstead, Parish and Ashley. For public school trustee, Mrs. A. A. McFee defeated Mr. McCorvery in Samson Ward by 106 votes and in Bridge Ward for public trustee W. Harvey defeated Rowland Pearce by 117 votes.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MIND DREGS

We all know about dregs. Dregs are the waste bottom of things. No good, the useless sediment. Maybe I got to wondering about this as I read in my library, and stopped to think the matter over. I wonder if the mind doesn't have its dregs, too—with thoughts and opinions long made idle and outworn.

The mind dilates, spreads its substance, and there's continuing activity that it may earn its best health and vigor. With other parts in there is a slowing up of all activity and no improvement is created. Useless thoughts, bitterness, regrets sordidness and a refusal to cultivate this mind of ours, leave dregs within.

We can expect little health and happiness so long as these dregs remain in the mind. A new job, new experiences, or the chance meeting of a person who has succeeded in instilling ambition and interest in another, can so change that one that the long held dregs mysteriously disappear! Good thoughts always drive out bad ones.

The measure of a man is gained by finding out just what he carries around in his mind. Make no mistake, by and large, no one mind is there and a little testing will prove the fact. There were no dregs in the mind of the schoolmaster that Oliver Goldsmith wrote about in his famous book "The Deserted Village," for this is the way he wrote of him: "With words of learned length and thundering sound, amazed the gazing rustics ranged around: and still their sage led, and still the wonder grew that one small head could carry all he knew."

There are no dregs in the mind of the one who is always alert and with a ready mind to grasp any new thought or truth. There wasn't any room in the mind of Shakespeare for any dregs. A clean tongue, and a clean heart know no dregs.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

(Sudbury Star)

The weakness of municipal government, or its strength, lies in the men and women elected to office by the people. Mayor Leon Dragon, of Montreal, sees the loss of power on the part of municipalities as the "evidence of the dreadful excess of the democratic idea."

What kind of excess does he describe? The election of citizens themselves to municipal councils who seem to believe their office is the instrument by which they can help their friends. It is the lack of vigorous action on the part of citizens alone to keep the municipal officials aware of the eyes watching their every move. It is the theirs of elected and appointed representatives to pay no heed to petitions for office for reasons other han the better inspiration to be of service to the municipality.

Very few elected and appointed municipal representatives are the students of economy or political philosophy. They are people that in their demands for greater assistance from the state they also sacrifice by so much the municipal autonomy.

If municipal control is slipping away and getting into the hands of the senior levels of government it is because the elected representatives have shown a disinclination to fight the encroachments. Convention speeches do not restore that which is lost. It is the determination that counts and there are a few municipal councils today that know strength and power only by the united and active support of the electorate.

The fault lies not with the senior levels of government, but with the municipal governments which permitted the imposition of other than essential standards, which invited the loss of municipal authority, without raising a voice in protest.

Housewives' Visit Urged

(Democratic Digest)

An American housewife suggests an exchange of delegations of American and Russian housewives to promote better understanding between the two nations.

We can hardly wait for the Russian ladies to get over here, learn the American vocabulary, get our secrets, and return to Russia. Communism may be temporarily forgotten, but we doubt if it can hold up long against a determined phalanx of housewives armed with brooms and mops.

There's the only kulaks in the entire collective who don't have a work-hog model. Or a water drouth with power steering."

Yes, sir, send those Russian housewives over. They'll probably discover they haven't a single stitch fit to wear in the street, it's time their husbands knew about it.

Moreover, it should shake the belligerency of any husband when he discovers his wife's day's shopping at the Kremlin to find a note pinned on the samovar: "Comrade husband: Have gone bowling. Love, Olga's. There's plenty of Pride of the Steppes Cold Frozen Borsch in the refrigerator."

Peter Rabbit Has It Tough

(Hamilton Spectator)

There was a news story from Jersey City recently of rather sad significance for men and animals alike. Mr. Peter Rabbit of Jersey Hill was arrested on a stolen car charge after two cops had been fired during a wild police chase. He was run down in the back yard by police record. He explained: "Every time you guys ask me my name and I say Peter Rabbit you look me up for being a wise guy."

The obvious moral is that parents should refrain from giving their defenceless offspring names to expose them to laughter when they have become adults among the class room. A case history of young Mr. Rabbit's responses to his name would make an interesting study in psychology. For instance, what girl would proudly "date" a Peter Rabbit? And was his name a real factor in the police record, or was he using it as a sort of defence mechanism to excuse his delinquencies — or was it a complex of both?

At this rate the parents appeared anxious to perpetuate a name which had been that of Peter's father and grandfather. Or Peter III was born as recently as 1930 and might have argued now that his growing up would not be helped by the use of the association of his name with Beatrix Potter's or Thornton W. Burgess' beloved characters. It is a short leap to racket.

A check of the Hamilton directory reveals no Rabbits (note that capital R) in this city. But until such time as an unusual name becomes a mark of distinction rather than of ridicule, parents everywhere might ponder the Jersey City case and its implications. How much better off Peter would have been with a name like Wesley or Ralph Smith. All Ducks and Mousey —if any — please note.

Yesteryear's 'Hired Girl'

(Grundy, Iowa, Register)

Remember the "hired girl" of your childhood? She usually came from the country, or she might be an immigrant girl. Every Yuletide she might happen to be a vigorous Irish girl, red cheeked and black haired, who wielded a mighty broom and rolling pin.

Seven days a week she was on the job, doing the washing and ironing, the cooking, the cleaning, and the dishwashing.

Unless she had a steady beau, she doubled as a baby sitter in the evenings, and her young clients found that Rosie or Hilda or Amanda could tell wonderful bedtime stories. At the end of seven 12-hour days she would receive gratefully her week's wages — all of three dollars, or maybe four.

Most outstanding of all the "hired girl" era was the fact that she lived with the family. Nobody would get married so that she could work 12 hours a day for nothing.

Tax Collector Gets Laughs

(Philadelphia Inquirer)

Internal revenue agents report that they have a sense of humor, as might be supposed. It has its comic side.

For instance, an agent down in Alabama asked a laborer if a woman listed as a dependent on his tax return was his wife.

"Naturally," was the man replied. "But I feed her, clothes her, pays her doctor's bills and give her spending money. Sure she's listed as a 'disability'!"

Down on the Mexican border, an agent checked over a form 1040 filled out by a bright eyed miss of Spanish descent.

"I don't see anything wrong with your form", the agent said.

"Ah, you like — yes?" she asked, flirting her long lashes coyly.

A Philadelphia taxpayer summoned for questioning about his tax return, had a blind two dependents. He explained that one was his mother-in-law, the other a dog.

"That's too bad", the agent said, "you claim a bigger deduction for the dog than for your mother-in-law." Which is the one we are going to have to disallow."

Cut Infant Death Rate

(Canada's Health and Welfare)

It is likely that a good majority of the readers of this magazine, we've alive 29 years ago. That they were born in 1926 is evidence that luck was with them. For in 1926 one baby in every 10 died before its first birthday. One of every 20 died before it was one month old. In 1955 the picture is the reverse. The figures for neonatal and infant mortality have fallen to one in twenty. Yet another figure is of interest. Less than 10 per cent of all births now born in hospital. And the maternal mortality rate was 5.7 pod 1,000 live births.

To jump to 1953, the proportion of births in hospital had risen to 83.4 just reversing the figures for 1926. Maternal mortality has dropped to 0.8 per 1,000 live births. The rate of drop is reflected in the decrease of still birthes—from a rate of 30.2 per 1,000 in 1926 to a rate of 16.7 in 1953.

The rate of live births has actually increased in the face of the age decrease in our population as a whole. In 1926 the rate was 24.1 per 1,000 of population, while in 1953 it was 28.2. It has been steadily increasing since the depression lows of around 20.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

We wonder If newspaper readers caught the real significance of a Grey Cup picture appearing on the editorial page of a recent edition of The Toronto Telegram. The picture showed three players of the victorious Edmonton team holding the Grey Cup and grouped together, arms around one another. Or three lads shown, one was Chinese, one was a Negro and one was an Anglo Saxon. Even twenty years ago such a picture simply wouldn't have been available.

In many ways organized sport has led the way in smashing down racial and color barriers. "This is as it should be."

How The Y.W.'s Go For X-Rays

When I say I believe X-ray pictures nine times out of ten are useless, prove nothing, though they cost plenty, I mean to imply that X-ray examination is in order and worth the price only when a doctor knows the patient's medical history and present complaint advises it.

From the eagerness of Y. W.'s (customers who consult a phony "public" in preference to a doctor who practices under his own name) for whatever X-ray "study" the racketeer can sell them, it seems evident that many persons with more money than brains imagine X-rays, especially the de luxe kind available only far from home, reveal the nature or cause of a complaint which defies the ordinary doctors back home.

But notwithstanding all the front page, news bureau advertising the clinic racketeers get without cost, one detects as much or more benefit from an examination by the doctor or doctors back home at half the cost of a week at the big "clinic."

For a few days ago I began to have frequent nagging north-eastern bellyaches, nothing to cry about, but just enough to make me worry about—never mind what I thought I might have. So I've it's a serious matter when you have to ask another bowler to take your place so you can sit down and indulge in some intensive worrying.

After a few weeks of this Micky, Lalla Rookh and the Young Snip didn't ask me or urge me or plead with me to go and see a doctor. They made an appointment with a doctor whose capability commands my respect and confidence.

After a careful, general examination including whatever blood chemistry measurements the doctor thought worth while, he said frankly he hadn't the ghost of but in my place he'd have an G I series (observing an opaque meal slicing down the alimentary canal ing through the maw etc.) just on the off chance chance of what the doctor didn't say.

From a study of the film the doctor came to the conclusion that two or three small trial-size diverticula (pouches or pockets) at various points along the alimentary canal might account for the bellyaches—food lodging in a pocket and setting up inflammation there. Of course that was hypothetical for most persons have a diverticulum or two and never say trouble from it.

Anyway I didn't worry any more and I quit bellyaching too.

Three months later, which after all was said and done, I recalled a likely explanation that should have occurred to me in the very first place. I believe now that my bellyache was caused by inflammation of roots of spinal nerves) or intercostal neuralgia (Ouch, spinal nerves whilst in between the ribs and supply sensation to the skin over chest and belly). But more about that anon.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Now, remember: on your Christmas shopping list this time, don't forget to buy two or three spare gifts for the first person, the people you overlooked, the ones who send you a gift at the last minute.

After you have made up your list to the last possible name, just write:

"Somebody."

And then lay in a small store of two or three gifts more. You'll be given away, will come in handy any way. A good book, a box of candy or cigarettes, a couple of hankies, a cigarette lighter that, if not especially useful, nobody else can save to give as a prize at next year's regatta up at the cottage.

For somebody is almost certain to turn up, particularly about nine p.m. Christmas Eve. There will come a ring at the door, and a stranger will hand in a package all done up in the tradition.

"Now, who's this from?" you will demand, as you close the door on the stranger and turn towards the gleaming tree.

For you know full well you are getting presents from. They are naturally the ones to whom you have sent gifts. And here's an odd thing about it.

So, contrary to all Santa Claus's rules and regulations, you open the package just the least bit.

"Oh, it's another for Uncle Sophie!" you cry. "Why, Sophie and I have not exchanged gifts in years!"

Well, the normal procedure then is to open the gift and then start rummage through the packages until you come to one intended for somebody else, and then, quite sadly and hastily re-package it, with a card to Sophie, and then start looking for somebody around the house, preferably a stranger to Sophie, to deliver it to her about 11 p.m.

The exchange of Christmas gifts commences with the gifts the wise Men bore, Kaspar, Melchior and Balthasar. Maybe three gifts are enough to take for Somebody.

Far though it was long, long ago, and the age of miracles has passed away, there still the Somebody at your door.

In this column we have often spoken about habits. Most of us all fallen into the bad habit of taking life's most precious and wonderful things for granted.

Yet nobody has the slightest idea what this power is that turns the earth or what the power is that causes the earth to revolve in a certain orbit and never deviate from it. If it deviated only a little, the most dire calamities would take place. Some County Council Members Impatient Over Delay In Starting Development Road

Hastings county councillors are becoming impatient with the delay in commencing the construction of the northern section of Mack-Foxboro county road as a road development project.

This was indicated Wednesday afternoon at the December session of county council following the reading of the road committee report, Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc township enquired, when construction could be expected to start.

He was told by Roads committee chairman, Reeve Harry Morrow of Sidney township, that details in the purchase of the right-of-way in the vicinity of the Moira Lake was taking considerably more time than had anticipated due to the complexity of working out equities claimed by lessees, who had rented properties for long periods.

Reeve Sager replied he wasn't criticizing the road committee but wanted assurance the job was being kept moving.

Reeve Charles Bunkard of Deloro also wanted to know when work could be expected to get started. He suggested the highway department had appraisers, who might be secured to arrange for land purchase and in that way speed up completion of details.

The reeve also asked if it would be possible to get ahead with construction of other sections of the road, while waiting for details of land purchase in the lake area to be cleared up.

Reeve William Davis of Wicklow and Bangor said the county should not consider obtaining government appraisers as the highways department worked on a different policy of determining land values than did the county.

77 1-8 MILES SEALED

"We might get ourselves into trouble," he suggested.

The road committee report dealt with the work carried on by the roads department during the first ten months of the year under county engineer Larry Langlois.

A total of 17 1-2 miles of surface treatment had been done along with a record amount of resurfacing mainly the result of excessive break-up and damages last spring.

Development road projects including the gaining of two and a half miles on the westerly end of the Foxboro-Frankford road, grading of two and a half miles of the Tweed-Stoco road; and grading of a portion of the remaining half mile to be completed on the Frankford- Foxboro Road.

Grading on this section was held up due to the opinion of the county solicitor that a by-law should be passed by council instead of merely carrying out expropriation proceedings on the authority of a notice by the committee.

The expropriation proceedings were ordered by the road committee after no agreement could be reached with respect to right-of-way required from the Longwell property. Reeve Langlois said that it was too late now for completion of the work but possible additional grading could be done if good weather prevails following the council session.

New construction for the year included elimination of two blind knolls near Deloro village; additional fill for the approaches to the railway crossing between Deloro and "Mudcat Lane" elimination of a right angle turn at Shirley's corner in Madoc township laying 6" hot mix pavement on Colborne and Jamieson streets in Tweed, and on two short sections of Road No. 15 at Marlbank.

Also a section of the Shannonville sideroad between the third and fourth concessions was rebuilt.

NEW ROAD FOREMAN

Other small regrading jobs including that at the C.P.R. crossing near Black Creek on the Tweed-Sulphide road, were also completed.

Mr. Herbert Radnor of Crookston had been appointed as general road foreman following the accidental death of Mr. Joseph Haight.

Council passed two resolutions pertaining to agriculture. One called for the dairy industry to be given additional tariff protection for dairy products, and the other was a request for the livestock branch of the department of agriculture to give financial assistance to hog producers wishing to introduce Swedish Land Race type hogs.

In presenting the latter resolution Deputy Reeve Harold Varty of Hungerford township, said he had given the matter considerable study and felt the introduction of such type hogs would be beneficial. "These hogs," he said, "grew faster, were a better bacon type and were hardier than the Yorkshire hogs."

"They would not compete with the Yorkshire hogs but would be an improvement on them," he agreed. Deputy Reeve Chas. Long of Tyendinaga township seconded the resolution.

Deputy Reeve Alfred Wickett of Thurlow gave a brief report as chairman of the publicity committee. He said the county had co-operated with the Belleville chamber of commerce in publishing a tourist booklet advertising the county and pointed to the need for advertising by the tourist resort owners in the northern part of the county.

The need for additional court room accommodation in the county was briefly discussed by councillors following the reading of a letter from Mr. Justice Wilson who sat at Supreme Court in Belleville recently. The sitting of the Supreme Court took place at the same time county court was in session before County Judge J. C. Anderson and the Supreme Court sittings were held in the council chambers at Shire Hall.

In his letter Mr. Justice Wilson pointed out that with the increase in population, sittings of both Supreme Court and County Court at the same time might become increasingly frequent. He said serious consideration should be given for provision of additional courtroom accommodation.

Reeve W. Davis wanted to know if there was any space available at the court house which might be turned into additional court space.

Reeve Earl Sager as finance committee chairman, said he was investigating the matter, but could see no immediate urgency. He suggested that until such time as additional courtroom space was provided Supreme Courts and County Courts might be staggered so they would not interfere.

Case Enlarged For One Week

Charged with criminal negligence in the October 25, highway accident that took the life of William Cleary, R.R. 4, Belleville, Garfield Buchanan of Toronto will appear in court next week.

The case was enlarged in county court this morning by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Robert Temple is representing the Cleary family, while it is understood Douglas Haines, Toronto lawyer, will represent the accused.

Buchanan also faces a charge of careless driving.

Cleary was fatally injured after his car was involved in an accident with a transport driven by Buchanan, on the four-lane highway east of Belleville.

The case against three district youths, charged with breaking, entering and theft of the Pascoe general store at Melrose last week, was enlarged for special hearing next Monday.

Charged with illegal possession of liquor, John Douglas Free of Trenton, was fined $163.50.

Five Women Bowlers Qualify In Tournament

Five women bowlers from Belleville were included in the top fifty of the 143 who took part in the qualifying round in the Ontario's Bowling Classic on Saturday.

Leading the ladies was Jean Mulvihill who finished sixth with the score of 1144; Lois McRoberts, ninth with 1136; Mabel Saunders, 33rd with 995; Doris McLean, 40th with 975 and Babe Hardwick, 46th with 962.

Mesdames Mulvihill, James and Hardwick are members of the Zombies team in the Quinte Mixed League of the city. Doris McLean also plays with a team of the Quinte League.

The five ladies will take part in the regional play scheduled for February when the top six scorers will represent the region in singles and team play.

Council Approves Property Purchase For Parking

TRENTON — (Special) — Town council Wednesday night discussed at length the pros and cons connected with the properties on Front Street considered for use as a downtown parking lot. The area involved includes land owned by B. W. Powers and Sons Ltd., Riverside Dairy Products and O. G. "Buster" Alyea.

At the end of the talks the by-law authorizing the mayor and town clerk to sign the options of purchase was given the first and second reading. Now the Municipal Board has to approve the arrangement before the $50,000 authority is given.

Councillor N. J. McNair who retired from the council race this year continued strong opposition to the idea of buying the land. He stressed that the people should be given a vote on the spending of $25,000. He maintained that the remaining $50,000 for the B. W. Powers' land was far in excess of the real value. He based his argument on the assessor's report in July.

Councillor Robert Smithman made known that he was against the town buying land for parking without a vote by the people. He explained that he favored the plan for increased parking facilities but thought the majority should be given the privilege to decide.

Four councillors including Gerald Weaver, James MacDonald, Claude Graham and Joe Gould expressed opinions in favor of the town going ahead with the project. Mayor Ross Burtt said if he had the opportunity of voting he would be on the side of councillors McNair and Smithman.

Council vote 4-3 in favor of Council voted 4-3 in favor of giving the by-law first and second readings.

Member Speaks To County Council

Member of the Older Boys' Parliament from South Hastings, Craig Watson, 20, of Bawdon Township, was interpreter when the Hastings County councillors Wednesday afternoon by Reeve Theodore Cooney. Craig spoke briefly to council outlining the activity of the Older Boys' Parliament.

Active in church and Sunday school work and in young people's endeavors, Craig attended high school at Wellman's Corners and at Stirling high school. Craig's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Watson and his brother, Lorne, were also introduced to council by Reeve Cooney.

Toy Helicopter, Jet-Propelled, For Prince Charles

Queen Elizabeth bought the toy from Harrods department store. The copter has twin jet cartridges on the tips of its rotor blades, and can rise 100 feet from the ground.

The Queen admired the toy when she saw a jet-propelled toy space ship. She decided it was too big for Charles, who will have to use his imagination for interplanetary transport when he wears the space suit he got for his seventh birthday. He is an ardent fan of television space heroes.

The Queen spent a happy half-hour in Harrods toyland, chatting with salesgirls and trying out some of the toys herself.

HEARING POSTPONED

MONTREAL (CP)—Preliminary hearing of four narcotic charges against Mrs. Lillian Pursey, wife of a British member of Parliament,—were postponed Wednesday to Dec. 16. She is to stand trial Dec. 14 on a narcotics-possession charge.

For the 5th consecutive year the Y's Men's Club of Belleville will conduct their annual Christmas tree sale beginning Dec. 14, 1955. The lot is located at Belleville's Church Street Parking lot. The proceeds from the sale of these trees are used by the Y's Men's Club for boys' work in the local area.

Controversy Features Chamber Of Commerce Public Meeting

TRENTON (Special)—The directors of the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night voted against Donald J. Sutherland holding the office of president for the remainder of the term. Acting president Eben James was absent.

Last week a bulletin issued by the Chamber reported that Mr. Sutherland, then in hospital, had tendered his resignation. A newspaper story later indicated the Chamber had a letter to that effect from Mr. Sutherland. Subsequently Mr. James, an aspirant for council, was named acting president and an announcement was made in the local press.

Mr. Sutherland denied signing any letter. However he did acknowledge that two directors of the Chamber of Commerce, Jack Goldberg and Lyle Carr, brought a letter to the hospital for him to sign four days after he had undergone an operation. Mr. Goldberg and Mr. Carr reported to a dinner meeting the same night that Mr. Sutherland had given them to understand that he would offer his resignation as soon as he left the hospital. Mr. Sutherland scored the announcement in the bulletin as published was written prior to the visit by the two directors.

Mr. Carr looked at Mr. Sutherland and said "I figured you'd take the graceful way out."

"I don't have any reason to take the graceful way out" replied Mr. Sutherland.

Director Paul Tripp reported that the directors decided by a vote they had no confidence in the president. Mr. Sutherland asked what was behind his decision, "I am at a loss to make any reasons known at this time" Mr. Tripp retorted.

RESIGNATION OF HEALTH

Director Robert Cretney said he thought the directors acted because Mr. Sutherland's health. "I don't think you should be here tonight," he explained. "We are trying to save you publicity," referred Mr. Tripp.

Mr. Sutherland asked to have a motion covering Eben James' appointment to acting president pro-tem changed. The directors tried vainly to explain the meaning of the word pro-tem. Finally one director called to a man in the crowd for the definition.

At one point in the heated discussions between Mr. Sutherland and the directors, Mr. Goldberg stood up and asked: "All you fellows were there, why don't you get up and say what you meant at that meeting."

Mr. Sutherland agreed that it was his intention to resign personally before the board of directors. "That's antidpate a letter being brought to me," he said.

Mr. Sutherland requested the directors to make one of three decisions. "Either reinstate me, fire me, or give me a vote of confidence," he asked. One director wanted to know how an acting president could be appointed when the president had not resigned. Director William House explained, quoting from the by-laws of the Chamber.

Mr. Sutherland accused certain directors of talking behind his back. He said that he was aware that the directors were holding secret meetings. He talked about the good he could do for Trenton. He felt the Chamber of Commerce should play an important part in the town's progress.

VOTE REQUESTED

A director requested a vote of confidence for the president. Mr. Sutherland asked for a show of hands. He was informed the voting would be facilitated by secret ballot.

Acting secretary Herb Smith advised Mr. Sutherland that the meeting was not in his favor. Mr. Sutherland asked for the report in the Chamber's favor against. The directors refused his request.

In closing his remarks Mr. Sutherland stated: "I don't like to take the easy way out. I will not lightly abide by the decision of the directors, providing their procedure has been proper. I will check. I hope these discussions have had no ill effects on the Chamber. Would you please put in the paper I got fired.

Earlier, director William House indicated that he would tender his resignation in the morning. He said he offered his service knowing what had transpired in Trenton in the past. "It is getting back to the same stale or affairs," he stated. Director Jim Alexander stated he would follow with his resignation. Directors Goldberg and Carr joined in with indications that their resignations would be forthcoming.

In one of the lulls during the meeting Mr. Sutherland read a letter from Central Bridge seeking information about the Citizens' Committee which came to light at the end of the municipal election.

Mr. Sutherland also said that he had not asked that the Chamber of Commerce chair the annual nomination meeting.

He denied an accusation he said came from the directors of the Chamber of Commerce that he had corresponded with Conservatives Party leader George Drew on Chamber of Commerce stationery.

Labor Retains Seat in Britain

GATESHEAD, Eng. (CP) — The Labor party Wednesday retained Gateshead West seat in the Commons in the first by-election since the Conservative party won its sweeping general election victory in May.

Harry Randall, a national officer of the Union of Post Office workers and member of Parliament for Clitheroe from 1949 to 1950, polled 13,196 votes to his Conservative opponent's 8,661. The Conservative candidate, David Arnold Wright, was also defeated in the May election when he was a candidate at Chester-le-Street.

Christmas Theme Highlights Tabernacle Church Bazaar, Tea

Two tall sentinels dressed in red with tall hats, and bearing as arms, huge candy canes, guarded the approach of Santa's sleigh and his gleaming white sleigh, drawn by galloping reindeer as he neared the entrance to the Christmas bazaar and tea, yesterday afternoon in Tabernacle United church assembly room. Inside, each large pillar had been transformed by twisting skeleton of berry Santa Clauses standing atop brick chimneys, while around one side another Santa Claus was seen speeding across the brown velvet drapes in the yellow sleigh by brown reindeer in single file.

Into this Yuletide-spirited atmosphere the thronging guests and patrons were smilingly welcomed by Mrs. R. A. Doherty, wife of the pastor of the church, the Rev. R. A. Rowley, who had officially opened the bazaar by thanking those who had worked so faithfully during the last few months to get it into being, and by thanking those who had already assembled, and also those who would come; Mrs. R. Johnston, Mrs. A. Rafferty, Mrs. R. Redner and Mrs. E. Stansfield, representatives of the various groups of the church.

ATTRACTIVE BOOTHS

Various booths were attractively arranged around the assembly room, while in the quadrangle formed by the descending Santa Clauses, were the apron, novelties, linen and children's wear booths.

The first booth visited was that of the home-cooking with its plates of delicious cookies; lemon, apple, pumpkin and mince pies, taffy tarts; Chinese chews; rich chocolate cakes; individual mince pies; muffins, loaves, swedish cakes, dotted with jelly; blueberry loaf; jars of relish, jams, jellies, marmalades, canned spiced pears, and tomatoes were centred by a centrepiece of assorted fruits; bananas; grapes, and apples sitting in a bed of red cedar sprays. The conveners were Mrs. G. Winters and Mrs. G. Goreline assisted by Mesdames E. Schliwert, F. Grandame, P. Kerr, G. Woods, A. B. Woods, G. Brickman, D. W. Huffman, F. Mitchell and D. Atkins.

EXPLORERS' CHRISTMAS TREE

The Explorers' Christmas tree was ablaze with colored lights, and underneath lay a mound of pretty parcels, awaiting but the "touch" to be taken away after the surrender of the stipulated fee. Mrs. Rowley convened this, assisted by Mrs. F. Jewell, Miss Jean Poste and Mrs. P. Stille.

CHRISTMAS THEME etc

The novelties, convened by Mrs. Gordon Oliver, and Mrs. John Irwin, assisted by Mrs. H. Burgess, Mrs. H. McMartin, Mrs. W. Judge, Mrs. J. Sicilker, Mrs. F. Davidson, and Mrs. R. Clark, included many pretty and useful articles: guest towels, dolls' tams, dresses, pot-holders, lovely little pieces of wooden furniture, some of it upholstered in blue, framed pictures, doll's knitted set in pink, costume jewellery of necklaces and heart lockets, and rhinestone earrings, blue sliding tam, a steel fishing rod, glass casserole, handkerchiefs, little jackets and hoods, crocheted doilies, angel cake line, plastic TV plate and cup in red, a bag for drying articles out of doors in frosty weather, crocheted star design ecru buffet scarf, and pots of little African violets, and a host of other articles too numerous to mention, as well, as a lovely Tartan wool scarf with fringe, and several plants.

FINE LINENS

The linen booth was full of fine, handmade pillow slips, some with embroidery, and many having crocheted lace edgings; tea towels, bath towels in yellow, green, and blue, some plain and some with heavy lace edgings while others were done in cross stitch; one pair that drew the particular attention was scalloped with circular lace crochet having a pink, wild rose in the centre, the whole connected by an undulating path of pink crochet. Mrs. Frank Shaus and Mrs. R. Brickman were conveners, assisted by Mrs. R. Lockyer, Mrs. W. Salisbury, Mrs. J. Wingrove, Mrs. R. Nelson and Mrs. R. Pettfor.

Many fine articles were displayed on the children's wear booth, among which were, little aprons, toques, mitts of all colors and sizes, baby sets in blue, pink and white, play aprons with pockets for crayons, knit helmet and mitts in green and yellow, cosy red checked rompers made from blanket cloth, and several pairs of warm socks. In charge of these were Mrs. Garney May, and Mrs. A. Wilson, with Mrs. H. Bovay and Mrs. J. McAllister assisting.

GARDEN OF APRONS

In the flower garden of aprons were to be seen cocktail aprons in double nylon net inlaid with purple violets, and with purple ribbon ties, prints of every design, towelling aprons, white organdy apron in crochet, half aprons, wraparound aprons, and aprons with bibs, almost any type one would choose. Mrs. N. May and Mrs. Charles Hogle, assisted by Mrs. F. Paul, Mrs. F. McLean, Mrs. W. Way, Mrs. Ralph Purple, and Mr. C. Ackerman were all kept busy packaging the chosen articles.

The candy booth with its red and white trim, was a delight to the eyes with the great assortment of fudges, maple cream, delicious divinity fudge, hand-dipped chocolates, peanut brittle, Turkish delight, all temptingly packaged in green, rose, and silver cups, boxes, and cellophane bags. Convening these were: Mrs. R. Pogue and Mrs. F. Douglas, assisted by Mrs. W. McCrady, Mrs. G. Robinson, Mrs. M. Wiley, Mrs. G. Perry, Mrs. C. Shaw and Mrs. G. Davies.

MEN'S BOOTH

The ladies did not completely dominate the scene for there was a "Men's Booth," outlined in silver, which was a compliment to those men who convened it, as well as to those whose handiwork was of such a fine calibre. Here were seen a sailboat wall bracket; lamps; doll cradles; a donkey cigaret dispenser; dolls' highchairs; a soap flake dispenser; baskets of red apples, carrots and many books cloth bound, and pocket variety by well known authors, of both. Mrs. Stansfield, E. Taylor and A. Nayler were the conveners, with their assistants L. Field, F. Boulton, G. Brickman, E. Johnston, A. Touchie and B. Robinson.

TEA ROOM

In an adjoining room was the place of recreation, the tea room with its bevy of little guest tables with white covers and centred by little sprigs of Scotch pine and red, green and gold globes, where tired shoppers might rest and hold a tete-a-tete with seldom-seen friends. Near by was the pretty tea table with its hand crocheted daisy patterned lace cloth in ecru color, centred by a bowl of frosted Scotch pines mingled with white Shasta 'mums and deep, red carnations, and flanked by tri-branched silver candelabra, with tall, red, flickering candles. Presiding at the silver services were: Mrs. R. Bowley and Mrs. W. C. May; Mrs. C. H. McBride and Mrs. L. R. Wannamaker and Mrs. R. Johnston; Mrs. A. D. Archibald and Mrs. M. P. Duff.

HOSTESSES

The room hostesses were: Mesdames G. L. Wambolt, A. E. Barlow, H. R. Moorman and L. Andrew.

Serving: Mesdames R. Irwin, J. McEwen, C. A. Mott, R. Tranter, G. Priest, M. M. Hackett, H. B. Weese, R. P. Manley, R. J. Brown, R. G. Moorman, R. R. Reid, W. Salisbury, Davies, and the Misses H. Miller, L. Sprackett, J. Smythe, J. Poste, H. Thompson and E. Thrasher. Those who replenished included Mesdames S. L. McGuire, W. Womacott, G. A. Brown, R. O. Greenleaf, A. B. Bell, S. M. McBride and the Misses E. Moorman and V. Grose.

The treasurer was Mrs. R. R. Varcoe and the tea room conveners Mrs. W. D. Embury and Mrs. E. W. Boulton.

There was also a check room where one might leave the heavy outdoor garments and a nursery room where the little tots were amused and safe. The former was convened by Miss Ethel Morton and Mrs. E. Grills, and the latter by Mrs. M. Wiley and Mrs. R. Boldrick with Mrs. E. Goodfellow and Mrs. G. Armstrong assisting.

A fine bazaar and delightful tea bringing commendation to the conveners, Mrs. W. J. Dougherty and Mrs. G. Stansfield, and the decorating committee, the Girls' Companions Club, for the attractive decor.

Cut up poultry should only be kept uncooked two days in the refrigerator, or one or two weeks in the ice cube section. This is especially true in hot weather.

Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Parks celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Tuesday, December 6, with a supper party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Reeks, 979 Somerville Ave., Winnipeg, Man. Mr. and Mrs. Parks were both born near Belleville, Ontario, and were married in 1905 at the home of the bride's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beatty. They moved west to Saskatoon in 1912 and later were among the pioneers of the Rosetown district, homesteading at McGie, Sask. They retired in 1944 to Plainfield, Ont. Prior to their visit to Winnipeg relatives and friends gave them a farewell anniversary party in the Plainfield hall. They have two children: Mrs. Reeks (Marie) of Winnipeg, and Orley Parks of Plainfield, Ont.; four grandchildren, Ariene and Tommy Reeks, Ross and Glenn Parks, and one great-grandchild, David Parks.

Christ Church C.C. Elects New Officers

Monday evening, Christ church Contact club held its final business meeting for 1955.

Following regular club procedure Archdeacon J. B. Creegan introduced the new slate of officers for 1956. They are as follows: president, Catherine Boldrick; 1st vice-president, Phyllis Hume; 2nd vice-president, Dorothy McCormick; secretary, Wis Taylor; treasurer, Margaret MacInnis; social convener, Barbara Sweet; Sunshine Fund, Mickey Lake; reporter, Margaret Wiggins; representative to Vestry Council, Florence Lennox; telephone convener, Helen McCormick; Nursery, Diane Settle; Layettes, Joan Taylor, Joan Ford, Marjory Scott; Sewing matron, Florence Wood.

President Marguerite Cooke thanked the members for their co-operation and assistance during her period of office and at the same time wished all success to the new president.

Following report given by club treasurer, Thelma Saunders, members discussed the distribution of remainder of club funds.

DONATIONS MADE

It was decided to donate a substantial sum to the General Church Fund. The donation was accepted by Mr. Follwell, who thanked the girls for the wonderful support they have given the church over the years.

Two other donations were agreed upon; one for Christmas baskets, and another towards flowers for the church. In addition, the club will purchase a new burse and veil, pulpit frontal and book markers for the church.

Members were reminded of the Christmas party to be held next Monday.

The evening was brought to a close with refreshments served by hostesses, Margaret MacInnis, Sylvia Parsons and Alice Wonnacott.

PIONEER NURSES

First Canadian hospital to establish a school for nurses was the general hospital at St. Catharines, Ont., in 1874.

Cannifton WMS Holds Yuletide Meeting

The Christmas meeting of Cannifton W.M.S. was held in the Sunday school rooms, of the church with a good attendance.

The president Mrs. J. Williams presided.

A welcome was extended to all especially visitors and the guest speaker.

Mrs. Harford Twiddy was reported ill.

Mrs. G. Brenton and her group took charge of the Christmas program. The theme for the worship service was "God's Gift of Love," with several carols being sung. The Scripture from St. Luke 2:1-16, was given by Mrs. C. Bird. Prayer and meditation followed. "The wise men brought precious gifts to lay at Jesus' feet; yet the greatest gift we can give, is to give our hearts and lives to Him. We can then share His spirit of giving our service to all those whom Jesus came to help. For He said, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me'."

Mrs. McCrae rendered a lovely Christmas solo.

Mrs. A. Holgate gave a reading on Christian stewardship pertaining to Christmas.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Williams introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Fay Coulter of Belleville, Christian Stewardship secretary of Belleville Presbytery. Mrs. Coulter said that "every lady member of the United church should be a member of W.M.S. If everyone took her responsibility there would not be a lack for leaders and missions. Selfishness and hatred should be cut out of our lives. Prayer is the greatest force in the world today. Let us call on God in prayer every day, not just when adversity or sickness hit us."

Mrs. Pearl thanked Mrs. Coulter for her many worthwhile thoughts.

Mrs. H. Empson thanked the retiring president, Mrs. J. Williams, for her untiring efforts and efficient work she did for the past few years as president.

The meeting closed with the hymn, "Away in the Manger," followed by the benediction by the Rev. W. R. Merrick.

A social half-hour was spent and refreshments were served.

'Indian Missions' Topic At Baptist WMC

The regular meeting of the Women's Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist church was held in the church parlor on Tuesday evening, with 30 members present, and the president, Miss E. Nurse, in the chair.

The meeting began with a brief memorial service honoring the memory of one of the best loved members of the circle, Mrs. Gordon, who had passed away since the last meeting. Psalm 103 was read in unison, all stood for a one-minute silence, and Miss Nurse led in a prayer of thanksgiving for Mrs. Gordon's long active life, her devoted Christian witness, and for her peaceful passing into the presence of God, whom she had loved and served so faithfully.

Mrs. C. Campbell gave the "Watch Tower", containing several interesting bits of news from various fields, including a personal letter from Miss Dorothy Francklin missionary in Bolivia.

During the business period, Mrs. Daniel reported 56 subscriptions to the "Link and Visitor," and Mrs. Madill told of having received a letter from Dr. Vining in India, thanking the circle for the parcel sent her.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE

The following were appointed as a nominating committee to prepare a slate of officers for the coming year: Mrs. A. Orr, Mrs. C. Campbell, Mrs. W. Shepherd, Mrs. A. Wells, and Miss Nurse.

A letter was read from Mrs. Grills, Associational Mission Circle director, stating that though the expenses are higher on the mission fields, the receipts for the first part of this fiscal year are down. It was decided that instead of having the usual exchange of gifts at the Christmas party this year, a donation be made instead toward fund to help make up this deficit.

The devotional meditation was taken by Mrs. E. Madill, on "The Window of Obedience." This window is most important in our lives, for as in the life of Abraham, it is a gateway to greater things. He went out, not knowing whither he went and God abundantly blessed that willing obedience. Great as he was, a greater than Abraham came to show us perfect obedience, and to ask of us obedience—the Beloved Son, the King of Kings, put aside that glory and became obedient unto death to obtain salvation for all the world. He again we read "To obey is better whatsoever I command you," and again we read "To obey is better than sacrifice."

TOPIC—MISSIONS

The topic for the evening, Chapter VII of the study book on India, "Missionaries and the Indian Church," was in charge of Mrs. M. Robson. It was presented in the form of a play "The Master Calls," in which the following took part—Mrs. Shepherd, Mrs. R. Orr, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Robson, Mrs. A. E. Berry, Miss Judy Robson and Mrs. A. Orr. This helped to show some of the difficulties encountered by missionaries in India, and the great need which still exists for the continued support and assistance from the churches here at home.

Buffalo Herd Tried to Join Lady in House

BIG DELTA, Alaska (AP) — A 71-year-old housewife from Maine had a chance to become "queen of the wild frontier" at this Alaska highway outpost.

But she "abdicated"—fled only in a nightshirt (her husband's) and barefooted, at 10 below zero—without ever reaching for the crown or a title.

Mrs. Shirley King, bride of Sgt. William King, 27, abandoned her home for good when a buffalo herd tried to join her in the front room last week.

It happened when Sgt. King was on night duty at Fort Greely. Mrs. King, at home alone, had scattered salt on the front porch to melt the ice.

TOO MANY CALLERS

She heard a noise at the door a short while later. She peeked out the window timidly.

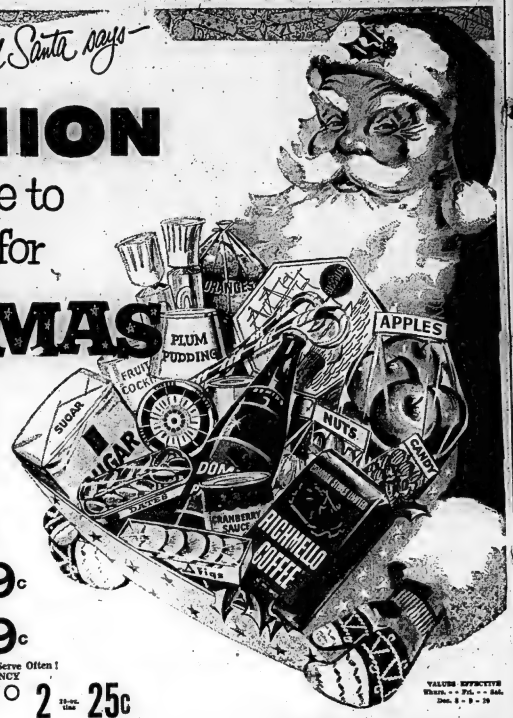
About 35 bison from the nearby woods were trying to follow the salt trail into the house. They were pushing the door with too much weight for Mrs. King's comfort.

She grabbed a chair, smashed out a window and fled across the snow to the nearest shelter, a tavern half a block away.

The bartender obligingly provided emergency clothing.

"She was so excited all she could do was stammer, 'Buff . . . buff . . . buff . . . buff . . .' bartender Dick Pennington said.

She wouldn't return the next day, either. Her husband appealed to military authorities, and now the Kings are settled comfortably in quarters at buffalo-free Fort Greely.



"They don't have big beasts like that in Maine," she observed.

RYLSTONE UNITED CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL

RYLSTONE. — On Friday evening the congregation and Sunday school of Rylstone United church, held their annual supper and Christmas concert, in the church. After the bountiful supper, served by the ladies, the Rev. H. E. Beare was chairman for the following program:

Chairman's address; piano solo, "Which Way Did the Angels Go?" by Miriam Rutherford; recitation, "My Puppy," by Brian Thomson; guitar solo, "White Christmas," by Fred Spencer; recitation "Good as Gold," by Margaret Middlejohn, piano solo by Carol Milne; recitation, "What I Hope," by Tommie Thomson; monologue, "A Present from Dottie," by Glen Stewart; guitar and vocal solo, "You Can't Judge a Book by Its Cover," by Bob Spencer; encore, "When I Went to My Church," composed and sung by Bob Spencer; recitation, "The Christmas Story," by Marilyn Stewart; recitation, "Humpty Dumpty," by Lynn Spencer; vocal solo by Bonnie Bothwell; vocal duet, "Christmas Roses," by Patty and Sherry Spencer, with piano accompaniment by Margaret Spencer; vocal solo, "Christmas," by Barbara Milne, with her sister Carol at the piano; Pageant—"Holy Nativity," by the following: "The Three Wisemen", Glen Stewart, Glen Anderson and Laverne Finch; "The Three Shepherds", Wayne Milne, Garland Finch and Bobbie Bothwell; "Six Angels", Carol and Barbara Milne, Patty and Sherry Spencer, Bonnie Bothwell and Marilyn Stewart; "The Virgin Mary", Betty Anderson; "Joseph", Malyn Jones Jr.; "Narrator," Miriam Rutherford.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU NEED TO DO SOME CLEAR THINKING, OLGA

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am 18 years old, and have been going steady for two months with a young man, 20.

When we first started going steady, my mother approved of this fellow, although she didn't let him come to the house because, she said, the neighbors would talk. But then, after we had been going steady for a month and a half, she began saying that he wasn't good enough for me, he wasn't well educated, and that he only wanted me to go out with him at night. The fact is, that we only go out Friday nights, and the latest he ever brought me home was half past eleven. She also said that sooner or later he would dump me for another girl. I don't believe this, because he has told me he loved me and asked me to marry him in about two years.

One night we went out and he brought me home at eleven o'clock. My mother hit me for it, and I told him. Then he said it was better for us to break up, because he didn't want my mother to hit me just because of him. So we broke up, and now I have found out from a friend of his that he has been going out to drink every night since. He never drank before.

I love this fellow very much. What can I do about all this? — Olga?

Dear Olga:

If you are perfectly certain that this young man is of good character, responsible, and sincerely devoted to you, then it is hard to understand why your mother should be so unreasonable. It is even harder to understand why, whatever her attitude may be, she should do such a harsh thing as to hit you.

Without knowing a good deal more about your mother, and what your relationship with her has been through the years, it would be pretty difficult for me to give you any very specific advice on your problem. For example, if she has always been a domineering, unreasonable person—and I hope no way of knowing whether or not she has been—then one could hardly hope to change her attitude at this late date. In such a case, if you have a job and are self-supporting, then I think my advice would be for you assert yourself and say, pleasantly but firmly, that since you are of age, you feel that you have a right to choose your own friends, and that if you can not be allowed this privilege, you will have to consider leaving home and making other living arrangements.

On the other hand, if you have never really tried to develop an affectionate, comradely relationship with your mother—and I don't know anything about this, either—then perhaps it is you who are at fault, and you need to change your own attitude. Under such circumstances, if you were to make a real effort to become friends with her, so that each of you would understand the other better, in time this problem might gradually solve itself.

Think over both these points, and try to decide honestly which gets to the heart of the matter. You may then be able to see more clearly where to start in straightening things out.

There's one more point, however, to which you would be wise to give some honest thought, and this is the one I brought up in the beginning. That is, are you sure this young man is the right sort of friend for you? What you say about his having turned to drinking since breaking up with you makes me wonder. For any chap as old as 20 who tries to escape from his problems through drink, instead of facing them realistically and coping with them in an adult, manly way, strikes me as a rather dubious matrimonial prospect.

Unless he shows up in real life better than he does in your letter, I would strongly advise you not to use your friendship with him for the purpose of asserting your right to freedom at this time. It might make you less of an adult than one should be who was making such an assertion.

SUIT NOTION

By VERA WINSTON

The dressmaker suit fashioned of sportswear fabric is a pretty paradox in the field of fashion This one is of Donegal tweed in black and white and is bright with many deft details. For one there is black velvet piping at the neckline and it is tab tied at the neck and waist, the tabs draped from interesting diagonal seaming that is a good figure flatterer. This type of suit will be frequently encountered in late winter and early spring resort fashions.

GOOD MANNERS

CHRISTMAS CARDS TO THOSE IN MOURNING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to send Christmas cards to people in mourning? This year this happens to be an extremely important question to me, and indeed also to quite a few of my friends, and we would appreciate your point of view about this. Thank you. — Faithful Reader

Yes, it is proper to send Christmas cards to people in mourning.

If we choose the cards we send with tender thought of their special mission. People in mourning, generally speaking, have real need for human touch that we can express in Christmas cards, and with the suitable card and with the right words we can thoughtfully express our loving kindness, our gentle understanding. For this mission it is natural for us to consider cards of religious inspiration, perhaps a lovely reproduction of a Madonna or other religious masterpiece, or a traditional message of the holy Christmas story. Or we may prefer to choose a very simple card with a conservative design on the first page, and on the inside page (with no printing on it) write our brief, heartfelt message of comfort in "Dear Mary, I do want you to know that I am thinking of you these days with loving affection and with tender understanding."

Note 1: Instead of sending a card, we may, with exquisite taste, write our message of devotion and understanding on plain white note paper. The few warm-hearted, sincere words you write may be just the kindly reassurance and heart-comfort so needed at Christmas time by one in mourning.

Note 2: Please don't ever send a card printed "With sympathy to you at Christmas." Certainly a grim idea, a tawdry idea, to send the printer's words rather than your own. Make your words personal by writing them yourself. "With loving thoughts to you, and with tender understanding" are blessedly reassuring words to reach the heart of a friend in mourning.

SHOULD THEY BE MARRIED IN THE GROOM'S CHURCH?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am planning to be married soon, and because of certain circumstances, I would like your advice concerning proper etiquette that would apply in my situation. I am in my late twenties, divorced, and have a 4-year-old daughter. Since my divorce we have been living with my parents. For my first marriage, I had a formal church wedding (Protestant) in my own church. This will be the first marriage for my future husband, and I didn't want him to feel cheated about not having a large wedding. However, he is the one who insists that we have a very small wedding. We do want to be married in church, but I don't want to have the wedding in my church, because my previous marriage ceremony was performed there. Would it be proper to be married in his church? — S.

Since your fiance has shown such excellent taste in insisting that the wedding should be a "very small wedding' (the wedding of a divorcee, particularly when she has a child, should be a small, informal wedding), I am sure you can also depend on his sure taste about the choice of the church. It would seem to me that the proper thing for you to do would be to be married in your own church, that being married in your bridegroom's church might very well be considered in doubtful taste. I advise that you also talk over your plan with the minister of your church, who would wisely base his judgment on the circumstances.

LADIES!

We're here again to let you see,
What to put under the Christmas Tree,
To really please a lady's eye,
This is the place, where you should buy.
Now for Mother we suggest a dress,
So that at Christmas she'll look her best,
We've a variety of colors, sizes and styles,
And we know when she sees them, she'll be all smiles.
For Grandma, we know she'd like a dress too,
And for the festive season she'll want something new,
Or perhaps a coat would please her so,
Remember at 'Winnie's" the overhead is low.
Now I'm sure Sis has a semi-formal in-mind
And to make her happy we've just the right kind.
In beautiful colors, all silver and net,
So come up and see us, we've plenty left yet.
So if you have a lady on your Christmas list,
Remember us, we're the clothes that no one can resist,
And one thing more, your money will go far,
All you have to do is follow the gulding star.

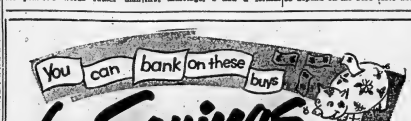
BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

PERSONALITIES: PLEASING AND OTHERWISE

There are many types of women, as everybody knows. Some are ladies; some are wallflowers. Some you are happy to run across; from some you run away. Some are sweet as peaches; others are sour as lemons. Why the sour ones can't see that they are getting into their own hair, as well as the hair of those with whom they come in contact, your reporter cannot figure out. They reap no beauty dividends. The dour ones have a tough time living with themselves We build our own personalities, and these sad-sacks pay a heavy price for the privilege.



"Be yourself" is a good idea if you happen to be a charming person. Many women have two selves, if not several. When they feel well, and life is treating them generously, they are in high spirits, buoyant and gay. But let some small disappointment come along and they can't take it. Annoying trifles become tremendous in their eyes. They are not willing to accept the fact that the downs are as much a part of life as the ups. Unpleasant happenings are bound to come to everyone. Nobody can escape them.

All women strive for good looks. They should give more thought to charm, a more important quality. Millions are spent for sartorial draperies, the items in the cosmetic cabinet, long sessions at the beauty shop. But there is little profit from these investments if a woman is ill-natured or ill-mannered. It isn't just how a woman looks, that counts. It is what she is, what she says, how she says it, what she does. Behavior is an ingredient in the formula of loveliness which is not merely a surface matter, but dwells in the heart and the mind.

Human nature being what it is, we cannot expect to be angels. But we can refrain from backsliding from getting into arguments, and from being arrogant, agressive or snobbish.

Some women are forever excusing themselves for quick words. "I am as I am; I can't change." Evidently life hasn't taught them anything. What pleasure can they get from being rude or overbearing? Their ill-nature is reflected in their faces in the course of time.

Consider the bossy woman, who tells every member of the family what he or she should do. Is this woman so successful at managing her own existence that she is qualified to advise others? She is a meddler and a menace, and she looks the part.

Salvage Crews Hunting Wreck Of Big New Jet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Salvage crews sought today to recover from Chesapeake bay the wreckage of a Martin Seamaster, the United States Navy's giant new jet seaplane which promised much for the future.

The 600-mile-an-hour-plus craft exploded on a test flight Wednesday about two hours after takeoff from the airport of its builder, the Glenn L. Martin Co., near Baltimore.

Three Martin employees and one navy officer were aboard the plane. One body, attached to a parachute, was recovered, but had not been identified early today.

Eyewitnesses to the accident said the four-engined craft was trailing heavy black smoke a few moments before it exploded "right in the middle." One parachute was seen to open. Another blast was reported as the nose hit the water about 70 miles southeast of Washington where the Potomac river flows into Chesapeake bay.

Pending recovery and study of the wreckage, there was no explanation as to why the plane crashed.

BRILLIANT PERFORMER

The Seamaster was the first experimental model of a long-range seaplane unveiled by the navy last January. It made its first flight July 14, and put on a brilliant performance at Baltimore last month.

Special Fire Watch Slapped On Waldorf-Astoria

NEW YORK (AP)—The fire department Wednesday accused the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel of endangering guests by covering up three recent blazes. A special fire watch was slapped on the hotel, which has about 3,000 rooms.

Fire Commissioner Edward F. Cavanagh Jr., said that since Monday seven firemen have been stationed at the hotel from 6 p. m. to 2 a. m. During the daytime, other firemen have inspected the hotel floor by floor.

Said the commissioner:

"The patrons of the Waldorf-Astoria can be burned to death as easily as the occupants of flowery flophouses. The safety of the people in the Waldorf is much more important than some high-pressure public relations policy of the hotel to avoid unpleasant publicity by carelessly or wilfully failing to report fires."

There was no immediate comment from the Waldorf.

CONTENDER FOR LEGACY

Provinces Quarrel Over Food Surplus Problem at Parley, Little Chance of Unanimity

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The provinces are beginning to quarrel over Canada's food surplus problem. Accusations of market disruptions and production squeeze plays are being tossed across provincial boundaries.

Signs of strife became evident Wednesday at the federal-provincial agricultural conference. Nova Scotia accused Ontario of thwarting federal subsidies for maritime apple growers and trying to squeeze eastern growers out of the market.

Ontario denied that and, in turn, expressed fear the Prairies will use their grain surpluses to produce vast beef and pork supplies, threatening to wreck the Ontario livestock market.

The conference now enters its fourth day with a variety of proposals for tackling the surplus problem before it, but with little chance of any unanimity of views emerging.

MAY HOLD MEETING

Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the provincial agriculture ministers in the opening meeting he is prepared to hold a special federal-provincial ministerial meeting later at which specific farm problems could be discussed.

But provincial delegates are none too sure that anything concrete will emerge even out of this ministerial meeting. Agriculture Minister Nollet said he feels the federal government wants to keep talking but do nothing about overcoming the surplus.

Provinces which have expressed views all are in favor of continuing price support. Agriculture Minister Gardiner has intimated the 1955 support prices will be continued and that he will strive to get the 55-cent-a-pound floor price for cheese renewed when it expires next May. But it will be up to the cabinet to make the final decision. And the extent of Canada's butter surplus likely will be a factor.

ACCUSES ONTARIO

Hard feelings between Ontario and Nova Scotia on apples became evident when F. Waldo Walsh, Nova Scotia's deputy agriculture minister, accused Ontario of opposing a $1,000,000 federal fund to aid disposal this year of 2,000,000 bushels of surplus N.S. apples.

Ontario's Agriculture Minister Thomas said Mr. Walsh's charges were untrue and a gross misrepresentation of the situation. Ontario and Quebec growers had not opposed federal aid to Nova Scotia growers during and after the Second World War, because the subsidized apples were to be exported.

"But in recent years the export market had shrunk. Some Maritime apples were competing against Ontario and Quebec apples in the central provinces. Ontario and Quebec growers had worked out their problems without federal aid. Ontario believed apples which had no market should not be kept in production through subsidies.

"Mr. Walsh made denial of subsidies was a "miscarriage of justice." Ontario apparently had decided, he said, that "it's time we let the little, inefficient growers get squeezed out and this is the year."

He charged that Ontario had been subsidized for years through tariff protection for her industries which had cost Nova Scotia, as one province, millions of dollars in extra duties. If Nova Scotians could buy their cars from the U.S. instead of Ontario, they would save millions of dollars in extra tariff.

No More Rank For Worthington, Just Plain F.F.

By DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—When is a general not a general?

Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, federal civil defence co-ordinator, told a reporter recently that for CD purposes he is just plain F.F. — no more rank for him.

But is it fair? easy for a general to revert to just plain minister.

Franklin Frederick (Fighting Frank) Worthington has been a "dollar-a-year" man since serving with distinction through two world wars.

When he retired from the Canadian Army in 1946 his military rank had become an widely associated with his name—as is the case with most career soldiers—that he continued to be referred to as Maj.-Gen. Worthington.

Now, how are reporters to refer to him in news stories? How is he to be introduced in the speech he functions not connected with civil defence?

ANYTHING YOU LIKE

"You can call me anything you like," Mr.-Gen. Worthington said Wednesday in an interview. "I couldn't care less. It doesn't worry me a bit."

He had been surprised to receive a good volume of mail—both pro and con—after newspapers had carried the story in which he said he was dropping his rank and asking other former military officers connected with federal civil defence to follow suit.

Since then all press releases and publications issued by federal civil defence information services have referred to him as just plain F. F. Worthington, Ranks of other personnel also have disappeared in press releases.

HARD TO BREAK

But the co-ordinator's own secretary answered the phone Wednesday with the announcement, "General Worthington's office."

It's hard to break a habit.

One army official, trying to be helpful, said military officers with ranks like general are obliged neither to keep nor to drop them on returning to civilian life, it was entirely a matter of courtesy.

The idea behind the rank dropping is that there is a certain amount of resentment among Canadians of anything with a military flavor, even courtesy titles for old soldiers. Another motive was to remove any possible suggestion that civil defence is the stepchild of the military.

No Instructions Barring Entry Of Colored Folk

THE HAGUE (CP)—A. A. Ewan, Canadian immigration attache here said Wednesday that there are no specific instructions barring the entry of colored persons as immigrants to Canada.

He was commenting on a statement made by Mr. and Mrs. Gesdina Hartier, a Dutch immigrant couple in Toronto, that Canadian authorities will not admit their Indonesian daughter-in-law to the country.

The Hasters said their 25-year-old son was told by Ewan in 1952 that his wife's East Indian origin barred her entry to Canada.

Ewan said he did not recall the case of Johan Hester's Indonesian-born wife but added that Canadian immigration officials sometimes received classified instructions concerning individual cases. Such instructions, he added, can apply to any topic of immigration.

Coon Hunters Counting On Higher Prices

BRANTFORD (CP)—Coon hunters in southern Ontario are counting on higher prices for their pelts this year. They give the credit to the Disney touch.

The Tennessee frontiersman's revival this year created such a rush for coonskin hats that it practically cleaned out the market. Now raccoons are in steady demand, and hunters and trappers expect to get as much as $2.50 for furs which brought them only a dollar last year.

Coons are increasing and so are the hunters. Some 120 hunters and trappers, many of them working at it only on weekends, are licensed in Brant county alone.

Their take is assuming such proportions that the Brant County Trappers' Association decided to hold a fur auction—a rare thing in this part of the province—Dec. 12. Trappers from as far as North Bay have been invited.

Harry Moore, association president, works a trapline Saturdays and Sundays, the hunting coons a night with dogs. He's bagged as many as 14 in a single night.

Canadian Hybrid Seed Corn Being Sent to Soviet

CHATHAM (CP)—A consignment of Canadian hybrid seed corn, described by a Russian agricultural delegation which visited Kent county this summer as "the finest seed corn we've seen," is being word to be shipped to the Soviet Union.

The consigner, Ernest Warwick of Blenheim said Wednesday he thought "somebody in Ottawa is asleep at the switch" since the deal appears to have fallen through.

Mr. Warwick said the Russian farmers were high in their praise of the seed, saying it was exactly what they had been looking for and that they would purchase as much of it as they could.

While the government apparently is on the brink of indecision, the seed corn producer said, an American agency has stepped into the picture and supplied the Soviet with more than $1,000,000 worth of seed.

President Sells Building Back Without Profit

KITCHENER (CP)—Earl Putnam, president of Canada Health and Accident Assurance Corporation, has sold back without profit a building he purchased last year from Dominion Life Assurance Company, Canada Health said today.

Mr. Putnam had been criticized for buying the building, then renting it as a head office to the company he heads.

Mr. MacGregor, Dominion superintendent of insurance, called the arrangement "improper on the part of the president and improvident from the point of view of the corporation."

A Canada Health spokesman said today the building was transferred back to the original owners, Dominion Life, for the amount Mr. Putnam paid, then sold to Canada Health for $150,974.

Mr. Putnam agreed to pay $150,000 for the building last year, giving $15,000 as a down payment and agreeing to pay the rest during 20 years. The spokesman said the difference between the two selling prices represents rent by Canada Health to Dominion Life

Health Minister Optimistic On Success of Salk Vaccine

TORONTO (CP)—With a doctor's prudence, Health Minister Phillips of Ontario Wednesday repeated earlier statements that it is still too early to pronounce upon the effectiveness of Salk poliomyelitis vaccine.

But, in a buoyantly-optimistic interview, Dr. Phillips indicated he is confident that when the time comes to make a conclusive observation, it will be favorable.

Statistics, including the number of cases and deaths this year, appear to support Dr. Phillips' optimism.

The percentage of deaths, for example, during the 1955 polio season, was one-half that of 1954—2½ compared to five.

Following the pattern of other years but for the vaccine, Ontario would have had 24 cases out of every 100 in the six-to-nine age group—40 of the total 182 cases.

ONLY ONE CASE

Dr. Phillips said, however, that there was only one case in the six-to-nine group and it was mild and non-paralytic.

His key statement was that children in that group received the first two injections last spring of a three-dose course.

"Although I cannot make a statement after using the vaccine for only one year, nevertheless it is most encouraging when we know we have had one case where there could have been 40 in this one age group," he said.

"The department has ordered for early in 1956 enough Salk vaccine to give that group the third dose, as well as the first two doses to the other children under 16."

OF ALL CHILDREN

He said the vaccine ordered would take care of all pre-school and public-school-age children in the province.

Department statistics, released by Dr. Phillips, show that up to now there were 182 poliomyelitis cases reported in Ontario this year, 70 resulting in paralysis. Four persons died.

In 1954 232 cases were recorded for the same period and 83 were paralytic. During the previous year one of the worst, there were 2,100 cases, including 928 resulting in paralysis. Eleven cases were fatal in 1954 and 108 in 1953.

Police Probing Woman's Death

ORILLIA (CP)—Police are investigating the death today of Mrs. Irene Morden, a cook at the Hulton lumber camp at Bexley lake, near MacTier, 40 miles northwest of here.

Mrs. Morden and her husband, Roy, 41, were found unconscious in the cookery of the lumber camp by their son Stanley, home on leave from the army.

Mr. Morden was taken to hospital in Parry Sound, 60 miles northwest of here, where his condition was described as "poor."

Mrs. Morden died before reaching hospital. Dr. Edward Malcolm, the attending physician, said death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

Dr. Malcolm said he thought there must have been a leaky pressure gas line in the kitchen of the camp. The Mordens worked there as cooks.

AFTER PUBLISHER

WINDSOR (CP)—Board of education Wednesday night decided to name a new city high school after the late W. F. Herman, publisher of the Windsor Daily Star. The board's resolution cited the publisher's "keen interest in education."

Two Women Burned to Death Near Ottawa

EMBRUN, Ont. (CP) — Two women died Wednesday in a fire which levelled their frame home near the village 30 miles southeast of Ottawa.

The bodies of Mrs. Wilfrid Lefebvre, 43, and her daughter, Mrs. Amedee Brisson, 31, were found together in the kitchen beside a coal stove.

Firemen were unable to reach the bodies until the fire was extinguished about four hours after it began. Fire chief Lionel Denis Lutremouille said the stove apparently exploded from accumulated coal gas. He said he believes the women probably were overcome by the gas before the explosion.

Mrs. Brisson's husband was away at work at the time and their three children were at school.

Renfrew Lawyer Is Candidate In By-Election

EGANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—James Malcolm, middle-aged Renfrew lawyer, Wednesday was nominated as the Progressive Conservative candidate for the Jan. 12 provincial by-election in Renfrew South constituency.

Mr. Malcolm was the unsuccessful Conservative candidate in the 1945 federal election when Renfrew South was won by Revenue Minister McCann.

Giant Experimental Machine, NRU Atomic Energy Reactor, Being Built at Chalk River

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP)—A giant experimental machine heavier than one of Canada's modern destroyer escorts is being put together at this multi-million dollar atomic energy project 125 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The huge research tool is the NRU atomic energy reactor which is expected to go into operation next June. Atomic scientists here say NRU, code name for the reactor, will be the best nuclear test facility in existence in the free world.

They also disclosed that the cost of the reactor has been revised for a second time to $50,000,000. The original $30,000,000 estimate was increased earlier this year to $40,000,000.

The huge 145-foot-high building which will house NRU was completed several weeks ago to a stage where engineers could begin installing the reactor itself.

HEAVIER THAN ESCORT

G. M. James, superintendent of the reactor, said in an interview that NRU's main shielding weighs at least 2,500 tons, compared with the navy's 2,600-ton destroyer escort St. Laurent. This weight does not include reactor equipment and smaller amounts of shielding required by that equipment.

NRU will be similar in design to the famed $11,000,000 NRX reactor which went into operation at Chalk River in 1947. However, it will be five times as powerful as NRX and will provide special facilities for research on matters of using atomic energy for peaceful purposes, especially in the field of industrial power.

It also will produce significant quantities of plutonium, used in atomic bombs, and will enable Canada to manufacture an increased volume of radioactive isotopes for medicine and industry.

The isotopes turned out by NRU will have a higher specific activity than those produced by NRX.

FIND BOAT

MONTREAL (CP) — Organized search for four missing men ended Wednesday following discovery of their small motorboat on an island in the St. Lawrence river near Vercheres, Que. The men were Denis Gagnon, 18, Roger Dube, 22, Gabriel Beausoleil, 30, and Paul Legault, 36.

Welland Hall Packed to Hear Red Churchmen

WELLAND (CP)—An overflow crowd of more than 500 persons packed the tiny All Peoples' Mission at nearby Crowland Wednesday to welcome Archbishop Boris of the Russian Orthodox Church and his party.

The archbishop and his colleagues spent more than two hours at the reception after a brief sightseeing visit to Niagara Falls. A buffet lunch was served and the guests were entertained by choir singing and Ukrainian dancing.

Archbishop Boris said in a brief address that he came "from a far country to bring greetings."

"Our country and all the people without exception want peace," he said. "It is the duty of the church and all its believers to bring peace and good cheer among the nations of the world."

He was accompanied by Archpriest Constantine Rusitsky, rector of Moscow Theological Seminary, and seminary registrar Anatole Garbachow.

Accused Given 20 Years For Armed Robbery

TORONTO (CP)—Albert Casey, 41, was sentenced today to 20 years in penitentiary on a charge of armed robbery. He pleaded guilty a week ago.

Magistrate O. M. Martin said evidence that Casey said, "That will hold you," as he fired a bullet into Mr. Lamb indicated he intended to kill him.

Eight charges also charged in connection with the robbery and shooting pleaded guilty and elected trial by higher court.

STIRLING

Departing Residents Honored

STIRLING.—Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hermilston moved on Wednesday to Kingston to reside. Mr. Hermilston has been the local Rexall druggist for several years. A party was held in their honor at the Legion hall and they were presented with an electrical appliance.

On another evening Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eggleton entertained a number of friends from St. Andrew's Presbyterian church and both were recipients of lovely gifts of silver candlesticks and television ash trays.

On Thursday evening, Mrs. A. Greenley entertained the local bridge club and other friends in honor of Mrs. Hermilston.

Mrs. B. Belshaw read an address of appreciation and Mrs. A. W. Meiklejohn made the presentation of a lapel ornament and black and gold bag.

Dainty refreshments were served at all of the gatherings and a social half-hour enjoyed.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT. — Mrs. Robert Percival is hostess to members of Bayside, Grace church, Trenton, Centenary and Alkenel church Women's Missionary Societies on Wednesday afternoon.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pearson, who are the proud parents of a daughter, born on Sunday, November 27, at Trenton Memorial Hospital. This is the first granddaughter for Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Curtis.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the late Mrs. Geraldine Frost, whose funeral service was held on Friday afternoon, from the Belleville Burial Funeral Home with interment at Belleville cemetery. Mrs. Frost was a member of Wesley United church, of Wesley Women's Association and of the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute. Mr. Robert Percival of Bayside Pastoral charge, and Rev. A. C. McCallum of Trenton, a former pastor, assisted with the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Roy Taylor of Consecon to Collins' Bay to visit the latter's daughter, Mrs. Don Fowler and Mr. Fowler on Wednesday.

Mrs. Frank Sandercock had the misfortune to fall in her home and sprain her ankle on Monday of last week. Her friends wish her a quick recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Yateman attended the funeral of Mrs. Yateman's grandfather, the late Mr. John Nicol of Trenton on Friday.

Mrs. Manchester Ketcheson fell in her home, recently and has been confined to her room since. Her many friends hope she will soon be well. Mrs. W. Yateman, Mrs. R. Ketcheson and Mrs. C. Ketcheson were callers.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the late little Anne Marie Jeffery, who passed away on Monday following accident. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jeffery and granddaughter of Mr. James Jeffery of this district.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Masse were Saturday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. N. Duetis of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman and Brenda, were Saturday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Yateman of Trenton.

Most of the children in this district were treated on Saturday to a visit to Santa and a parade of all his helpers in Belleville.

Mr. G. Martin of Frankford, was the guest minister on Sunday at White's church, assiting Mr. Robert Percival in the service. He spoke to the children on "The Power of God" mentioning the harnessing of the waters of the Niagara Falls for two days and a squash enclosed in a box which could life heavier weights as it grew until it could lift 5,000 lbs. He spoke on Corinthians 13 and quoted this from the revised edition.

SHANNONVILLE. — Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher of Sidney and Mrs. Harry Roblin of Plainfield, were recent callers of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doxtator.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Goodfellow have retired from farming and have taken up residence in the village.

The Shannonville Home and School Association held a successful bazaar, supper, and euchre party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ryckman on Friday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian have returned home after spending a couple of days in Toronto.

Mr. Lorne Lasler is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mortimer and family, formerly of Bellevile, have moved to the village.

There was a good representation of village children and some adults in Belleville on Saturday to view the Santa Claus parade.

Mr. and Mrs. Nickle Sero and family have now moved into their new home.

Sympathy is expressed to the family of the late Mrs. Lela Stewart, whose death occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ira Roluf, Belleville. The deceased was a life-long resident of this district.

Mr. Lawrence Ogden is guest of his brother, Elmer Ogden, Mrs. Ogden, and family.

Friends of Mrs. Alfred Little will be sorry to learn she is in in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Harry Sine has returned home from Regina, Sask., where she attended the funeral of her mother, Mrs. McCullough.

Mrs. George Winters, Mrs. Fred Bigelow of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vivian and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doxtator were tea hour guests on Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keirl.

The sad news was received in the village of the death of Russell L. Gilligan who died suddenly at his home in Napanee, on December 5th. The deceased was a former resident of Shannonville and held the position as agent of the Canadian National Railway Station. He was a prominent citizen and took an active part in community and church work while living here.

Blind River Uranium Field Has Proven Worth Of Billion Dollars, Perhaps Much More

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—Superlatives come easy to mining men when they talk about the Blind River uranium field.

They call it the world's biggest, with a proven worth of a billion dollars and indicated worth of three billions, based on present metal prices. It will have the world's biggest uranium mine with a mill capacity of 5,700 tons of ore a day.

Its uranium is found mainly in a rare mineral called brannerite, known to occur only in half a dozen places in the world.

Four mines, one already producing and three in the making, have contracted to sell uranium concentrates worth $444,160,000 to the Dominion government-owned Eldorado Mining and Smelting Corporation by 1962. Mine officials expect this will be 70 per cent of Canada's production.

LARGE PRODUCERS

Giant of the field is Consolidated Denison, about 20 miles directly north of the Lake Huron shore line and 25 miles northeast of this town midway between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. Its uranium contract is for $182,500,000 and it is building a 2,700-ton mill.

Algom Uranium Mines has a bigger contract than Denison—$206,910,000—but its production will be split between two properties, each with a 1,000-ton mill. One lies just north of the Denison property, near Quirke lake. The other is eight miles further south at Nordic lake.

The area's pioneer producer is Pronto, just north of Lake Huron, site of the field's first uranium strike. Its shining new headframe and mill rise from the rocky skyline of the pre-cambrian shield nine miles east of Blind River, just a mile north of the Trans-Canada highway and the Canadian Pacific Railway's Soo-Sudbury line.

Pronto, with a $53,000,000 contract, is Ontario's first uranium producer. Its 1,200-ton mill went into operation last August, just 28 months after the first successful diamond drill intersection was cut in April, 1953—said to be a record for speed in Canadian mine development.

BIG POTENTIAL

Informed mining men think it possible another six mines may negotiate contracts before a March 31, 1956, deadline set by the Dominion government. Some now are negotiating and staking shafts as a prelude to mill construction if the contracts come through.

Security regulations, forbidding publication of figures on known ore reserves, observe the long-range prospects for the 26-by-42 mile field. However, it is known that the mines are building for a 40-year operating period and so far only 20 per cent of the field has been explored. Much depends on the market for uranium after present contracts expire in 1962.

Interests linked with geologist Franc B. Joubin and financier Joseph H. Hirshhorn, the men who brought the field into being hold the lion's share of the field. They control Pronto and Algom along with exploratory potential producers. Consolidated Denison is an independent.

Mine-making costs money. So far capital investment totalling $200,000,000 has been committed to the field. Algom is spending $42,500,000 and Denison $37,500,000. Pronto cost $7,500,000. The other $3,500,000 is for a plant Noranda mines is building to make sulphuric acid used in the leaching process by which the uranium is extracted from the ore.

VALUABLE BY-PRODUCTS

Mine operators look for important by-products from the field. They say that mills now planned could conveniently produce several hundred tons of pyrites daily and substantial quantities of thorium.

Some properties, staked for uranium, may produce other minerals instead. For example, Peter Uranium which adjoins Pronto, has announced it is sinking a 1,000-foot shaft to develop copper and cobalt deposits, estimated at 300,000 tons after preliminary exploration.

Copper took prospectors into the area more than a century ago. They started a hunt after copper was discovered at Bruce Mines, some 40 miles west of here, in 1847. They had some success. Copper mines operated at Massey, east of the field, more than 50 years ago. Two mines on the northern fringe of the uranium area have also produced copper.

One of the best-known mine-hunters to search the area for copper was the late Jack Wilson of Massey, the man who staked the rich Dome gold mine near Timmins in 1909. Twenty-eight years ago Wilson and his son Bill, now a hotelkeeper at nearby Walford, staked claims around Quirke lake, site of Consolidated Denison and one, of the Algom mines.

"We held the claims for a couple of years," says the younger Wilson. "We were hunting for base metals —copper and zinc—and gold. In those days, nobody had heard about uranium."

The elder Wilson died five years ago, aged 66, before the area he searched blossomed into a rich uranium storehouse.

Johnstown held Sunday school on Sunday afternoon with Mr. Ernest Bush in charge and church with the Rev. G. A. Putnam in the pulpit. A good congregation attended. Mr. Putnham spoke on "The Christian Confession", of the church to the world. Christ coming changed everything in history. We celebrate His birth as the great Gift to the world. God's part in the scheme of things needs man's part to complete it. Man's part is faith. The creed is a response to the Gospel. It is only as we thanks the Christian confession that we really celebrate Christmas. We think of Jesus not as a real person, who was born, lived, died, and was buried as we are. He came that men might know Him as a person.

"Jesus was both Man and God. This is the heart of the Christian belief. We must abide in Him by faith and obedience. We cannot change the world. Some think war is inevitable. There is too much hate and revenge in the world. The only hope is a spiritual awakening of the people of the world, or there never will be world fellowship. It must start in the church. Therefore we must all make a common confession that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God. Only the Gospel of Christ can accomplish this and it depends wholly on we Christians, to own Him as our own."

Dairymen AGREE!

Yes . . . Dairymen agree that it takes good body condition to keep a cow milking at top speed. Good condition can be seen in smooth hair coat and good fleshing . . . but it goes much deeper — the inner health of the cow. To keep up good body condition takes good management, sanitation and feeding. That's why thousands of dairymen follow the Purina Program and feed

Wellington On The Lake

THE YEAR IS GROWING OLD

His face is furrowed with deep lines of care.
His step is slow as if in deep despair.

He once was young and bright and happy-eyed,
He woke the flowers in glad and glorious spring,
The trees waved banners green on every side
He called the birds and they came back to sing.

He waved his wand o'er all the countryside
The wheat fields rippled in the summer sun
And then in autumn soft and dreamy-eyed,
The painted leaves proclaimed his work well done.

And now the wind moans 'as the year grows old,
The rain drips down and all the day is drear,
The shivering sheep crowd to the sheltered fold

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON. — The year is growing old and its energies are almost spent. No more we see loads of green peas , tomatoes, corn and pumpkin passing to the canning factories, but instead are large transports loaded with the canned goods — the product of farm and factory. And the leafless trees look black and barren even in the sunlight.

But December comes and with it Christmas with its joy and cheer. For the children it is the day of days not alone for the gifts that Santa brings, but also for the thrilling Christmas Story of the birth of the Christ-Child in the manger at Bethlehem heralded by the angels' song.

Yes, like Charles Dickens, I think Christmas is a fine time, a time when hearts are open to the needs of others, and we are thrilled with God's gift of a Saviour to a sinful world.

Oh may We catch the spirit
Of that first glad Christmas-tide.
That love and peace and gladness
Might in each heart abide;
And that we with the men of wisdom
May our best of treasures bring
To the Child that was born in a manger
The wonderful Christ and King.

CHURCH SERVICE

The evening service in the United church on Sunday took the form of a Christmas choir service, with the Rev. A. Poulter in charge and Mrs. McNeil, organist with a junior and senior choir. The church was filled to capacity and all joined in singing the old familiar hymns "Silent Night" and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

There was no election here on Monday. Mr. J. Clemenson, who had been the capable reeve for some years, resigned, and the entire council was elected by acclamation, including Mr. Clare Platt, Reeve, and F. Brimley. Messrs. Ogilvie, McClennon and King as councillors.

STIRLING

St. Andrew's Bazaar, Tea Successful

STIRLING. — On Thursday St. Andrews' Presbyterian Ladies' Aid sponsored a successful bazaar and tea in the church parlors. Rooms were decorated with four large lighted evergreen trees and an array of green boughs, Christmas poinsettias and streamers. Electric candles were placed in each window and all this made a delightful Christmas atmosphere.

Mrs. W. H. V. Walker and Mrs. Lawrence Munroe received the guests.

At 2.30 p.m., the pastor, the Rev. W. H. V. Walker, officially opened the bazaar and offered prayer.

Mrs. Vernon Mathews presided at the piano and furnished quiet music all afternoon.

The booths were all nicely decorated and arranged in a novel manner.

The country store was laden with the fruits of the farm and garden, and was in charge of Mrs. Don Fargey and Mrs. James Campbell.

The home-cooking table displayed a vast number of tempting articles of food which was disposed of in record time. The ladies in charge were Mrs. Percy Craighead, Mrs. Harold McGee, Mrs. Lloyd Dafoe, and Mrs. Blanche Reid.

The candy table, with its wealth of sweets, was convened by Mrs. George Sarles and Mrs. Cameron Montgomery, and the "touch-and-take" table was arranged beneath a Christmas tree with Mrs. Norman Hay and Mrs. Charles Devlin as saleslades.

CHRISTMAS MECCA

The fancywork department was a mecca for Christmas shoppers and practically everything was sold at an early hour. Mrs. Roy Eggleton and Mrs. Laird McGee were the conveners.

The quartet of tables were all centred with handmade white Christmas trees. Those who poured at the head table were, Mrs. H. C. Secker, Mrs. W. G. Fletcher, Mrs. Ethel Hoard and Mrs. Maude McGee.

Those who served were, Mrs. James Johnston, Mrs. Walter Rodgers, Mrs. Edna Wright, Mrs. Carl Bateman, Mrs. Rob Cooke, Mrs. Don Rodgers and Mrs. Don McIntosh.

The plates were replenished by Mrs. A. O. Dalrymple and Mrs. E. Cairn and the kitchen duties were convened by Mrs. A. Greenley and Mrs. S. McIntosh.

A large number of guests were in attendance and the affair was a financial success.

Crofton

CROFTON. — Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Fox of Centre, spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. S. J. Munro.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Allan also Mr. and Mrs. R. Crook were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. E. Crook.

Mrs. W. J. Gray spent the noon hour on Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lefort and family at Belleville.

Mrs. Jervold Bongard and Ann spent a few days last week with her mother, Mrs. Weaver, at Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sharp of Roslin, were Sunday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hutson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gray and boys of Deseronto, were Sunday guests of their mother, Mrs. W. J. Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gadd spent the weekend at Toronto, with their parents.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE—At the time of writing the roads are in a slippery condition and cars are not seen passing, as with fog and ice it is very dangerous.

Television sets are the order of the day as there has been three installed in the village lately. Be everyone has the privilege of staying at home to watch wrestling, and ball games, which many enjoy.

YOUNG COUPLE HONORED

Quite a number of friends and relatives gathered in the Orange hall, recently, in honor of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bonisteel and presented them with a beautiful coffee table. Both thanked all for their lovely gift and invited all to come and see them at their home in Bancroft. The evening was spent in games after which refreshments were served.

Quite a number attended the funeral of Mr. Fred Maggie on Saturday morning. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved ones.

Mrs. Frank Harris returned home on Thursday, having spent the past week with her nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Pound, where they have a baby daughter, a little sister for Dale.

Many from around here attended Santa Claus parade on Saturday morning. All report it was the best ever held in Belleville and every child is looking forward on having dear Old Santa coming to his home on Christmas eve.

Mr. and Mrs. German Moore, who spent a couple of weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Blake Johnston, have returned to their home in Norwood.

Quite a number of ladies attended the all-day quilting in the church hall on Wednesday last.

No services were held on the Wallbridge circuit on Sunday owing to the condition of roads.

Stirling

STIRLING. — The Tucker families attended the funeral of Mrs. Gordon Frost, at Belleville, on Friday afternoon.

River Valley Farm Forum studied "Retirement Plan for Farmers", at their Monday evening session.

The Stirling streets are strung with cheery lights to usher in the Christmas season. On Saturday evening, a large evergreen tree was lighted on the property of the Stirling Dairy at the Highway 14 corner.

A number of the stores are specially decorated with streamers, tinsel and roping and a large array of articles are displayed in an artistic manner. One store has a large Christmas tree set up and underneath are placed a unique selection of lovely gifts.

Mr. Douglas Patterson was recently re-elected as a member of the executive of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association. The sessions were held in Toronto. Dr. Ralph Vandervoort also was in attendance.

Dr. and Mrs. B. A. Carleton entertained the Stirling Lawn Bowling club at their home and all in attendance enjoyed a delightful evening. Those winning prizes were, Mrs. C. E. Eggleton, Mrs. F. Jeffery and Mrs. Robert Leury, also Robert Cooke, Roy Mallory and Don Rikley.

The home was decorated with Christmas greenery and dainty refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pitcher spent a few days visiting Mr. and Mrs. Claude Dafoe and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dafoe at Windsor, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tucker recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Earl Osborne of Bowmanville, Ont.

Stratford Club May Fold After Christmas

STRATFORD (CP) — Stratford Indians of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series will continue to play hockey "until after Christmas at least."

The decision was announced Wednesday after agjeint meeting of the Indians hockey club and the arena commission, called to discuss decreasing attendance at Indians' hockey games.

Club officials said attendance has dropped an average of 441 a game for the first nine games this season. Average attendance is 1,411. The club said that despite reduced player salaries the books still show a profit.

Manager Dutch Meier said Tuesday that in an effort to shake Indians out of their slump he has deals pending for all except four of his players. Indians have won eight games, lost 10 and tied one this season. They are in third place in the standing of the five-team league.

Granite Rink Takes Bonspiel

SARNIA (CP)—Walter Tomenson's Toronto Granite Club rink won first-prize honors in the Sarnia Curling Club's bonspiel Monday-Wednesday night.

It was an all-Toronto final with Tomenson winning 8-6 over Stu Graham's Toronto Victoria Club entry.

Third prize was won by Irwin Fraser of the host club with an 11-7 victory over L. E. Ross of Agincourt. Jack Preston of Brantford downed Gordon Cox of Chicago 10-7 in the fourth event final. Fifth event was won by Sid Smithers of Galt with a 7-5 victory over Adam Spencer of Toronto Curling Club.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Andy Bathgate of New York continued his stay at the top with a pair of goals Wednesday night and advanced into a tie for second place in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Bathgate's two goals — the margin of victory in New York's 3-1 win over Toronto—gave him nine for the season. He has 18 assists for a total of 27 points—the same as Gord Howe of Detroit.

Jean Beliveau of Montreal continues to be the scoring champion, however, with 29 points and also leads in power play with 16.

Rocky Has No Need for Worry After Baker-Valdes Siesta

By JACK HAND

CLEVELAND (AP) — Merry Christmas Rocky Marciano. Now you can buy turkey and dressing. Don't spare the mashed potatoes and gravy. Nobody's coming to spoil your fun as heavyweight champion of the world.

The much-heralded meeting of Bob Baker of Pittsburgh, No. 2 challenger and Nino Valdes, the No. 3 threat, served only to bolster the position of Archie Moore, the No. 1 contender. As Rocky knocked out Ancient Archie in September, the future seems clear.

The pudgy Baker plodded to a unanimous decision over the Cuban Valdes Wednesday night in a dreary match at the Cleveland Arena that probably eliminated both from consideration as Marciano opponents.

"Maybe I'll have to fight Archie Moore now before I get the Marciano shot," said Baker in his dressing room after the dull 10-rounder, fought to the tune of "Jingle Bells" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" and a steady chorus of boos from the 8,380 fans who paid $63,392 to see the Cleveland News' annual Christmas Yuletide show.

"What do we want fighting any Baker?" asked Archie Moore's manager, Charlie Johnston. "Arch knocked out Baker in Miami (March 9, 1954) and beat Valdes in Las Vegas (Nov. 4). The only fight for Marciano is a return match with Moore."

The International Boxing Club, supposedly feuding with Al Weill, Marciano's manager, hasn't saying much.

"It's up to Weill who Marciano fights next," said Murray Goodman, IBC publicity chief. Jim Norris, IBC president, wasn't present but he'll discuss the situation in Chicago later in the week.

Goodyears Creep Closer To

Trail 3-0 in First Period Score Three in Third Frame But Too Little and Too Late

KINGSTON (Special) — Belleville trailing in last night's Oriville's struggling TPT's did all tario Hockey Association Senior "B" group game against Goodyears in the Community Memorial Centre but they did provide some anxious moments for the Douglasmen when in a spirited third period rally they rapped in three consecutive goals before bowing out 6 to 4. It was a clearly waged engagement before a crowd of 2122 paying customers.

The local forward line composed of Don Murray at centre, and George Samolenko and Ted Toppazzini on the rails, reaped four goals and two assists and moved out above any other combination on the ice. Murray with two counters and an assist, and Gus Bernard of the visitors, who was credited unofficially with three assists, set the points getting pace, the while both played heads up hockey.

All five penalties called by the referees, Andy Bellemer and Ivan Locke, were meted out in the middle session which was marred by injuries to Samolenko of the locals and to Pete Jones and Herbie MacDonald of the invaders. MacDonald, who received a ten-stitch gash last Friday night, was heavily boarded by Tommy Goodfellow at 17.35 in the session and was forced out of action temporarily.

The victory — which's a tonic over the second place defending champions of the league, sets the stage for an all-out effort against the potent Whitbyites in the Community Memorial Centre tomorrow night. On the same evening the Goodyears will entertain Brockville where they will attempt to dislodge the Braves from the third rung on the ladder.

The TPT's, a combined aggregation composed of Peterborough and Belleville players, showed flashes of teamplay but created the impression that they have a long way to go before they achieve the desired co-ordination. More over-anxiety is represented and at the turnstiles has been below expectations. On Tuesday noon they beat the visiting Magedomas by 7 to 2 only 700 fans were in attendance.

The 5-4 count last evening in no way represented the superiority held by the titleholders. Only in a sensational stickhandling exhibition by "tony" Parisi kept the Belles in the running. Parisi was called on to handle no less than 39 shots while Ken Johnson had only 19 directed at his cage. Parisi's timely diving when under heavy attack was a feature. Both teams played carefully from the start of hostilities and the game until nine minutes had mark that Ted Nicholson racked up the first goal of the contest and his first of the season. Two minutes and thirty six seconds later Samolenko, with Murray assisting, made it 2 to 0 and at 17.17 Toppazzini, with Murray aided the gap.

Keith team scored once in the second period, that produced injuries to Samolenko, MacDonald and Pete Jones. The last named opened the tallying, with Leonard assisting at 4.33 and Murray, aided by Ian Morris and Toppazzini, replied at 18.58. Goodfellow was allotted the first penalty at 7.56 and he was away when Clay Caines drew a minor and a ten minute misconduct. Both "victims" were replaced by Ted Nicholson at 9.25. Bill McMaster Mayes saved away at 16.45 and he had just returned when Murray beat Parisi.

Don Senior, with Goodfellow assisting, got Kingston's fifth marker at 4.23 when the former deflected Goodfellow's long fast shot into the cage. The TPT's, shocked hopelessly distanced at that stage but they rallied and threatened to pull the verdict from the fire. Wade, Greenlaw and Gilmour were the successful marksmen while Pete Jones and Leonard each had two assists.

The champions responded by increasing their pace and the fans were treated to some lightning fast exchanges before Murray, aided by Macey and Morris, clinched the verdict at 17.09.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Parisi; defence, Wade and McMaster; centres, Goyer; wings, MacDonald and D. Jones; alternates, Mulholland, Leonard, P. Jones, Greenlaw, Fyfe, Gilmour, Hill.

Kingston — Goal, Johnson; defence, Londer and (unidentified); centre, Murray; wings, Toppazzini and Samolenko; alternates, Goodfellow, Macey, Nicholson, Senior, Morris, White, Thakes.

Referees — Andy Bellemer and Ivan Locke.

First Period
Kingston—Nicholson (Goodfellow, Senior)	9.00
Kingston—Samolenko (Murray)	11.36
Kingston—Toppazzini (Murray)	17.17
Penalties—none.
Second Period
Belleville—P. Jones (Leonard)	3.33

Will Probe Fracas Between Police, Players

NORTH BAY (CP) — The city police commission Wednesday reluctantly agreed to Pembroke requests it investigate a Saturday night hockey brawl involving players of Pembroke Lumber Kings of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association and city policemen.

At the same time, however, Mayor Merle Dickerson urged Pembroke officials to settle the matter "amicably" without conducting an inquiry.

The mayor, in a letter mailed Wednesday on behalf of the commission, said the commissioners are "quite willing and ready to investigate your complaint."

The Pembroke club asked for a hearing in a stick-swinging melee in the community Memorial Gardens in the final minutes of a game between Pembroke and North Bay Trappers. North Bay won 5-3.

MAKES PEACE OFFER

The fight involved Pembroke players and local police constables.

Mayor Dickerson said representatives of the Pembroke club and the city police department would be invited to appear in any inquiry opened.

"If on the other hand," his letter continued, "the matter can be arranged amicably, without conducting an inquiry, it might better serve the interests of hockey in your city, and ours."

Pembroke has disclosed that an earlier letter of apology to the Pembroke team composed by him was never sent. After a conference with other members of the police commission, a "slightly changed version" was sent.

The North Bay Police Association also has called for a special hearing on the incident. Its executive said it feels the case has not been handled fairly.

Prexy Approves Clair As Rider Coach

OTTAWA (CP)—James P. McCaffrey, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, announced here Wednesday after a five-week government mission to Australia and immediately sounded his approval to reports that Frank Clair probably will be signed as coach of Ottawa Rough Riders.

McCaffrey, manager of the Big Four Football League Riders, said he has always considered Clair, former Toronto Argonaut coach, a fine coach. He said he thinks Clair would be a good coach for the Riders. His experience with the Canadian game would be invaluable.

McCaffrey, federal trade marks registrar, was in Australia at a Commonwealth conference.

Kingston—Murray (Morris, Toppazzini)	18.58
Penalties—Goodfellow, boarding; Londer, P. Jones, minor for hooking and 10 minute misconduct, 8.30; Nicholson holding 9.35; McMaster, tripping 14.46.
Third Period
Kingston—Senior (Goodfellow)	4.23
Belleville—Wade	6.16
Belleville—Greenlaw (P. Jones, Leonard)	9.39
Belleville—Gilmour (P. Jones, Leonard)	11.05
Kingston—Murray (Macey, Morris)	17.09
Penalties—none.

BC Lions Sign Clem Crowe Head Coach

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clem Crowe, a football coach for 30 years, Wednesday was signed to a two-year contract as the new head coach of B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The 49-year-old Notre Dame alumnus, line coach for Lions last season, said his first and most important job will be to locate and develop more Canadian talent.

Crowe succeeds Annis Stukus, who piloted the Lions in their 1954 WIFU debut but failed to win a new contract from the club's directors at the end of the 1955 season. Stukus now is a special football writer for the Vancouver Sun.

The new coach coached Ottawa Rough Riders from 1951 to 1954—to the Grey Cup the first year, third-place finishes the next two years and last place in 1954.

Denies Active Interest In Larks' Purchase

MONTREAL (CP)—Roy Robertson, one of the three men who sold Montreal Alouettes a year ago, says he might be interested in buying back the professional Big Four Club but he sees no reason for assuming it is for sale.

Robertson made the statement in a telephone interview here Wednesday night following a newspaper report that he and his former partners—Charley Stone, also of Montreal, and Lew Hayman, now of Toronto—were prepared to buy the team back.

"Actually, I didn't know it was for sale and I still don't know," Robertson said. "Someone just asked the other night if we were going to buy the Alouettes and I said we might be interested.

"These fellows (the present owners) should be happy. what with their club drawing capacity crowds and making the Grey Cup."

Robertson said Hayman's name has not "actually been mentioned." Hayman has just bought a house in Toronto and Robertson said "frankly, I couldn't see him coming here."

Goodyears Creep Closer To Top; Edge TPTs 6-4 In Listless Battle

Trail 3-0 in First Period Score Three in Third Frame But Too Little and Too Late

KINGSTON (Special) — Belleville trailing in last night's Oroville's struggling TPTs did nip Ontario Hockey Association Senior "B" group game against Goodyears in the Community Memorial Centre but they did provide some anxious moments for the Douglasmen when the spirited third period rally rapped in three consecutive goals before, bowing out 6 to 4. It was a closely waged engagement before a crowd of 2,218 paying customers.

The local forward line composed of Don Murray at centre, and George Edmonbow and Ted Toppazzini on the rails, reaped four goals and two assists and stood out above any other combination on the ice. Murray, with two counters and an assist, and Gus Leonard of the visitors, who was credited with three assists, set the pointa getting pace, the while they played heads up hockey.

All five penalties called by the referees, Andy Bellemer and Ivan Locke, were meted out in the middle stanza. Belleville was marred by injuries to Samolenko of the locals and to Pete Jones and Keith MacDonald of the invaders. MacDonald, who received a ten-stitch gash last Friday night, was heavily boarded by Tommy Goodfellow at the end of the session and was forced out of action temporarily.

The visitors rallied in the third over the second place defending champions to six points and set the stage for an all-out effort against the potent Whitbyites in the Community Memorial Centre tomorrow night. On the same evening the Belles host the Lake Brodeville where they will attempt to dislodge the Magedomas from the league lead.

The TPT's, a combined aggregation composed of Peterborough and Belleville players, showed flashes of teamplay but created the impression that they have a long way to go before they achieve the desired co-ordination. More over-emphasis on it is represented at the turnstiles has been below expectations. On Tuesday when they beat the visiting Magedomas by 7 to 3 only 700 fans were in attendance.

The 6-4 count last evening in no way represented the superiority held by the titleholders. Only a sensational goaltending exhibition by Pat Parisi kept the Belles in the running. Parisi was called on to handle no less than 39 shots while Ken Johnson had only 15 directed at his net. Parisi's timely diving when under heavy attack was a feature.

Both teams played carefully from the start of hostilities and it wasn't until the nine minute mark that Ted Nicholson racked up the first goal of the game and his first of the season. Two minutes and thirty six seconds later Samolenko, with Murray assisting, made it 2 to 0 and at 17.17 Toppazzini, unaided, widened the gap.

Each team scored once in the second period that produced injuries to Samolenko, MacDonald and Pete Jones. The last mentioned opened the tallying, with Leonard assisting, at 5.04 and Murray, aided by Ian Morris and Toppazzini, replied at 18.58. Goodfellow was allotted the first penalty at 7.35 and he was away when Cheryl Jones drew a minor and a ten minute misconduct. Both "culprits" were joined by Ted Nicholson at 9.35. Bill McMaster was waved away at 16.45 and he had just returned when Murray beat Parisi.

Don Senior, with Goodfellow assisting, got Kingston's fifth marker at 4.23 when the former defenceman Goodfellow's long fast shot into the cage. The TPT's looked hopelessly distanced at that stage but they rallied and threatened to pull the veneer from the fire. Wade, Greenlaw and Gilmour were the successful combination while Pete Jones and Leonard each had two assists.

The champions responded by increasing their pace and the fans were treated to some lightning fast exchanges before Murray, aided by Mincy and Morris, clinched the verdict at 17.00.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Parisi; defence, Wade and McMaster; centre, Gower; wings, MacDonald and D. Jones; alternates, Mulholland, Leonard, P. Jones, Greenlaw, Fryia, Gilmour, Hill.

Kingston — Goal, Johnson; defence, Lemley and Goodfellow; centre, Murray; wings, Toppazzini and Samolenko; alternates, Goodfellow, Macey, Nicholson, Senior, Morris, White, Yinkean, Andres — Andy Bellemer and Ivan Locke.

First Period

Kingston—Nicholson (Goodfellow, Senior) 9.00
Kingston—Samolenko (Murray) 11.36
Kingston—Toppazzini ... 17.17
Penalties—none.

Second Period

Belleville—P. Jones (Leonard) 3.33
Kingston—Murray (Morris, Toppazzini) .. 18.58
Penalties—Goodfellow, boarding, 7.35; Jones, minor for hooking and 10 minute misconduct, 9.35; Nicholson, holding 9.35; McMaster, tripping 16.46.

Third Period

Kingston—Senior (Goodfellow) 4.23
Belleville—Wade (Greenlaw) 6.18
Belleville—Greenlaw (P. Jones, Leonard) 9.39
Belleville—Gilmour (P. Jones, Leonard) 11.05
Kingston—Murray (Macey, Morris) 17.00
Penalties—none.

Will Probe Fracas Between Police, Players

NORTH BAY (CP) — The city police commission Wednesday reluctantly agreed to Pembroke requests it investigate a Saturday night hockey fracas involving players of Pembroke Lumber Kings of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association and city policemen.

At the same time, however, Mayor Merle Dickerson urged Pembroke officials to settle the matter "in friendship" without conducting an inquiry.

The mayor, in a letter mailed Wednesday on behalf of the commission, said the commissioners are "quite willing and ready to investigate your complaint."

The Pembroke club asked for a hearing in a stick-swinging melee at the community Memorial Garena in the third minutes of a game between Pembroke and North Bay Trappers. North Bay won 5-3.

MAKES PEACE OFFER

The fight involved Pembroke players and local police constables.

Mayor Dickerson said representatives of the Pembroke club and the North Bay police department would be invited to appear in any inquiry opened.

"If on the other hand," his letter continued, "the matter can be arranged amicably, without conducting an inquiry, it might better serve the worthy cause of both your club and ours."

The mayor disclosed that an earlier letter of apology to the Pembroke team composed by him was never sent. After a conference with other members of the police commission, a "slightly changed version" was sent.

The North Bay Police Association also has called for a special hearing on the incident. Its executive said it feels the case has not been handled fairly.

Prexy Approves Clair As Rider Coach

OTTAWA (CP)—James P. McCaffrey, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, returned home Wednesday after a seven-week government mission to Australia and immediately announced his approval to reports that Frank Clair probably will be signed as coach of Ottawa Rough Riders.

McCaffrey, manager of the Big Four Football League Riders, said he has always considered Clair, former Toronto Argonaut coach, a fine coach. He said he thinks Clair would be a good coach for the Riders. His experience with the Canadian game would be invaluable.

McCaffrey, federal trade marks registrar, was in Australia at a Commonwealth conference.

BC Lions Sign Clem Crowe Head Coach

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clem Crowe, a football coach for 30 years, Wednesday was signed to a two-year contract as the new head coach of B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The 53-year-old Notre Dame alumnus, line coach for Lions last season, said his first and most important job will be to locate and develop more Canadian talent.

Crowe succeeds Annis Stukus, who piloted the Lions in their 1954 WIFU debut but failed to win a new contract from the club's directors at the end of the 1955 season. Stukus now is a special football writer for the Vancouver Sun.

The new coach coached Ottawa Rough Riders from 1951 to 1954—to the Grey Cup the first year, third-place finishes the next two years and last place in 1954.

Olympic Brass Will Not Permit Lone Travel

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Shaughnessy Jr., manager of the Canadian Olympic teams, said Wednesday the Canadian Olympic Association is opposed to individual team members travelling to Europe unsupervised.

He was commenting on statements made in Winnipeg Tuesday night by veteran speed skater Frank Stack.

Stack said in an interview it is a "crime" that the Canadian Winter Olympic Committee has refused to grant Gordon Audley permission to compete in Norway prior to the 1955-56 winter Olympics opening in Italy, Jan. 25. Stack said Canada would benefit from Audley's trip to Norway and earlier practice.

Shaughnessy said both Audley and the Canadian Figure Skating Association have been advised of the policy of the Canadian Olympic Association.

The Olympic Association said it would extend its blessing if the Figure Skating Association wished to take the whole speed skating team to Norway for advance competitions. The Olympic Association, however, would pay only such expenses as the team would normally incur in a trip to and from the Olympic Games.

Voyles Will Make Up Mind On Friday

HAMILTON (CP)—Carl Voyles, coach and general manager of the Hamilton Tiger-Cat Football Club for six years, will decide by Friday whether he intends to sign another contract with the Big Four team. Charles M. Crown, franchise holder who assumed control of the club after an administrative reorganization last week, said Voyles had been approached concerning a new contract and promised to give his decision to the executive on Friday.

Meanwhile Ralph Cooper Wednesday night said declared that he is not a member of the Hamilton team's new executive. Cooper, president of the Big Four, said he had asked Lawson not to include him on the executive since he felt league matters had taken too much of his time during the past year.

Indians Scalp Lumber Kings

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP)—Sault Indians ended a seven-game losing streak in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association southern group competition Wednesday night when they defeated Pembroke Lumber Kings 7-3.

The first period ended with the Indians ahead 2-1, Gordie Heale and Chuck Holladay scored for the Tribe with Bob Hayes getting the Pembroke marker.

Burly Dimma's goal early in the second period gave the Indians a 3-1 lead but two markers off the stick of John Bailey evened the count at the end of two periods. Indians scored four times in the third to clinch the win. Dale Anderson had two goals in the frame with Pep Backer and Pete Gegean adding singles.

Bowling Winners

Canada's largest weekly bowling contest, with over 100,000 bowlers participating just concluded its fourth week.

Weekly $150.00 prize went to the armed services, the "A Wing" team bowling at Vimy Barracks, Kingston, with a score of 1697.

Second prize went to the "Unknowns" of the Friday Nighters, bowling at Ace Bowling Centre, Toronto. Their Dow cash award was $75.00, their score 1575. Third place in the Dow money went to the "Vitones" of the Central League, bowling at the Central Bowling Alleys, Hamilton. Score, 1564; cash prize $25.00.

And additional five Dow awards of $25.00 each went to teams whose scores most closely corresponded to the average in their respective leagues.

Dow cheques went to: the "Printmonkies" of Sudbury and "Troopers" in Kingsville the "Heedorms" in Picton, and the "Orphans" in Chilliwack.

The scores of these teams ranged from 899 to 1698. This feature in Dow's Bowl O' Fun draws a great many entries because even the "poorest" teams have a chance at that Dow money.

Six Picked Up For Kingston

SARNIA (CP)—Four youths and two juvenile girls from Kingston are being held by suburban Point Edward police on vagrancy charges. They were picked up Tuesday night as they tried to enter the United States.

Kingston police are reported on their way to pick up the boys who are charged in Kingston with abduction of the two girls. Two of the four are brothers: Edward Daniels, 20, and Albert, 19. The others are Thomas Griffin, 20, and Keith McConnell, 19.

Rod Steiger Plans to Abandon Movie Career for the Present

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Rod Steiger plans to abandon his flourishing movie career for Europe, drop 20 pounds and return a new man.

What's wrong with the old one? Nothing that Hollywood can see. An unknown a year ago, he garnered much notice and an academy nomination as Marlon Brando's brother in "On the Waterfront." Since then he has starred in "Oklahoma!" plus top roles in "The Big Knife" and "The Court-Martial of Billy Mitchell." Now he's vying with Humphrey Bogart in "The Harder They Fall."

He could keep busy indefinitely with the other offers he's had, earning well over $100,000 a year. So isn't he happy?

"No," said the brooding Steiger (pronounced like tiger). "I don't think I have fully realized my potentialities. As it is now, I can earn a comfortable living as a character actor.

"But I think I can do more than that. I'd like to play the kind of leads that Spencer Tracy did when he was a younger man.

"I believe I could do it if I dropped a few pounds. The weight is wonderful for character roles, especially some of the older men I've played (he's 30). I went up as high as 225 pounds for Jud. Now I'm down to 200 and I've got another 20 to go."

Steiger thanks the veterans' administration for his acting career, which he says has been "a godsend."

After four years in the navy he came out with no particular purpose, not suited for any special job. One day in his home town of Newark, N. J., he passed a sign saying "Learn how to act." He found out other veterans—and lots of girls—were in the class, so he joined.

When he showed promise, the instructor suggested he should go to one of the New York dramatic schools. When he protested that he was broke he was reminded that Washington would foot the bill.

After years of struggle he started clicking on television, did some plays, then was claimed by the movies. He hasn't given up his studies—still goes to the Actors Studio twice a week when he's in New York.

AT THE McCARTHY — Robert Mitchum is cast in a completely different type of role in "The Night of the Hunter," United Artists release opening today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. He plays the role of a murderer who poses as a preacher.

Maurice Chevalier Bringing Best Entertainment from Paris

By CHARLES MERCER

He tells you, first of all, that he's 67 and that proves it.

Then, with some subtlety, he explains that he's not just a guy working the sunny side of the street for a buck. Finally he describes his desire to do something he feels he could do very well: bring to American television, on a more or less regular basis, the best entertainment that Paris offers.

In the light of his live TV debut on NBC-TV this week it appears that Chevalier has a good idea. Performing a feat that numerous entertainers fail to accomplish, he established communication and accord with his audience.

With straw hat and bow tie and raised brow he demonstrated that he could ably fulfill his ambition of being a French—and more vivacious—version of Ed Sullivan.

PRAISE FOR MARCEAU

If Chevalier could supply a reservoir of talent such as Marcel Marceau, the French pantomimist who appeared with him on the Sullivan show, he'd be assured of success. Marceau is a royal descendant in that artistic line of French pantomimists founded in the 17th century. Only great regard, although one from saying that his pantomime on "youth, maturity, old age and death," performed on a dead silent screen, was the most exciting two minutes of television I've ever seen.

Well, Chevalier says that resources of talent exists, and I, for one, will take his word for it. I've been greatly entertained and fascinated by Parisian singers, song and pantomime during two visits there in the last three years. I'd like to see more of it on television—and I believe you would.

There's a great traffic in European culture and entertainment these days. We see French and Italian movies. We read translations of books and hit big business. So why shouldn't television try swim with the tide?

IMPOSES CENSORSHIP

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters)—Gen. Lima Camara, supervisor of the state of siege in Brazil, Wednesday reimposed censorship on the country's newspapers. Foreign news agencies were not affected. No explanation was given for the move.

Dutchies Open Funds Campaign

KITCHENER (CP)—A fund-raising campaign for the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen's winter Olympic hockey trip will officially open here Dec. 26.

A total of $15,170 is the objective set by a committee of sportsmen set up by the Twin Cities Chamber of Commerce and not connected with the Ontario Hockey Association senior A team.

The amount required is to pay expenses not included in the grant by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which covers an official party of 21—17 players, the rest team officials.

Dutchmen, who are expected to leave for Italy Jan. 15, want to take their club doctor, an extra trainer, two players not eligible to play in the Olympics, and some other club officials considered in line for the trip because of their services.

In addition, Canada's representative anticipates extra expenses in the form of heavy charges for excess baggage weight.

The fund will be administered by the independent committee and anything raised in excess of the budgeted amount will be turned over to minor hockey.

How About 'Grey Cuppers'?

Vancouver Ball Club Needs Name Coasters Scratch Noggins for Winner

By AL MAKELE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Naming a baseball club is like naming a baby—everyone has his own idea about it.

In Vancouver these days, anybody with an idea is writing to the Vancouver club of the Pacific Coast League, entering the contest to name the team. Prize is a season ticket for two.

Letters are coming in at about 150 a day, suggesting names that range from the ridiculous to the unbelievable.

Some are feasible, but one name suggested was cut out of consideration almost immediately. The name, Van-Tana, is also used by a west coast Nudist club.

"Nope," said general manager Cedric Tallis.

How about the Hot-Spurs, We-Done-Its, All-Outs, Great-Hearts? "Not likely" said Tallis.

PREVIOUS HOME

The Oakland Commuters said one letter, tabbed the Owls part from Offaland, Calif., previous home of the club that is moving to Vancouver.

"Too long and no dignity," said Tallis.

One letter contained 50 suggestions, another 30 and one 12. The contest rules ask for one or two.

Some suggested Cagliano, name of the Vancouver club in the Western International League when it folded at the end of the 1954 season. The city has been without pro ball since then.

A few of the names are headed for the final consideration of the press-radio committee appointed to choose the name. Among the groups are Totems, Mounties and Canadians.

Others seem destined for the waste-basket.

One definitely is: Snoils—Lions spelled backwards.

"Ugh," said Tallis.

STOPS BRITON

Lausse weighed 159¼, Sullivan 160¾.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, Dec. 9, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Jupiter, the planet of good will, is the only planet in auspicious aspect today, but good deeds and helpful cooperation activated by unselfishness will pay well.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Friendly strong influences can aid in overcoming some restrictive tendencies now. Co-operate with you — and how you accept responsibilities and tackle tedious tasks.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Some favorable Mercury rays, still lingering from yesterday, suggest calmness, good cheer and daily confident action for the most productive, profitable returns. Familiar work tops.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — The influences are favorable today otherwise but caution is stressed in promises, signing agreements, making estimates. Hilarity activities and those for which you have had training can especially advance. Be hopeful.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — This is a period for sticking to conservative methods. Do not run out of line looking for excitement.

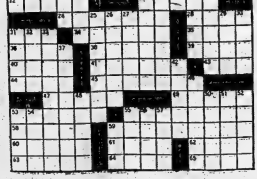
August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — You may have to make extra effort; show greater patience than usual to meet and overcome slow progress, hitches in your plans now.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Mild indications. You will have to supply the impetus and steadiness needed to complete difficult or tedious tasks. But the day will yield good returns for like endeavor.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — A challenging day, perhaps, but you can enjoy the fruits of your efforts and learn more as you strive. To those who write, study, analyze, teach, research: You can reach some goals.

November 23 to December 23 — (Sagittarius) — Some slight advance in your sound attainment through unusual ideas as well as in regular daily interests. Time to plan for future security.

December 24 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Be acquisitive, make careful use of advantages, do not go to extremes nor lirg beyond common sense. Your specific talents and ability are needed, so do not waste them. Hard work sponsored.



January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Liven up your keen mind for fresh progress in your specific calling and in home interests. Day calls for steady application.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — The influences are mixed but they are favorable for the energetic, alive individual who will be willing to smile even though all doesn't please. Benefits will accrue later from sound efforts put forth now.

You born today are innately self-confident, capable, as agreeable in reverses as in affluence. True to your finer characteristics and making proper use of them, you are an asset to any honorable organization, religious group, civic and family life. Now, up your hat on! You have some faults — (don't we all?) but once you recognize them you will try to correct them. Curb any tendency toward quick temper, irritability, extremes. Birthdate: John Milton, famed poet.

Is ARTHRITIC PAIN Almost Unbearable to YOU?

"My husband is a carpenter on the railway," writes Mrs. Jackson, "in Cabbertown. When coming to work he missed and found he could not climb the ladder to do his work. A dull pain in his shoulder and leg was almost unbearable. The druggist recommended T-R-C's. My husband took 2 capsules and before the day was over he was back at work again. Now, if he has any pain at all, he carries T-R-C's in his lunch pail."

Don't suffer another day from Arthritic Rheumatic, Neuritic pains—Sciatica or Neuralgia. Try Templeton's T-R-C's—Canada's Largest-selling prescription medicine for fast relief from such pain. Only 70c, $1.50 at druggists. 1-54

OPEN HOUSE

SATURDAY-SUNDAY

We have decided to hold an "Open House" on one of our New Split Level Homes before it is completed, to allow future buyers to see the actual material that go into a home. We hope that this will be a service to customers wondering how a home is constructed, and the materials used.

Charles Lambert
Contractor

who has built a number of exceptionally well - built homes.

See This Split Level

And let us show you around. This home has the heating in and is ready for occupancy. Salesmen will be at this house

Saturday and Sunday

1 P.M. until 4 P.M.

THIS HOME IS ON CRESTVIEW AVE.

Go East on Bridge Street to Bertrand, turn left, then 1 block to Crestview, turn right and go to the end of Crestview, and there you are

Announces

Due to increase in business we are opening a new modern real estate office with private consulting rooms and ample parking space at 295 Dundas Street East, across from the Port Queen's Motel. Our sales staff are fully equipped to handle all types of residential and commercial properties. We will also be in the position to arrange all types of Mortgages. Your inspection of these premises is cordially invited.

We have a number of new modern brick homes built under the N.H.A. by reputable contractors, which may be purchased with a reasonable down payment, with convenient terms for the balance.

If you now own an older type of home or a house that is no longer suitable for your needs, could be we could make a trade for one that will meet your requirements. We would gladly have a competent representative appraise your property, free of charge.

Prairies May Invade Ontario Stock Markets

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario Wednesday expressed fear that the grain surplus may cause the Prairies to invade Ontario's livestock markets and disrupt the whole farm economy.

The problem is vital, said Ontario's Agriculture Minister Thomas, because 70 cents out of every $1 earned by Ontario farmers comes from livestock and its products.

Speaking before the federal-provincial agricultural conference, he said it may be selfish of him to say so, but he would suggest it would be best if the West remained principally in grain production and stayed away from livestock.

HAS SURPLUSES

He said he realizes that the West has huge grain surpluses. Because of a market scarcity, more and more of this grain likely would be fed to livestock.

Competitively, Ontario had the edge in lower production costs, but it was possible that if the West produced in sufficient volume it could undersell Ontario farmers.

Tuesday, Agriculture Minister Robertson of Manitoba told the conference his department will do everything it can to encourage fish fishing of cattle in Manitoba.

He said Manitoba has been in the livestock business for many years and that "we feel the profits should be enjoyed by the people who raise the livestock."

TO TEST LAW

Mr. Thomas said Ontario has decided to ask the federal government to test provincial farm marketing legislation before the Supreme Court of Canada.

He and Ontario Attorney-General Roberts will meet with Justice Minister Garson next Tuesday to begin preparing the test to come before the court at its next sessions early in 1956.

Crux of the issue is whether the federal government is on firm constitutional grounds in delegating taxing powers to provincial producer marketing boards.

The boards have issued permits and levied tolls against their members under this delegation of authority and there is some question of the legality of such actions.

Old-Style Cans, Tanks for Milk Being Discussed

TORONTO (CP)—Dairy men discussed the pros and cons of old-style milk cans and refrigerated tanks Wednesday. They agreed the only answer appears to lie in a full-scale survey now being conducted by the Ontario Agricultural College.

But speakers in a panel discussion at the annual convention of the Ontario Milk Distributors Association were unanimous on one point —no matter what collection system is used, there will be no increase in milk prices to the consumer.

SEE SAVING

It was claimed that despite the high initial investment by the farmer and trucker in purchasing refrigerated farm storage tanks and refrigerated tank trucks, the new system would mean a long-term saving.

The farmer, it was argued, would save labor by not carrying heavy milk cans to the highway for pick-ups, and the trucker would not have to make as many trips from farm to dairy.

W. H. Hollies, president of the Ontario Whole Milk Producers' League, suggested that since the hauler and the dairy too would save money, somebody—presumably the farmer—should be given a premium on the installation cost.

COMPLETES PLANS

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government Wednesday completed its plans for a meeting of the NATO council in Paris next week. Prime Minister St. Laurent made the bare statement to reporters after a 9½-hour meeting, giving no details.

Should Preserve Historic Sites Says Minister

VESPRA, Ont. (CP) — Travel and Publicity Minister Cathcart said Wednesday night every dollar spent on advertising and promoting Ontario is bringing back more than $250 in tourist dollars.

Mr. Cathcart said in an address to the Buronia Historic Sites and Tourist Association that U.S. visitors as well as Canadian tourists are interested in the preservation of historic sites and such projects are a promising instrument in advancing the tourist business.

National Product Increase Likely To Balance Budget

Production Surges Ahead To Record Annual Rate

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's gross national product surged ahead to a record annual rate of $26,000,000,000 in the third quarter of 1955 and the bureau of statistics forecast today it will average a peak $26,160,000,000 for the full year.

The gross national product is the value of all goods and services produced and a key to the state of Canada's economic health. If the bureau's forecast materializes, it will mean a rise of more than $1,000,000,000 in the year from $24,000,000,000 in 1954.

It also may mean a balanced budget for the federal government. Finance minister Harris estimated in his April 5 budget that he will have a deficit of about $125,000,000 for 1955-56 based on a gross national product of $25,250,000,000.

But he added that the budget would be balanced if the gross national product reached $26,000,000,000. It now appears it will be higher than the government's best expectations.

Perhaps expecting this, Mr. Harris has in the last month revised his deficit forecast. He said in New York that it will be big enough to be at least one-third less than forecast. In Toronto Nov. 28, he said it would be less than one-half the original estimate.

The bureau said the big June-September upsurge resulted mainly from Canada's big grain crop, high consumer spending and to a lesser extent from a rise in exports, investments, government expenditures and a larger stockpiling of goods.

All told, the third-quarter annual rate of $26,000,000,000 was $3,000,000,000 higher than the $23,000,000,000 worth of goods and services produced in the similar period last year.

Train Strikes School Bus, None Badly Hurt

BANCROFT (Special)—A bus-load of school pupils narrowly escaped serious injury here yesterday when the vehicle they were riding in was struck by a train.

About $1,500 damage was caused the bus.

The accident occurred at a railroad crossing at Deiter where the bus, carrying public and high school students from nearby Snitter slowed down before crossing the rails.

However, an icy road surface caused it to skid, sending it right on the rails. An approaching train struck the front of the vehicle, slewing it around and off the rails.

Some of the passengers were treated for minor injuries.

2 Hitch-Hikers Rob Driver Of $75, Burn Car

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Two armed hitch-hikers bound and gagged a young Italian immigrant, robbed him of $75 early today and then set fire to his car while the driver was still behind the wheel.

Egidio Garofalo, 22, said he managed to open the front door and roll out into the snow as flames quickly destroyed the car.

Police today snapped a dragnet around the district and set up road blocks on all main roads trying to trap the two men, who escaped on foot.

Gaitskell Spurns Bevan Plea They Back Morrison

LONDON (Reuters) — Right-winger Hugh Gaitskell today was favored to win the Labor party's leadership as postal ballots being started ahead of Monday's attempt to block him.

Gaitskell, former economics professor and one-time chancellor of the exchequer, announced during Thursday night that he had no intention of giving up his candidacy, has the support of the party's official, left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan.

Bevan, a long-shot candidate for the party leadership vacated Wednesday by Clement Attlee, said he had agreed to withdraw from the contest in favor of deputy party leader Herbert Morrison, if Gaitskell would do the same.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: All of Ontario shares the grip of winter today. Cold northeasterly winds have brought Arctic air down across southern Ontario, and early morning readings hovered near the 20-degree mark around the lower lakes.

Continued cold, snow which was general in southern sections Thursday night will diminish to occasional flurries in most areas today, and some sunny intervals are anticipated for Saturday. However, the Niagara peninsula and counties bordering Lake Huron and Georgian bay will not be so fortunate, as northeasterly winds bring snow squalls in off the open lakes across these regions.

Temperatures will remain about 10 degrees below normal in southern Ontario today and Saturday.

FIRST MAJOR SNOWFALL CAUSES MANY ACCIDENTS

Same Story Each Year Says Weary Policeman

TORONTO (CP) — Long lines of traffic snaked slowly through the city today as motorists and police battled the first major snowfall of the winter.

The story was duplicated in most southern Ontario centres—spinning tires, clogged roads and a rash of minor accidents.

"It's the same story every year," said one weary traffic constable. "The snow comes and the drivers don't know how to cope with it. It'll get better after this, though."

Snow is blanketing most of southern Ontario, with the heaviest fall in a triangle bounded by Toronto, London and Georgian bay.

The North Bay and Sudbury area was buried under 14 to 18 inches; Wiarton, 15 miles north west of Owen Sound, had 8 inches, Muskoka 5, London 2, Toronto and St. Catharines 1 inch and Hamilton and Windsor only a trace.

The highway department reported all roads in northern Ontario snow covered and heavy slush and snow on the going tough in the southwestern tip of the province.

Drifts were piling up in the north as winds from Hudson bay struck the area.

Harried Toronto police reported dozens of minor mishaps. Most of were caused by autos skidding into each other on slippery snow.

30-MINUTE TIE-UP

A transport truck jackknifed across the Queen Elizabeth Way, six miles west of Toronto, and traffic was tied up for more than 30 minutes. Another half-hour snarl resulted in suburban Milnico when an auto skidded into a wooden telephone pole, snapping it and dropping wires on the road. The driver was uninjured.

The weatherman said light snow was falling over most southern sections of Ontario but said it would probably taper off as blustery winds swung slowly from northeast to north. The Niagara and Bruce peninsulas, however, could expect still more.

Temperatures, he said, will remain about 10 degrees below normal, at about 15 degrees in most places today, dropping to 20 or 15 tonight. Lowest temperatures in the province were reported around Sioux Lookout, 170 miles northwest of Port Arthur, where it was 18 degrees below.

East Germany Takes Over Border Patrol

ERBLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany announced today its frontier police have taken over from the Russians the task of controlling the borders with orders to be "courteous" but to resist any efforts to interfere with the "sovereignty" of the state.

Fifty Escape Deadly Fumes

BERLIN (AP) — Communist some near collapse, escaped from the apartment building into blowing snow early today when sulphur fumes swept through the wing of the building, police said.

The alarm was sounded by an unidentified tenant.

John Shields, district fire chief, said the fumes were fatal if they enter the blood stream. A spirit lamp in the basement kitchen system allowed the fumes to escape.

Free Pair Given 10-Year Sentences For Trying to Aid Woman in Distress

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Describing the case as "almost fantastic," Marion County Court Thursday freed two Lawrenceburg, Ind., men sentenced to 10 years each after they were committed to 10-year terms.

This chain of events, as related in testimony before the Supreme Court, led to their arrest.

While driving past the farm of Charles and Zella Wiesham, the two were stopped by Mrs. Wiesham who asked them for $5 for money to visit her sick husband at Indianapolis. She said they could get the money back by taking two sacks of wheat from the gun blasts fired by Joseph Dall, Wiesham barn and selling them.

ENGINEER TRAPPED

Firemen and Canadian Pacific Railway workers tug at the wreckage of a self-propelled passenger car to free engineer Gordon Payne who was trapped in his cab after the car collided head-on with a switch engine at Zimmerman, Man. Payne was not severely hurt. No one was seriously injured in the crash. The collision occurred a few blocks from the high-level bridge which crosses the North Saskatchewan River. (CP Photo).

Dulles Proposes Retaliation Policy to Meet Red Challenge

CHICAGO (AP)—Slate Secretary Dulles Thursday night urged Western countries to bolster their alliances and maintain "selective retaliatory power" to meet Russia's new challenge of their security.

Stating that the Russians have had no change in purpose but only in tactics," Dulles said "our capacity to retaliate must be, and is, massive in order to deter all forms of aggression."

"But if we have to use that capacity such use would be selective and adapted to the occasion."

The secretary of state repeated his massive retaliation theme in a major foreign policy address at a dinner meeting of the Illinois Manufacturers Association. He described it as "a firm foundation for peace."

He asserted the policy of collective security—backed by an "arsenal of retaliation"—will turn the "ultimate deterrent" against the possibility of full-scale attack by the Soviet Union.

The massive retaliation theme was first advanced by Dulles in a speech Jan. 12, 1954. He said the United States would depend primarily on "a great capacity to retaliate instantly by means and at places of our own choosing" to any communist attack.

Fears were voiced that it might touch off a third world war if the United States reacted in such a way to a minor communist assault.

Dulles later said the United States has no intention of depending upon nuclear air power for massive atomic retaliation to scare off possible Communist aggressors. The United States would deal separately with each case in the most appropriate manner and would make full use of local defence forces.

There was "a new vitality" in a movement among some Western European nations—such as France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—to "create common institutions."

He said a greater unity eventually would increase pressure on Russia to loosen its grip on its satellite countries.

Pearson Rebukes Statements Made by Russians in Asia

OTTAWA (CP) — Anti-Western statements made by two Russian leaders touring India and Burma have drawn a sharp rebuke from External Affairs Minister Pearson.

He told the Women's Canadian Club Thursday night that remarks by Premier Bulganin and Communist party secretary Khrushchev were "almost an insult to the intelligence" of their audience. They showed either ignorance, as well, of what is going on in the Western world.

Mr. Pearson said it is hard to believe that Khrushchev knew better when he stood to a Burmese audience that Britain had arranged the Suez crisis and Malaya in 1941, what Khrushchev said must have been for "bad political purposes."

It was "frightening," the minister added, that it was like Khrushchev, with a "total and dangerous" lack of memory, to have said in their hands the destiny of 112,000,000 Russians and, in effect, the destiny of the Western world.

Mr. Pearson, who visited Russia in early October, said Khrushchev told him that Russia has the hydrogen bomb but that the U.S.S.R. would win with its system without total war.

"It is up to us to show them that they are not justified in their confidence and that their system shall not prevail," Mr. Pearson said.

Because the Soviet leaders were not suicidal fanatics like Hitler, a total hydrogen war was unlikely. But the possibility remained of "needless short of all-out war." It was more difficult but just as important to prepare against political aggression as against military aggression.

It was especially important, at a time when the Russian leaders were making grandiloquent gestures in Asia, for the West to help Asia not only economically but with understanding, sympathy and co-operation.

CAUGHT IN ACT

TOKYO (AP)—In a downtown department store Thursday police arrested a man they discovered he was an off-duty policeman.

Another Member Of Capone Mob Slain in Chicago

Alex Louis Greenberg, wealthy scrap-metal dealer and reputed one-time mob financial adviser, died the victim of a gang-style rubout of syndicate members in 17 months.

Greenberg was slain on a southside street as he and his wife prepared to enter their car after dining at a restaurant.

Police said Mrs. Greenberg said she knows of no reason why her husband was killed, but police Capt. Thomas Meehan said the victim "had a good thing" and was paying someone and might have snuffed a payment.

Police began rounding up known hoodlums for questioning.

Mrs. Greenberg, 43, told investigators she and her husband had just walked out of the restaurant and were standing at the door of their car when two men whose faces she did not see walked up. "I heard several shots and saw flashes."

She said Greenberg staggered after the men as they fled on foot, then collapsed in the street.

CANADIAN PLAN ON ITS WAY TO SECURITY COUNCIL

Would Break Deadlock On U.N. Membership

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Blessed by the general assembly, a Canadian plan for breaking the five-year-old deadlock on membership in the UN today was on its way to the security council.

Canada's resolution outlining the package admission of Red Communist and 13 non — Communist countries was adopted by the assembly Thursday 52 to 2. The road ahead, however, was strewn with obstacles that may set it hard fighting minority.

The council meets Saturday to consider its decision, which may not be reached until next week. Nationalist China, a permanent member of the council, still threatens to scuttle the scheme by vetoing Communist Outer Mongolia.

F. E. Tytler, the Nationalist delegate, continued his attack on Outer Mongolia Thursday by reiterating charges that Mongolian troops fought against the UN in the Korea. All the Communist candidates, Tsiang said, are Russian colonies—"slave colonies", at that.

Besides Outer Mongolia, the Red applicants include Albania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Rumania and the Western-sponsored candidates are Austria, Italy, Spain, Japan, Ireland, Portugal, Cambodia, Finland, Ceylon, Portugal, Jordan, Nepal and Libya.

FIVE ABSTAIN

There were five abstentions as the assembly approved a committee recommendation that the resolution sponsored by Canada and 28 other countries be adopted.

Assembly president Jose Maza of Chile said the decision brought near a solution of the membership problem, which has existed since the UN was founded and has kept the door shut on new members since Indonesia was admitted as the 60th country in 1950.

Thursday's passage of the resolution was a foregone conclusion. It took the assembly nearly three hours to vote on the 29 nations. The Soviet bloc was marked by bitter exchanges between Communist Poland and between Cuba and Poland.

A remark by France's Herve Alphand that the UN had rejected illegality and resorted to arbitrariness brought an unscheduled intervention from Hsiith Minister Paul Martin, Canada's veteran diplomat.

"The cornerstone of our foreign policy is the United Nations," said Martin, "and no other motive influenced us in this matter." In view of past Soviet vetoes, Canada was the only way to bring in deserving candidates was through the 16 member package."

Victoria Mayor Loses

VICTORIA (CP) — Claude Harrison, colorful, cape - wearing mayor of Victoria for the last four years, was defeated in his bid for a third-term Thursday by Alderman Percy Scurrah.

Mayor Harrison received only 3,728 votes against 4,346 for Scurrah, silkwood opponent in a two-way race.

Woman 'With Little Mechanical Aptitude' Flies New Plane Unaided

By GERRY SMITH

The manufacturers of Cessna airplanes have always contended a new civilian craft. They are confident any competent person with some help easily a novice pilot can learn to fly this plane. Gerry Smith of the Toronto Valley Daily News, Tarentum, Pa., tried it and here is his own account of what happened.)

TARENTUM, Pa. (AP) — The first time I ever sat in the pilot's seat of an airplane I took off, flew at 1,000 feet, 120 miles an hour and landed without help.

Until Thursday I didn't know an airplane instrument panel from a hole in the floor. I've been in only an airplane only twice before—both times as a passenger.

I have very little mechanical aptitude—even can openers talk back to me occasionally. I have the world's worst sense of direction and I flunked my first driver's test. In addition, I'm a woman.

But a new civilian airplane (Cessna 172) is so simple to operate that even I can fly it. Maybe that's why my editor assigned me to the job—to see how simple flying was.

One of the first craft off the production line was delivered just recently to the Pittsburgh area dealer, Alfred B. Barnett—the same company that got the flight since the manufacturers request that a licensed pilot accompany anyone without a license. But I was able to handle the controls on my own after just a few minutes' instruction.

I merely pushed the ignition key, gradually opened the throttle and when the speedometer read 60 I raised the nose of the plane by pulling back on the steering wheel. The plane lifted forward on the "yoke," comparable to an auto steering wheel.

To land, I headed toward the field and gradually lowered the nose by pushing forward on the wheel and closed the throttle simultaneously. I must admit that more gentle contact has probably been made between airplane wheels and landing field but I did land alone, without mishap.

All Inside Montreal Building Escape Without Injury

By GUY RONDEAU
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Men and equipment from a dozen fire stations continued early today to pour water over the blackened frame of a religious community's west-end headquarters, after a general alarm fire Thursday night caused an estimated $600,000 damage to the building.

All those inside the building escaped without injury.

The fire in the five-storey brick building started in the third-floor room of a resident priest. It raced upwards through the wooden interior to destroy the fourth and sixth floors, including all the belongings of some 40 priests, brothers and novices in the Roman Catholic order of Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament.

FLED FROM TABLE

The fire caught the occupants at the supper table. Many died in their short sleeves to the bitter freezing weather.

A third-storey chapel was in the basement section. There was no time to save the sacred host or alarm the tabernacle.

The two lower storeys were saved by axes and water.

Community officials said daily masses in the adjacent Notre Dame church have cancelled until alternate seating arrangements can be made in the church.

The priests, brothers and students were housed temporarily in a variety of places. Some went across the street to become the first persons to use the new Jeffery Hale hospital.

Others were taken into private homes in the residential area.

A Canadian Aladdin

At the height of the blaze, 13 Quebec stations sent firemen and equipment. Off-duty firemen were called in by the general alarm, the first here in more than a year, and eight emergency staffs were left in the stations.

The danger was intimate came from Rev. Goudias Labrecque, superior of the house community. He said a short circuit may have started the fire, but this could not be confirmed.

Rev. Jules Adam was the first to spot the blaze. He said he noticed a "red glow" in the courtyard outside and, on looking, saw the flames.

"I went to the dining room and told the boys to get settled. The home is on fire."

Father Adam said he grabbed a couple of overcoats from the hall after an unsuccessful attempt to reach his room and he and the others left the building.

"There was no panic," he said. "Everybody left quietly. . . ."

Aussie Pilots Lasso Rockets In Midair

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Royal Australian Air Force pilots are "lassoing" falling experimental rockets in midair to prevent them from being damaged in the drop to the ground, Supply Minister Howard Beale said today.

Beale said the guided rockets eject a parachute at the end of each flight. RAAF aircraft intercept the rockets with a device like an aluminum loop fitted near the tail.

Russian Prelate Says All Should Work for Peace

TORONTO (CP)—A Moscow prelate of the Russian Orthodox Church said Thursday night the followers of Christianity should strive for "peace among all nations."

Archbishop Boyis, representative in North and South America of the Moscow patriarch, told a United Church congregation the visit of his church is to establish peace and understanding "and a love which will unite all in deep spiritual unity."

The archbishop and the two other members of a group of visiting Russian church dignitaries attended services at Timothy Eaton Memorial Church. The three are visiting Toronto as part of a two-week Canadian tour.

All of the animals at the pound will make ideal house pets for some little girl or boy.

Work of Select Provincial Committee on Roads Outlined To County Council by Member

County councils throughout Ontario are being invited to pass along their ideas on toll roads to the select committee of the Ontario government appointed to obtain information on toll roads systems in the United States.

The invitation has been extended by the committee to Hastings county council but the body will not discuss possible action on the matter until the January session.

As a member of the select committee, W. E. Sandercock, M.L.A for Hastings West on Thursday afternoon appeared at the December session of council and told what the committee had accomplished since last spring.

He said the committee members had gone on an extended trip over toll roads in the United States and found that they were very popular. "Lack of road building finances on the part of governments had brought about the construction of toll roads in many interests," Mr. Sandercock said.

One of the matters which his committee had to consider before reporting to Queen's Park was the cost per day per car for operating toll roads. At least five thousand cars per day were required to make a toll road pay.

Mr. Sandercock said that some roads in Western Ontario did not meet this minimum traffic requirement.

On the other hand the committee had to take into consideration the fact that it takes money within a day's drive for 85 million American motorists.

TOLL ROAD COST

Mr. Sandercock referred to the tremendous cost of building concrete roads, but the body will be a new 401 Highway. He said it would take years to complete this road and that it was available to the government for road building and the cost would be astounding.

"There would always be "free roads," Mr. Sandercock said, but his committee felt that those in the United States toll roads meant more money was available for free roads.

Council took no action on a request from Sheriff T. Solmes for consideration of increased salaries for members of the local force.

Addressing council at the morning session, Mr. Solmes had a letter from the Department of Reform Institutions pointing out that before he could recommend an increase in salary for jail employees now receiving the maximum, he had to have approval of county council. He said there were now four or five members of the Belleville county jail staff receiving the present maximum.

He noted that a select committee investigating jail conditions throughout the province had noted that the salaries are not enough to lure low to attract new employees.

On question from Reeve Charles Buskard of Deloro, Mr. Solmes said he was recommending to council that maximum salaries be increased.

The matter was referred to ways and means and during the afternoon session came up for discussion.

Reeve Floyd Price of Elzevir township felt that increased salaries should be considered by the council for those on the jail staff not receiving free living accommodation.

TAKEN INTO CONSIDERATION

Clerk-treasurer Eric S. Denyes suggested, however, that living accommodation be likely have been taken into consideration when salaries were actually set.

Reeve Earl Sager said he could not see from the letter read by Mr. Solmes where the department was recommending increased salaries, and pointed out that Hastings primarily depended on agriculture for revenue. Farmers were not in the position they were a few years ago.

Reeve C. Buskard agreed that the letter merely pointed out the sheriff would have to have approval of council before recommending salary increases over the present maximums.

"Agriculture has nothing to do with the salaries of jail guards," argued Reeve Theodore Tryon, of Bancroft, pointing out that there was too much spread between the salaries of jail employees and those of police. "We must keep all factors in the matter," he said.

Reeve Russell West, of Stirling, and Reeve Thomas Scott, of Hermanod moved, however, that no action be taken by the council and the motion was carried with a hearty "Aye."

Cecil Gem, county assessor, friendly additional council noting that re-assessment of the municipalities of Mayo, Carlow, Hermanod and Montague had been completed during the year, leaving only the township of Tweed to be re-assessed. He expected that the equalized assessment for the county next year might reach $39 million.

A general discussion on apparent assessment discrepancies within the county followed, with general feeling among councillors was that the county assessor system was working out very well and that the few differences could easily be ironed out.

SHOULD CORRECT DIFFERENCE

Reeve Victor Hughson of Wollaston, wanted to know if farmland in his township was assessed at $150.00 per acre, while the same type of land in the neighboring municipality of Lake was assessed at $300.00.

Mr. Gem replied that the figure of $150 per acre per acre for wild land had been set when re-assessment in the county was first begun and later it was found this figure was not working out and it had been changed to $300.

He said that this difference should be corrected.

Reeve William Davis said it was important that municipalities secure the best possible for assessors so the best possible assessing for the county. He also felt that council could assist the assessor a great deal.

Reeve C. E. Graham, of Tweed, said his stand had always been that council could not tell the assessor and this view also taken by several other reeves.

Mr. Gem noted the only way which council could assist was to direct its assessor was through courts of revision. If the assessor's work was not satisfactory he could be discharged.

A by-law approving the borrowing of $165,000 by debentures for an addition at the North Hastings High School was approved. The debentures brought a premium of $100.41 and carry a 4¼ percent interest rate.

A second by-law passed authorized expropriation proceedings be commenced by a secretary treasurer required for the completion of a 3.76-mile section of grading on the Frankford-Foxboro Deseronto highway road.

An assistance grant of $30 for the Dungannon school fair was also ordered paid.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

Appointments were made to the various high school area boards in the county. Mrs. Dorothy Brooks Allen, Tyendinaga; Ray of Elzevir; Dorothy Dingle, No. 1 School Board; Lincoln Abbott, of Hungerford, to the Centre Hastings board; Thomas Thompson, of Dungannon, to the North Hastings board; Hugh Finland to the Deseronto board, and J. R. Reid, Sidney, to the Trenton High School board.

As the council session broke up Reeve Tryon, who was elected at the polls during this week's election, expressed appreciation for the co-operation of council members during the period he had attended county council and hoped the same co-operation would be afforded his successor.

Reeve Cecil Ketcheson expressed the appreciation of county council to Warden James D. Sprackett now completing his term of office.

"It has been a pleasure to work with you, sir. You have kept up on the go, but that is good business," he said. "It is a pleasure for those of council who will be back next year to know that you will again be representing your municipality in county council.

(Warden Sprackett was also acclamation as reeve and in January will commence his 28th term in office).

In reply Warden Sprackett assured that he had enjoyed his year as council head and expressed his appreciation for the 100 percent co-operation which he had received from every council member.

"It has been a busy year," he concluded, "and if I have made any mistakes I hope you will overlook them. All I can say is that I did my best in the interest of the county."

Boys and Girls Enjoy Fun Night

Close to 250 boys and girls of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. were entertained last Saturday night by a Fun Night prepared by the junior, intermediate and junior leaders groups. The younger children's (9- to 11 years old) activities started at 7.00 p.m. with a wide variety of table games. At 8.30 p.m. all the children gathered in the auditorium and the lucky boys and girls who obtained the highest score for each game were presented with a prize. One of the main attractions for the youngsters was a huge jar of peanuts. Everyone was entitled to take one guess at the number of peanuts it contained and the winner 16-year-old Miss Hope took the jar of peanuts home. Free ice cream satisfied the taste of all the youngsters before they departed. A few parents were present in a supervisory capacity. Shortly after 8.30 p.m., the junior boys and girls (12-16) started their Movie Night activities. The young couples danced from 8.30 to 10.00 p.m. amidst the green and red decoration, which detected a Christmas spirit among all. As the record player spun out old time and modern records the master of ceremonies, intermediate leader Art Rogers, presented the winners of the spot dance, jitterbug dance, mystery couple dances with prizes.

The evening closed with all leaving on an enthusiastic and waiting to come back again for another Fun Night.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was narrowly mixed in first-hour dealings today.

A slightly higher tendency was noted in foods, liquors and financial institutions but metals softened.

Senior base metals moved in a fractional range. Falconbridge was unchanged at 30¼ after touching a new high of 31. New Jason featured the lower-priced issues, adding six cents at 30½ on 154,000 shares. Quebec Copper. Name Creek and Opemiska gained.

Golds were sluggish with price changes limited to about 10 cents. Lorado added a dime at $1.35 in an irregular uranium section. Consolidated Howey, host of Hamilton, also are held in connection with the Waterhen robbery.

Preston was arrested in Sarnia Wednesday night, Machibroda in Hamilton last Saturday.

Under the Extradition Act all three men would have a trial before a Canadian court to decide whether they should be returned to the United States to face charges.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Cattle trading at the Ontario stockyards was dull this week, following a heavy kill last week. Buyers were indifferent to all grades and tended to stay clear of the light offering of top-quality steers and heifers.

The run of 7,900 cattle was 1,800 less than last week, although 1,800 more than for the same week in 1954. Western cattle receipts were 350 head less than last week at 1,350. Steer receipts were sharply lower at 477 head, compared with 1,100 one and last week.

One carload of cattle was shipped to eastern Canada, but there were no shipments to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers $20-20.50, some $21; good steers $19-20; medium $15-18; common $13-15.

Good heifers $17-18, some $18.50; a few choice heifers $19; medium $14-17; common $12-14.

Boner steers and heifers $8-12. Choice cows $15-16; good $13-15; $22.50; good $20-21; medium $15-19. Good cows $10.50-11.00. Canner and cutter cows were sold down to $6; good heavy bologna bulls up to $13; heavy common $10-12. Common and medium - light bulls down to $9.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers $18-18.50, some $19; good stockers $16-17; medium stockers $14-16; common $12-14.

Calves: Good calf choice veal calves up to $1.50 a hundredweight; choice calves up to $25-$26; good $20-25; mediums $20-25; commons $12-19. Grass calves sold for slaughter $9.

Sheep and lambs: Native and westerns at 90-100 pounds selling at $20 a hundredweight. Bucks were discounted $1 a hundredweight; heavy ewes $3 a hundredweight and more; common and medium lambs sold from $12 to $16 a hundredweight.

Feeder lambs were $19-$15.50; good light sheep up to $10; yearlings up to $12 a hundredweight with common light sheep selling down to $3 a hundredweight.

Attach No Blame In Deaths of Two Children in Fire

A coroner's jury looking into the deaths of Dennis and David Moore, sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Moore, of Shannonville, last night at an adjourned inquest attached no blame to anyone.

The two blond boys, aged one and three years, burned to death when their parents' home burned shortly before midnight on November 30. Two other children, John and Lorraine Shelley, escaped from the fire.

4-H Club Activity Shows Increase During Year

4-H club activity in Hastings county increased 14 per cent during 1955, members of Hastings county council were informed at their December session in a letter from A. O. Dalrymple, county agricultural representative.

Total enrolment for the year there were 12 4-H clubs and 23 garden and homemaking clubs active. Membership in 4-H clubs stood at 174 and for garden and homemaking clubs 220. Percentage completion of 4-H clubs was 89 per cent with four clubs having a 100 per cent completion.

There were nine Junior Farmer and Junior Institute clubs active under the county association. There was a slight drop in Junior Farmer club membership due to the fact that many young folk have been attracted by city life.

On the other hand both the quantity and quality of 4-H club work had increased and special congratulations were paid to county members standing high in inter club and provincial competitions during the year.

The Junior Farmer judging team of Douglas Burnside, Ross Moorcroft and Douglas Dettor had placed seventh in general competition at the Royal. Winter Fair and placed first in judging swine and swine carcass win to the Ontario Veterinary Association Trophy.

23 MEMBERS REPRESENTED

Twenty-seven Hastings 4-H club members were represented at the Ontario Winter Fair in the potato, grain, calf and swine sections with 15 members actually attending the fair.

In the grain section two county members, Eric Emerson and Ronald Hamilton placed first and second, while in the potato section Edmund Emerson and Jack Hickey, took first and second places.

In the calf club show with 62 groups from Eastern Ontario Belleville group stood second, Madoc third, and Stirling sixth.

The Hastings club won second in the swine club section for the best group of pigs. Club members here showing were Harold Harris, John Sager and Douglas Farrell.

Mr. Dalrymple reported that the number of horses being kept in the county continued to drop during the year and that it is now rare to see a draft stallion about the county. Tractors are still a market for good horses, however, and there were still many jobs about the farm in which a tractor could not compete with the horse.

For the first nine months of the year creamery butter production in Hastings was down 2,347,151 pounds as compared with 2,755,408 for the same period last year. For the same period cheese production had dropped by 2,281,497 of cheddar cheese being produced compared with 2,007,730 for the first nine months in 1954.

Ten P.U.C. Trucks Equipped With Sending, Receiving Units

Station XJK 36, operating with a power output of 35 watts from its transmitter on the roof of the utilities office at 277 Front St., is strictly a "talk" broadcasting unit. The only records it intends to spin are new records of efficiency and service to customers in Belleville and district.

The stationary transmitter-receiver at the commission office on Front Street is supplemented with a transportable unit at the Reid Street sub-station. Aerials are being erected at sub-stations on Sidney and Catherine Streets, South Foster Ave. and at the water purification plant on the Trent road. The Reid St. unit can be moved to these other sites when necessary.

All equipment is Rogers Majestic.

The base station operates with 12,000 volts A.C., and is equipped with a 12-volt battery. It has an automatic power supply in case of a power failure.

The Reid St. station operates on 12-volts D.C. and the trucks operate on six volts D.C.

Equipment installed during this past week has been tested in a 12-mile radius of the city and found to be most satisfactory.

Units have been installed in trucks Nos. 5, 7, 9 and 10. Truck No. 2 is the waterworks truck driven by Fireman Fred Clarke. Truck No. 4 is the "line truck," driven by William Phillips, superintendent of line work, while No. 7 is driven by Charles Hiles, foreman of the city electrical service. Pat Webber, in charge of house calls, drives truck No. 9 and Thomas Hurst, electrical foreman for the rural area drives truck No. 10.

LARGE AREA SERVED

The commission, serving an area that extends from the eastern end of RCAF Station Trenton, to about three miles east of Shannonville and north for 2 1-2 miles north of Holloway and 6 1-2 miles east of Roslin, expects great things from its new radio service.

"It will save wear and tear on trucks, will insure faster regular service to customers and will be almost invaluable in storms and emergencies," said manager-O. M. Scott today.

"This new equipment will be almost equivalent to having twice as many trucks," said assistant foreman Fred Clarke.

He explained that before the radio system was operated a truck might be working in a rural area, when a service call would come in from a customer in that area. The nearby crew would have to be contacted either by a messenger sent from the Belleville office or be dispatched to the call after returning to the city.

"With this new equipment our service will be faster, smoother and more economical," said Mr. Burnham.

Maximum value of the service is expected to be realized during storms when power lines affect regular power or telephone lines are down and there are multiple repairs to be done throughout the whole service area.

Third Man Held In Connection With Holdup

BRANTFORD (CP) — Police Thursday arrested a third man in connection with a United States bank robbery.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents from Buffalo accompanied provincial police as they arrested Donald Eric Hamill, 26, alias Donald Eric Roberts. They said he is wanted in the January $21,000 armed robbery last May 7 of a bank in Canada, Clinton.

Hamill, they said, also was believed connected with a $28,000 holdup in Waterville, Ohio, April 30, Norman Brereton, 30, and John Mackenzie, 27, both of Hamilton, also are held in connection with the Waterville robbery.

Brereton was arrested in Sarnia Wednesday night, Machibroda in Hamilton last Saturday.

Two Slum Empire Houses Burned

TORONTO (CP) — Two ramshackle rooming houses in a downtown Toronto slum empire, allegedly operated by four men charged with keeping a bawdy-common house, burned today.

Although the houser were stripped of furniture and supposed to be empty, firemen said neighbors reported seeing two men throw out as smoke poured from the windows.

Eighty-three charges of keeping common bawdy houses have been laid against Stephen Feron, Linus Coghlan and Charles and William Isgower.

Eastern Ontario Auto Dealers Discuss Problems

Upwards of 100 automobile dealers from Eastern Ontario met in Hotel Quinte last Monday night to hear frank talk about the retail auto trade from executive members of the provincial and Canadian automobile dealers associations.

Prior to the evening dinner meeting there was a meeting of the provincial directors of the Automobile Dealer Associations of Ontario.

Speakers at the meeting included James L. Cooke, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Automobile Dealer Associations of Canada, Howard B. Moore, executive vice president of F.A.D.A.; R. H. Coggan, president of the Automobile Dealer Associations of Ontario and L. D. Preston, of Chatham, general manager of the F.A.D.A.O.

Highlighting the meeting was discussion of new car selling practices, bad and misleading advertising and the effect of factory pressure on the quality of the product, customer satisfaction and dealer service.

Manufacturers have been talking of "spiritual competition". Dealers prefer to call the current production race a "senseless race for quantity".

Profits in 1954 were six-tenths of one per cent to dealers on new car sales — a profit margin based on high volume and short markup that is so narrow that little in needed to push dealers into losses.

Dealers also feel that the volume push on autos has opened the door to all sorts of public abuses—packed prices, phony advertisting and shady financing practices.

Blame for sales has produced better designed cars, dealers claim, but has swamped factory inspection systems and left much of the

Butter, Cheese Output Increases

TORONTO (CP) —The department of agriculture said today production of creamery butter and cheddar cheese showed an increase in October over the same month last year.

Butter production was 6,770,500 pounds compared with 6,292,000 pounds in October 1954 and cheddar cheese output was 6,210,800 pounds against 5,736,200 pounds the year before.

Dismiss Oleo Case

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's first prosecution under the Oleomargarine Act was dismissed Thursday in a case that began in November 1954.

Lud. was charged with selling oleo with less than 80 per cent fat content. Magistrate T. S. Elmore said he was "at a loss to understand what's behind the prosecution."

builders' responsibilities up to

Dealers also expressed concern over the fact that heavy volume sales have made it increasingly difficult to maintain quality service.

Cheese-Loving Warden Given 5-Pound Stilton

The cheese-loving reeve of a dairy-starved North Hastings municipality which by actual count has only five milch cows, will be able to enjoy top quality cheese for the next week or so.

Thursday afternoon at the final session of the December meeting of county council, Warden James H. Sprackett, reeve of Tudor and Cashel townships, was presented with a five-pound stilton cheese manufactured by Roy Huffman of Bronk cheese factory, one of Central Ontario's top cheese makers.

Earlier in the session when discussion had drifted around to warble fly control, Warden Sprackett noted that one of his municipalities would not be much interested in any compulsory measure of spraying to control the warble fly.

"There are only five cows in one of my municipalities," he said.

Knowing that their genial warden was fond of cheese, the opportunity was too good to miss for Reeve Leslie McLaren of Tyendinaga and his deputy reeve Charles Long.

"With only five cows in his municipality, I know it must be difficult for Warden Sprackett to secure good cheese," Deputy Reeve Long said as later in the session he presented the cheese to the council head.

Reeve McLaren noted the cheese came from Bronk factory where he was president. He said the maker Roy Huffman had won many trophies for quality cheese at the British Empire Dairy show.

"We hope you enjoy the cheese," he said.

Christmas Tea Enjoyed By Staff of OSD

Over fifty members of the Association of Teachers and Instructors of the Ontario School for the Deaf, and twenty children attended the annual pre-Christmas tea held at the school on Thursday. The room was tastefully decorated in Yuletide garb.

Miss Anna Bush, association president and members of her committee proved delightful hosts to members and children with the latter enjoying a special program arranged for them.

Mrs. M. L. Letersky played a medley of Christmas airs with Mrs. Ralph Morden offering a reading and Mr. Ken Graham two vocal solos. Mr. Graham also led in the singing of Christmas carols.

Superintendent J. Demeza extended Christmas greetings to his staff members and children after a highly enjoyable party.

S. F. Tilden, President of Tilden Rent-a-Car System, announces its affiliation with the world-wide Avis Rent-A-Car System.

Under the new plan, already approved by the Avis organization, the name of the Tilden Rent-A-Car System will be changed to Avis Rent-A-Car System (Canada) Limited.

In selecting affiliation with the Avis System, the Tilden System ranks is the largest in Canada, joins the fastest growing car rental system in the world. The combined systems will have 289 stations in Canada, the United States, Great Britain, Europe, South America and Australia, all of which will honor Tilden and Avis Courtesy and Charge Cards.

It is expected that the change of name from Tilden to Avis will be approved by the shareholders of the Tilden System at the annual meeting which will be held at the Seigniory Club on January 30th and 31st, 1956. It will be a change of name only, with the new Avis Rent-A-Car System (Canada) Limited retaining its identity as a Canadian organization wholly owned and managed by Canadians.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE COSTS

Belleville's agreement with the County of Hastings on the division of administration of justice costs will come up for revision next year, members of the Hastings County Council were reminded on Wednesday by Reeve C. H. Buskard.

Trenton's agreement, which would normally run until the end of 1957, may also be reviewed next year, since that town is proposing to annex certain parts of Sidney and Murray townships. The agreements, renewable every five years or following annexation proceedings, are based on population. It would thus appear probable that Belleville and Trenton, in future years, in common with urban municipalities generally, may have to shoulder an increasingly large proportion of the costs of administration of justice, since these urban centres are growing. Offsetting this trend, however, in some instances, will be the growth of suburbs in townships bordering cities and towns.

Whatever may be the trend in the division of costs between separated municipalities and the county, it is certain that the total costs will increase, because of the steady growth in the population as a whole. This fact was rather strikingly forecast recently by when Mr. Justice Wilson presided at Supreme Court here. At the opening of the court on November 28, Mr. Justice Wilson drew attention to the fact that it was "perhaps the first occasion on which a judge has had to be made for the sittings of the Supreme Court at the same time as your County Judge is sitting with a jury.

"This situation," he continued, "ought to be brought to the attention of the public because it is one which will probably arise in this county, again, perhaps with increasing frequency, because the County of Hastings in common with many other counties in this province, has now increased in population and development to the point where provision needs to be made for increased sittings of the court in the future. I have foreseen for some time that this might arise in this county but this is the first occasion on which it has actually occurred.

"It is not too much to say that within the foreseeable future Hastings County will need to provide at least one month's accommodation for the Supreme Court and the County Court sitting with juries at the same time, or perhaps two County Court judges sitting with juries or even two Supreme Court Judges sitting with juries.

"Ontario has developed extremely rapidly in recent years, particularly in Ontario. Some time ago, I believe, Premier Frost announced that Ontario was growing at the rate of one city a month, and although the mathematics is twelve cities a year. That expansion is making itself felt in part in the pressing need for additional court room accommodation. I think it will be more exciting up with Hastings County and will likely become more evident in the very near future. What is happening today is merely the forerunner. I should think of what may occur with increasing frequency.

"Those charged with the responsibility of providing court room accommodation should have regard to the fact that the administration of justice must be carried on in proper surroundings. If the courts are going to be able to function properly they will have to have increased accommodation and it will be the responsibility of the representatives of the people to determine whether it is going to be provided. As I said before, this situation is one which is likely to occur with increasing frequency and one which I think should be drawn to the attention of the proper authorities charged with the provision of that accommodation."

OUR VALUABLE FORESTS

What's ten million dollars?

Yet that is the value of the production of wood processing plants in the city of Belleville and throughout the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

The Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa reports that during 1953, the last year for which figures have been compiled, there were 135 plants in the four counties which were turning wood into manufactured products. These plants valued at $5,705,000 and they employed 1,222 men whose wages totalled over $2,500,000. Their output, as already stated, was worth over $10,000,000.

In addition to the products of these plants, the counties also reaped a harvest from the sale of primary wood products, such as pulpwood or logs, and from the operation of many small plants which turn out lumber for the owner's use. Let us not forget, either, the value of fuelwood, still an important forest product even in these days of automatic heating.

Those who recall earlier days when lumbering was playing an even larger role in the economy of the district think it does today may be startled to realize that forest products are still providing the area with such a substantial income. They will be further heartened to learn that, according to the weekly report of the Tweed District of the Department of Lands and Forests, "there is no question but what this income could be increased considerably if all land suitable for forest growth were maintained in a productive state" and that more landowners are becoming interested in protecting their woodlots and following practices which will return them to a productive condition.

FACT AND FANCY

To what I am my hands are tied,
The timid souls who pace the but fancy running free decks and buy what Comes back at times to take me mercilessly sell out to see what I longed to be Come with a nervous little laugh
And lets me, as a sailor-boy, go to ask if all is well.
sailing out to sea.
And glad am I it falls to me
consoling news to tell.

Sometimes when sleep disdains
Then here's to chance, that;
my pipe, upon my back I lie, turned my feet into the
The dull-grim ceiling overhead paths I tread.
becomes a starry sky,
But here's to fancy, that has kept safe locked in my head
And watching out for sister ships,
And gives me ships to sail upon a lookout kid am I.
and rolling decks to tread.

History of Toy Trains

(New York Times)

When fathers cast about these days for the big holiday presents for their boys, some or later their thoughts turn to trains. This is the right year for taking notice, too, for thirty-five years ago, in the year 1920 — the first successful toy electric train took to the home tracks. By a lucky stroke for generations of fans of the Iron Horse, the inventor-father was not into trains instead of electric flowerpots.

Young Joshua Lionel Cowen, 75 this year but still out of his teens at the turn of the century, began to fiddle with toy-and battleries. What to do with a battery? Cowen first applied it to a flower pot, wired the artificial foliage, hid small light bulbs among the petals and presto! — an illuminated plant for store decorations. He also encased the dry cell in a metal cylinder, put a light bulb on each end and a switch on the other, and made a flashlight.

And then he remembered a boyhood pastime: building miniature steam engines, some equipped with wheels. The result was a small train, electrified and operated. But it was a precise duplicate of the model Lief Ericson, the B. & O. tunnel between Baltimore and Washington. He also built a gondola car, followed by passenger trains, freight cars, switches, crossings, semaphores and all the other accessories. Thus began a business that grew into such an so toy in existence has received all designed to keep the tiny rail road authentic.

Today some of these trains are completely operated by remote control. They are installed in attics and, as for running, well grown men put on engineers' caps and overalls and spend hours at working on the switch. There is a lifesize locomotive built into the tender of the locomotive. The whistle can be operated anywhere in the house by a push button. Oiling or standing still by pressing a button on the control panel. The same controls also provide for automatic coupling and uncoupling of cars, and for the lights to be functional.

Among other things, coal cars load and dump coal, lumber cars load and dump lumber, cattle disembark automatically from a stock car and re-enter the car through a rear door. A milk car has an interior mechanism which pops out of the open door and unloads milk cans onto a ramp. The engine all the while puffs real smoke through the locomotive's smoke stack (this is made with smoke pellets). To add realism there are bridges, coal and lumber elevators, automatic signals and, most recently, in the latest models, a magnetic crane which permits higher speeds without derailment.

To make sure that no errors are made in the looks of the toy cars, they are made from the same blueprints as the real thing. Rolling stock is painstakingly adapted from blueprints furnished by various locomotive companies. Many of blueprints are furnished a year before the real trains are delivered to the railroads. The Pennsylvania Railroad's S-2 steam turbine locomotive was beaten to the tracks by a Lionel Corporation model built from blueprints furnished by the very good reason for this emphasis on realism is that the Lionel Train fans are always looking to catch a mistake. The moviegoers, newspaper readers, etc. — and they do. Every train manufacturer whose coupling doesn't work.

The electric trains have been used in more ways than fun. They carry everything from radioactive materials for use in medical research in hamburgers in tricky restaurants. During the war years the O. S. S. used these trains to train special demolition squads in the most effective way of blowing up railroads behind enemy lines. Even psychiatrists use the train system and explosive charges in treating patients who fear electric trains. The trains have also served to represent American manufacture and ability at trade fairs around the world. The model Lionel Train Display after the primitive dry cell on wheels of Joshua Lionel Cowen, even in the age of the jet aircraft, and the low-slung sports cars that go faster still the boy's dream toy.

Personal Health Talks

Suggestion Works Both Ways

In his famous book, Childbirth Without Fear, which every expectant mother should at least read (get it from book dealer or public library) Dr. Grantly Dick Read quotes with fine restraint two statements made by Dr. Joseph De Lee, author of the many-editions textbook Principles and Practice of Obstetrics (a book not available to laymen):

"While I have not used pure hypnotism very often I have used suggestion a great deal, indeed almost constantly, and I am irked when I see how my colleagues neglect to avail themselves of this harmless and potent remedy. It accounts for easily half of the success of local anesthesia."

"It will require several thousand generations before we can train the women back to the state which Grantly Dick Read speaks of as Natural Childbirth."

Dr. Read's book was published in 1944 (first edition), but in the preface he refers to his first book, Natural Childbirth, published in 1933. Dr. De Lee's book (seventh edition) was published in 1938.

It is difficult to believe that the author of the statement about hypnotism and suggestion could be the author of the statement about training women back to a state of

That suggestion has a great deal to do with the anguish, agony throes, descent into the valley or the miracle and joy of childbirth.

Suggestion works both ways. The doctor, ignorant of human nature, the tender mercies of the fishwives approaches childbirth anxious, worried, anticipating all sorts of dreadful happenings. If she is unlucky enough to be "rushed" to a hospital for delivery the show put on by the men and women in white will complete the illusion that she is undergoing a major operation.

Oddly enough, the correct atmosphere appeals to the fancy of the woman of feeble character or personality — let 'em put her out completely and perform a cesarean section if they whatever they think necessary . . . or another put her to sleep and do what she wakes up it will be all over . . .

Why 'I' Rates A Capital

(Atlanta Constitution)

The other day this column quoted the late W W. Whitaker, editor of the Greenville (S. C.) News-Piedmont, as once asking why we capitalize "I" when "mine, mine, we and our, you and your" do not get the same attention.

Miss Belle Williams, has written from South Georgia college at Douglas, to state that she is found in histories of the English language. She says the custom began with the early English printers requested authors to capitalize the personal pronoun to distinguish it from the small "i". The authors evidently complied.

Before then, the printers had been having trouble telling the "i" from the letter "j".

"As far as I know", says my correspondent, "this language except English writes the pronoun I with the capital."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If you have, in your quiet way, tried lately to buy a lamp or an electric table fixture, a cushion, a small simple table for the living room or even a plain easy chair to read in, you will have likely had an awful time. The art of design in this country, industrial design, appears to be under the impression that the function of a designer is to do something to what were good on. Everything he designs must look different. He has a notion about him in some paper or other that not only reported his screwball primitives in the fields of painting, sculpture and politics but also mentioned that Mr. Winston Churchill — got his schooling particulars wrong.

have to sew it yourself. Even if you buy a little card table to be handy in the corner, what does it amount to? It is usually simply its assertive little self to the pandemonium of the room.

In this great era of self-expression, the din is increasing. The overseers of taste, you know, the architects. So functional so pure, simple and effortless in design. Just observe buildings that they blare like bugles on a quiet morning. Their car design and decor went so haywire last year in their effort to make everything they were driving self-expression cars that most of them have had to be junked and will not be seen stored; for I haven't noticed any pink and chartreuse cars around lately. I don't know how the UN building in New York is regarded by the directorate of our times, but on first sight and on last sight, it looked to me like a wisecrack.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUTWIT YOUR TROUBLES

Troubles, anxieties, and fears are common to us all. We can no more escape them than history can escape what happens in the world. But we can outwit many, or most of them, by appraising life's values, by bouncing back into moods and manners that outwit them.

I once knew a noted woman doctor who wrote a most valuable book entitled "Outwitting Your nerves." It had a wide sale and benefited thousands because it gave a starting point to self-control. Our own troubles must be outwitted by ourselves alone, and this can be done mostly by replacements, such as cheerfulness, courage, an abiding faith, and a healthy outlook.

We all carry about with us a multitude of dreads, and there are forces that plague us and try to divert us from enjoyments a n d peace of mind. Overwork, or the fear of it, is a personal power far abler than we think, or imagine. Such occupations as religion, prayer, and a love for all outdoor life act as a broom to sweep, out all problems and troubles.

Too many people, when troubles come, brood over them, instead of ignoring them and replacing them with a few of the outwitting goods that are meted out to us all. If each one of us took a notebook and listed all our troubles and blessings, side by side, we would run short of the troubles in no time at all! Most troubles are not worth listing as such, for most are imaginary. They make bad baggage.

Wild animals outwit their enemies. That is the way to protect their own life and that of their young. Outwitting our troubles is a personal task, difficult even for those who refuse to outwit them. Life can be made beautiful if we have within us the desire to make it so, and rise above our troubles. Those troubles will run mighty fast after you start chasing them!

Sandwich Bar

Little Joe had made a bar of a packing box, and painted a sign on it: "This is the Wild West and this box is the Last Chance Saloon".

A third, much younger, swaggered up alongside him, and squeaked, "I'll have a whole wheat".

Arctic Is Not Holiday Spot

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

What is it like in the Artic in the summer?

Well for one thing it isn't very sunny.

"The Arctic is no place for a holiday", said Cmdr. John M. Leering of Victoria and Halifax who returned to Halifax recently in command of the navy's northern patrol ship Labrador. "I can assure you our ruddy faces aren't from the sun." The only bad seventeen days since we left here (Halifax) June 7.

The ship's weather records for the five-month trip showed that the ship's crew encountered rain as high as 38.5 degrees for the week ending June 18 to 28.7 degrees.

It snowed sixteen days in June, seventeen days in July and August, twenty-three in September, twenty-seven in October and fifteen of the eighteen days required for the return voyage. But that wasn't all. Hardly had the Labrador reached Halifax when it encountered the worst hurricane and storm in Nova Scotia's history.

The ship was also encountered by the Labrador as "an iceberker, consisted of twenty-one ships charted with the delivery of supplies to the DEW line radar stations in the Canadian Arctic.

Cmdr. Leering took over command of the 22-man Labrador from Capt. O.C.S. Robertson of Montreal and Victoria when the latter was forced to relinquish command treatment three weeks before the end of the convoy.

"It's the monotony more than anything else that makes Arctic duty so hard", said Cmdr. Leering. The crew, glad to be home again, seemed to be looking for a tropical assignment next.

'Old Boys' Get Second Chance

(Christian Science Monitor)

We were gladdened the other day to hear how an "old boy" went back to visit the school of his early youth. If more "old grads" would do this, and do it often, they would how interested are the faculty members in them, and other students to learn what has become of former students.

It gives a man a warm feeling to find that his postschool career seems important to someone, even though it may not seem to him to be a particularly distinguished one.

Now, we do not claim to know whether this "old boy" was glad to read feels that his career is as yet really undistinguished or not. But he must have felt a thrill when he learned that a stanza had been written in his honor, and in the old school song.

It is under the impression that the function of a designer is to do something to what were good on. Everything he designs must look different. He has a notion about him in some paper or other that not only reported his screwball primitives in the fields of painting, sculpture and politics but also mentioned that Mr. Winston Churchill — got his schooling particulars wrong.

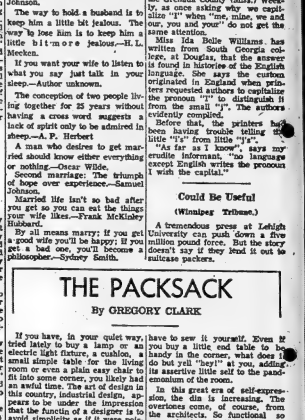
Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

YOU NEED TO PRACTICE

If you have ever admired a great musician except to ask him the secret of his skill, you probably received the main part of his answer could be summed up in one word—practice. Good musicians are always terribly serious about practicing. They devote more hours to it than we would suspect, and are likely to resent having to miss any practice time. Practice is a must, and practice makes a perceptible difference; the loss of practice's loss might be unthinkably serious.



The truth is, we all need to keep in practice in those areas of life that count most. It is always easy to get out of moral practice, and the real trouble with many men and women who have gone wrong is just that. They have entered their moral practice. They have stopped distinguishing right from wrong until gradually they can no longer tell the difference. At last, for them, there was no difference. Distinctions became fuzzier and fuzzier, until they suddenly find their lives in a mess from which they would give anything to escape.

All good habits are built by practice—courtesy, temperance, generosity, prudence, gratitude, love, prayer, worship, and the rest. Don't ever let them get rusty. We can't all be great musicians, but we can all attempt to be at our best morally and spiritually.

CARD PARTY

Wednesday afternoon the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Patriarchs Militant held a card party in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Front Street, with the following as winners: high, Mrs. J. Hilton; lone hand, Mrs. G. Vance; low, Mrs. Mowers. Men, high, W. G. McGie; lone hand, B. Ashley and low, J. Preston.

Christmas Meeting Held By W.M.S.

On Tuesday afternoon the ladies of Holloway Street W.M.S. held their Christmas meeting which proved most interesting and showed much forethought and preparation.

After welcoming the visitors present, the president, Mrs. Coulter, opened the meeting with a Yuletide thought, bringing to mind that "we, as Christians, remembering God's gift to us, should pause and consider the challenge of need which is apparent everywhere in the work of God's kingdom.

"We are the richest and most fortunate people in the world, so have the greatest obligation to the starving and needy.

"In looking back over the past year, the questions arise "Have we spent our time and talent in God's work?" "Is our life more abundant and have we helped to make some other life more abundant?"

Prayer followed by Mrs. Steers.

The secretary, Mrs. Phillips gave a full report on the accomplishments of the past year, and the financial standing up to date, which was most gratifying.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Scott and her group.

Scripture readings by Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Westover, Mrs. Cameron, Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Lowe, were interspersed with Christmas carols by Mrs. Daniels.

The offering was received by Mrs. Green and Mrs. Adams, after which a prayer of dedication was repeated in unison.

Mrs. M. Davidson favored with two solos "The Virgin Slumber Song", and "'Twas the Birthday of a King."

Mrs. Robson presented the old but ever new story "The First to Kneel."

Mrs. Westover graciously thanked Mrs. Robson. Mrs. Davidson and Mrs. Daniels for their contribution which added so much to the meeting.

At the close the Rev. S. Lawton expressed his appreciation for such a beautiful and inspiring meeting and felt that after all he had heard, little more could be added.

Mr. Larman closed with a prayer of dedication for the work that lies ahead in 1956 to the officers and members of the W.M.S.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Scott and her group.

Foxboro WMS Re-Instates Officers

Mrs. Harold Buskard entertained at her home the December meeting of the Foxboro W.M.S. and Ladies' Guild for their Christmas meeting. Mrs. Johnston was in charge for the opening of the meeting, "A Service of Worship for Christmas," prepared by Miss Agnes Dickson and printed in the "Child Evangelist."

Reports for the year were given and were most gratifying.

Mrs. Bartlett gave a reading "Getting Ready for Christmas"; a piano solo, by Mrs. Dudley was much enjoyed, also a reading "Open the Door", by Miss Bell. Mrs. Earl Ketcheson gave an instrumental solo "Star of the East".

Mrs. Buskard gave a fine paper on "Everywhere, Everywhere Christmas To-night".

Last year's officers were re-installed with the exception of Guild treasurer and Mrs. Buskard was put in to fill the position.

The president closed the meeting with some lovely Christmas thoughts and prayer.

Mrs. Buskard served refreshments and a social time was spent.

Jan. 25th was set to be held at the home of Mrs. Jack Juby.

Coronation Club Sponsors Yuletide Party

The December meeting of the Coronation Club of Bridge Street United church was held in Lattimer's Town Room in the form of a Christmas party.

Mrs. H. M. Davis asked the blessing and the 37 members present enjoyed a delicious turkey dinner amidst the gay Christmas decorations.

President, Lois Chaplin, welcomed all present, and wished each one a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Mrs. J. E. Kuntze gave the report of the nominating committee with the following officers chosen for 1956:

President, Mrs. J. B. Leslie; vice-president, Mrs. B. Cronk; secretary, Mrs. E. Sutton; corresponding secretary and press reporter, Mrs. Iveson; treasurer, Mrs. G. Greatrix; social convener, Mrs. R. Holway; telephone committee, Mrs. B. Robbins, Mrs. J. E. Greer; visiting, Mrs. D. Mowney and Mrs. S. Kostachuk.

Nominating committee: Mrs. R. E. Berry, Mrs. R. Chaplin, Mrs. B. Kerr and Mrs. J. Nelles.

A short whist was played for the remainder of the evening with Mrs. R. Bateman and Mrs. W. McGee as winners.

Ritual Pledge Received By New Members

The regular meeting of Gamma Mu chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. S. Morphy with all members present.

Four new members, who received the Pledge Ritual, were Miss M. Peart, Mrs. Don Boyce, Mrs. J. Pringle and Mrs. T. Gibbon.

During the business period plans were completed to assist a needy family at Christmas.

Mrs. J. McDonald conducted the cultural program, speaking on the theme "Interpretation of Love". The speaker outlined her topic with examples of men and women devoted to ideals and the deep love each represented in music, art, prose and drama.

Rebekah Lodge Admits Four New Members

On Tuesday evening the regular meeting of Quinte Rebekah Lodge No. 133, I.O.O.F., was held in the Odd Fellows' hall, with Sister June Carruthers, Noble Grand, presiding.

Business of the evening was initiation. The degree was beautifully exemplified under the able direction of Degree Staff Captain, Sister Dorothy Harwood, PNG.

Admitted to membership by initiation were Mrs. Doreen Hancock, Mrs. Edna Bailey and Mrs. Isobell Archer, also admitted to membership by transfer, was Sister Maud Craig of Merrittton.

Following regular business, refreshments were served by Sister Doris Ellsworth and her group bringing another worthwhile evening of Odd Fellowship to a close.

E. Walsh of Shannonville, Ontario.

The Rev. Father Moreau officered the Nuptial Mass.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a waltz-length gown of white velvet featuring a Queen Anne collar. Her matching velvet Juliet cap held in place a fingertip veil of illusion net. She carried a white prayer book garlanded with a mauve orchid and pale yellow rosebud streamers.

Miss Agnes Byrtus, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in a sapphire blue velvet waltz-length model. She wore a matching half crown headpiece and carried a nosegay of autumn flowers.

Mr. Adrian Shannon, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Alex Byrtus and Mr. George Byrtus, brothers of the bride.

Mr. John Gorman and Mr. Henry Olchowy sang a duet, accompanied by Mr. George Godel.

Later a reception for the family guests was held in the banquet room of the Union hotel. Father Moreau said grace and the groomsman proposed the toast to the bride to which the bride groom responded.

For the honeymoon trip, the bride donned a rose colored suit with a turquoise topcoat and white accessories. Her corsage was a mauve orchid. The newlyweds left by plane for a trip to the bridegroom's home and will return by way of the United States to White Horse, where they will reside.

St. John's Guild Installs 1956 Officers

St. John's Guild of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill church held its annual meeting at the home of the Rev. L. Arthur Page on Friday, when the election of the officers for 1956 took place as follows:

Honorary president, Mrs. L. Arthur Page; president, Mrs. S. Babcock (re-elected); vice-president, Mrs. C. Brown; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. G. Corby (re-elected); press reporter, Mrs. S. Price; sick convener, Mrs. H. Putman.

The next meeting will be held December 13 at the home of Mrs. William Collyer, Herchimer Ave., and will be in the form of a Christmas party with the members exchanging gifts.

Mr. Page thanked the members on their year's work, which had been a good one.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAILERSON

ARE YOU HALF-DEAD ON YOUR FEET?

Women buy smart shoes so as to have that slender, trim leg and dandy. They give little thought to the subject of keeping their feet in perfect condition. The majority of them have foot defects of one kind or another—corns, callouses, there growing nails—usually due to the fact that they are not careful enough about seeking the right lasts. They buy smart but uncomfortable shoes then wonder why their toes twinge and life is bitter.

The human foot is pliable; it is easily molded into a shape that is not normal. Muscles weaken, feet go into a huddle, and aches become distorted. The nerves of the feet are in a state of tension; the taneous tissues are feverish. All this discomfort is endured for vanity's sake.

Stubborn cases of backache, consistent fatigue, poor circulation, pain that is mistaken for neuritis, and poor posture may have their origin in improperly clad feet. It seems senseless. Not only that, but painful feet can muddle the sweetest disposition.

Make certain that your shoes are roomy enough to allow you to wiggle your toes. Be sure they are well constructed, with supple leather uppers and flexible leather soles. Check these matters: if they are all right you can turn your mind to style and decorative qualities. But health and comfort come first. With hundreds of models from which to choose, there should be no difficulty in making a happy selection.

Constant wearing of flimsy play shoes is not wise, if you like them, wear them only occasionally. As a general rule, wear shoes that will provide support.

High-heeled shoes are for evening wear; they were never meant to be worn on the street. Should you decide to pome down to earth, do not change immediately to low heels; select shoes with heels of moderate height. The muscles of your calves shorted a bit from the constant wearing of spikes, and there must be a period of readjustment.

The wise mother will start little daughter along the right road by keeping a keen eye on the child's footwear. Troubles started in childhood can bother one for years. Unless the feet are in healthy condition, a child will not be inclined to take to outdoor life, so necessary for well-being and happiness.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP — INTO A CAREER

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I would like to ask you a few questions about the Air Force.

Do you have to be out of school to get in the Air Force? How old do you have to be to get in? Where do you go to sign up? I am 17, will be 18 in five months, and I would like very much to go into that branch of the service. H.E.

Dear H.E.:

I'm afraid I can't give you any information about the requirements of joining the Air Force, as this is entirely out of my field.

I would advise you, however, to take plenty of time to think this whole idea of yours over very carefully before taking any definite step. Don't rush off and do anything impulsively because it seems glamorous, or because you want to get away from some home situation that may be troubling you. There may well be some other kind of career that you would be far better fitted for than the Air Force, and I suggest that you look into one of the many careers which are open to women today, so that you can make the wisest possible choice.

DON'T YOU KNOW YOURSELF WHAT'S WRONG WITH YOUR WAVE?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am going steady with a very handsome senior at school. like him a lot, but I can't help flirting with other boys. Also, I get jealous when he talks about other girls. Would you tell me how I could change my ways so that I could keep him for my own always? — B. G.

I should think it would be pretty clear to you already how you can change your ways. If you are going steady, stop flirting with other boys — or else stop going steady. If you "can't help flirting," you shouldn't be going steady anyhow.

And stop being jealous when this boy talks about any other girl. If you don't expect him to be jealous when you flirt with other boys why should you be jealous if he even talks about another girl? Have you ever heard the old saying: "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander?" I suggest you don't expect him to be jealous with your ways.

I think you will do better in every way, moreover, if you don't expect to keep this boy "for your own always." Either one, or both of you, will certainly be interested in a number of other young people before you are REALLY, either in years or maturity —and the words are by no means synonymous — to choose anybody "for your own" for keeps.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Have meant to write for months, ever since reading about description of Margaret's wedding and festivities . . . as this is indeed Dear . . . delicious, wonderful help in heat of summer . . .

gave recipe to friends who have been in habit of buying from bakeries. . . . They are still delicatessen.

Then some to try, then they asked for the recipe . . . do you have a similar recipe to this for fudge made by caramelizing sugar and adding cream? Caramelize 1 cup white sugar. Meanwhile mix 3 cups white sugar, 1 cup cream, 1-3 tablespoon white corn syrup. Bring to boil over medium heat. Slowly stir in caramelized sugar. Cook to 343 deg. Fahr. Remove from heat, add 1-4 cup butter and 1-2 teaspoon soda. Let stand 10 minutes. Beat until it loses gloss, add 1 cup pecans. Pour. Another request is for a Christmas cookie house. . . . I want one for a lazy cuteness for my daughter's Christmas birthday.—Tobey.

ANSWER:

My recipe for Caramel Fudge is basically the same. These are the ingredients: 2 cups white sugar (used for caramelizing), 4 cups white sugar, 2 cups cream or evaporated milk, 1 tablespoon white corn syrup, 1-3 cup butter or margarine, 1-4 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups broken pecans. Temperatures and times are the same as ours, but this yields 4 lbs. wonderful rich fudge.

Would you be willing to try another table centre idea than the cookie house? Paint a 1-lb. coffee can red. Stuff it with shredded cotton loosely. Put 3-inch high Santa Claus in centre. Around him arrange diagonally cut-out cookie figures—his helpers—and red and gold ribbon, connected by a colored ribbon to their places, with a Christmas tree or other favor tied to the other end. Use this recipe for:

CUT-OUT BUTTER COOKIES

One cup soft butter, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 unbeaten egg, 1 1-4 teaspoons vanilla, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1-4 teaspoon lemon juice. Mix together butter, sugar, egg and vanilla until fluffy. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt. Add gradually to butter-mixture creaming. Add lemon rind and juice. Mix. Wrap in wax paper and chill 1 hour. Roll out to 1-8 inch thickness. Cut out with boy or girl-shaped cutters. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. on ungreased sheet about 8 minutes. Cool and decorate with frosting in tube to outline hats, buttons, shoes, eyes, nose, mouth. Each child loves getting something from the decorations—and will probably eat it on the spot.

CORRECT FORM OF NAME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

You said in your column for other day that it is correct to write one's name and return address on the envelopes of Christmas cards. Which form of name should I write—Mary Smith or Mrs. John Smith? — Mary

With your return address, on the envelope, write Mrs. John Smith You should use your formal name for this 'public' information.

PROBLEMS OF CHRISTMAS GIFTS TO FIANCE'S FAMILY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a real Christmas-present problem, and wish you would help me. I am engaged to a young man from a large family. He lives with his sister and brother-in-law. Also boarding there are a sister and her two daughters (her husband is in the Service). My fiance is very fond of these two nieces, and he and I were sponsors for the younger niece's christening. My fiance's parents live next door to him. And in the house on the other side live his brother, sister - in - law, and their two sons. Another brother, sister - in - law, and their two children live in the same city, and they too are very close to the rest of the family.

As an only child I am rather overwhelmed by the thought of family Christmas gifts, and I don't know to whom to give gifts or what to give. I certainly don't want to be stingy, but neither do I want to be over-generous. I have already planned to give presents to his parents. And I know that I am expected to give to the two nieces who live with him. But what about the sister with no children who has been so very nice to me? And what about the other nieces and nephews? Any suggestions, please?—L.

You should, I think give a present to each of your fiance's nieces and nephews . . . with a family so close as this one, not only in living arrangements but also in family devotion, you just must not give presents to some of the children and not to all. And these presents for cooking and sales'or perhaps should all be in approximately the same price-range (children have an uncanny way of telling if they aren't, and they won't like it). One way to achieve this is to plan to give the same general type of gift marked in some way with names or initials or as initial-handkerchiefs, for example, marked with the first name; sturdy gloves, or Christmas-red mittens, name-embroidered; a scarf or interesting yarns for each, or for some, as an alternative. Keep the gifts simple, not expensive, to suggest your thoughtfulness, in no way overdoing it. You're planning the presents for the parents. And you should, I think give a present to each of your fiance's nieces and nephews, with a family so close as this one, not only in living arrangements but also in family devotion, you just must not give presents to some of the children and not to all. Gardiner Suggests Increased Shipment of Prairie Grain To Ont. Livestock Feeders

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner has suggested increased shipment of prairie grain to Ontario livestock feeders as one answer to the west's big problem of grain surpluses.

His proposal was seconded at the federal-provincial agricultural conference Thursday by J. R. Bell, Manitoba's deputy agriculture minister, who said Canada could get its way out of the grain surplus if eastern farmers would double purchases of western feed grain.

The meeting of federal and provincial agriculture ministers and other farm representatives, reached no agreed conclusions on ways of dealing with surplus food stocks.

PROVIDES BACKDROP

The surplus problem provided the backdrop for nearly all of the rather inconclusive deliberations.

Mr. Gardiner's only commitment was a prediction that the government would give more favorable consideration now than in any previous year to maintaining existing price supports on butter and eggs and on freight subsidies to western feed grains.

He also said he felt federal aid might be forthcoming to apple growers—provided the apple provinces of Ontario, Quebec, British Columbia and Nova Scotia could devise a plan to grow only the most saleable apples and properly grade and handle them.

But he spoke of dangers in the demand for tariff protection against United States potatoes. Maine's potato crop was bigger than the entire Canadian one, while per cent of seed potatoes used in North Carolina came from Prince Edward Island.

SEEK PROTECTION

William MacGillivray, British Columbia's deputy agriculture minister, said the potato import situation is "ridiculous" and Canadian growers should have tariff protection.

Agriculture Minister Cullen of P.E.I. said there must be some price support for potatoes. Acreage control could not prevent surpluses.

Only Question Of Finding Holdup Man

CORNWALL (CP)—City police said Thursday the man believed responsible for Tuesday's $500 holdup of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch here has been identified.

Police chief Allan Clark said: "We now have the man positively identified and it is now only a question of finding him."

Later, in Toronto, police said a warrant has been issued by Cornwall police for the arrest of a Toronto man in connection with the $500 robbery of a Bank of Commerce branch there two days ago.

Quebec Attorney Will Start Reply To Coffin Plea

OTTAWA (CP)—A Quebec crown prosecutor today begins a reply to defence arguments before the Supreme Court of Canada that Wilbert Coffin, Gaspe, Que., prospector, had an unfair trial on a charge of murdering an American hunter.

Coffin, scheduled to be hanged Feb. 10, was convicted at Perce, Que., in July, 1954, of murdering Richard Lindsey, 17, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., whose remains were found in the Gaspe peninsula bush a year earlier. Also dead were his father, Eugene Lindsey, 47, and a companion, Frederick Claar, 26.

Crown prosecutor Paul Miquelon of Quebec City Thursday described the crown's theory of the slaying to the Supreme Court which is reviewing the case at the request of the federal cabinet.

Before handing down its opinion, however, the court must rule on a motion by the Quebec attorney-general that the court has no jurisdiction to hear the review and that the cabinet had no power to pass an order-in-council asking for advice.

ARGUE POINTS OF LAW

The motion was argued last Monday at the opening of the hearing. Arthur Maloney, Toronto lawyer, then took 2½ days to argue 13 points of law which he said suggest that various decisions of trial judge Gerard Lacroix were prejudicial to Coffin.

Mr. Miquelon said that after Coffin's known encounter with the hunters in the Gaspe bush, he drove young Lindsey 45 miles to Gaspe village to buy a new gasoline pump for the Lindsey truck.

He said that after driving Lindsey back to the bush, Coffin apparently offered to drive the hunters to camp sites farther up the rough loggers' road.

The prosecutor said Coffin apparently left the older Lindsey at one camp and drove the two youths to another camp 2½ miles away, there shooting them before returning to shoot the elder Lindsey for his money, more than $600.

THEFT MOTIVE

Mr. Miquelon said the only motive for the murder was theft of Lindsey's money. Police later found Lindsey's empty wallet in a river bed.

He said Coffin had to shoot the two youths because they knew him to have been in the bush.

Mr. Miquelon said it would have been almost impossible to prove murder if young Lindsey's clothing had been torn to shreds by bears in the same way as the two other hunters' clothes were ripped.

Lindsey's T-shirt, hunting shirt and windbreaker were pierced at the same spot in the chest by a bullet. The hole was bloodstained.

FATHER, SON CONVICTED

TORONTO (CP)—A father and son were convicted Thursday of driving the same car while under the influence of liquor. Police said Louis Ricard, 50, drove the car for several blocks before stopping and letting his son Alfred, 29, behind the wheel. He drove for 200 yards and collided with two parked cars, they said. The father was sentenced to seven days for drunken driving and the son was fined $100 or 10 days for impaired driving.

Seven Soviet Journalists Give U.S. Its Best Press

By SIDNEY WEILAND

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The United States has received its best press in the Soviet Union since the cold war began as a result of the American tour of seven Soviet journalists.

Articles in Pravda and other Moscow newspapers by the touring reporters emphasized the friendly welcome they were given by industrialists and businessmen as well as ordinary workers. Their reports have been noted here for their objectivity though several said they were puzzled by Americans' life.

"We remember and liked many things on our travels but much was incomprehensible and alien to our conception of life and human relations," Alexei Adzhubey reported to the readers of the youth daily, Komsomol Pravda.

The Russians were shocked by the slot machines and gambling casinos in Nevada. "Reno is a place where billionaires, movie stars and businessmen come to enjoy life," Adzhubey said.

FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE

Of talks with Americans—including industrialist Cyrus Eaton, "one of the richest men in America"—Adzhubey wrote: "Our points of view did not always coincide. Sometimes we were struck during conversations by the unconceived attitude towards Soviet life. But the majority, even the overwhelming majority of these talks took place in a good and friendly atmosphere."

Pravda's correspondent, Boris Polevoi, an author and war correspondent, wrote: "Wherever we went, the common people of America gave us a cordial welcome.

"We were met as friends, invited to their homes and to public discussions. We talked with Wall Street businessmen and small provincial shopkeepers, the Cleveland financier Cyrus Eaton and the Ford worker John Smith . . . these talks were always frank."

In their hotels, Polevoi reported, the Soviet journalists found letters from ordinary Americans, gifts of candy and flowers. An American who sent a gift enclosed a message which said: "Soviet guys, feel at home and God bless you."

FRIENDLY INTEREST

Americans, Grishchev said, regarded the Soviet people "with interest and friendliness."

"Often in the streets, on airplanes and on trips, Americans came up to us to shake hands and to transmit words of greeting to the Soviet people," he wrote.

Even the state department came in for praise. "We cannot avoid saying a respectful word about your representatives of the state department who accompanied us," Grishachev said. "They tried as far as they could to make our trip as full and as diversified as possible."

All the Russian correspondents mentioned that "drunk hooligans and Hitlerite riff-raff" staged demonstrations against them in some places. The Komsomol Pravda correspondent claimed that in Cleveland, Ohio, the demonstration took place "with the connivance of the police."

But Pravda readers were told: "These acts of hooliganism, inspired and staged by the opponents of a relaxation of international tension, arouse the indignation of all upstanding Americans."

Recording Contract Signed at Toronto

While Ottawa and Hull service clubs scratched their collective heads in quest of a new "gimmick" to raise funds for their Christmas cheer work, Ottawa and Belleville business man Jack Snow arrived with an answer.

Mr. Snow set himself down, wrote the words and music to a Christmas song, "Thanks to Santa," and had it recorded by radio and TV star Cliff McKay.

Now about 1½ dozen throughout the Ottawa-Hull-Eastview area are selling the records with all profits going towards Christmas baskets for the poor.

Clubs in Ottawa communities have become interested in the idea, and Mr. Snow has been receiving numerous record requests. The record is being distributed by Ottawa records distributor Alex Sherman who is donating his services to the project.

Blind River's Block-Long Main Street in New Uranium Field Hums With New Life

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—The uranium boom has brought an atomic-like upsurge in the fortunes of this century-old lumbering town — and the old saying country around it.

Mayor Louis Berthelot estimates that the population, about 2,400 when the uranium find became definite in 1953, may come close to 5,000.

Twenty miles to the northeast, in rockbound country long since stripped of its rich stands of white pine timber, a new town is in the making, designed to house 12,000 to 15,000 persons.

THRIVING COMMUNITY

Blind River's block-long main street hums with new life. Traffic jams are almost constant. Stores are busy. Hotel rooms are almost impossible to get.

But the boom area are new to Blind River. The last major surge of prosperity since 1850 when the Hudson's Bay Company gave the town its name was establishing a trading post in the area.

Lumbering long the mainstay of the community, produced many of its busiest times. Possibly the biggest boom was in the late 1920s when the Carpenter-Hixon Company moved in from the United States and built a sawmill that is still the biggest in North America east of the mountains to mill from the 1,000,000 logs a year it cut in the timber stands to the north.

Blind River expects that the new boom, borne on the billion-dollar uranium field to the north and east, will last longer than the old.

Mayor Berthelot, who took to a wheel chair since he lost both legs above the knees in a car accident, thinks the day will come when the area between Blind River and Algoma mills, and the north and east, will be built up solidly.

RAPID EXPANSION

Now heading into the 11th consecutive term, the mayor says "business has doubled all round since the uranium strike.

Two new housing subdivisions are on the way, one at the east end and the other at the west end of the town which lies on the north shore of Lake Superior midway between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. One is planned for 42 to 50 houses, the other for 42 houses and six apartment buildings. Some of the houses are already built.

The 56-year-old mayor, who has lived here for 58 years, says the town is almost out of the load of debt which put it under control of the Ontario municipal board 30 years ago when it couldn't meet bond payments. It now is seeking to annex a section of adjacent Striker township to get room to grow.

So far it has enjoyed the fruit only of preliminary mining work—prospecting and development. Bigger things lie ahead. Mining officials expect a working force of at least 2,550 men on actual production work by mid-1957. This figure is based on plans of mines with mill construction under way, and includes 100 who will work at a sulphuric acid plant at Spanish.

Blind River's hospital, operated since 1940 by the Sisters of St. Joseph, is expanding to meet the needs of a bigger working force. Recently, it opened a new wing increasing bed capacity to 80 or more from 22. The hospital was founded originally by the late Dr. J. M. Robb, former Ontario minister of health who practised medicine here for many years.

CROWDS ON PAY-DAY

Police Chief Leo Trudeau says that the biggest problems for himself and the one constable on the force come on pay days and Saturdays, when mining work shuts down. Last August was a typical month with 198 arrests on drunk and criminal charges. This doesn't include traffic cases.

Blind River will house the workers from one mine, Pronto, Ontario's first uranium producer nine miles east of here near the Lake Huron shore. Its operation plans call for employment of 350.

The new town, known officially as the improvement district of Elliott Lake, is designed to house the 2,200 men to be employed at Algom Uranium's two mines and at Consolidated Denison. It nestles beside Elliott lake, a scenic stretch of water four miles long, ranging from a quarter of a mile to a mile across.

Boundaries of the improvement district take in an area of 36 square miles, far larger than metropolitan Toronto, Ontario's largest city, which covers 228. However, the actual townsite covers only 2,000 acres. The Ontario department of planning and development says the larger area was designated to prevent construction of sub-standard housing or shacks in the uranium field. As more mines opened, the district could be enlarged, or new ones created.

Ontario law gives an improvement district the status of a municipality. It can borrow money for schools, local improvements or other municipal purposes. It is governed by three trustees, appointed by the government.

MODERN SCHOOL

Elliot Lake already boasts a handsome three-room school. Its pupils come by bus from Algom and Consolidated Denison mines where some of the permanent staff live in new houses. The townsite has a few buildings, designed as apartments and used now to house temporary mill construction workers, but no houses.

A narrow mining road, twisting in a serpent-like 25-mile course from Lake Huron to the Quirke lake area, serves the new townsite and the mines. The Ontario government has announced it will build a new highway to serve the area and has already let one construction contract.

Elliot lake harks back to the old logging days. It was named for a former of the Rock Lumber Company which operated in the area years ago. Although pine logging is long since past, the Roddis Lumber Company now is cutting hardwood logs in the area for its mill at Sault Ste. Marie.

CELEBRATE HOLIDAY

ROME (AP)—School children of Rome brought flowers today to the statue of the Immaculate Conception, honoring the Virgin Mary. The feast day was celebrated throughout Italy as a national holiday. Wednesday night, in preparation for the celebration, Rome firemen used their ladder truck to place a wreath of white flowers at the foot of the statue in Rome's Piazza di Spagna.

Self Love For Wrong Reason

By ROY L. SMITH

It is commonly assumed that humility is one of the primal virtues of the religious man, and that is probably true; but it is also true that God seems to hold that man in high respect who rejects himself. When He called the prophet Ezekiel to His prophetic work, He said to him, "Stand upon thy feet and I will speak to thee." To a sick man and to a dead man Jesus said, "Arise." The Master never demanded subservicney of anyone.

Self-respect is the beginning of character. He who cannot hold his head up in the presence of the image of himself which he sees in the mirror is in need of some kind of rehabilitation. The ancient Levitical laws of the Jews enjoined them to love their neighbors as they loved themselves, but it is possible for a man to love himself for wrong reasons.

BECAUSE OF FAMILY TREE

There are those who are deeply in love with themselves because they came from a noble family. It is not that they have within themselves any evidences of nobility, but that their fathers had—that there is an eminent family that earned the respect of the community, deserved it, and was worthy of it.

The Uniform Sunday school lessons for December 11 is: "Who Is My Neighbor?" Luke 10:25-37.

Every man needs to remind himself from time to time that he is not responsible for the family into which he was-born, but that he is responsible for living to the good name of that family, for increasing the respect in which it is held, and for transferring an increased usefulness to the society in which one lives. There is much truth in the statement that no man is as good as his father, until he has been his father was.

There is something just a little ridiculous about the man who loves himself for no better reason than that he was born into a family that was better than he is.

BECAUSE OF RACE

Bishop William A. Quayle, the famous Methodist divine of a generation ago, was in the habit of saying that race prejudice is the meanest sin of a small soul." Yet there are those who love themselves for no better reason than that they have a white skin which is out of their own design, that they belong to the white race in which light pigmentation is noted, nothing, that they close their minds against all men of color because they have no ability to distinguish between color and character, and that they enjoy, a social status they have never earned.

BECAUSE OF POSSESSIONS

The great tragedy in the career of the rich young ruler came on that memorable day when he met Jesus and was invited to divorce himself from his possessions and measure himself to see how big or how little he was when he was himself. He was unable to do it because he was very rich, and because he was afraid he might be very small if he lived standing alone.

Not the least pitiable aspect of the case was the fact that he had inherited his wealth. In those days when they had no patent laws, no oil wells to discover, and no corporations through which a man might make a hurried fortune, the only way a young man could come into possession of great wealth was by way of an inheritance. This young man loved himself (and it is said that Jesus loved him, for what he might have been) for the very small reason that he was in a comfortable position and could not bear to think of subjecting himself to hardships.

BECAUSE THEY ARE GOOD

The Pharisee, in Jesus' parable of the Pharisee and the Publican, was a good man, a moral man, and a leader of good reputation. His difficulty lay in the fact that he loved himself because he could not see any fault in himself, and this is a very common form of bad self-loving.

And there are so many other ways of loving one's self for the wrong reason.

LUMPS FOR SUGAR?

In 1919, five years after he retired as undefeated heavyweight champion, the great James J. Jeffries yielded to public clamor for a "white hope" and tried to come back. Jack Johnson saw to it that he failed. Jones I. was operated out.

Since then champions of all calibres stripped of their baubles and titular vegas have tried the comeback trail. A few in the lower divisions succeeded.

SUGAR RAY ROBINSON
a lot to do with the odds.

Tonight in the Chicago Stadium, a little shower fighter, a classical boxer will attempt what other former champions have seldom achieved. Sugar Ray Robinson, the former king of the middleweights, who forsook his gloved court for the music and glitter of night clubs and foreign bistros will attempt to wrest his former championship crown from the talented lump of Manitoban-born "Bobo" Olson.

If you are loaded with the long green and tempted to lay the the lettuce on the outcome, eighteen will get you five that he fails. This "never-come-back" action spawned in that 1919 fight probably has had Thirty-three months have elapsed since the sinewy Sugar Ray knocked out Rocky Graziano in his last title defence in Chicago, and his return to the squared circle last January.

But the "Sugar" insists this fight is not a comeback. He told reporters that beyond a shadow of doubt he is out yet off the floor to whip Rocky Castellani, by a unanimous decision on July 1st. You can take that for what it is worth. The real test comes tonight.

Since Sugar defied the soft shoes for the six-ounce gloves again, he has taken part in six fights. Four of them were more or less stepping stones. The others were Rocky Castellani and "Tiger" Jones. He impressed the experts with his showing against Castellani, but not to the point where he was ready for a titular match with the "Bobo."

His second with Tiger Jones, which this department saw on television revealed an ex-champion that was by far a better dancer than a fighter. The Tiger outclassed him in nearly all departments which drew the comment from the Sugar crowd that their boy was not ready nor in condition for such a fighter as the "Tiger."

If it is any consolation to the song-and-dance man, three former middleweight champions regained the title. In fact Robinson was one of them. Tony Zale and Stanley Ketchel were the others. But the first is yet to come who attempted the feat after three years of retirement.

Robinson in his prime ranked with the great middleweights of all time. He was a lithe, graceful boxer with a beautiful classical style. But that was years ago. The old gentleman with the scythe and whiskers, like income taxers, has taken his toll. There is no evasion of that. The years have added to his age and the all-important reflexes have slowed down.

But there are those loyal souls who are pulling for the Sugar to win purely on his glittering record when he was king of the middies. During his thirteen years of ring activity he compiled a record of 136 victories, eighty-eight by knockouts, only four defeats and two draws.

Sugar himself believes he can beat Bobo purely through remembering what kind of a fighter he was in their two meetings. He knocked out Olson in twelve rounds in 1950 and decisioned him over the fifteen-round route in 1951. Cockily he remarked the other day: "I wouldn't be fighting him if I didn't know I can beat him." Personally we would not stake the little woman's Christmas money purely on that statement.

His manager and lord high visier, George (The Emperor) Gainford, just as cockily added: "He's 80 per cent the fighter he was—and that's plenty enough to beat Olson."

Robinson is confident he has the legs and speed for the job. He is certain he can go the fifteen-round route, but hopes for a knockout.

Even those are those who doubt the Robinson underpinning has sufficient stamina and durability to take him over the distance. One of the Sugar clan remarked: "he'll be terrific for eight rounds—after that, who knows?"

On the other side of the picture some of the experts figure Bobo isn't as strong as he was. His third-round knockout by Archie Moore many believe, proved that he cannot take a punch like he "useter." Since that fight his only real test was that with Joey Giambra whom he barely beat. Besides he has to make the 156-pound limit and that could weaken him.

However, it will be the classical, graceful stylist of a boxer against the dashing, slashing attacks of a fighter. You take your choice. We'll sting along with the Bobo.

Hits First Hemp in 28 Games; Red Wings New Look Fails To Produce Potent Offensive

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The daring move to break up Detroit Red Wings' dreaded production line for the first time in nine years didn't pay off—Thursday night, anyway.

The Wings, who shook up their top line of Ted Lindsay, Earl Reibel and Cord Howe in an effort to distribute some of the scoring punch on another line, found themselves in an old familiar spot. They were held to a 3-2 National Hockey League tie by the Boston Bruins at Detroit.

Lindsay moved to the second line, and Howe did not figure in any of the scoring as the Wings picked up their 11th spilt of the season. The result did, however, send Detroit in third place in the standings, the highest spot Wings have occupied this term.

HARS BEAT LEAFS

In the only other engagement, the league-leading Montreal Canadiens scored three third-period goals to slap down the last-place Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1. Although Toronto lost, it was a memorable night for Leaf captain Sid Smith, the 1954-55 all-star left winger, who scored his first goal of the current campaign.

One goal in 28 games is terrible for Smithy. He has averaged 25 markers a year in his nine full seasons he's been with the Leafs.

At Syracuse, Red Wings were still unable to produce a couple of potent lines. When coach Jim Skinner moved Howe early in the second line and sent defenceman Red Kelly into the production line's left wing slot, he hoped there would be two balanced combinations.

Goalie Norm Ullman, a member of the only line unaffected by the shuffle, blanked Toronto Marlboros in the first period. Doug Mohns matched it for Boston a scoreless duel in the frame ended.

Alex Delvecchio put the Wings in front again in the second period but Fleming Mackell put Bruins on even terms in the third.

SCORE TIE BACK

The Wings moved a point ahead of the idle Chicago Black Hawks and to within 10 points of second-place New York Rangers. Bruins went a point ahead of the Leafs into fifth place.

The victory gave Montreal a six-point lead over the Rangers, who did not play Thursday night. Canadiens now have 16 wins, seven ties and only four losses for 39 points.

The Toronto team was given a tremendous ovation when they disputed Maurice Richard's goal at 8:21 of the third frame. Gerry James served the 10 minutes in the penalty box.

Tonight there is one game scheduled, Boston Bruins visit St. Louis for a game against Chicago Black Hawks, which was transferred from Chicago because of the world's championship middleweight boxing match there between Bobo Olson and Sugar Ray Robinson.

Hockey Making Return Bid In Ottawa

By ARTHUR WILKES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Hockey is making a determined bid for a bigger share of the capital's winter sport spotlight but it probably will be a couple of years before professional hockey returns to this city, once a hotbed of hockey enthusiasm.

Pro hockey departed from the city last year when Ottawa Senators were withdrawn from the Quebec Hockey League after a membership of some 20 years.

The Auditorium, proving grounds for some of the country's best players, now is used by-city junior and Ottawa valley senior leagues. Once —until 1934—it was the home of the National Hockey League Senators.

Interest in junior hockey is intense. Attendance has been close to 1,000 a game compared with an average of less than 300 last year when an Ottawa team, Shamrocks, reached the eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-finals before bowing out to Quebec. Seating capacity is about 3,000.

BOUGHT AUDITORIUM

Morris Cantor, one of eight members of his family who purchased the Auditorium early this year from sports promoter T. P. (Tommy) Gorman, said the rink management will co-operate with any team or group anxious to keep the game alive here.

Handsome financial returns do not figure in our plans for the time being," he added.

Mr. Cantor, secretary-treasurer of the auditorium, said negotiations have been going on for some time to bring National Hockey League teams here for exhibition games against junior league all-stars. He said he was in touch with Montreal Canadiens and wrote Tommy Ivan of Chicago Black Hawks this week in an effort to arrange a game.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens stretched his National Hockey League scoring lead to 9 points Thursday, with an assist as the Habs edged Toronto 3-1.

Beliveau still leads the league in goals with 16 and has 14 assists for a total of 30 points.

Gordie Howe of Detroit, tied in second place with Andy Bathgate of New York, was held scoreless as the Red Wings and Boston battled to a 2-2 tie. The Rangers were idle.

Maurice Richard of Montreal fired a goal to move into a fourth-place tie with teammate Bert Olmstead and Dave Creighton of New York. Each has 23 points but Olmstead is the league's leading playmaker with 21 assists.

The leaders:

Flooding Rain Halts Miami Golf Tourney

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The weatherman promised clearing skies for the Miami open golf tournament contestants today—but he was just 24 hours too late as far as Doug Ford and Billy Maxwell are concerned.

They were leading the huge field by a stroke when a mid-afternoon downpour flooded the Miami course Thursday with all of the 154 players still out. The downpour prompted P.G.A. tournament director Ray O'Brien to cancel all first-round play. He termed the sodden course unplayable.

So, they started over from scratch today after the tournament sponsor—the city of Miami's publicity department—agreed to reduce the $12,500 affair to 54 holes instead of the scheduled 72.

And down the drain went the four-under-par 66s which had put Ford, current PGA champion from Klamesha Lake, N.Y., and Maxwell, former U.S. amateur titlist from Odessa, Tex., out front.

Twenty-two players already had bettered par on the 6,630-yard, par 35-35—70 course.

Six players were just one stroke behind Ford and Maxwell at the season's close in order. The 72 shooters were Pete Fleming, Crystal Bay, Nev.; Chick Harbert, Northville, Mich.; Bob Keller, Pittsburgh; Pete Cooper, Detroit; Pat Rouse, Winnetka, Ill.—and Al Balding, Toronto.

Bobo Olson Rated 3-1 Favorite Over 'Sugar' Ray Robinson

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—Champion Carl (Bobo) Olson, a 9-to-1 favorite, makes his fourth middleweight title defence tonight against a man who has whipped him twice, Sugar Ray Robinson.

The scheduled 15-round battle in Chicago Stadium brings together a 27-year-old Olson, who was flattened last summer by Archie Moore while trying an upward climb, and a 35-year-old Robinson, at the peak of a questionable comeback.

Chief reason for this International Boxing Club bout is that Olson lost considerable prestige in his third-round knockout by the light-heavyweight champion June 23 and that Robinson made a quick return from an erstwhile song-and-dance career.

Olson was knocked out as a 22-year-old rookie by Robinson in 1950 in 13 rounds at Philadelphia and dropped a 15-round decision to Sugar Ray in a 1952 middleweight title bout at San Francisco.

The hard-banging Olson was regarded as a terrific batter until he tried to match blows with Moore. When Moore exploded his paralyzing combination which knocked Olson silly, the path was cleared for Robinson's laborious struggle toward the top.

Sugar Ray, who abdicated the 160-pound crown on Dec. 18, 1953, clawed into contention with victories over Johnny Lombardo, Ted Olla, Garth Panter and Rocky Castellani.

Jim Norris, IBC president, probably best explained the attitude of the underdog Robinson, once regarded as the best piece of fighting machinery in the business, found for pound.

"Sugar Ray will get some $50,000 or $60,000 out of this fight," said Norris. "But even if he got $150,000 or $180,000 out of it, I don't think Robinson would take this fight if he didn't think he could win it."

The televised portion of tonight's 10 p.m. EST bout will be blacked out for a 130-mile area around Chicago but radio will give a full account.

Truman Gibson, secretary of the IBC, said it appeared a crowd of about 11,000 would pay $140,000 into the stadium tills. Another $75,000 will come from TV-radio fees.

Olson gets a 35-per-cent hunk of all revenue, against 25 per cent for Robinson.

In two starts since his knockout by Moore, Olson has not been a ball of fire. He scored 10-round decisions over Jimmy Manion last Aug. 13 and was hard-pressed to beat Joey Giambra Aug. 26. Both were non-title matches.

Olson won his title by blasting Randy Turpin in New York Oct. 21, 1953, to climax an elimination series after Robinson quit his 160-pound crown.

In Canada, the fight will be carried by radio-coast-to-coast on the CBC Dominion network and on the eastern Canada TV network.

SUGAR RAY CONFIDENT, DESPITE ODDS

BOBO OLSON

SUGAR RAY ROBINSON

Winding up training for their date tonight in Chicago, both champion Bobo Olson and challenger Sugar Ray Robinson, 35, are confident they will don the world middleweight crown after their 15-round battle. But the odds favor the 27-year-old Olson, 9-1, despite Robinson's two victories over Bobo in 1950 and 1953.

Rocky's Manager 'From Missouri' About Baker

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP)—Al Weill, Rocky Marciano's manager, confirmed Thursday night what a lot of fight fans had suspected—the time isn't ripe for a heavyweight title bout between Rocky and Bob Baker.

"I'm sorry it turned out to be such a bad fight," Weill said of Wednesday night's Baker - Nino Valdes match, won by Baker on a decision.

"It was one of those things, the two styles were different."

But Baker's unimpressive victory didn't rule out a shot some day at Marciano's championship, Weill added.

"He's still a man to be reckoned with," Weill said. "You've still got to figure him in the running, especially if he makes a couple of sensational fights."

"I say this—he's got to show us before we consider matching him against Rocky."

Tennis Amateurs Not Simon Pures Says Britisher

LONDON (AP)—A delegate at the annual meeting of the British Lawn Tennis Association suggested Thursday that the word "amateur" is now redundant and that Wimbledon should become an open championship."

Jim Kriebach, a delegate from Kent, claimed that leading amateurs are not amateurs. "This is obvious by the question of their expenses. The bigger the drawing power of a player the greater their expenses and it seems the time has come to drop the word amateur."

He suggested that Wimbledon, the world's premier tournament, should become an open championship.

Viscount Templewood, president of the LTA, ruled that the issue was outside the meeting's scope.

Campanella Gets MVP Award Joins Exclusive 3-Time Club

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn's Roy Campanella, baseball's comeback man of the year, today joined one of the sport's most exclusive clubs when he was named the National League's most valuable player for the third time.

Read the record books of either league and you'll find the names of only five players who have won the trophy as often.

The 34-year-old Brooklyn catcher and Stan (the Man) Musial of St. Louis Cardinals are the only National Leaguers. Jimmy Foxx, that great slugger who played for the Athletics and Red Sox; Joe DiMaggio of Yankee fame and Yogi Berra, New York catcher, are the honored three in the American League. Berra received his third award a week ago.

But not so.

"I get a bigger kick out of this one than I did the other two (1951-53)," said the big Negro catcher, who beat out teammate Duke Snider by five votes. "I didn't look forward to this one and it is a wonderful surprise."

But Campy said he has no intention of resting on his laurels.

"I think I've got a few good seasons left," he said. "The worst has happened," referring to an injured hand of 1954 which held his batting average to .207 in 111 games. He didn't receive a single vote in 1954, when Dodgers fell apart and finished a poor second to the Giants.

Campy zoomed back to .318 this year, hit 32 homers and drove in 107 runs as Dodgers won the National League pennant with ease and then beat Yankees for their first world series title.

His great playing earned him recognition as the greatest comeback of the baseball season in an Associated Press poll. The Campanella-Snider voting was one of the closest since the Baseball Association took over the poll some 25 years ago.

Basilio May Fight Saxton In February

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The International Boxing Club hopes to stage a Carmen Basilio-Johnny Saxton welterweight championship fight the first week in February, it was reported Thursday.

An authoritative boxing source said it was hoped the match would be put on either in Chicago or San Francisco, apparently ruling out Boston promoter Sam Silverman's bid to have the fight there.

But, the source cautioned, there appeared to be a possibility that the fight might be delayed because champion Basilio injured his left hand in stopping Boston's Tony DeMarco in Boston Nov. 30.

Canucks Whip Hamilton 4-2 In Overtime

HAMILTON (CP) — Kitchener Canucks took over sole possession of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings Thursday night, by defeating Hamilton Cubs 4-3 in an overtime game played before 1,771, largest crowd of the local home season.

Walt Bradley with two goals including the tally which proved to be the game-winner, Ab Martin and Sonny Larose scored for Canucks who defeated Cubs by a similar score earlier this week in Kitchener. In that game, too, Larose scored on an empty net as he did Thursday night after Cub coach Dinky Gaines replaced goalie Dennis Riggin with a sixth forward.

Brian Smith and Cummie Burton were the Cub marksmen.

Canucks outshot the Cubs 39-30.

Papa Heston Says No More Acting for His Young Son

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Despite a budding career on the screen and television, Fraser Heston has retired. What's more, he's going to spend as much time as possible in the woods of Michigan, away from the bright lights of Hollywood and New York.

No sense in kidding you—Fraser is nine months old. He's the son of Lydia and Charlton Heston and he has a resolute father.

"No more acting for my son" is the Heston edict. But, being a proud papa, he couldn't refrain from giving the boy a credit:

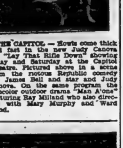
Portrayal of the infant Moses in the bullrush scene for "The Commandments," in which his father starred; and an appearance, playing himself, on the Ed Sullivan "Person to Person" show.

ALL FOR GOOD

"But that's all there will be for now," Heston declared. "I certainly don't want him to be a child actor. If he wants to be an actor when he grows up, that's up to him."

Heston added that he wants his son to spend much of his childhood at the Heston's thousand-acre place near St. Helen, Mich., 200 miles north of Detroit. That's where Charlton grew up.

"I think it's much less healthy for a boy to grow up in a city atmosphere," he observed.



One of the reasons Heston wants to spend much time in Michigan is to expose his son to the glamor routine as little as possible.

This month Heston is doing two TV shows—a circus telecast from Sarasota Springs, Fla., and a "Climax" drama. Next year he may do a Broadway show, and if he does he'll be away from Hollywood for a year.

That doesn't worry him. "The 10 Commandments" will be playing for Heaven knows how long (it's due for release in fall, 1956). As for earnings, he struck a bonanza in "The Private War of Major Benson." Because he had long wanted to do the comedy, he performed for nothing, taking a cut of the profits. They say such deal he may net over $250,000 from the film.

AT THE CAPITOL — Howie comes thick and fast for Judy Canova in the hill "Lay That Rifle Down" showing today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre. Pictured above in a scene from the film are Miss Canova, Howie, Jane Dell and their aid Judy Canova. On the same program the Technicolor outdoor drama "Man Alone" featuring Ray Milland who also directed with Mary Murphy and Ward Bond.

AT THE CAPITOL — Lovely Mary Murphy and Ray Milland share adjoining booths in "A Man Alone," Republic Technicolor outdoor drama showing today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre. In the same program "Lay That Rifle Down" continuous Saturday from 1.00.

AT THE BELLE — A Trumpeteer Now — Jack Webb, long "Joe Friday", turns to the trumpet in "Pete Kelly's Blues", lazz age romantic melodrama, in CinemaScope and WarnerColor. Janet Leigh shares the romantic interest in the story. Edmond O'Brien and Janet Leigh are co-starred. "Journey to Sea", with quaint scenes in Holland enroute, in CinemaScope and Color, is an added attraction at the Belle Theatre.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — "Pete Kelly's Blues" Jack Webb, Janet Leigh, Edmond O'Brien, — In CinemaScope and WarnerColor — 2.00-7.35-9.42.

AT THE McCARTHY — "The Night of The Hunter"—Robert Mitchum Shelley Winters — 2.42-7.36-9.35.

AT THE McCARTHY — Shelley Winters continues to astonish in her triumphs as the unfortunate victim of the demented lo murder Mr. Powell in "The Night of the Hunter", now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Jimmy Hurst was the Hab marksman.

Rangers licked the Maple Leafs 4-3 with Allan Mott netting two

Vivian Blaine to Do Dramatic Role in Lead in 'Dream Girl'

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Next Sunday afternoon a blonde young lady named Vivian Blaine is going to have butterflies in her stomach.

This event scarcely would be worthy of attention if it were not for the fact that our Miss Blaine then begins playing the lead in Elmer Rice's "Dream Girl" on NBC-TV. She will be on camera for 90 minutes in this Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation. Hal March, normally seen as MC of "The $64,000 Question" (CBS-TV), plays opposite her.

This dreamy-looking girl has been a real professional success for her teens. She's probably best known for her starring role in both the Broadway hit and the movie version of "Guys and Dolls."

"Dream Girl" sounds as if it ought to be a musical, but it isn't. It's a comedy about a young lady who runs an unsuccessful book store and dreams her way through some complicated problems. The next Miss Blaine will be playing a straight dramatic role for 90 minutes on TV came unduly as her friends to believe it's a big break for her. They believe millions of viewers will begin thinking of her as a dramatic actress as well as a singing comedienne.

Speaking of dream girls, "Producers' Showcase" (NBC-TV) will present "The Sleeping Beauty" next Monday starring Margot Fonteyn with David Wayne and the Sadler's Wells Ballet. This, essentially, is the centuries-old familiar story.

The producers say they're doing it entirely for the children. But parents may watch too—if they get very still and enjoy it.

Well Fixed for Slades

Floyd Patterson Wins Easily Looks Like Next Contender

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Young Floyd Patterson may be next in line for a shot at heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano but whether he's ready for such a dangerous assignment is debatable.

Thursday night, the 20-year-old lad from Brooklyn erased Jimmy Slade, the No. 5 heavyweight contender, via a technical knockout in the seventh of a scheduled 10-rounder at the Olympic Auditorium.

Patterson knocked Slade down for a nine count in the fifth and the bell probably saved him from a knockout.

Patterson ripped open Slade's right eyelid in the third and he chased the 29-year-old New Yorker all over the ring for the better part of seven rounds. But Patterson couldn't quite catch Jimmy. Referee Dyamnite Jackson was left to do the job.

Jackson stepped in and stopped the affair after 2:05 of the seventh and explained later:

"Slade just wouldn't fight. I kept telling him to get in there and look good even if he was losing. I guess he felt that he was too outclassed."

Patterson won every round, showed a great deal of punching and boxing ability despite the constant assault.

Minor Hockey

Three squirt and three midget hockey games were played last night in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's weekly Thursday night activity at Memorial Arena.

Teams Five, Four and One were winners over Three, Six and Two respectively in the midget division while the Bruins, Rangers and Black Hawks carried away victories in the squirt section.

MIDGET

Team Five whipped Team Three 6-3. Bernie Boulter paced the winners with four goals and one assist while Jack Elliott and John Brennan had a goal and assist each. Ralph Plane and Earl MacDonald added goals. Norm Rushlow, Dennis Kerrulish and McMann each netted one in defeat with Cameron, Quinn and Vanalstine drawing helpers.

Team One managed a one-man show in Team Four's 3-1 win over Six, firing all three goals. Larry Gerow, Ron Deacon and Carl O'Neil each assisted on a goal. Gary Geyer fired the lone Team Six marker.

Team One shaded Team Two 5-4 in the tightest battle of the night. Belanger and Clarke spearheaded the winners' attack with a brace of goals and one assist each. Green also scored with Rowbotham picked up one assist. Ivo Kvarda scored two of the loser's goals with Dave Coe and Hull getting the others. Assists went to Titterington.

SQUIRT

PERCY WINS

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian champion Tony Percy of Montreal won a split-decision over Al Marzoli of Edmonton in a welterweight non-title bout Thursday night.

Percy, with a seven-pound advantage on Marzoli at 130 to 143, was given an edge by both judges but referee Johnny Smith voted for Marzoli in the 10-round bout.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, December 10, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Venus and the Moon, favorably aspected, promise bright prospects for artistic, skill, delicate matters, and those connected with home decorations and appliances. Mars' rays warns against irritability.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Encouraging' possibilities for private affairs and for gain in your occupation or business interests. You will advance more quickly if you keep disposition cheerful. A good day on the whole.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — The whole day encourages vigor and enterprize. Artistry and skill, lightly stimulated, can bring success to all worthwhile tasks. Be your skillful self.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Excellent indications for you generous kindly ones. To be sure, you must bend every effort to gain your objectives but you can win. Use talents, creative ideas. Have faith.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Whatever your schedule, things will move more smoothly if you will be your cheerest self and do not overdo in anything. A fine time for self-expression, artistry, family matters.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Don't be stymied in action by being too reserved or by lack of faith in your ability. And do mix some healthy recreation with the day's essential tasks. New gains likely in your program.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Your Venus is favorably situated, also the Moon. A happy outlook in general for heart interests, domestic affairs, the arts, music. Good stimulus for sports, healthy outdoor activities.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — A resolute heart never fears hard work or refuses good counsel. Today has advantages and flaws. You be the wise judge.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — This can be an interesting, pleasant day. Use your gracious manner to promote harmony.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — "Charity begins at home yet should not end there." This can be a very pleasant day if you live according to this adage.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — If possible, speed up necessary tasks and earn more time, for leisure, healthy fun, improving a hobby or sport.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Gentleness and tolerance (innate assets of yours) will be real advantages in this challenging and not entirely auspicious Saturday. Make some time for pleasant diversion.

You born today are intrepid, sensitive and endowed with good judgment — all essentials for achievement, lasting success. Be mindful of health, do not go to extremes. You generally support good causes and have a keen sense of what is right and what is wrong. Learn not to worry or work feverishly. Do all in wisely measured doses. You are naturally cheerful, and this can help make labor light. Be farthest goals easier to reach. The wise and truly great are both humble and cheerful. Birthdate: Cesar Frank, Belgian composer; Thos. Gallaudet, pioneer teacher of deaf in U.S.

'ALARM CLOCK' KIDNEYS can ruin your Sleep

Ask your neighbors miserable by constant getting up, as if your kidneys "aren't" an alarm clock? Buckley's have a special formula for you, called UROPHEN (say "Your-O-Fen") that helps relieve such irritations by increasing circulation through kidneys to remove excess waste. Antiseptic in action on non-specific germs, UROPHEN helps remove a frequent cause of nagging backache, leg pains, dizziness, loss of pep, nervousness, strong, smelly urine, excessive pains, nervous tension, and tired-out, exhausted feeling. Another product developed by W. K. Buckley laboratories. Money back guarantee if not satisfied after 1st bottle. Ask for UROPHEN (Your-o-fen) — or, send to your druggist this advertisement. 25-5

Police Guard Around Home Is Withdrawn

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police constable Gordon Sinclair, killed by a bullet through the head, was also shot in the back, police disclosed today.

Seized because officers said two .38-calibre slugs were taken from the body of the officer, who was killed Wednesday night while answering a prowler call.

One entered his left cheek, the other the upper part of his body from behind. Police said it appeared he had been shot the second time as he lay in the street.

The disclosure was made simultaneously with an announcement by the police commission that an official reward will be posted today for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers.

It will be added to the $1,000 personal reward posted previously by Mayor Fred Hume.

NO CHARGES LAID

Four persons—three men and a woman—are under arrest on suspicion of complicity in the case. Detectives said today no charges have yet been laid.

The trio appeared in a police lineup late Thursday. Three persons who said they saw persons leaving the scene viewed them from a darkened part of the room.

Constable Sinclair's body was found with his feet still in his one-man patrol car. His head was in the gutter. He had been called to the scene—in suburban Kitsilano—after Jens Nielsen telephoned police and told them two men were trying to break the window of a fuel company office.

The Vancouver Province opened a fund for Sinclair's widow and three ten-age children and arranged to hand over donations to two police benefit associations.

Twenty minutes before his death, constable Sinclair left home telling his wife he would be back in a little while.

"They never gave him a chance" sobbed Mrs. Sinclair. "They just shot him through the head."

GAITSKELL MAY HEAD U.K. LABOR

With the withdrawal of Clement Attlee from leadership of Britain's Labor Party, former chancellor of the exchequer, Hugh Gaitskell, is expected to head the party. He refused to withdraw in favor of Herbert Morrison, veteran Labor spokesman and deputy party chief.

17 NON-OPERATING UNION OFFICIALS ASKED TO PARLEY

Will Iron Out Details For Federal Conciliation

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's railways have invited representatives of the 17 non-operating unions to a conference next Thursday, probably to iron out preliminary details for federal conciliation of their contract dispute.

Frank Hall, chief of the joint union negotiating committee, confirmed receipt of invitations, but said he did not know what would be discussed.

It was thought unlikely at this stage that there would be any mention of a counter - offer or other proposals by the railways.

Meanwhile, plans went ahead to establish a conciliation board that will hear merits of the dispute in which 130,000 non-operating employees are asking for a wage-health-welfare package amounting to the equivalent of 33 cents an hour.

Mr. Hall said he likely will announce the unions' representative on the board and conciliation railways will follow suit probably a day or so later.

DEAD AHEAD

Company and union chiefs met in negotiation here a month ago, talks which ended in disagreement and a call from the unions for federal conciliation.

Labor Minister Gregg announced Thursday that a conciliation board rather than a conciliation officer would be appointed, as had been urged by the unions during the negotiations.

Mr. Gregg said if the railways and the unions do not agree on a board chairman, he would appoint one.

Present average wage for the workers — those who do not actually run the trains — is $1.46 unofficially at $1.46 an hour. The railways' offer would add to that current wage increase and a health and welfare plan as well as other concessions.

Canada and United States To Regulate Water Levels

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian and United States governments are planning protection for upstream and downstream shore properties in conjunction with St. Lawrence seaway construction.

Announcement here and in Washington Friday disclosed plans for regulating water levels of Lake Ontario and the river area around Montreal, subject to periodical flood threats.

The two governments have agreed to a plan of their International Joint Commission for narrowing the spread between high and low water on the lake, a condition which has brought complaint from lakeshore property owners for many years.

The Canadian government is individually announced an arrangement for bypassing river water around the Montreal area during the non-navigation season by redesigning a section of the seaway canal in that district.

The Lake Ontario scheme, which involves the control of water going through the seaway system's regulating and power dams in the lakes, would hold the monthly average lake levels between 244 and 248 feet above sea level.

The present range is between 245½ and 250 feet. The high stage has caused extensive shore damage in the past.

It has been a source of international acrimony. Lake property owners on the U.S. side have claimed the high level was caused by the Canadian-built Gut dam, a now-removed navigation aid below the spot where Lake Ontario empties into the St. Lawrence. A group of them have lodged still-pending damage suits amounting to several dollars each against the Canadian government.

Business and Labor Chiefs Propose Peace, Then Battle

NEW YORK (AP)—Two American business and labor leaders had hardly finished proposing peace to each other Friday before they ran up against several points of sharp and long-standing conflict.

One was politics; the other was the deadlock in organization and bargaining. Thy caused a heated argument.

Sligh Jr., executive committee chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers, and Walter Meany, president of the new AFL-CIO.

Sligh suggested that the newly merged labor body might turn from a "labor monopoly into a "ghost government," enabling a few persons "to run the country." Meany, in scenes and direct the destinies of the nation," he added.

"It is the potentials of the situation which worry industry — and many other thoughtful citizens as well."

Sligh proposed that both business and labor refrain from any political activity.

Meany, whose combined union organization has 15,000,000 members, replied that "the deprivation of political influence in national affairs, labor would be forced to other better.

Youths Kidnap Hamilton Woman Then Assault Her In Car

HAMILTON (CP) — A city-wide police search was underway today for two young men who kidnapped a young woman as she walked along a west end street with her husband early Friday and later criminally assaulted her.

The terrified victim was finally released by her abductors unharmed in Dundas about 4 a. m. today.

Constable Gordon Ellis said the woman staggering along the main street of the town and drew her to his home where a city police car was later taken to hospital for examination and treatment for shock.

Police said the young couple were walking home from a dance when a car containing two youths pulled up beside them.

The pair ran but one of them was struck the husband on the back of the head. He fell to the ground, temporarily helpless.

HELD PRISONER

The youngsters pulled his horrified wife in their car and sped off. For some time they drove around in circles, holding their 24-year-old victim prisoner. Finally they stopped on a deserted spot and both attacked her.

They then drove to Dundas and dumped the woman out in the snow.

It was the second time in a week that a woman had been attacked in the city area and police believe the same pair responsible.

Supreme Court To Give Opinion In Coffin Case

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal cabinet is assured it will receive the opinion of the Supreme Court of Canada on the conviction of Wilbert Coffin, Gaspe lumber merchant sentenced to be hanged for the murder of an American hunter.

Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin Friday announced the conclusion of a five-day hearing of the case by the court. He said a decision the review has failed.

He said the court will make its decision known by letter dismissing a motion by the Quebec attorney-general that the court has not have the jurisdiction to entertain the federal government's request. At the same time the court reserved its opinion on the case.

CONVICTED IN JULY

Coffin, 44, was convicted at Perce, Que., July, 1954, of murdering Richard Lindsay, 27, of Hollidaysburg, Pa. Lindsay's remains were found in the Chaspe area months after Coffin disappeared along with those of Eugene Lindsay, 25, brother and a companion, Frederick Clasr, 20.

The Quebec Court of Appeals unanimously upheld the conviction and the Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott of the Supreme Court later rejected Coffin's application for leave to appeal. Coffin is scheduled to be hanged at Montreal Feb. 10.

The cabinet then asked the Supreme Court to state what judgment it would give if the court knew if it had heard the appeal.

The court's opinion, while it will not be binding, presumably will be used by the cabinet in deciding whether it should of the British sentence to stand, commute it to life imprisonment or order a new trial.

The association is trying to show United Kingdom architects and builders on Canadian-style building methods using more timber.

MENZIES WINS AUSTRALIAN VOTE BY LANDSLIDE

Appears Sure to Get 71 Seats in House

Three hours after the polls closed the Liberal-Country party coalition appeared certain of a commanding lead in the House of Representatives from 64 seats to 71, with four still in doubt. At this stage Herbert Evatt's Labor forces had won only 61, compared with 58 in the previous parliament.

Evatt himself had a comfortable lead in his own constituency of Barton, which had been regarded by Labor as a doubtful seat.

The Liberal - dominated coalition government called the election after a deadlock of the constitutional deadline is a tactical move to strengthen its power.

RECORD VOTE

In the 12 polling hours, more than 5,000,000 Australians were expected to vote. First arrivals at the polls were mainly young people who, under the compulsory voting law and anxious to get home to their television sets for this early summer season.

Nearly 21 per cent over are required to vote. If they-fail to do so without adequate reason, they may be fined $3 each.

The campaign was one of the most bitter Australia's history. Despite the lack of fireworks, candidates were numerous. Four ran for the one seat in the House, and large numbers sought election to the Senate. Five senators were to be elected from each of the six states, since only half of the 60 Senate seats were at stake in this election.

Although the government was confident of increasing its control in the House — which determines the political makeup of the cabinet — Menzies and his colleagues fired a last-minute flight in the state races. This year 18 government-sponsored referenda, compulsion with only 12 in the Labor version. That meant the coalition would have to win three out of five seats to retain its narrow 31-30 lead in the upper house.

CALLED EARLIER VOTE

Normally, general elections in Australia are held every three years. The last voting was in May, 1954, but the government unexpectedly cited its right to call for an earlier contest.

Labor prosperity, employment, and wages high, the campaign was dominated by domestic issues. The main issue appeared to be Evatt, the controversial Opposition leader.

Menzies speeded up the election drive by flying to Darwin in the latitude toward the Petrov spy case, which Evatt exploited for all it was party some support. Vladimir Petrov defected as third secretary at the Russian embassy in Canberra and asked for political asylum in Australia. Russia's envoy to the authorities documents disclosing an Australian espionage ring in Moscow.

A royal commission investigating the case decided that Petrov was telling the truth, and that the documents he submitted were authentic. But Evatt, who criticized the government's handling of the case, disclosed that he had received Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov about the authenticity of the documents. Evatt said he was satisfied that they were forgeries.

Montreal Youths Attempt To Renew Streetcar Riots

Total of 110 Arrested In 6-Hour Rampage Friday

MONTREAL (CP) — Violence flared anew on Montreal streets early today as a gang of about 20 men and youths attempted unsuccessfully to revive Friday night's destructive rampage against buses and streetcars.

Police moved quickly to break up the gang at the east-end intersection of Ontario and Papineau streets after the windows of three streetcars were broken. The rioting Friday night stemmed from a student demonstration called to protest a recent increase in streetcar and bus fares.

Assistant chief inspector William Minogue said three of the 25 men were arrested on charges of disturbing the peace. A total of 500 police are on hand, he said, to serve as flying squads in breaking up any new outbreaks of violence.

SERVICE REGIMENTED

A total of 110 persons were arrested by midnight Friday night as the city's riotous rampage continued after a brief suspension of Monday's street car and bus service.

The demonstration, innocently-conceived by students as a protest against the fare increase, quickly developed into wild scenes, reminiscent of a similar outbreak here March 17 following the suspension of Maurice "Rocket" Richard, Montreal Canadiens' star.

As was the case in the hockey riots, Canada's largest city was conspicuous among the troublemakers but the student leaders, Jean Pleau of the Montreal police said the students were not blameless.

"They did as much as anyone else," he said.

The policemen said that older men, too, were to blame since some of them had joined in the demonstration and directed the youths in wrecking operations.

The h o o d l u m s, operating in gangs of several hundred, wielded bottles, stones and sticks in street signs as they cut trolley lines, smashed streetcar and bus windows and attempted to set the crippled vehicles afire.

Some 40 streetcars were injured, none seriously. Officials of the Montreal Transportation Commission said 172 street cars and 64 buses were damaged.

The M. T. C. estimated property damage alone at at least $50,000, Four of the streetcars suffered damage in excess of $1,000. It would be some time before they can be put back in use, he made on the loss in revenue.

BACK IN SERVICE

The MTC discontinued service shortly after 10 p.m. 2257 and dispatched a fleet of streetcars on midtown streets with their windows smashed and seats ripped out. The fleet was let out of bus tires, forcing their drivers to hurl the vehicles into the garage.

Service was restored at 4 a.m. today. A spokesman reported full operation as normal for a Saturday when fewer street cars and buses are in service. Restrictions will be reduced number of workers. The effect of the transportation tie-up on the system will not be realized until Monday.

A police escort had to be assigned to each bus and streetcar as it was towed to the garage. When one police car was left unguarded for a few minutes the hoodlums moved in, smashing the windows and kicking in the headlights.

Police available were called in when the outbreak got out of hand. Seventy-five policemen were needed to break up one demonstration in the east end. They waded into the taunting youths, grabbing them in groups of four and five and loading them aboard cars bound for jail.

STARTED WITH PARADE

Police said it was impossible to estimate the number of persons who took part in the riots "but there were thousands."

It all started with 2,000 students staging a carnival-like march on city hall to protest the increase in fares of two cents or 25 cents from three for 30 cents. It was similar to one earlier in the week when students from the University of Montreal clogged traffic on their way to and from city hall but caused little damage other than a few disconnected trolley wires.

Friday's march was held because students from McGill University and Sir George Williams College said they wanted to make a big show on the end of the day's protest parade.

Jean Drapeau, Mayor Jean Drapeau came out and addressed the students from the three university campuses. His remarks proved prophetic when he promised action.

"Action is my slogan," he said, "You'll see action like you've never seen before."

The action began.

STUDENTS RENT ROOMS

At first a few trolley wires were ripped down. Then a couple of windows were smashed.

As the procession became unruly, Gilles Legault, president of the University of Montreal student council, called the marchers to go home.

Policemen, who had smilingly accompanied the students, stopped smiling and went to work. It soon was apparent to all that there weren't enough of them to cope with the demonstrators. Reinforcements were called in but the damage began striking at widely-separated points.

At police stations, dozens of the rioters were booked on various charges that included disturbing the peace, resisting arrest, assaulting a police officer and damaging property.

Canada's Foreign Trade Swells To Record Heights

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's foreign trade swelled to record heights in the first 10 months of 1955, but it was mostly a two-way trade with the United States in which Canada's deficit rose sharply.

The deficit in American trade—balance of imports over exports—totalled $718,000,000 in the 10 months, an increase of $207,600,000 over the similar 1954 period, the bureau of statistics reported Friday.

This rising deficit with the U.S. caused some officials to wonder whether it isn't time for Canada to shift to a high tariff.

The whole issue is under review by the royal commission on Canada's economic future which will present its report to the government late next year.

In the 10-month period, Canada's over-all trade — exports and imports combined — set a record $7,841,800,000, a gain of $952,800,000 from last year. Of this $5,000,000,000 was with the U. S.

OTTAWA (CP)—Sales of Canada savings bonds this year declined 6 per cent from 1954 due mainly to reluctance of investors to sell other securities to buy bonds, the Bank of Canada said Friday.

The bank said 10th series savings bonds sales up to Nov. 30, date the registered series were again ended, totalled $654,000,000 from 1,114,000 applications. This compared with total figures for the ninth series of $700,300,000 and 1,173,000 applications.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP)—The weather map has been relatively tame in the past 24 hours. An elongated ridge of high pressure extended from Hudson Bay through the central states to the Gulf of Mexico. A broad stream of cold air is flowing from the Arctic, along the east side of this ridge, down across Ontario, and deep into the southern states. This morning, below freezing temperatures were reported from the gulf states, including northern Florida.

This ridge of high pressure is showing little sign of breaking, and thus the current cold snap is forecast to continue throughout the weekend.

Halifax Police Hunt for Killer

HALIFAX (CP)—A baffled police force pulled out the stops today in their hunt for killer of popular storekeeper Michael Resk, described by friends as a man without enemies.

The 36-year-old grocer's body was found Friday in the rear of his panel truck parked about two miles from his home. Two bullets, which police believe are from a .22-calibre automatic, were fired into Resk's head and a third had penetrated his heart.

Resk's body was found by a soiled cloth and a red necklace was knotted around the wrist. One side of his necktie and a bloodstained meat hook was found on the floor of the truck but investigators said the victim was not beaten.

They said apparently robbery as the motive for the killing. Two dollars was found in his pocket and his wallet and watch were left untouched. Employees of his store said Resk usually had $50 or more carried large amounts of money and sometimes "flashed his roll."

Texas Murder Trial Is Televised And Wacco Folk Say They Enjoy It

WACO, Tex. (AP) — The prosecution was dictated today with the verdict in the Harry L. Washburn murder trial, which the state was expected to appeal a life sentence for murdering his former mother-in-law.

But much of the talk here was about the live television covering of the —first in history—which brought the trial and the jury verdict Friday night into local living rooms.

Reporters covering the trial of Mrs. Jean Harris Washburn, 38, charged with the ver of the trial — before it was televised — dwindled later.

Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver, 51, mother of Mrs. Washburn, was killed at San Angelo by a 10-inch butcher knife blast as she tried to stab her car last Jan. 19. The state called it a "mistake" murder, stating that Washburn set the bomb to kill her husband. Testimony was that Washburn got money from Mrs. Weaver, and Washburn's lawyer had prevented him from getting more.

Washburn, 39, Houston business executive, was given the verdict was announced.

The WACO station made TV history when Judge D. M. Bartlett permitted the live telecast of the murder trial. There was little evidence of the coverage in the courtroom, as a camera scanned the scenes from a balcony without disturbing proceedings. Testimony was picked up by microphones and a news commentator gave a running account.

Accused Gives Evidence In His Own Defence

QUEBEC (CP) — Roland Roy, 26-year-old carpenter accused of killing his estranged girl friend, sobbed "I want to die" Friday as he testified in his own defence.

Roy testified for five hours and broke into tears when Raymond Maher, his defence lawyer, handed him a letter written by 24-year-old Francoise Vachon, the girl he is accused of murdering by beating her head against the pavement in suburban Sillery.

The case is expected to go to the jury today.

Will Inoculate All Flin Flon Cats In Effort to Halt Rabies Epidemic

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—Inoculation of all cats in Flin Flon is expected to start Monday in a drive to deal with a rabies threat that has already claimed cats in the mining community.

Dr. Ian Gourlay, meeting Friday night for the second time in 24 hours, said he is now requiring that all cat owners to have their pets inoculated before Dec. 17. Any cats found running loose after that time and any cats not immunized, will be destroyed.

Nearly 800 dogs were inoculated earlier after a fifth case of rabies was found in her dog, which was discovered to be rabid.

The council was informed Thursday by the federal government laboratory at Ruth, Que., that there are traces of rabies in a cat which bit a child at nearby Creighton, Sask., last month.

The report said cats are considered "effective carriers" of rabies than dogs.

The council also considered an amendment to the present by-law which would increase licence fees for female dogs to $5 from $3 and for males to $20 from $5. However, under the Municipal Act, such changes can only be made at a regular council session unless a special meeting is called and such action is necessary.

Dr. F. S. Singleton, government veterinarian, arrived in Flin Flon this town of 11,000 on the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border, "very serious." No humans have been bitten.

Another amendment under consideration would cut impoundment time of dogs from 72 to 24 hours.

In Winnipeg, Dr. Robert H. Layton, district veterinarian of the federal government's health of animals branch, said the Creighton girl was bitten on the wrist when she tried to retrieve the pet from behind a refrigerator. The animal's head was sent to Hull for examination.

Stephens-Adamson, Foley Co. To Unite Foundry Operations

Belleville's industry continues to expand. It was announced today by Mr. G. A. Freeman, president of Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company of Canada Limited and Mr. Frank H. Foley, president of Foley Foundry and Machine Co. Ltd. that they would be amalgamating their foundry operations and forming a new company under the name of Foley-Saco Foundry Limited. The new foundry will be located at 100 St. Paul Street, Belleville and was designed by Mr. H. A. Babcock, consulting engineer, Toronto. The building now under construction by St. Lawrence Contracting Co. Limited, will contain approximately 10,000 square feet of manufacturing space.

The Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company of Canada Limited and Foley Foundry and Machine Co. Ltd. will carry on the balance of their operations at their present locations. The combining of both firms in this new foundry will allow it to be housed and equipped as one of the finest of its size in Ontario. It is expected the new plant will be completed about March 1st, 1956, and that the foundry workers from both firms will be placed on the with a total employment of about 40 workers.

Mr. Foley thanked the City of Belleville, the Belleville Utilities Commission and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce for their co-operation in assisting them in locating their plant in Belleville. This will be Belleville's fifth major industrial expansion in 1955.

TO TRANSFER SHIPS

WASHINGTON (AP) The United States Navy Friday announced that it will boost warship strength in the Pacific next summer by transferring two destroyer divisions--eight ships in all--from the Atlantic fleet. The destroyers, based at Newport, R. I., will leave there in May and June for the Pacific.

Safety Talks Will Be Given School Children

Hazards faced by children who play in or around railway property will be brought forcibly to the attention of the Belleville school children soon, by means of a series of short, illustrated, safety talks presented by the Canadian Pacific Railway's Department of Investigation.

No branch of the railway is more concerned with the risks confronting youngsters who unnecessarily or wantonly endanger their lives and limbs by playing on railway yards, or walking on tracks, than the Railway Police Forces, which considers the protection of human life and safety as important as the protection of the company's property, and no branch of the railway is better qualified to talk about it.

Inspector J. L. LePage, head of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Department of Investigation in Ontario, addresses this appeal to the children:

"We are asking your help in keeping children from needlessly risking life and limb by using railway tracks and yards as a playground. We are also asking your co-operation in our educational campaign to prevent accidents to railway passengers and employees and damage to railway property and equipment through the thoughtless acts of children. Serious accidents have resulted from throwing stones at trains, by placing obstructions on tracks and by tampering with switches and signals.

As parents, guardians, or simply as friends of children, you can help us greatly by explaining to them the dangers of playing on the right-of-way or interfering with the operation of trains. Without your whole-hearted support and co-operation, our task of protecting the young from their inexperience and thoughtlessness will be very difficult. Will you help us to safeguard the lives and limbs of the children and prevent accidents to others using our railway? Insist that your children play safely and keep off the tracks."

Obituary

ARTHUR CHARLES TOWNSEND

Resident in the district for the past 12 years, Arthur Charles Townsend, 70 Station St., died in Belleville General Hospital, yesterday. In his 64th year, he had been in failing health for the past three years.

A familiar figure to many residents of the community, Mr. Townsend was a CNR engineer and a member of St. Thomas Anglican Church. His membership in the branch was qualified by his World War I service during which he was given the British war and service medals. He served with the 135th Battalion. Mr. Townsend was a member of the Tabernacle United Church.

Besides his wife the former Katie Marie Armstrong, he leaves one son, Russell, and one stepdaughter, Mrs. H. (Ewen) Hicebush, both of Belleville, and four step sons, Donald Armstrong, of Maribank; Clarence and Theodore, both of Belleville, and Capt. L. W. Armstrong, RCEME, Edmonton.

Resting at his late residence, Funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. JOHN CARMICHAEL (Camilton - New Liskeard)

A well-known figure of this community for many years, Mrs. Edith May Carmichael, New Liskeard, died yesterday. She was in her 72nd year.

Mrs. Carmichael lived most of her life in Camilton and was the wife of the late John A. Carmichael, C.N.R. employee. She had been living in New Liskeard at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Edith Mills, for the past seven years.

She was born in Toronto, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Abernithy. Mrs. Carmichael was also a member of the family. She was a member of Christ Church, while resident in Belleville.

She is survived by two sons and two daughters: John Donald, former mayor of Gananoque, and A-/A. (Ed) Carmichael of Belleville; Miss Jean Carmichael of Belleville and Mrs. Edith Mills, New Liskeard. Mrs. Mills is a former employee of the Ontario Intelligencer.

MRS. FRANK VANHEDDEGEM (Batawa)

A resident of Batawa for the past 13 years, Mrs. Alice Vanheddegem died at Trenton Memorial Hospital this morning. She was in her 56th year.

Mrs. Vanheddegem was born in Gilly, Belgium, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. Pennbroke. Before coming to Batawa, she lived in New Brunswick. She was a member of Batawa United Church and a member of the Guild for the past two months.

Besides her husband, Frank, she is survived by three daughters: Mrs. Joseph (Palmyre) Cauwe, Stirling; Mrs. Gerard (Irene) Frank (Dolly) Harcite, Batawa; Mrs. Theresa (Germaine) Alexander, of Trenton.

Resting at the Rowe Funeral Home, Frankford, from Saturday night at 10.30. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Children Will Be Called By Santa Claus

The telephone Santa Claus program will again be run this year by the Belleville Recreation Committee and the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. The program instituted three years ago for the younger children will run Thursday, December 15th, Friday, December 16th and Saturday, December 17th. On week days the time is 6.00 p. m. to 8.00 p.m. and on Saturday 2.00 to 4.00 p.m.

Calls for the children to mail to Santa Claus have been distributed to the Belleville schools, and cards may be picked up at most retail stores in Belleville. Parents may be asked to help by calling the Belleville Chamber of Commerce or the Belleville Recreation Committee office. Children calling in cards must plainly mark their names, address, phone number and time they wish Santa Claus to call him. Santa Claus has been talked to the child a letter will be sent to him or her. Last year in the space of nine hours, 1,800 telephone calls were made to children in Belleville.

Cards will not be received after Tuesday, December 13th, 1955.

Christmas Trees Offered First Time on Market

First hint of the festive season was included in weekend local market trading this morning with the appearance of several lots of Christmas trees offered for sale.

Elsewhere on the market it was one of the quietest weekends of the year. Trading was slow with only a few vendors appearing to do business. There were down a full five cents on large grades, but elsewhere prices were unchanged.

Cabbage sold from 10-15 cents a head; the cauliflowers were 10-15-25 cents. Beets and carrots were 50 cents a four-quart basket with parsnips 60 cents a basket. Celery was 10 cents a head, three for 25 cents. Spanish onions were 50-60 cents a basket and Spanish onions 3 pounds a basket. Turnips were 10-15 cents each. Potatoes continued at 50 cents and $2.50 per 100 lbs.

Apples were slightly lighter in quantity, mostly selling at 50 cents per six-quart basket, including McIntosh, Spies, Snows, Delicious were 60c. Bushels of apples ranged from $1.50 for Spies to $2.25 for Spies.

Eggs dropped five cents to 60 cents for extra large grades. Large grades were 55 cents, medium 52 cents and small grades. Poultry continued at 30 cents for hen and 55 cents for spring chickens.

'High Fidelity' Is Explained

"What is High Fidelity?" was the subject of an address and demonstration at the Y's Men's Club on Thursday evening. The speaker was Mr. C. A. Anderson of the Northern Electric Company who used a loudspeaker, an amplifier and an audio tone generator to illustrate the requirements of a high fidelity sound system.

Commencing with a discussion of the different types of tone available ear, Mr. Anderson related its response to sounds of different frequencies and different frequencies. He showed the nature of sounds produced by different musical instruments and explained the basic requirements of a home music system capable of a relatively faithful reproduction of these sounds.

Taking the long-playing record as an example of a good source of music, Mr. Anderson discussed the relative merits of different types of record player cartridges and needles. In particular he emphasized the need for care of good recordings by use of a diamond stylus at least by frequent replacement of the less permanent phonograph needles. At a later meeting treasurer will have a demonstration of a complete high fidelity system.

The speaker was introduced by Bill Barrie and thanked by Bill Holway.

Max Waddell, chairman for the evening, announced plans for arrangements for the annual sale of Y's Men's Club Christmas trees and enlisted member volunteers as tree salesmen.

FINALLY TOOK ACTION

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Eddie Lightner has been meaning to get rid of a mantelpiece he's had over the fireplace for 38 years. Friday he did--to a friend--after he learned that the antique, a last world war shrapnel shell, was still live and could have been set off any time by heat or friction.

Enmeshed in Broken Twine, Mill Worker Fatally Hurt

TRENTON (Special) —Whipped against the frame of a paper rewinder at the Hinde and Dauch Paper Company mill when he became enmeshed in broken twine, Cecil Chestnut, 36, of 139 Byron Street, Trenton, was fatally injured Thursday night and died Friday morning in the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Chestnut was working at the paper rewinder when the twine broke, caught him around the waist and pulled him against the frame of the machine. He had been working at the Trenton paper mill for three years, having moved to Trenton from Sussex, N.B., eight years ago.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ina Jean Hickerson, and two children, Judy Joanne, 3½, and Cecil Everett, 1½. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chestnut of Sussex, N.B. One brother, Kenneth, lives in Toronto, while three other brothers and two sisters live in New Brunswick.

Believed Man Suffered Heart Attack in Bush

Believed to have suffered a heart attack while at work, the body of Willard Hailstone, 54, Tudor township, was found in the bush Friday afternoon by two Marmora men.

Mr. Hailstone had been living in a shack in Tudor township owned by the Govior family of Madoc and was employed at cutting wood.

A week ago Wednesday the Govior family had visited the shack but found it empty. They were unable to locate Mr. Hailstone and Hailstone may have gone to Trenton to visit friends.

Friday afternoon Harold Herrington, a Marmora farmer, again visited the shack with provisions, again finding Mr. Hailstone missing. He searched the area and found him dead in the bush covered by about two inches of snow. Mr. Hailstone had been last seen a week ago last Monday.

Provincial police at Madoc investigated.

Coroner's Jury Rules Shooting Was Accident

BRANTFORD (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Friday night that the fatal shooting of 70-year-old Clifford Froman is a home in the Six Nations Indian reserve last June 20 was an accident.

Harry Hargrie, 19, of Buffalo, who faces a charge of criminal negligence, said a .32 - calibre revolver accidentally discharged when he picked it up from a kitchen table.

Constable Donald E. Champaign of the RCMP ballistics division testified he had examined the revolver and found its firing mechanism defective.

There had been some target shooting outside the home during the day, using a .22-calibre rifle, a shotgun, and the revolver, witnesses testified. There also had been some drinking.

Hargrie said he and Froman were friends. They had known each other 10 years, and there had been no trouble between them.

When asked Friday night whether the charge against Hargrie would stand, crown attorney C. C. Slemin said the matter remained to be determined.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE S. POWELL

THY WAY, NOT MINE, O LORD

Thy way, not mine, O Lord,
However dark it be;
Lead me by Thy own hand;
Choose out the path for me;
I dare not choose my lot;
I would not if I might;
Choose Thou for me, my God,
So shall I walk aright.

The kingdom that I seek
Is Thine, so let the way
That leads to it be Thine,
Else I must surely stray.
Take Thou my cup, and it
With joy or sorrow fill,
As best to Thee may seem;
Choose Thou my good and ill.

Choose Thou for me my friends
My sickness or my health;
Choose Thou my cares for me,
My poverty or wealth;
Not mine, not mine, the choice,
In things of great or small;
Be Thou my guide, my strength,
My wisdom, and my all.

A Scotch preacher who loved his Sunday School and who spent a good many hours between Sundays writing songs for his boys and girls to use in their devotional services was the author of this exquisite hymn.

Horatius Bonar was the preacher-poet and his hymn of Christian trust appeared in 1856 and was given wide circulation a year later when it was published in the popular volume entitled "Hymns Of Faith And Hope".

Dr. Bonar was born in Edinburgh on December 19, 1808, studied for the ministry, was ordained, and began his career as minister of the Scottish Presbyterian Church at Kelso. When, in 1843, the Scottish church was rent by dissention, Dr. Bonar joined a group of leaders who went over into the Free Church of Scotland. He remained in this church, preaching chiefly at Edinburgh, until 1893.

A good many of Dr. Bonar's fine hymns are still popular with Christians and are still holding places in our best hymnals. Among the most familiar of these are "I Heard The Voice Of Jesus", "Beyond The Smiling And The Weeping", "I Was A Wandering Sheep" and "I Lay My Sins On Jesus".

A Lift For Living

Reaping What We Sow

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

When I was a boy, the Sunday School lessons always had a Golden Text, which we were supposed to commit to memory. One of these has remained with me. Here it is: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked," — you know the rest — "for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

When you hear these words, does the statement strike you as a threat or a promise? Perhaps this question serves as a test of the state of your own conscience. And maybe it was evidence of my own guilty conscience, but I have to confess that the words usually struck me as a warning of judgment, reminding me that I can't fool God, that if I sow in sin I shall reap in judgment.

Well, I cannot escape that aspect of the text. But when, I look at these words in their Scriptural setting, they seem to be stressing the promise more than the threat. Paul is urging the Galatians not to be "weary in well-doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not." It is a declaration of the divine dependability and productivity of the universe.

We take this principle of sowing and reaping as an old and accepted theme. But do we stop to think what it meant to man when he first discovered it? Try to think back to the time when man first found out that he could drop a seed into the ground and produce a plant

LEVELS OF ENERGY USE

A national magazine once pointed out that human history could be divided into four levels of energy use. Man first gained energy by gathering edible wild plants and by catching edible wild animals. This method, used until about 5000 B.C., yielded poor returns. Man never developed a high culture on what Nature put directly into his hands.

The first breakthrough came with the domestication of plants and animals. When man learned to raise crops and breed stock, civilizations took a great spurt forward.

Then came another breakthrough to a third level of energy use—in the early 19th century when western Europeans began to use fossil fuels, such as coal and then later oil and natural gas. This led to steam engines and a mighty multiplication of power.

And now level four in energy production has been evolved by the discovery of atomic fission and what it will lead to, God only knows.

Yes, in the material realm when man discovered the principle of sowing and reaping, it made for a great use of energy.

And this principle of sowing and reaping is just as potent in the mind and spirit of man as in the realms of animals and plants.

Yet granting the general principle, we are puzzled by the seeming exceptions. Across the road is a farmer who works hard and well, but a premature frost kills his crop. A mother writes that she raised her son in a godly home until he became a fine promising young man. Then the war took him and sent back his lifeless body. But her neighbor, who neglected her boy for her own good times and let him grow up wild, now has her son.

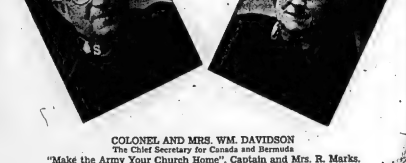
Over there is a person who lives conscientiously and prays faithfully, yet his business fails. Next to him is another fellow given to shady deals and loose living, yet he seems to prosper How then can we say, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap?"

Let us remember that we cannot measure God's dependability by our bookkeeping. God does not pay every Saturday night or even at the next harvest. The good farmer may not reap a bountiful crop next season. But the farmer who tills the soil with his best efforts and intelligence becomes a better and more resourceful farmer.

NEW MEASUREMENT

Remember, too, that we must measure our reaping in the same measure as our sowing. The artist who puts his painstaking best into a picture may not sell that canvas for a big sum but he does reap more insight and skill in painting.

The person who loves another devotedly may not always win the other's love, but he does reap more lovesickness. The most beautiful words about love are these: "Love beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things. Love never faileth." Who wrote this? Saint Paul, who was ostracized by his family and stoned by his countrymen. Paul kept sowing love and reaped a richer quality of love.



Yes, in the long run we reap what we sow.

ATTLEE—TWO VIEWS ON HIS RESIGNATION

Ringing his newly-presented Williamsburg town crier's bell, Sir Winston summoned the press to a banquet Wednesday evening. Among the first to join him was his long-time political foe who was also his wartime aide.

"Well, Clem," said Churchill, "are you happy now? Thank God you had sense enough to resign. You won't regret it."

The Montreal Gazette, on the other hand, says that "there is a great pathos to his resignation, for he saw his party rise into power and then sink into frustration." Whether political man can be happy after seeing his life-work end in frustration is problematic. Certainly an ability to disregard the plight of his party would appear out of character in a political leader. Yet it is Churchill suggests that he was prepared to accept Sir Winston's forecast there would be no regrets. "This is the first time in his long life that I have felt completely irresponsible," he said, an ideal mood in which to start an evening in a bar with an old friend and foe.

Is there some way of reconciling these apparently opposing views? The Montreal Gazette buttresses its remarks on the present state of the Labor Party by quoting Drew Middleton, the correspondent of the New York Times, who during the party's annual conference in October: "Who would have thought ten years ago that a triumphant Labor Party with a massive majority in the House of Commons would deteriorate in a decade into a leaderless movement driven by strife that frustrates policy making and prevents organization?"

"As a party," he says, his greatest achievement was the preservation of his party's unity," says the Toronto Globe and Mail. "He was remarkably successful in keeping the wild men and the moderates in the same fold."

Perhaps Churchill thinks that that task in time was past when it was still possible, or even desirable, to hold together what the Gazette calls "such vehemently differing elements as Bevanites and Gaitskellite factions." Perhaps he believes that the object for which this unity was preserved has been achieved. He conducted says the Globe and Mail, "a successful opposition which, whether one likes it or not, is embedded in the history of Britain and is irrevocable."

There will be those who will argue that, to any member of the Commonwealth, continued unity would be desirable to keep the party ready as an alternative to the present Conservative government. Those with a greater knowledge of the history of the party will point to periods devoted to revolt and change, might differ and Attlee may be among this group. Perhaps he thinks that the time has come for the party to split, for the opposing elements to go their different ways; for the moderates to free themselves of the radical element and make themselves truly a party of the centre; for the radicals to shed the restraints of office or the prospect of office and of again taking the centre political change in the wilderness, waiting for the passing years to catch up with them.

As for Attlee, he will, as earl now, a member of the House of Lords. There was a day when no Laborite would have accepted membership in the Lords except to destroy it. It is a measure of the reason to which he has accepted his title in that spirit. This "mild and modest man" as the Globe and Mail calls him has had his day. The Montreal Gazette uses him as a yardstick for self-effacing long-suffering." These are qualities which equip a man for unifying diverse elements for the achievement of an objective; they are of little purpose in an era in which the formulation of objectives and the fulfilling of such intention into separate groups, appears inevitable. So Attlee may, as Churchill predicted, face the days ahead without regrets that he has freed himself of the responsibilities of leadership.

MODERN MIRACLE

Most certainly there will be many Belleville families for whom the Christmas season will have Day will be the unveiling of a new television set. How many of the youngsters whose eyes will dance will realize that Grandpa and Grandma, the old folks at home, are only a visionary would have forecast such an event?

It is only sixty years ago that Guglielmo Marconi started experiments which at first, in 1895, achieved wireless reception at the distance of a mile, and which culminated, on December 12, 1901, in plucking three Morse dots from the bleak Newfoundland air after their journey across the Atlantic.

Once wireless transmission was achieved, it was possible to predict that what could be done with sound might also be feasible with sight. Yet many people remember when radio was a new miracle, when an evening would be spent tickling a crystal, in the hope of finding a sensitive spot which would produce some recognizable signal. What changes the years have brought!

HARE AND TIGER

Foreign Minister Molotov has informed Irán that the latter's membership in the Baghdad Pact "is fraught with danger for the frontiers of the Soviet Union." It reminds one of the fable in which the tiger ate the hare which, according to the tiger's testimony in court, had been behaving dangerously to other denizens of the forest. TORTURE OF CHILDHOOD

Time was when I was very small
They stuck me up against a wall
And said, that clearer speech might be,
"Now from your mouth remove your thumb
And speak that piece for Aunty
Jane."

About the boat and counterpane!"
By that—although my years were eight—
All company I'd grown to hate.

I had an older sister who
Was visits in terror flew.

When company arrived she tried
Her best to find a place to hide
Because she knew ere very long
She'd have to sing a little song.
She hated, as she told me then,
"Nice ladies and fine gentlemen."

Now when some youngster small
I hear
Stammering about Paul Revere,
And up to him his mother comes
Out of his mouth to take his thumbs,

I wonder in my easy chair
As I behold him suffering there,
If he hates me as, way back then,
I hated all fine gentlemen.

"Calling truck number 2—collect $35.73 instead of $15.40 on Mrs. Jones' order—prices have advanced again!"

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 10, 1935

The members of the Presto Music Club met recently at the home of Miss Florence Hunter on Miss Helen Potter. The program, which was arranged by Mr. Clifford Templar was devoted entirely to Canadian composers. Mrs. Robert L. Brown read an interesting paper on the subject, "Can Women Write Songs?"

Point Anne Loyal Orange Lodge recently elected the following officers for the ensuing year: past master, Arthur Wilson; wor. master, Nelson Thompshaw; deputy master, George Turner; chaplain, W. A. Dodgson; marshal, Leslie Wilson; treasurer, W. L. Fuhrmann; financial and recording secretary, E. J. Hopking; first lecturer, James Hoyle; second lecturer, G. W. Ripley; first committeeman, J. Dexter; 1st tyler, William Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Parks of Latta celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding on Friday evening last and entertained a large number of friends at a goose dinner. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Parks received numerous handsome pearl gifts along with the congratulations and good wishes of all present.

Hockey Club Organized Many Years Ago. From the title cup at this time in 1895: A large and enthusiastic meeting of hockey players and those interested in the game was held at the Mechanics Institute Library last evening and it was decided to form a club to be known as the Belleville Hockey Club. Fred B. Emily was elected president and Frank M. McKeown was elected secretary-treasurer. The question of a rink will be considered at a meeting to be held shortly.

Old Food Revived

(By Alice Myers Winthers writing from Seattle in the Christian Science Monitor)

Pacific Northwest housewives have put their okay on a new and perhaps revolutionary wheat product trade-named "Ala."

It is hoped that Far Eastern housewives will soon have the opportunity to do likewise. Ala could feed millions more of them and also make friends for the United States in that critical area.

Ala is a modern version of a food known to Biblical times. Before man learned to grind wheat into flour and bake bread, he had learned to make a nutritional food called bulgur. It was a long and laborious process. The wheat was parboiled in open kettles, then spread in the sun to dry. In some parts of the world bulgur is still being made this way.

But in Seattle, Fisher Flouring Mills Company is making this ancient food or the first time by modern methods in a brand new plant specially designed for the purpose. The pure golden grains the housewife takes home from the supermarket in a box and while the entire package can be cooked in less than 15 minutes. The box contains a fluffy dish yummy-looking ways to use Ala — in salads, meat loaf, casseroles, soups, a breakfast cereal, or as a dessert. It has a nutlike flavor and can be used in any way one uses rice.

A combination of circumstances led to Ala. Fisher is always searching for new uses of wheat. About five years ago Norman Cliff, president of Fisher's advertising agency, Foote, Cone & Belding, noticed in an article about bulgur in a magazine. It included a recipe for a dish of tipe which he took home and tried. The result was delicious. Next day the whole office had a taste. And this might be an interesting use for wheat.

Two years later when he was going through the mill one day one of the technicians called out, "Hey, Evans, here's that stuff you wrote about."

Ala was the embryo. But much more experimenting was needed. The American housewives certainly didn't have time and Asians didn't have fuel to cook for many hours. Fisher finally fouhd an Armenian in Washington, D. C., who was familiar with the making of bulgur and brought him here for several months. Bulgur has long been a staple of the Armenian diet.

The Department of Agriculture became interested in the product as a possible means of marketing surplus Pacific Northwest soft white wheat. The U. S. Government interfering with exports of wheat and flour. It made wheat available to the pilot plant for experimental processing and for wheat-conditioning of the product in the Far East.

Tests made in the Far East, according to John L. Locke, president and general manager of Fisher Flouring Mills Company, have convinced nutritionists in those countries that Ala will be well received, for it is palatable, quickly prepared, and requires no educational mission to teach native people how to cook and enjoy it. It is a food that is indefinitely stored without deterioration. It readily adapts to a spe-cial custom and though it is a new food to much of the Far East.

Such a versatile product, says Mr. Locke, offers many opportunities for the U. S. Government in event of interruption of supply of fighting-power cereals or other staples. It could prove under to the difference between starvation and plenty in many parts of humanity people. Food under such conditions becomes more potent than guns.

Nutritionally Ala consists of all the wheat with the exception of the bran coating which is removed in the process. All the vitamins and minerals remain in the process are reabsorbed and redistributed within the kernel itself. Thus, Mr. Locke explained, Ala retains the nutritive values of the wheat itself presented in a more palatable form.

Naming the product Ia always a challenge. Dozens of suggestions were made and rejected. Then the name Ala sigon from "a la carte." Careful study was made to see that "Ala" had no bad connotations in the language of any country where it will be offered for sale.

Shakespeare's Horror Play

(Ottawa Citizen)

They are putting on Shakespeare's "Macbeth" at the Stratford-on-Avon this season (the original Stratford that is), and judging from reports they are sparing no expense to get the proper touch the tomato ketchup, Sir Laurence Olivier plays Thuss, a noble Roman

As a descriptive of Macbeth's personae — who is Act I has a prince of the Goths sacrificed upon the Andronoli family tomb in spite of the protests of the priests, and after a few minutes later kills one of his own sons because of his love for his savior. Vivien Leigh plays his daughter, Lavinia, whose subsequent experiences as a Shakespeare heroine becomes the central figure in his savage drama of revenge and counter-revenge.

After the climax it is reported, many persons find it necessary to revive themselves at the theatre bar before the second act of the play. This is hardly surprising. It is bad enough to read that third scene, let alone watch it being acted.

Among various engaging characters in the play is Macbeth's porter beside whom Othello's jago is a kindly person. The porter ladles across the street and feeds the pigeons in the park. His parting message to the world is: "If I see one good deed in all my life I did, I do regret it." Or words to that effect.

Some admirers of the barb protest that the porter is actually Andronicus," but contrary evidence is fairly substantial. Assuming he did, it was one of Shakespeare's early efforts. One difference between Shakespeare and most other writers of sanguinary thrillers is that Shakespeare passed through this phase quite quickly. Another difference is that even this play has considerable literary merit as

The birds chant melody on every bush:
The snake lies rolled in the cheerful sun:
The green leaves quiver with the breeze,
And make a cheque'r'd shadow on the ground.

But all in all, whatever strong fire they may be able to take at Stratford-on-Avon, it is doubtful whether the CBC should undertake the production of "Thus" for an evening TV show.

Can Detect Drug's Source

(Montreal Gazette)

Canadian scientists have another important contribution to the fight for a better world. Dr. Charles G. Scriabine, biologist, at the Federal Narcotics Laboratory in Ottawa, has developed new methods of discovering the country of origin of opium.

The characteristics of the drug can therefore be identified, enabling the authorities in consuming countries to alert both their own and foreign police officials of the traffic. This would have a great effect on the control of the menacing trade, which, in 1954, had 1,000 pounds were seized by international police forces, enough to supply the entire favorite drug of North America addicts— that amount would have been worth a billion dollars.

Canada is making the new detection method available to any country which wishes to use it and is preparing to train foreign scientists in the method at the Ottawa laboratories.

Ducks Get Their Revenge

(Winnipeg Free Press)

According to recent reports up around Churchill Bay, ducks and geese have been throwing a monkey wrench into the working of the mid-Canada radar warning line.

Some radar stations on the Bay have had to be moved from their original location because they were too near the nesting grounds of large flocks of these birds. When the ducks and geese took to the air they had the same effect on the radar chain as would a large flight of unfriendly aircraft and confusion presumably ensued all round.

The moving of the radar sites no doubt caused the defence department some inconvenience—but those people who are inclined to side with the birds in their unequal struggle against civilization will hold to the view that the ducks and geese were merely getting their own back.

It is not so very long ago that men, in their efforts to find out more about the habits of birds were releasing flights of ducks and geese in areas where radar sets had been established. The idea was to see if the radar waves upset the migratory instinct of the birds.

While the results were inconclusive there was evidence that the birds got their directions mixed up when they flew into the waves and had difficulty telling north from south.

Then radar confused the birds. Now the birds have confused radar. Justice has been done.

Enchanted By Distance

(Memphis Commercial Appeal)

Here lately we have come across a number of nostalgic expressions about life in the old days in the country. We are inclined to view with praise for the pleasures of hardship, and especially the delights of bed at 4 o'clock in the morning dressing in a cold room and sallying forth to shake a foot for hungry, squealing hogs.

One of these looking-backward gentlemen actually claimed he had keenly enjoyed milking. Along about daylight, as the idea struck admiration for the Spartan qualities involved in hitching the leg of a bucket to get water for washing's face. There was no trouble to the joys of hearing skim fice snap and crackle under one's feet about the time he set out wood.

While we have no idea of questioning the honesty and sincerity of men who now think they had a picnic when they rose before dawn to do chores in freezing weather, we do have an idea their current enthusiasm for those past and wholly distance lends enchantment. As for us, we never much got the moriat on the automatic gas furnace without experiencing a sense of great privilege inspired by remembrances of cutting and lugging in firewood.

Last some child-minded reader show his ear began thinking about mention here, that in natural childbirth the patient can have an anesthetic whenever she wants it — if she wants it. Generally she doesn't want it, thanks to her education in womanhood and especially her prenatal training.

What Dr. De Lee said about the relation between suggestion and local anesthesia reminded me of a particular instance in my early practice in Penn Yan — there is too, and what's more it is mentioned on any worth while map of New York's finger lakes region.

A senior colleague called me to administer anesthetic for him. His patient, a primipara, had been in labor for 24 hours and, since she was making little or no progress he had decided to deliver the baby with forceps.

As soon as I gave her the first few whiffs of ether the patient quieted down, ceased tossing about and wailing, listened to my instructions, worked with the contractions — and before the doctor had his instruments sterilized and his gloves on, ready for the operation, the baby was being born normally.

Of course anesthesia to the obstetric stage—enough to take the edge off the pain, but not enough to put the patient in sleep—might have achieved the same result without suggestion, but I believe that had the doctor used the same technique hours earlier there would have been no need for instrumental interference. But the doctor didn't believe in the use of anesthetics.

Taking the edge off the pain with a little anesthesia enables the doctor to get the patient's attention if not her confidence, so she will follow instructions intelligently and acting out the "throes" the flahwires have taught her. But suggestion alone, without any anesthetic, will do as much or more for the woman who bears her baby naturally.

Pain in natural childbirth? Coleen Gray, movie star, who had her first baby in a hospital the "regular way", and her second at home the natural way, exclaimed "Pain, my eye! It's just a few contractions!"

TODAY'S TALK

OTHER PEOPLE

Who are the "other people"? They are all those other than ourselves. They be rich, poor, distinguished, or just like the most of us—unknown, but with something that we are, or not. There is a common trait which we all and there are some of a lesser or greater degree compared with us as individuals.

It is not from ourselves, but from other that we learn most of many of the happy secrets of life and about a philosophy of life that can make us happy because in contributing to our personal happiness and success. We learn about other people how better to live by fixing emergencies and sacrifices that give to a enrichment and a hopful outlook.

Other people lean from us, too. We never know how far our personal influence spreads in this way. It may be greater than we suspect. Happiness results from a right appraisement of values. Many a account!

humble home has within it wealth far beyond any purchase, were not one to be found outside Crocuss! Wealth is in the heart and understanding.

We often hesitate to act at certain times because of what other people might think, but if we only knew—they probably don't care, one way or another, nor is how we act or what we do. That is the nature of humanity and we evil bogey. None of us has anything to worry about if we conduct ourselves in the right light, and do the best we know.

We earn the good will of others simply by dispensing our own good will toward them. It is interesting that we have people warm to us when we warm to them. It isn't a matter of partial standing, or material possessions, but of human understanding. It is always more enlightening to peek into other people's minds rather than their bank

By GREGORY CLARK

In the recent hunting season, hundreds of city hunters (more than ever reported across Canada than in any previous year). This is to be expected for two reasons: the number of hunters going into the woods has greatly increased due to the accessibility of the wilds by highways, aircraft and motorized engines; and since even experienced sportsmen often become lost, it is natural that amateurs who go into woods will have their disasters. Most hunting licenses issued by the Canadian provinces have notices printed on the reverse side of the document. It might be a good idea for the sportsmen's organizations to get together and formulate a brief series of instructions to be printed on the license in the event of his becoming lost. In Ontario this fall, the Provincial Police will undertake to search for a hunter lost several days. They have a big capacity chief ranger of the forestry department, Mr. Alf Lawless, who has a notable record in finding lost people. The first instruction the person lost should be aware of, besides the organized search party, is standard strong, small red flag shot. Nothing confuses a wilderness search more than signal being fired by all and sundry. He then formed the party into a straight line, each member within shouting distance of his neighbors. Also, taking into account certain rules, such as the fact that a

REASONS FOR OUR FAITH

Why do I believe in Jesus Christ? This is a fair question when they come gets to the place where he questions the reasonableness of his deepest religious convictions, then fear has been put in the place of assurance. He is no longer defending his faith but clutching at it lest it be snatched away.

We might answer this question by saying that the whole of human history has evolved such a plan as Christ has for the development of life. Or we might point to one takes that plan as his plan of daily living and the goals Christ set up as his goals, he will live in joy and die in peace. Again we might ask ourselves the question. Who can so appeal to the universal as the One whom we call Lord? The European and the American hear Him, the Asiatic, the African, the people who dwell in the islands of the sea hear the gospel and declare Christ must have lived like them, else he could not so clearly have understood their needs. Men heard him 2000 years ago and called him King, and today men are declaring that he is the only one again to make the nations his own.

And last of all, we have a greatly revealed God to us? How could human beings ever understand the Jesus Christ and God are one. For their wills are one and their hole purpose is one. If men will but ponder this, then do we thrill over the declaration that "now" we are the sons of God and it doth not yet appear what we shall be."

PICTON

David Clark Celebrates His 100th Birthday

PICTON — One hundred years ago Friday David Clark was born in a log house near the village of Milford, Prince Edward County. Today, still enjoying good health, he becomes the county's only centenarian, and is looking forward to the years ahead. In fact, so optimistic is he that he has had his garden plowed ready for planting next spring. This is his hobby and one that sees him busily employed spring and summer.

"I came near not reaching this birthday," he relates. "When I was four I fell into a spring which was boxed in. My mother fished me out and worked all night to keep me alive. I had pneumonia when I was 24 but I have never had a doctor since that time. My legs get a bit wobbly after working in the garden but I'm real healthy."

The centenarian lives alone and does his own housework. He refuses to even spend the winters with relatives. "I like it here and can put in most of my time reading. I have read the Bible through eleven times."

Mr. Clark has glasses but sometimes forgets to use them and has no difficulty in reading. He uses a pipe. "I can never get used to those cigarettes. I'd need a dozen to get a good smoke."

FARMED MOST OF LIFE

Mr. Clark spent most of his life as a farmer. At one time he owned evaporators in Bowmanville, Oshawa and Hampton. His father was Capt. Paul Clark, who found even the life of a schooner master too pailing and went to California during the gold rush. He recalls seeing as many as 17 white-winged sailing vessels seeking shelter off the coast of Prince Edward. Today, he watches for freighters carrying iron ore and canned goods from Picton port as they go past his home on the Bay of Quinte shore.

"Milford was a drunken hole when I was a lad. There were four hotels, almost as many as the homes then. It sure got wild when the sailors came in. Whisky didn't cost much, 40 cents a gallon."

Events of the past century remain fresh in Mr. Clark's mind. He recalls many who fought in the Civil War.

Mr. Clark says "if it were not for England we would never be here." He has great faith in Canada. Our country will be as great as the United States when it is "dug out" he believes.

Mr. Clark's three wives are deceased. He has a family of four, Percy in Oshawa; Mrs. Thomas Howell, Consecon; Mrs. Addis Longwell of Picton; Mrs. Stanley Thompson, Cherry Valley. There are five generations consisting of Mr. Clark, Mrs. Addis Longwell, Roy Longwell, Douglas Longwell and Ronald Longwell.

Bishop Evans Inducts Rector Of Picton Parish

PICTON — Institution and induction of Rev. R. B. deBlois Wright, LST, as rector of the parish of Picton was carried out with impressive ceremony at the Anglican church of St. Mary Magdalene, Thursday night. The Right Rev. Kenneth C. Evans, Lord Bishop of Ontario, was in charge. The document of institution and Licence was read by Rev. Harvey Goode, rector of St. Paul's, Kingston. Church warden Major Andrew Clarke formally presented the keys of the church.

Clergy of the diocese joined in the processional, proceeding to the prayer desk, font, the lectern, the pulpit and the altar, where each in turn shared in the reading of admonitions.

Those who took part in the service were: Rural Dean C. P. Heaven, rector of St. Andrew's, Wellington; Rev. Jos. Smith, curate of Christ Church, Belleville; Rev. J. Cantrell, Belleville; Rev. G. Renison, rector of the parish of Amelisburgh; Rev. Harrison Flint, rector of Marysburgh; Rev. Arthur Page, rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, Belleville; Rev. A. Strothebie, Belleville; Rev. N. Brandon, rector of Adolphustown; Rev. Canon A. McConnel, rector of St. Thomas, Belleville.

Rev. W. L. Simmons, rector of Napanee parish, delivered the induction service. He reminded the capacity congregation that the church is God's society, not a social organization. The rector explained the service which had been held and the duties expected of rector and the congregation.

The new rector, Rev. Mr. Wright spoke briefly at a reception which followed in the Parish hall. He referred to the attendance of other ministers of the town at this service. Bishop Evans introduced Rev. H. Flint, new rector for Marysburgh. There are many signs of quickening of the life of the church in the diocese and throughout Canada, and it is on the eve of great things, the Bishop stated.

CAMPBELLFORD

F. Rutherford Defeats G. Free For Deputy Reeve, New Councillor

CAMPBELLFORD.— Municipal elections were comparatively quiet on Monday with the chief attention focused on the office of deputy-reeve. The incumbent deputy, F. M. Rutherford, posted a fairly close win over George H. Free with a majority of 94 votes.

Paul G. O'Sullivan, who will be the only new councillor, posted a good vote, second to the veteran, P. H. Macmillan. The balance of those elected were fairly closely grouped. George Vice, a councillor for the past two years, placed just below the final qualifying spot.

The money by-law for the band grant of half mill passed by a healthy margin.

THE 1955 BELLEVILLE COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN IS NOW DRAWING TO A CLOSE

The Year Round Board and Campaign Committee wish me to express their grateful thanks to all those who have given to the Campaign and to the Team Captains and volunteer canvassers.

To date, donations have totalled $23,500.00 against the objective of $30,000.00 This is $3,000.00 below the final sum received last year. When the objective is not reached, the services rendered by the six participating agencies must be reduced accordingly during 1956. Undoubtedly many individuals and business organizations have been missed during the canvass. To them we make a special appeal to contribute now to this worthy community effort.

PLEASE FORWARD CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE TREASURER OF THE COMMUNITY CHEST, MR. ARNOLD WOLFENDEN, DOMINION BANK, BRIDGE AND FRONT STREETS, BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO.

Again, our sincere thanks to all those who have given so generously of their time and money. You can all rest assured that your donations are sincerely appreciated and will be used with the utmost care by the Red Feather Agencies represented in this campaign.

"How can you iron a bunch of chemicals like Dacron or Orlon, used in so many of today's beautiful garments?"

That's what Addison Lloyd of Lloyd's Cleaners and Dyers had been asking for the past five years, until he recently installed the "Professional Clothes Care Finishing Method." Now, Lloyd's Cleaners and Dyers "Certifies" the superb finishing of Dacron, Orlon, Acrilan, wools, silks and all "fussy" fabrics.

No matter what chemical fibers are involved, Mr. Lloyd found out that the solution to the superb finishing of all garments — wool as well as synthetic — is a device called the Freeman Fabric-Safe Doubleplate. This device is now on all the pressing machines at Lloyd's Cleaners and Dyers.

The surface of the Fabric-Safe Doubleplate feels just like a cat's tongue. It comes in direct contact with the suit, coat or dress during pressing. Because of this special "cat's tongue" surface, 90% of shine is avoided on all garments, even gabardines. Instead of being flattened out, the fibers in the garments are fluffed up by the special cat-tongue surface.

Mr. Lloyd explains that synthetic fabrics like Dacron can now be perfectly finished because the Fabric-Safe Doubleplate has a built-in conditioner and steam diffuser. These built-in features eliminate the harsh, high heat of ordinary pressing, dangerous to many of the heat-sensitive man-made fibers so popular in today's outwear garments.

"No matter how fussy the garment may be," says Mr. Lloyd, "it will be perfectly finished. Customers will never hear of a garment being refused on the grounds that it's unserviceable . . . not in my plant! With our Certified Professional Clothes Care Finishing Method, all garments are superbly finished!"

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. Arthur Wilson, West Huntingdon, is a patient in Belleville General Hospital, following a fall at his home when he sustained a broken arm, hip and head injuries. His condition is reported as slowly improving.

Leading Seaman and Mrs. Keith D. Rodgers, Dartmouth, N.S., are visiting with Mrs. Rodgers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Semark, 98 George Street.

Weddings

DUNNING—ROBINSON

In a double ring ceremony at her parents' home, Malone, on Saturday, December 3, with the Rev. K. J. Sawyer officiating, the wedding vows were exchanged between Sheila Grace Robinson and David Keith Dunning, both of Peterborough.

To the strains of the Wedding March, played by Mrs. Frank Robinson, the bride entered the living room on the arm of her father, Mr. Edward Robinson. She was charming in a waltz-length gown of Alencon lace and nylon tulle, having a bolero jacket with lily-pointed cuffs and a lily at the tons, over a tulle bodice trimmed with rhinestones. Panels of lace enhanced the flowing skirt. The fingertip veil of tulle illusion fell from a pearl studded crown and was trimmed with seed pearls and she carried a cascade of garnet Sweetheart roses, white heather, stephanotis and stephanotis.

The bridesmaid, Shirley Robinson, twin sister of the bride, wore a gown of pink crystalette with a waltz-length skirt, matching headdress and mitts and carried a cascade of pink Sweetheart roses, mums and feathered carnations. The bridal table with Chantilly lace cloth, pink and white candles, bells and streamers, was centred with a three-tier bride's cake. Seated with the bridal party, at the bridal guest were, the bride's great aunt, Mrs. Beatrice Bassett and grandfather, Isaac Hepworth, both of Madoc.

Those who served were her cousins, Lynn Robins and Barbara Devolin.

The Woman's Auxiliary of Zion's United church, assisted in serving 65 guests to a bounteous luncheon.

For travelling to Niagara Falls and other points, the bride chose a brown wool jersey dress with brown and white accessories and a beige topcoat.

Guests were present from Cornwall, Toronto, Peterborough, Belleville, Marmora and Madoc.

ANDREWS—JONES

Ferns and baskets of white and yellow mums made a lovely setting in Black Creek United church for a double-ring marriage ceremony at two o'clock, Saturday, December 3. The bride was Ruth Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin J. Jones, R. 2, Milford. Ont., and the bridegroom, George William Everett Andrews, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Andrews, 30 Basin View Drive, Halifax, N.S. The Rev. F. J. Whiteley officiated assisted by the Rev. G. W. Wright.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a waltz-length strapless gown of white nylon net over taffeta with Chantilly lace insets under a matching jacket featuring fine pointed sleeves. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was caught to a matching headdress. She carried a white Bible with Sweetheart roses, white stephanotis and streamers.

Miss Doris Calnan, Belleville, was bridesmaid. She wore a waltz-length gown was of peacock blue crystalette taffeta. She wore a matching headdress and carried a bouquet of yellow baby mums.

Little Linda Conlin was a pretty flower girl, wearing a short pink dress of net over satin with bolero jacket, a halo of flowers in her hair, and matching mitts. She carried a nosegay of white baby mums.

Mr. William Jones, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Douglas Porter, Picton, was usher.

P.-T. Assoc. Holds Panel Discussion

St. Michael's Parent-Teacher Association held its monthly meeting on Monday with Mr. R. J. Cleary presiding.

The meeting began with the "Opening Prayer" and words of welcome were extended by the president. The minutes of the report and several letters of thanks from pupils, who had received prizes in the commencement exercises, were read.

Mr. Cleary outlined a tentative program for the meeting for the remainder of the school year. It was decided to allot approximately $50 for a Christmas party for the children.

Mr. J. Lorne Rose, Carl Casey representing St. Michael's school board, conducted an interesting and informative panel discussion on the general management of school affairs and the responsibility of funds, followed. Mr. T. J. Fleming and Mr. Carl Casey ably supplied all information requested. Other members participating in the discussion were Mrs. Lucy Canty, Mrs. A. F. McFadden, Mr. H. Poirier and Mr. W. Jarvah.

Pupils who had won prizes awarded for the neatest work book in each classroom were: Michael Mahoney, Bonnie Rooke, Ella Clement, Catherine McEvoy, Agnes Mascaro, Mary Angeline Rush, Faye Spinelli, Betty Bruyea, Hubert Poirier, Patricia Mahoney, Jeanne Bebko, Delva Power and Josephine Mascaro.

U.W. Club Enjoys Annual Turkey Dinner

The annual Christmas social of the University Women's Club of Belleville and district took place Thursday evening in the form of a lovely turkey dinner at the Asbury church, Belleville.

Grace was given by Mrs. John Hale, following which the president, Mrs. P. T. Seibert, heartily welcomed the 77 members present.

Mrs. Ramsay Park acted as toastmistress and toasts were given and replied to as follows: For Western Canada, University of British Columbia: Miss Ethel Dunn; University of Manitoba: Mrs. George Murray; University of Saskatchewan: Mrs. Harvey. For American universities: Byrn Mawr: Mrs. Ramsay Park; Columbia: Mrs. A. Locke; University of Michigan: Miss M. Hargraves; Colgate: Mrs. A. May. For Eastern Canada, Dalhousie: Mrs. Gillis; Mount Allison: Mrs. O'Riordan; University of New Brunswick: Mrs. Smith. For Provincial Canada, McMaster: Mrs. A. Eagle; Ontario Agricultural College: Mrs. H. Hague; Ottawa: Mrs. Tye McQuaid; McGill: Miss Gloriana Marshall; Queen's: Mrs. Ramsay Law; University of Western Ontario: Miss Berle Campbell. For Toronto Conservatory: Mrs. R. Bell; St. Michael's: Mrs. Don Rose; Mary's: Mrs. Acton. University College: Mrs. June Parker; Victoria: Mrs. Cameron Cicchiolavakia University: Mrs. O'B. Dickinson.

Following the dinner, the members gathered at the home of Mrs. Park, Trenton, for a social evening of games and sing-song which was led by Wilma Houston.

Refreshments were served.

Special thanks are extended to convenors Mrs. A. Cornell and Mrs. J. J. Bateman. Thanks are also extended to Mrs. H. T. Floyd who capably arranged transportation; Mrs. S. Lipson as ticket convener, and to all others who helped make the evening such a pleasant and successful one.

Black Creek. The bride's mother chose a dress of charcoal and pink brocaded taffeta with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother was in a powder blue knitted wool suit with matching accessories.

The bride's table, centred with the wedding cake, was prettily arranged. Serving were Misses Gail Clapp, Picton; Betty Dulmage, Mary Hughes, Picton, and Barbara Goodman, Kingston.

For travelling to Niagara Falls and around Lake Ontario, the bride donned a grey-blue wool dress made under a matching coat and navy blue accessories. They will reside in an apartment, 30 Queen Street, Picton, Ont.

The bridesmaid was presented with sterling silver earrings; the flower girl with a rhinestone ring; the soloist and servers with cups and saucers; the pianist with a brooch.

Guests were present from Belleville, Hallowell, Kingston, Toronto and Leaside.

Many Beautiful Churches Dot the Danish Landscape

By Mrs. Lavonia Stockelbach

It was a showery day but we did not allow a heavy rain to prevent us from visiting the Parliament buildings — The Folketing — for another glance at the world's finest example of the rider of the second floor. The frieze is only about twelve inches high and is on a level with the eye so that one can admire the ornamental figures and the central figures.

The sculptor used enough to give me permission to copy later what I wanted to, especially the one showing a blind-folded Justice with their housekeeping and above it the legend, "Small providels food for the birds, but casteth it not into the nest." The artist who made the frieze is now ninety-one years of age.

The day we visit friends new Elsinore, so next morning we walked to the sound of the sea, and then on to the castle of Kron Borg on other side.

It was rather a troubled night for motorcars and trucks roared past all night long until one felt one was in a motel on Main Street.

Not the least noisy were the motorcycles with the side compartment of a motor attached to the ordinary bicycle making the most terrific noise. There is one space of about forty inches on each side of the pavement for bicycles ride and have the right of way. Autos are limited to a maximum of times 30 kilometers an hour keep to your sidewalk, and let everyone have the right of way. At least you try to remember.

PROSPERITY AND DISASTER

The story of Elsinore is one of ups and downs, prosperity and disaster. For years every ship passing through the sound paid toll. Those were years of prosperity for a town so dependent upon shipping. When the dues were done away with in 1857 there was a panic. Before that there was built the de luxe hotel "Marienlist" where we had a marvellously good meal with the usual bouquet of flowers on the table. Much to our surprise there was on each table an instrument of torture looking like a radio, and if you could use them you received music well enough you must have put money in your table radio and so need not miss a note. By the best of good luck there was also no radio so one escaped the noise, listened to the gossip of one's own group, and spoke to the table the good food.

The big town is noted for its ship building and the shipyard repairs ships going to and from the Baltic and employs 2,500 workmen. There is also a brewery and it was after the Gallagher factory, a rubber factory and several others that give employment to this town of 30,000 people.

We wish to visit the monastery of Our Lady of Elsinore first built over five hundred years ago of that speech monk's stone, a red brick of much greater size than we know and seemingly able to withstand the storms of wind and rain.

The entrance used to be called the "Fire Birds' Room" for ceilings and walls were covered with frescoes of birds. It was curious to notice the speaking tube whereby the monks' change could be heard and entered. Those were war-like days and no matter how charitable the monks were they had to be on guard so this tube in the entrance hall stood in such a way that no arrow could find its way through.

REFECTYL ROOM

There was a charming music room for music and singing and the sick and weak monks could be carried there to have their souls refreshed by music. After the Reformation the monastery was made into a castle and from 1930 it has been a charitable institution for women, who each had a small cubicle. When they wanted to visit they had to come out in the main hall and feel comfortable but there was roof and food.

The Marienlist church looked very impressive, was besieged and occupied by the old enemy, the Swedes, in 1658, and was rebuilt after the First World War. Castle Kronborg is the real glory of the flesh, the fest especially so I contented myself with the castle yard where Shakespeare's "Hamlet" is sometimes played. The real Hamlet lived about the time of the Vikings, and getting my dates all mixed up was glad to forget what little history I knew, and sit by the shore and rest.

BEAUTIFUL CASTLES

It is incredible that such a little country and such a few people could have so many and many superb castles of breathtaking beauty and magnificence. The rich lived well on the labor of the peasant whose bondage was abolished only in 1788. Today there is nowhere a more progressive farmer.

But it is the little country churches that do most truly inspire one with enthusiasm as you become familiar with the architectural styles. Each one has repaid for your time and interest. Every town has its own church and while especially attractive either the exterior of stone or especially the interior of brick made the interiors also are of brick made with designs requiring no other decoration.

In Koge church we were confronted with a clock that we were told us had been going for 430 years.

There were high pews and as in 1528 many people could not write there were no seats for them and of the pews great signs instead of names, each one bearing a number for an ironworker, and so on.

As you walked down the aisle you saw the back of each of the trades was so honored. It was painted out to us that this was the only wormhole in all of the oak in the church.

During a Swedish invasion sword-happy warriors had walked down the aisle and slashed off the noses of every blessed Angel except one. He was left, a little clean slit, and off went the nose. The horses were stabled in the pews and result was they had plenty of room. After the Swedes left the noses were collected and glued on to the cherubs, but you can see where the join has been made. Many noses were found some of the old noses but history does not say.

At one end of the church were numbers of small frescoes depicting the various virtues and musts and senses. The sense of smell represented by a dog with its sight by the reading of a book; its taste by a lion with a sizzling rhetoric by a lady who seemed to be delivering a lecture, with great and very touching firmness.

You are seldom out of sight of the little country churches for the beauty and variety add to the sweetness of the peaceful landscape. Within are often to be found pulpits of the most exquisite carving, sometimes softly tinted and gilded. If a tree could feel would it not be happy to know that from its beautiful trunk the wood was read the word of The Living God.

Going Places

Courtesy Is Safety Factor

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

One of the peculiar—and sometimes unfortunate—aspects of the human nature is that we judge another way is that it places on the highways many motorists unused to long distance jaunts and some of the complications thereof.

Varying schemes and truck drivers cover countless millions of miles all year round, but it's so commonplace that occasional trip-takers that accidents and inconvenience always seem to occur.

If, like most of us, you're among these casual travelers, here are a few items about the courtesy of long hope that may make things easier for you.

Little courtesies of the road are generally known to city drivers. For instance, if you're signalling a clear highway and a driver in a car signals to you with an up-and-down motion of his arm, he is telling you politely that he's not just a frustrated highway patrolman. That's his way of tipping you of the road is heavily patrolled and you're a cinch for a ticket if you continue to exceed the speed limit.

If he takes the trouble to offer you the benefit of his experience, you'd be wise to take it; more than likely he knows what he's waving about.

Being stopped and tagged for speeding violations can be one of the saddest experiences of your life. The least than can happen to you is that you'll be hauled into a local justice court and be stuck with a stiff fine, perhaps even for the slightest infraction of the rules.

STATE POLICE

If you're caught in an area where state police are responsible for highway law enforcement, it can be worse. If the cop doesn't see fit to let you off with a warning, you can be hauled into the county seat where township police headquarters and asked to post bond for your appearance in court. The bond normally is equal to or slightly higher than the potential fine for your violation or you're allowed to forfeit it in place of going to court.

But if you're unable to raise the bond—remember, it may be anything from $50 to a couple of hundred dollars—you can actually be consigned to the county court house holds session, perhaps as much as a week later. And then if you still can't pay the fine, you may actually be given a jail sentence.

It's not a very pleasant prospect to think about, but it can happen. And surprisingly few motorists seem to know it. Better just stick to the highway rules and stay out of trouble.

Be particularly careful of school crossings. A sign that says it's miles an hour usually means exactly that,

Club Activities

PLAINFIELD HOMEMAKERS' CLUB

The seventh meeting of the Plainfield Homemakers' Club was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. O. Bertrand.

The meeting was opened with the Club Collect, the minutes read and approved. The roll call was answered by "One duty of a guest towards her hostess."

Hospitality was the topic for discussion.

After the meeting was closed, refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held in the form of a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Jack Salmon.

MARSH HILL M.B.

Marsh Hill Mission Band met for its December meeting at the home of Mrs. Stanley Hall with leader, Mrs. R. B. Finkle, 16 children and six mothers present.

The meeting opened with the singing of the carols, "The First Noel" and "Silent Night," followed by prayer by Mrs. Finkle.

Elaine Lindenfield, secretary, reported that nine meetings had been held during the year with an average attendance of 14.

Raymond Finkle gave the treasurer's report showing a balance of $11.39.

Marilyn Finkle presided over the business period and conducted service. She read Matthew 2:1-11 for the Bible reading.

Linda Finkle, John and Sheila Slater sang "Silent Night."

Elizabeth Caplin gave a musical number, "Mary Had a Little Lamb," followed by "Jingle Bell Girl", Harold Finkle; Christmas reading, Carol Lindenfield; solo, Mary Lou Finkle; "Christmas Little; reading: "A Christmas Prayer," Linda Finkle; reading, "Three Children Sliding on the Ice," Gary Mayell.

"The Spirit of the Christmas Tree", was read by Gwenda Detlor, reading by Mrs. Finkle; "Old Christmas Angels" by Elaine Lindenfield; a piano duet, "Now the Day is Over" was rendered by Elizabeth Finkle and her brother, Mrs. Jack Finkle; reading, "Why Do the Bells Ring on Christmas," by Raymond Martin.

Mrs. Leslie Finkle gave the chapter from the study book.

Mrs. Bartindale closed the meeting after which the children were all given a treat of candy.

and there's a cop at the next intersection to prove it

Considerate highway courtesy signal we hope you never see is a motorist pointing vigorously towards his wheels. It means there's something wrong with your car—a soft tire, a slumping fender, your lights are on, or the like. Better stop and take a look lest you get a ticket for your trouble.

PASSING SIGNALS

Trying to pass a truck can be a frustrating experience at times. But truck drivers know it as well as you and most of them are personal to you with a wave of the arm or a blink of the directional signals when it is safe. Even though you may not be able to see the driver's face, you can usually depend on their good judgement if they take the time to signal you.

Speaking of directional signals, it's particularly important on the highway that you use them on yours properly. If you're on a road with occasional intersections or cutoffs and you've forgotten to turn your blinkers off after the last turn you made, you're apt to seriously confuse other drivers and cause an accident.

Most drivers know enough not to shine their high headlight beams into the eyes of an oncoming driver, but what is just as bad and sometimes more dangerous is shining into the rear-view mirror of the car ahead of you. If you can see another car anywhere on the road in front of you, you're aware of the glare.

The hazard, inconvenience, and expense of not being able to find a place to stay at night can be more than you think. Unless you want to risk sleeping in the car, or are willing to pay $10 for a room, make up your mind to stop early when you come to a sizeable city, hotel or motel. Sunset is generally late enough.

Another unpleasant prospect most inexperienced highway travelers give little thought to. If you're not used to driving long distances it will catch up with you sooner than you think.

A good way to postpone it is to break frequently—every hour or two — for meals, coffee, a soft drink, or just a rest. Stay away from alcoholic beverages until your driving day is through. Alcohol is a sedative or narcotic and is stimulant, when you are pulling out the throttle and driving mighty fast.

The big secret of taking a long trip comfortably and safely is to stay alert and take it easy. Veteran drivers know that the speedy, moderate pace gets you there just as quickly in the long run. For every time you hit the accelerator you can count on it that an eventual extra tap on the brake, time — and energy — consuming routine which will more than balance off the time and energy you think you're saving by rushing.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHAM

THE CORRECT GESTURES TO FUTURE SON-IN-LAW AND HIS FAMILY

Dear Mrs. Beecham:

1. What would be a proper way to sign a Christmas card or the card enclosed with a gift for our future son-to-law?

2. Our daughter has never met his family, since his home is in a distant town. When they are to be married, should an invitation be sent to his family? Please advise us about all the proper procedure in this case. — Mr. and Mrs. P.T.

1. It would be proper, and the customary way, for you to sign the Christmas card and the card enclosed with a Christmas gift: "Christmas greetings from Frank and Mary Thompson." (When you sign the cards, you politely write your name last.) If you know him (you didn't say), you might write on the card enclosed with the gift: "Sallie's mother and father send you loving Christmas greetings, and we do hope this little gift will be useful to you. Happy, Happy New Year! Or you might sign the Christmas card: "Sallie's mother and father here send devoted greetings to you there. Happy Christmas to you. Happy New Year to you!" Don't sign either card "Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson" . . . this formality would be entirely out-of-order.)

2. In these days or weeks or months . . . whatever it is . . . your daughter should be in close touch with her fiance's mother and father (even if she wants to keep them or won't be able to meet them before the wedding), talking over with them all the plans for the wedding. You can, as the hostess of the wedding, should write mother-to-mother letters from time to time to the mother-to-be, sharing with her the plans and the news. These gracious gestures establish and build up that so-important relationship between the two families. Then, when it comes time to send the invitations, it would not, of course, be "necessary" to send the groom's mother and father an invitation. But the thoughtful bride-to-be, when she receives the invitations from the stationer, immediately encloses two or three sets in a large envelope, and writes on a note to say," Here they are . . . and Ken and I wanted to have you and his father receive the very first ones as souvenirs, if you wish . . . And we're all looking forward lovingly to seeing you all on the 'twenty-second!"

Who Was This?

By A. A. M.

What was the name of the prophet who gave this message from God to the Israelites: "Behold I send my messenger to prepare a way before me. The Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to the temple. But who can stand when He appears, who can endure the day of His coming?"

For he is like a refiner's fire, and like fuller's soap. He will purify the sons of Levi and refine them like gold and silver, till they present right offerings to the Lord. Then the offerings will be pleasing as in the days of old."

Then the prophet warned of God's judgment against sorcerers, adulterers, those who bear false witness, those who oppress the widow, the orphan and servants, and against all behavior who do not fear the Lord. He reminded them that God does not change and asked, "Will a man rob God?" Yet You have robbed God in your tithes and your offerings. Put me to the test. Bring the full tithes into the storehouse, and I will open the windows of heaven, and pour down an overflowing blessing. All nations will call you blessed. You will be a land of delight."

The Poetry Of Snowflakes

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Mommy, come quick! See the snowflakes! Millions and millions of them!"

To a little child, a fall of snow is a marvellous thing. All that white, moving loveliness he can see out his window. Before long the earth is covered with a magic carpet. No wonder it thrills him.

Appreciation of, beauty comes easily to a small child. It is the wise mother who puts aside her work for a few minutes to enjoy the floating white flakes, "softly, falling" with her little son or daughter.

Watching a fresh snow fall, and tramping along the drifted paths in the frosty air, will prepare a child for real enjoyment of poetry about the snow. At bed-time, instead of a story, read aloud to your child a poem such as Elinor Wylie's "Velvet Shoes." Read its words slowly, or better still, if he has learned to read, let him read aloud to you the verses and memorize them.

If you like poetry and your child has tngun to enjoy the music, the rhythm, the word pictures, why not encourage him to write his own "Snow Poem?" Your son or daughter never be a "great poet" but so far as earning money writing poetry. But if a child enjoys expressing his ideas and emotions, if he gets satisfaction from his own "word pictures," life is worthwhile in itself. It will also deepen his appreciation of other people's poetry or prose.

SURPRISE FOR PARENTS

An eight-year-old, after the first fall of snow, produced this little rhyme as a surprise for her parents. Her sheet of paper was smudged with much rubbing out of her pencil, but words—but the glow of literary creation was in her eyes!

"The snow comes falling down in flakes,
All on the trees and on the lakes.
As we take out sleighs and slide,
Over the drifts we gaily glide
I like the snow, it is so white,
It falls by day, it falls by night."

Children are full of questions about the snow or anything else that interests them. "What is snow made of!" "Why does it fall!" "Why is snow white!" "What is snow for!"—the queries sometimes seem endless to a busy mother. But this is the time to be encouraged to look up information on the topic in a reference book, but there are simple snow facts for the younger child.

In summer we have raindrops falling from the coods, but in winter when it is colder, the moist air is formed into snow flakes. Snow falls to the ground, although the flakes are each so light, by a force or "pull" which is called gravitation. The force pulls anything in the air down to the surface of the world unless it is able to stay up by some special means like the propeller and wings which hold up a plane.

DIFFERENT SIZES

Snow flakes are different sizes. The largest ones are seen on mild days when the thermometer is just below the freezing mark (at 32 degrees.) The small flakes fall when it is very cold. The different patterns, for snow flakes are six-sided In one snowstorm the flakes are usually all the same design.

Snow is white because the combination of the different colors of a prism produce white. Snows may fill the roads and have to be cleared away. It is fun to watch the snow clearing equipment at work!

Snow is good for us the farmer. He knows that the snow blanket, covering his fields, conserves necessary moisture and protects roots from the frost.

If a child is interested in snow crystals, do have a board covered with dark cloth (preferable velvet) ready to catch flakes on its surface during the next snow fall. Many of the flakes travel a long distance and are broken in their descent. But the perfect flakes are beautiful with their lacy outline.

An inexpensive magnifying glass shows the outline more distinctly. A good magnifying glass is a splendid piece of equipment in a family where even one child has a natural love hobby. The amazing loveliness of snow crystals has been copied by designers of wallpaper, of cloth, of jewellery and of fancy work. Encourage your child to try to copy the pattern of a snow flake with white chalk on a slate or blackboard. He will have to work quickly to get its outline before it melts!

BEAUTY

By HELEN JARIESON

BE CAREFUL WITH MAKE-UP

History doth repeat itself. The present-day vogue for make-up is not without precedent. Artifice has been used for thousands of years, even before soldiers' shields were used as mirrors by the beauty-seeking contingent.

The object of cosmetics is to improve upon nature by subtle arts. The haphazard employment of powder, rouge, lipstick and eye shadows defeats its own end. Make-up, in the hands of experienced operators, is an art; it can bring out good features, throw defects into shadow. The woman who plays with synthetic complexion aids should do a bit of heavy thinking. She should apply pigment in a strong light, using a magnifying mirror, if possible. There will then be no chance of displaying the bedizened look that gives the feminine face a brittle appearance.

On the aged or the faded beauty, a heavy touch of rouge or a too-brilliant lipstick is fatal. It will accentuate the marks of time instead of camouflaging them, as restraint and good colors will do. Make-up is to be used, not abused.

The skin should be conditioned to accept powder. This can be done by using a cream of light consistency, removing it with tissues, or by using a foundation cosmetic.

The color of the powder is important. It can match the natural coloring or be slightly darker, never lighter. If the skin is oily, a light powder should be used; if it is dry, find a powder with more or creamy base, so it will adhere properly.

Rouge and lipstick should belong to the same color family. You will find them in true reds, blue-reds and orange-reds. If you want to find out which one will glamorize your portrait, patronize a make-up bar where an attendant will lay out the various offerings.

It is a mistake to form a circle of rouge on the cheeks. Start using the compact pad under the eye, sweeping out toward the temple. Then down, then to starting point, forming a triangle. This is a better plan than the circular pattern, which is likely to make the lower portion of the face appear heavy and coarse. Then "run" the eyes properly.

When using the lipstick, start the center of the upper lip and sweep toward the corners, forming a clear-cut border.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T TRY TO SOLVE THIS PROBLEM BY YOURSELF

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

A few months ago, I met a young man with whom I fell in love. We went together for about two months then we were married. I was happy, and I was sure he loved me.

But, about two weeks later, I discovered that we weren't really married, because he was already married to my two daughters. I immediately left him and went back to my mother, but soon afterwards, I discovered that I was pregnant.

Now I don't know what to do. My mother has suggested that I take it to court, but I am afraid of being disgraced. I am only 17, and wasn't through high school when I married, and when all this came up, I had planned to go back to school and continue as before. — B.B.

Dear B.B.:

I am extremely sorry not to have been able to answer you more quickly, but I have only just received your letter. You see, mail addressed to me at my home or local newspaper has to be forwarded, in this case sometimes the letters are delayed en route.

Frankly, I am appalled that you were permitted to marry at your age and after going with this young man only two months. Did your parents really approve this marriage, or did you by any chance elope with this fellow?

Even though whatever marriage ceremony you went through was such a total farce as to wipe it out, I think you still should talk the matter over with a good lawyer to make certain there are no legal formalities necessary to erase the whole thing from the records. Meanwhile, while you yourself may not care to prosecute this man, somebody should step in and make it impossible for him to victimize any other young girl, and only a qualified lawyer can say what steps should be taken.

As for the problem of your pregnancy, you must have expert advice on this too, and at once. I hope you have already gone directly to your family doctor and told him the whole story. You must not allow any fear of "being disgraced" to keep you from seeking the right sort of help as quickly as possible. For if you do not, you may find yourself, as time goes on, in a much worse situation than you are in at present.

Will you do these things I have suggested right away? There are altogether too many possibilities of tragic complications in such circumstances as those in which you now find yourself, for you either to let matters drift on to make any attempt to deal with the problem yourself.

A CHRISTMAS PRESENT . . . TO A CHILD

"He who gives a child a treat
Makes joy-bells ring in Heaven's street."

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Could you tell me what is the matter with my Boston Cream Pie? It always turns out heavy, except once. . . . would you have Rice Krispies drop cookies recipe. . . . what is the difference between summer fruit cake and Christmas cake?—Mrs. Francis R.

ANSWER:

My solution to your Boston Cream Pie failure is to give you mine:

BOSTON CREAM PIE

Make One-Egg Cake: Cream together until fluffy 3-8 cup shortening (or half shortening and half butter), and 1 1-4 cups sugar until fluffy. Beat in thoroughly 1 egg. Sift together 1 7-8 cups sifted cake flour, 1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, and add alternately with 7-8 cup milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Bake in 1 9-inch or 2 8-inch layer pans, greased and floured at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes. When cool split into 2 or 4 layers and put together with Cream Filling: Mix together in top of double boiler 1-4 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup rich milk or cream. Stir until thick over boiling water, then cook covered 10 minutes. Pour a little over 4 beaten egg yolks, mix, return all to double boiler and cook 1 minute stirring. Remove from heat and add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Cool before spreading. Top cake with whipped cream or thin chocolate butter icing.

KRISPIE BALLS

Mix together very well 1 cup each icing sugar and fresh peanut butter, 1 tablespoon butter, then add 1-2 cup chopped walnuts, mix, then gently stir in 4 cup rice krispies. With wet palms shape into small balls. Mix up thin plain icing and dip balls into it, then roll in fine cocoanut. Chill and waxed paper.

I called a light fruit cake I made in July Summer Fruit cake because I made it then, and found it was a welcome change. That's all.

QUESTION:

Have you any recipes for sweet cakes, such as chocolate, coffee or gingerbread that can be baked in small round tins (like 10-oz. soup cans)? I use these small cans for steamed puddings and Boston brown bread, but am able to find only one recipe using them for baking instead of steaming. Do you think date-nut loaf would be successful if baked in these small tins rather than in loaf pan?—E. L.

ANSWER:

Fill the cans only 2-3 full and use nice shiny new ones. What they gain in height they lose in width, and oven heat will bake them from sides. Use any good cake recipe, and of course the date-nut loaf you mention. It would be ideal. I have mailed you some cake recipes that have appeared here recently. Let me know if you would like more.

STOLEN GOODS FOUND

NEWMARKET (CP)—Police said stolen goods worth approximately $5,000 were recovered Thursday when they raided a home at Bogartown, two miles east of here. Owner of the home, Ross Bowers, 40, was charged with theft. Police said Bowers ran out the back door during the raid, but was arrested later in Toronto, 15 miles southeast of here.

STIRLING

54 Ladies Enjoy W.A. Turkey Dinner

STIRLING. — On Tuesday, 54 ladies enjoyed a dinner meeting in the parlors of St. Paul's United church, under the convenership of Mrs. Walter Elliott, and her committee for the month of December of St. Paul's W.A.

The tables were covered with Christmas crepe tablecloths with various centrepieces in the holiday theme. A full course turkey dinner was served and was served by those in charge.

Mrs. Elliott explained that she was taking the December meeting to fill a vacancy as Mrs. Sid Demorest was the appointed convener but she had moved to Marmora in August and was transferred to the group there.

The guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Edwin Warren and Mrs. C. Hatton. The special guests were seated at the head table and included, Mrs. A. Packman also Mrs. George Carlisle, WMS president.

Mrs. Elliott presided over the Christmas program. Mrs. Earl Eggleton was in charge of the devotional on that theme.

Mrs. George Heenan sang a solo with her daughter, Miss Grace Heenan as accompanist.

Mrs. Arthur Pryer brought greetings and Hastings and Prince Edward Presbytery WA as she is president of that organization and Mrs. Keuning told of Christmas custom in Holland and gave a description of their last Christmas in that land before coming to Canada. Mrs. Keuning who lives in Stirling, also referred to Santa Claus day in Holland which is observed on December 6.

Mrs. F. Jeffery sang with Mrs. H. C. Dash as accompanist.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Burton Morton, of Wellman's, who brought a Christmas message.

At the close Mrs. Will Fox voiced thanks to the December committee and to all who had assisted with the program.

JOHNSTOWN

1956 Officers Elected By Women's Assoc.

The Johnstown Woman's Association held its Christmas meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bush with a fine attendance of 27 ladies and 13 children.

The meeting opened with the singing of several Christmas carols. Mrs. Ferguson welcomed the ladies and thanked the hostess for the use of her home. The president read a Christmas poem followed by prayer. The Scripture reading was read from Matthew 2:1-12 by Mrs. Puttenham. The "lesson thoughts" by Mrs. Clapp, were of the "Christmas Story". "The birth of Christ is the crowning gift of God's love. Have we the right to have a merry Christmas if we have the world more than we do Christ by thinking of nothing but what we expect to get instead of what we should be giving to those who are not as well off as we are. We have our part to play by giving and doing, we should not leave everything to God. Jesus must be born in our hearts and only then will we be able to be what He intended us to be."

A letter was read from the Bay of Quinte Conference Woman's Association president, Mrs. W. J. Elliott, asking for help for the Albert College Building Fund.

A reading by the missionary superintendent, Mrs. M. Mallory, "Visitors for Christmas", was given.

A fine report was prepared by Mrs. E. Clapp of the Association Presbyterial executive meeting held at Belleville, recorded by Mrs. Puttenham was tendered a hearty vote of thanks.

It was decided to give a donation to missions and also a box of canned goods and some clothing a well as toys which can be fixed, to the Salvation Army. These are to be taken to Mrs. Jack Ferguson by December 20 so toys may be renovated if needed.

OFFICERS 1956

Mrs. Puttenham brought in the slate of officers for 1956: president, Mrs. J. Ferguson; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. Clapp; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. G. Stickle; secretary, Mrs. Alec Vandervoort; treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Harry; pianist, Mrs. Glenn Stickle, Mrs. W. S. Harry; buying committee: Mrs. E. Bush, Mrs. C. Curtis, Mrs. M. Harder, Mrs. Smith; cards, Mrs. E. Stickley visiting committee: Mrs. G. Stickle, Mrs. C. J. Brunt, Mrs. A. Vandervoort; press secretary, Mrs. A. Meyers.

Mrs. H. Herder and Mrs. Lemonde will entertain the Johnstown WA in January with Mrs. E. Stickle and Mrs. Glenn Stickle in charge of the program.

Several poems were given "Goats at Bethlehem," by Mrs. C. Curtis; "Christmas in other lands" by Mrs. E. Stickle; "How far to Bethlehem" by Mrs. Alec Vandervoort. "The Nicest Part of Christmas" by Mrs. Grant; "Travellers from the East" by Mrs. Smith. The hymn "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," with the benediction closed the meeting after which gifts were exchanged.

The Greatest Adventurer

By NICHOLAS MIKA

(Article 9)

The fame of being the greatest traveller and explorer of all times most certainly belongs to a Venetian who lived more than seven hundred years ago.

He began his adventures when only seventeen years old, and when he finally returned after twenty-six years, he had covered a distance of over one hundred thousand miles in parts of the world nobody ever dreamed existed.

He not only travelled through Tibet, Mongolia, China, Burma and Sumatra, but he observed with wide eyes the mysteries and the marvellous wonders of a strange world which he was the first to explore. In him was combined the boldness of an adventurer with the curosity of a child, and what he saw and learned became fixed in his memory. He was bewildered when he faced the greatest structure that was ever built on earth, the famous Chinese Wall that stretches across deserts, mountains and rivers for more than eighteen hundred miles.

ANCIENT CIVILIZATION

He found a civilization that was centuries ahead of the world of his birth. He saw super highways and public gardens with swimming pools and playgrounds equal in usefulness and beauty to the ones we have today. For the first time he held paper money in his hands instead of the heavy gold and silver pieces. He wondered not less at the well organized fire departments and mail service. But from all these astonishing things the most marvellous was the gunpowder and the black rock that burned like wood, only much longer and with greater heat.

In southern China he discovered a city built on a wide river with numerous channels and twelve thousand bridges. On the island of Java he found pepper and cinnamon and in Burma magnificent buildings having in their towers bells that rang with beautiful music when the wind caressed them. For many years he was the guest of the great Kublai Khan in his fabulous marble palaces and was made Governor of a Chinese province.

STRANGER TO FAMILY

He loved China and its mysteries, but as he grew older he longed to go home. When he returned to Venice in a strange costume, the servants refused to let him in his own house. His relatives thought he was dead. Only when he showed them the precious jewels he had brought, did they open their doors and welcome him. But they did not believe one word of his fantastic stories. The Venetians called him the greatest of liars and threw him in jail to cool his imagination. Yet he only smiled and said: "I have not even told you half of what I saw."

And in his cell he began to write a book. A fabulous story of the most adventurous life. But man has ever lived. "We know this lasting book as "The Travels" by Marco Polo."

Marco Polo appeared on Italian stamps in 1954.

Flowers for Special Events

By FLORA SAVILLE

Practically every organization puts on some special event in December. Most of these occasions call for cut flowers.

Flowers are expensive and perishable. With a little extra care they may be preserved to serve more than one occasion, or to grace the home for two weeks of the holiday season.

Quite often flowers are old when cut, or sold. Buy from a florist who sells only fresh flowers, and order your flowers as far in advance as possible. Your florist will then be able to order them fresh-cut from the green-house for that exact time.

Bacteria forms a slim efnat will block the tubes in the flower stems. Keep the containers clean scrub them out every day with soapy water, and wash off the stems, or put some mild fungicide in the water to be used in the container.

Bacteria forms a slime that will "Flora-Life" or "Bloom-Life" or you may use two tablespoons of cleanser bleach with woody-stemmed plants for one quart of water. Zinc containers and soft leaves, or stems, allowed to remain under water will cause toxins to form. This too will shorten the life of the flowers.

Flowers with thick sap, or milky sap such as the poinsettia should not be used in the same container with other flowers as the fluid will plug the tubes in other flower stems.

Available at this season are plenty of chrysanthemums, Controlled lighting has made a wide variety of this favorite flower come into bloom for the Christmas season from the large shaggy types and the lovely Japanese type with their long quill-like petals, to the smaller blooms.

COLOR RANGE

These include the collarette, pom-pom, button and singles. Colors range from deep maroon, and scarlet to white. Mums last exceptionally well—two or three weeks if kept cool—and the stems are cut a little shorter each week. Use a mild fungicide. One grower suggests the addition of half-cup of sugar to one quart of water and stirring until dissolved. This will provide carbohydrates and prolong the blooms. The large type should have the stem broken rather than cut, and powdered aspirin rubbed into the end surface. Remove all leaves as they soon look wilted.

Carnations also are long lasting. The large and white blooms make attractive arrangements with blackberry leaves, pine and red barberries. Sprinkle the blooms lightly with water occasionally. Cut above the joint and rub boric acid into the cut surface, or add a half teaspoon of boric acid to two quarts of water.

Camellias do not need water, but they do need frequent refrigeration. Sprinkle salt lightly over the petals before to draw moisture before placing in the refrigerator.

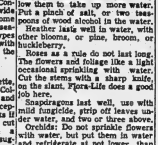
GARDENIAS

Gardenias should be sprayed lightly with water, placed in a closed box and refrigerated before arranging. Brush the stem ends to allow them to take up more water. Put a pinch of salt, or two teaspoons of wood alcohol in the water.

Heather lasts well in water, with other blooms, or pine, broom, or huckleberry.

Roses as a rule do not last long. The flowers and foliage like a light occasional sprinkling with water. Cut the stems with a sharp knife, on the slant. Flora-Life does a good job here.

Snapdragons last well, use with mild fungicide, strip off leaves under water, and two or three above.



Orchids: Do not sprinkle flowers with water, but put them in water and refrigerate at not lower than 50 or 52 degrees.

Robinson Regains Middle Title In Boxing's Most Astounding Comeback

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BY GOODNESS!!

The TPT's apparently can't stand prosperity. Last night with almost certain victory in their grasp with a 4-3 lead and minutes to go, they fell apart like a New Year's resolution and the opportunist Magedomas of Brockville raced in to tie the count. And to rub the salt of injury into the wound of insult the Maggies went on to win the pastime 5-4 in the overtime session. Wurra, Wurra!

In the meantime the powerful Whitby Dunlops' machine was halted in its stride by a determined Kingston Good-year crew in Rodd-enville last night. The pace-setters were set back on their haunches 5-4 after piling up a first period 3-0 lead. The Goodies outscored them 2-1 in the second to end the frame 4-3, then rammed home three goals in the third without a return from the highly touted Whitby front lines. It was the second defeat of the season for the Dunlops and enabled the Goodyears to creep to within four points of the leaders.

GENEROUS GESTURE

The heat will be on for somebody along the hockey rialto by the time the final whistles blow. And it will be for free.

Thanks to the generosity of a true-blue sportsman some lucky person will be the winner of a Williams Oil-o-Matic installed, with 200 gallons of fuel oil thrown in for good measure. The Moira Heating will take care of the installation while Moira-Schuster will donate the fuel oil.

Mr. Ian Morch, manager of Morch Manufacturing here, and a sportsman at heart has generously donated the Oil-a-Matic. It, with the "accessories," constitutes one of the first prizes in the Belleville Hockey Association program list.

There is nothing to it. Anybody and everybody stands a chance to win. All you do is clip the form from beneath the hockey records on one of the centre pages of the program, fill it in, and mail in the stub accompanying your ticket. Your entire outlay will be the cost of the program and a four-cent stamp. Not a bad investment for $500 worth of heating equipment.

UNIVERSAL POPULARITY

This department ran a piece the other day about Bill "the Smiler") McMaster, who has just returned to the hockey wars after a layoff of a year or so with a broken ankle suffered in nothing forced. According to the Peterborough scribe, Bill has enjoyed it in every place he has shown his hockey wares.

Writes Cec Perdue:

"Biz Bill, a basking defenceman, has proven popular out west, down in Cobourg, over in Scotland, with the Peterboro Petes and—wherever he has piled his puck wares. A capable and colorful performer, he is a pleasant guy, but can also hold his own in rough going. Fans here will recall last winter when Bill and brawling Bus Gagnon of Whitby, tangled. 'Twas quite a tussle ere they were parted, and Gagnon came out of it yelling that Bill had bitten a hunk out of his ear—Gagnon's, that is. McMaster said afterward he was so mad he'd have chewed it right off if he could. But Petes' playing coach Eddie Redmond was calm about it, merely asking over to the sin-bin and saying reproachfully to the culprit: 'Bill, you shouldn't be eating meat on Friday!'"

THE GREAT WAGNER

Speaking of stories, many were recalled and written about the late Honus Wagner, "the greatest shortstop of all time," following his demise the other day.

Honus was known in baseball as a great story-teller himself. Many of his stories strained credulity, but Honus managed to tell about going bear hunting with nothing more than an axe.

"I came across a big ornery bear," he would say, "and he jumped just as I swung. The axe wrapped around a tree, severed the tree right off, killed the bear and broke my wrists. That's why I couldn't play during the 1904 season."

When he was all through as a player he became a coach with the Pirates. A kindly and wonderful old man, he was always ready to help younger players. He was much too good-natured to give them the treatment he'd received as a rookie.

When things were quiet in the clubhouse or in the dugout, he would start telling some of his inimitable stories. One day a rookie, a bit brighter than his mates, shook his head ever so slightly.

"Mr. Wagner," he said, "I find it hard to believe all your stories."

"Maybe so, sonny," was the answer, "but at least I never told you anything that wasn't fit to be repeated to your mother."

Blasts Olson Into Oblivion With Furious 2nd-Round Salvo; First to Regain Title Twice

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — Time backed up for Sugar Ray Robinson Friday night and today the astounding recrowned 33-year-old middleweight champion had a three-month wait for a return match with dethroned, dejected Bobo Olson.

It was almost three years ago to the day (Dec. 18, 1952) Robinson abdicated the 160-pound title he viciously reclaimed without too much cash profit.

In what must go down as one of boxing's most brilliant comebacks, Robinson blasted a second-round knockout over favored, but befuddled Olson in a title match at the Chicago Stadium.

However, Sugar Ray's $66,428 purse was attached by the federal government for back income taxes.

BEST PER POUND

This was the Robinson once raised as the best piece of fighting man per pound in the history of the game.

Either that, or the 27-year-old Olson — beset by marital difficulty — was a woeful 3-1 favorite still shell-shocked from his third-round knockout by light heavy champ Archie Moore last June 22.

The International Boxing Club, probably as surprised as Olson over the outcome, announced Robinson would not fight again until Olson has his overdue rematch within 90 days.

Sid Flaherty, Olson's manager, and Jim Norris, IBC president, both seemed to indicate if Olson can straighten out things with his estranged wife, a rematch will be justified.

WIFE'S COMMENT

Bobo's wife, Dolores, commented after Olson's belting Friday night that maybe it "will put some sense in his head and he'll stop being a playboy."

Olson headed back for his San Francisco home right after the fight to see his children and their four children and perhaps talk her out of her announced plans for a divorce.

Whatever happens on the Olson domestic front, Robinson will remain boxing's hero for some time.

Nobody suspected Sugar Ray still had so much quick-darting dynamite in his fists. The end came shortly after Olson boldly tried to slug it out with Robinson after Sugar Ray rallied sharply as the first round ended.

Perhaps it was a long right lead which felled Olson at the close of the first round that started Bobo's fatal slump. It caught the fight fan the second. He came in close for a sharp exchange. And then Robinson set up the kill.

Sugar Ray lashed his patented left-right combination. Olson hung in close for a moment. Robinson blurred another one-two combination and then whistled the left hook and right uppercut on the chin which sent Olson tumbling on his back. A left hook followed, but the lights had gone out for Bobo.

It was all done so swiftly and simply that the crowd of 12,441 didn't really begin to roar until Olson was flat on the canvas.

Olson tried to get up as referee Frank Sikora counted him up. But he only rolled over helplessly as "eight" tolled while his glazed eyes stared at the glaring arc lights overhead.

Bobo didn't even win the first round, with the two judges giving it to Robinson and the referee calling it even.

STOPPED LAMOTTA

Sugar Ray, also a former welterweight champion, first won the middleweight crown by stopping Jake La Motta at the Chicago Stadium Feb. 14, 1951. He lost the 160-pound title to Randy Turpin after a gay' European tour July 10, 1951.

In September of 1951, Robinson stopped Turpin to regain the title and after successful defences against Olson and Rocky Graziano failed to take the 175-pound title from Joey Maxim and retired as middleweight champion on Dec. 18 1952.

The government action against Robinson's purse charged him with being some $87,000 in income tax arrears.

Olson's 35 per cent share of the $114,659 net gate and $75,000 TV-radio fee was $66,475.

DOBY INKS CONTRACT

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Larry Doby, obtained in a recent trade with the Cleveland Indians, has signed a Chicago White Sox contract believed to call for between $30,000 and $35,000 for 1956.

Dutchies Hang 9-3 Plaster On Maroons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Will anybody stop those Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen for any length of time?

Up till now, there isn't a team in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League which has produced enough power to knock Dutchmen out of first place in the standings. They've lost only six engagements in 24 starts.

Dutchmen came up with their 12th victory of the 1955-56 campaign Friday night, a 9-3 plastering of the last-place Chatham Maroons. It was no contest from the start. The result lengthened Dutchies' lead to 10 points over the second-spot Windsor Bulldogs.

In the only other OHA game, Stratford Indians blanked Owen Sound Mercurys 2-0 at Stratford. That decision broke a two - way deadlock for third place between Indians and Mercs.

EACH SCORED THREE

At Chatham, Jim Logan and George Scholes each scored three goals as Dutchmen penetrated the Chatham defence with ease. Buddy Horne, Paul Knox and Bill Colvin were the other goal-getters.

Eric Unger, Lloyd Ferguson and Ernie Dick tallied for Maroons in a losing cause.

Indians were paced by the great Jackie Hunter of Don Head, who handled 29 shots to rack up his second shutout of the season.

Herv Dejordy and George Aitken scored the Indian goals. Dejordy got his at 1:29 of the first period when he beat Merc netminder Bobby Gibson on a play with Aitken. George made it 2-0 at 14:03 of the final period. Indians were given six shots on minor penalties, but both their goals came while Owen Sound was at full strength.

Carl Voyles Retires from Football Joins Cradock's Grid-Talent Staff

HAMILTON (CP)—Carl Voyles, who coached Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four to one Grey Cup title and a top position in Canadian football, Friday retired after 30 years in the game.

The bushy-browed Voyles, who operates a successful automobile agency business at Vero Beach, Fla., in the off-season, said he has accepted a job managing the Florida real-estate holdings of football minded Eric Cradock, Toronto stockbroker.

Almost immediately it was announced that 30-year-old Voyles had quit his Hamilton job with the black-and-yellow outfit, it was speculated here and in Toronto that Cradock, co-owner of Montreal Alouettes, may return to football.

BIG STABLE

With the hiring of Voyles, Cradock now has a imposing stable of top-level football executive talent. Lew Hayman, former managing director of Alouettes and who has coached a record five Grey Cup winning teams, and Joe Ryan, a former Winnipeg Blue Bomber and Alouette executive, are both associated with the Toronto broker.

Cradock was available for comment but his name has popped up regularly as a franchise buyer in the big city or the United States National Football League since he and his interest in the Als in 1951. To all these reports Cradock has said only he is "interested" in returning to football.

Voyles announced his decision officially at a press conference.

Lacking any definite offer from Tiger-Cats, he said Cradock's proposition was too good to refuse. He said it offers more money than football coaching and has unlimited possibilities. His average annual salary in Hamilton had been "slightly over $11,000."

"It is with deep regret that I leave football and particularly Hamilton," he said.

During the six years under Voyles Hamilton was never out of the Big Four playoffs and won the Grey Cup in 1953.

Before signing with Tiger-Cats, Voyles was head coach of the now-defunct Brooklyn Dodgers football club of the NFL. He also was head coach at William and Mary College and Auburn College and assistant coach at Duke University and the University of Illinois.

Clair to Give Ottawa Answer Next Wednesday

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Clair, Toronto Argonauts coach for five years, said Friday night he will let the Ottawa Rough Riders know by next Wednesday whether he will accept a two-year contract to pilot the Ottawa team.

He made the announcement after conferring with Rough Rider officials at the home of director Eddie Emerson. His decision will depend on whether he is offered a coaching job at an unidentified American college.

However, Basil Gill, president of the Riders, said the Ottawa team is not prepared to sit back and do nothing while awaiting Clair's answer.

"We had another prospect in mind before contacting Frank and we intend to get in touch with him by Monday. Frank agrees we are within our rights in setting this date where while he is making up his mind and that's the way the situation stands at the moment."

Observers here say it's still a good guess that Clair will be coaching the Riders next fall. It is understood he has been offered a two-year contract at $12,000 a season, with an additional $2,000 if he puts Ottawa in the Big Four playoffs and another $2,000 if the team makes the Grey Cup final.

OAC LOSES

GUELPH (CP) — Fredonia Teachers College of New York state handed Ontario Agricultural College a double setback in exhibition basketball here Friday night, the seniors winning 71-36 and the juniors 33-4).

TPTs Blow Two-Goal Margin With Victory Minutes Away Then Lose 5-4 in Overtime

BROCKVILLE — Brockville Magedomas with defeat staring them in the face roared from behind a two-goal third-period deficit to-night to edge the Belleville TPTs 5-4 in overtime.

The victory put the Magedomas firmly in third place in the group standing with 13 points. The TPTs are in fourth slot with 10.

The TPTs starting with the same offensive power that raced them through to a 7-2 victory over the Magedomas last week scored the ruling goal of the first period. At the best hockey of the night both clubs scored twice in the second frame going into the final hooter with the Belleville crew leading 3-2.

The Comees added what appeared to be the insurance marker early in the period to give them a 4-2 margin but they had not reckoned with the comeback powers of the Stanford club. The Magedomas came within striking distance when they scored midway through the heat and Lyle Gibson became the first hero of the piece when he drove home the equalizer.

The teams went into overtime and penalties proved costly to the TPTs. Don Thompson, Magedomas defenseman, settled the issue after six minutes of play slamming home the winner.

TPTs went into the lead after eleven minutes of the first period. Davy Jones scoring after he and Goyer staged a two-man rush. Wilson drew the penalty at the period.

Wilson put the TPTs two up after five minutes of the second heat pushing the count in the third. Bert Hill and Peter Jones. Ernie Dagenais drew first blood for Brockville a minute later scoring from Clarke's goalmouth pass.

Keith MacDonald again gave the TPTs a two-goal margin, scoring with assists from Davy Jones and Goyer. The Magedomas with the clock ticking off the seconds left in the third, striking distance when Legris beat Parris into helping going to Thomson and Loner.

For the third time in the game the Belleville club grabbed a two-goal lead when Fryia scored after eight minutes of play in the third period. Gilmour and Greenlaw were credited with assists.

Then the roof fell in. The Magedomas battling desperately, roared back into the contest when Richardson cutting the margin to 4-3 when he took Parris' pass and to best Parisi. With a minute and a half to go Lyle Gibson blasted the rush crowd of 433 customers on their feet when he drove home the tying goal on a pass from Dagenais.

The teams went into overtime and with Peter Jones in the penalty box Thomson scored the winner after nine minutes of play. Jones was tabbed with a misconduct penalty near the close of the period.

HEADS NON-PROS

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A. B. (Happy) Chandler, newly - elected Kentucky governor, will continue to head the non-pro International Baseball Congress in 1956, Charles Cookson, executive secretary of the sponsoring National Baseball Congress said Friday.

PLAN LIGHTING

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto Athletic Directorate plans to erect $50,000 and $60,000 to floodlight Varsity Stadium.

Phil Thomerson, secretary of the university's athletic association said Friday a modern floodlighting plant will be installed in time for the 1956 football season.

MAYS SIGNS

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Mays, the New York Giants slugging outfielder, has signed his 1956 contract, the club announced Friday and it is believed he got a $10,000 raise over his reported $25,000 salary of last season.

Sugar Ray Second Oldest Middle Champ

CHICAGO (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, at 34, isn't the oldest middleweight champion ever but he's close to it.

Tommy Ryan, who retired in 1927 at the age of 37, holds the record. Bob Fitzsimmons was 33 when he finally gave up the middleweight crown after winning the heavyweight title. Mike Donovan also was 33 when he quit in 1892. In recent years, Tony Zale was 34 when he finally was beaten by Rocky Graziano after holding the title, losing it to Rocky Graziano and winning it back again.

Blues Wallop McGill 10-5

TORONTO (CP)—University of Toronto Blues trounced Montreal McGill Redmen 10-5 Friday night in a wild, free-swinging game that opened the 1955-56 senior intercollegiate hockey campaign here.

The Blues, defending league champions who were unbeaten last year, were never in trouble as the engagement, which was marked by 22 penalties.

A game misconduct went to McGill defenceman Paul Dingle for his fifth penalty. He was a dollar scale attempt to injure a player in the middle frame.

Kingston Picked For Fight Show

OTTAWA (CP) — Boxers from units in all parts of Canada will compete at Kingston April 4, 5 and 6 in the first annual Canadian Army boxing championships.

Army headquarters said Friday the championships may provide direct entry of the army's best fighters into the Canadian championships and Olympic Games trials. Athletics handled the pre-meeting Athletic Union of Canada now is being negotiated.

Minor Hockey

A close, hard-fought battle between the Black Hawks and the Canadiens featured the Pee Wee section at the Memorial Arena this morning. The Hawks finally shaded the Canadiens 4-3 while in the other game the Leafs defeated and whipped the Red Wings 4-1 and Rangers blanked the Maple Leafs 3-0.

Turner starred for the Hawks in their win, scoring two goals including the winner. Muirhead added a pair for the losers. Delong netted one goal while Hull and Flunder drew halpers. Ed Deng Wayne Woods and Ted Rowland fired the Canadien markers with assists being delivered by Bruce B. Skinner.

In the Rangers' 3-0 whitewashing of the Leafs, R. Fellows sparked his club with a brace of goals. J. Jurp fired the odd marker while Ross gathered one assist.

W. Gilroy spearheaded the Bruins' victorious attack, denting the twine twice while teammate R. Blaker helped with a goal and assist. Leslie Hall netted an unassisted marker for his team's fourth goal. C. Wallbridge was the lone Wing marksman.

Bantam results will appear in Monday's Ontario Intelligencer.

Gonzales Spoils Trabert's Debut

NEW YORK (AP) — Pancho Gonzales, an old pro at the age of 27, spotted Tony Trabert the first set Friday night and then proceeded to spoil Tony's professional debut by whipping him 9-11, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Trabert, winner of the Wimbledon, French and American amateur championships this year, couldn't match Gonzales in sheer speed and power.

The match, first in a pro tour that will take them into 100 cities and enrich Trabert by at least $80,000, provided a good evening's entertainment for 10,421 spectators in Madison Square Garden.

Pancho Segura, at 34 the oldest member of the touring troupe, clowned his way to an easy 5-2 victory over Australia's Mervyn Hartwig, another newcomer to the pro ranks. The scheduled singles match was shortened to one set because of the length of the opener.

No Waivers Asked On Jackie Says Bavasi

BROOKLYN (AP)—A Brooklyn Dodgers executive said Friday he was "sick and tired of people saying they want to deal for Jackie Robinson."

E. J. (Buzz) Bavasi, Brooklyn vice-president, apparently hot under the collar, made the remark Friday after Jack Dunn, assistant general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, said in Baltimore "we're definitely interested if Robinson is available."

"Furthermore," added Bavasi, "We have not asked for interleague waivers on Robinson and we don't intend to. There are a lot of players in the American League we're interested in but we don't go around announcing we're asking for them."

Leafs' Smith Last Pro Player To Shed Halo

NEW YORK (CP)—It was just an ordinary hooking penalty, barely noticeable in a busy third period in which the majors and minors conducted business as usual. But when Toronto's Sid Smith was thumbed off in Montreal Thursday night it was the first National Hockey League regular to shed his halo.

Apart from a couple of goalkeepers, every full-time player in the NHL has been penalized at some time this season, the seventh straight year there has been time able to complete a full schedule with an unblemished record.

A good deal of the time it was Bill Quackenbush, the veteran Boston defenceman. Then with Detroit Quackenbush went through the entire 60 games in the 1949-50 season without drawing the reproachful eye of an official and earned the Lady Byng Trophy as the league's most gentlemanly player.

Since that season Quackenbush's record has been surpassed. Playing 6 games of a 70-game schedule with Detroit Red Wings in 1951-52, Buddy O'Connor remained unpenalized.

Kingston Whips Whitby Dunlops

Roaring back from a first-period three-goal deficit the Kingston Frontenacs handed the pace-setting Whitby Dunlops their second defeat of the season in Kingston last night, downing the Blackbirds over by a 5-4 score.

Bob Rooters on the short end of a 3-0 score going into the second period outscored the Dunlops 2-1 to cut the frame 4-3. They notched a flashing offensive in the third scoring three times while on the game while bolding the Dunlops off the remainder of the route.

The victory was the tenth for Kingston which with a tie gives them 21 points, four behind the group leaders.

Freddie Hucker scored a pair for the Dunlops with Treen and O'Connor getting the others. Ian Morrow, former Cornwall star scored the winning goal for Kingston at 16.55 of the third frame. Douglas Senior, Toppazzini and Murray were the other Kingston marksmen.

Chips Down For Rams, Bears

NEW YORK (AP)—The chips will be down Sunday for Los Angeles Rams and Chicago Bears in the National Football League's Western Conference championship race. But Cleveland Browns have the eastern division title in the bag no matter what happens in their game with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Key games in this final week of regular - schedule play find the Rams, leading the western loop by half a game, entertaining Green Bay Packers at Los Angeles and the second-place Bears entertaining Philadelphia Eagles at Chicago.

Bruins Starting Tying Binge, Battle Hawks to 1-1 Stymie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins shook that extended losing streak in the National Hockey League. Now, it seems, they may be starting a tying binge.

The Bruins, who snapped a winless run at nine games a week ago Friday night were held to their second straight deadlock—a 1-1 count against Chicago Black Hawks.

It was the Beantowners' eighth tie it games this season and left them second only to Detroit Red Wings as the club with the most deadlocks of the year. Wings have 11.

Bruins had to come from behind in the game—played before a slim crowd of 4,020 at St. Louis. Defenceman Lionel Heinrich made it 1-1 at 9:03 of the first period, exactly five minutes after Johnny Wilson sent the Hawks into the lead.

The scoring stopped there. Both teams missed great chances in the last two sessions but couldn't beat goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk in the Bruin cage or Al Rollins in the Chicago nets.

The tie moved Hawks into a third-place tie with the idle Red Wings, each have 23 points.

Wilson picked up his 12th goal of the year at 4:45 of the first period. He took a pass from Hec Lalande and fired a hard one behind Sawchuk. Heinrich tallied on a play with defencemen Bill Quackenbush and Fern Flaman.

In the Dressing Rooms

CHICAGO (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, again the middleweight king, was in his dressing room after his smashing knockout over Bobo Olson Friday night with tears streaming down his face.

He couldn't speak. One veteran ringman said:

"He looks more like after he exhausted himself against Carmen Basilio than like one who just won the title."

The new 160-pound king finally spoke quietly over a public address microphone.

"I had to cry," he said. "I just couldn't believe it was all over. I'm concentrating on this as a goal of a thing with me ever since Tiger Jones licked me here (at Chicago Stadium) nearly a year ago.

"Only a few people thought I should continue after that and to them I owe thanks. Not many others said I didn't have a chance that I should call it good. It was a very hard thing to swallow and very hard strong ready to continue."

Robinson was asked if he knew he had Olson after the first round. He smiled:

"You never think you have a single hold until it is all over. I didn't think I had beaten him until the last round."

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—A new, bewildered Bobo Olson sat in his dressing room Friday night after he had lost his middleweight title to Ray Robinson by a second round knockout.

"So fast, so fast," muttered Olson. "It was his fast combinations and I got careless. It was too fast. I don't know, maybe the ref counted too fast. Did he?"

"Did I try to get up?" he asked.

Someone assured Bobo he made a try at the count of eight and then rolled over.

"I did?" asked the unbelieving

Barrie Flyers Whip Irish; Biltmores Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Watch out for Barrie Flyers! They may not be the best team in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League right now but they're starting to make it hot for the leaders.

Flyers pulled a surprise 5-1 decision over the second-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors Friday night producing their first display of power so far this season. Even when Flyers were short two men on penalties, they held off the tough Majors.

It was the second straight win for Flyers. Last Wednesday they beat Toronto Marlboros.

In the only other game last night, the Biltmore beat Montreal Jr. Canadiens 5-3 at Guelph. The Guelph-Barrie victories put Flyers and Flyers into a tie for fourth place in the league race.

KEITHEN HAMILTON

They each have 15 points, three behind the third-place Hamilton Cubs and eighth off the pace set by the leading Kitchener Canucks. Majors are seventh with 24 points.

There were 2,200 fans on hand at Guelph to watch Biltmores gain their seventh victory in 17 starts this season. Ed Shack, Tosh Jenkins, Bill Howell, Bill Sweeney and Ron Howell divided Guelph goals. Jenkins' marker was his first in the league. Howell's goal was his first of the season.

Bob Harrison, Ed Nevin and Al McNeil counted for Marlboros.

Five Tied In Miami Tourney

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Doug Higgins, a comparative newcomer to golfing circles, fluthered the 18th hole and slipped to 67 in the five-way tie for first in the Friday's first official round of the Miami Open.

The 29-year-old Texan from Midland, in his second year as a touring pro, reeded only a par three on the final hole to go out from by himself. His six iron approach was to the left and after chipping he was in with a 15-foot putt.

That put him three under par and in a tie for first with Wally Ulrich of Rochester, Minn.; Mike Souchak of Corpus Christi, Jack Isaacs of Langley air force base, and Frank Stranahan of Toledo.

Bobo, however, was of different opinion.

"I'll fight him again," vowed the man who had just lost to Robinson for the middleweight title.

"He was much faster than I expected. That was why I was so stunned me, they were so fast, and I got careless. The first round went just like I wanted it to. He didn't hurt me at all then. But that second round . . .

Solmar Notes

Big Game and Solmar Tables

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solmar Tables.)

Those of you who use the Solmar Tables as an aid in your upland gunning know that wildlife is more active and alive during Solmar Periods than at other times. This is particularly true during the middle Solmar Periods.

When these activity and feeding times roll around, wildlife seems to come out of hiding. Pheasants move out of the swamps and heavy cover and into fields in search of food. Quail come into the open; grouse decart the protection of the evergreens and fly to the open areas. All nature is on the move.

This same reaction is true of the larger animals — deer, bear, elk and so on. However, there is a slight difference in the case of big game. As a group, they react more boldly during the middle Solmar periods.

Over the years we have found that response to the promptings of a Solmar Period varies somewhat according to the order of development of the creature in question.

Self preservation, as we all know, is the first law of nature. Wildlife, in order to stay alive, must be cautious, wary. For an animal or a bird to feed, it must relax. At this point of its life attention is centered on obtaining food. Thus, it becomes slightly less wary during Solmar Periods than it is at other times.

CREATURES OF HABIT

All animals and birds are, to a greater or less degree, creatures of habit. Response to the Solmar Periods intervals is quite definite, even though this response takes place daily. The more intelligent the creatures, therefore, react more slowly than the others and there is built up what we have called "physical lag" in this reaction.

Knowing that, you can use it to good advantage in your big-game hunting. Other things being normal, your quarry will become active and hungry during the Solmar Periods, but the reaction is not delayed, sometimes for as much as an hour. So don't be impatient when a Solmar Period comes in. The game will respond but it takes them a bit longer to be on the move.

The other day this very point was brought out in a conversation with a Pennsylvania farmer.

He was working with a road-construction gang and our area was one where one-way traffic was in force.

He pointed across the valley toward a fairly steep mountain, along the face of which ran a road.

PLENTY OF DEER

"No trouble to get your buck," he said, "if you go about it right. See that beech over there where it goes around the point of the hill? All a fellow needs to do is to stand there and wait. Sooner or later one of them is these hills.

"There use those benches for travel. Easier than walking on the hill. Just pick yourself uphill on a point like that and watch the beech. Your buck will come to you before the day is over. Trouble is, most folks are too impatient."

This man didn't know about the Solmar Tables. Being born and bred in the area he probably knew the habits of deer. He knows that the bucks take easy most of the time in the protection of heavy cover. But he knows also that after the time during the day they will be on the move.

So he waits, his stand, makes himself as comfortable as possible, and waits. Every fall he gets his buck.

If you look up the times of the Solmar Periods, you can save yourself hours of needless waiting. Take your stand at a likely spot that commands a view of a well-used game trail, and do so before the arrival of a Solmar Period so that your quarry will not be alarmed.

Then all you need is to make yourself comfortable and to have patience. Let the Solmar Periods go to work for you. With any degree of luck you will get your buck. The odds are in your favor.

Sleek Sleuth of 'Dragnet' Declares War on 'Climax'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I'll give those rascals a run for their money."

This, translated into family-paper English, was the vow of Jack Webb. The sleek sleuth of "Dragnet" has declared war on "Climax," which has nudged him out of the top 10 shows for the first time in his TV career.

No. 1 in his plan of attack is to move his show from the 9 p. m. to the 8:30 slot.

"We've always had to fight for our audience," he explained. "We never had a strong show before or after us. I don't mean they weren't good shows; I mean we didn't inherit any audience from them.

"Now at 8:30 we'll follow Groucho, and that ought to do us a lot of good. After all, they put "Climax" on at 8:30 and they always managed to have a cliff-hanger at five minutes before nine. Pretty sneaky. I don't blame people for not wanting to turn the dial to see us.

"But I don't think our only problem is in time-slotting. Perhaps we can do a better job than what we have been doing. Now we're putting more money into the shows and we've got some new gimmicks."

One of the new gimmicks is a real romance for Joe Friday. He has had a gal in the past, but it was done as an experiment to test public reaction. The reaction was good.

Webb added that he has a new setting to work with. He has done a lot of filming at Los Angeles' modern police headquarters. His first 8:30 show Jan. 5 will feature a tour through the building.

The producer-director-star has 85 more "Dragnets" to make before the contract is over. After that?

"I should think that would be all the public could take," he said lightly. "But you can't tell. I'll have to wait and see." Also in his plans are a series built around his sidekick Ben Alexander, and another feature film for Warner Brothers.

BEATS RECORD

LONDON (AP)—Mary Kok, a 15-year-old schoolgirl from Hilversum, Holland, Friday night clipped seven-tenths a second off the latest world record for the women's 440 yard free style in an international swimming meet.

Her time was 5 minutes 7.2 seconds.

HOCKEY COACH DIES

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Art Servitis, 73, a former hockey player and coach, died Thursday.

When a member of the Portage La Prairie Maple Leafs in 1906, he played with such stars as Cyclone Taylor, Newsy Lalonde, Dodsid Smith and Hughie Ross. He played with Galt in 1910, 1911 and 1912, and later was manager at Galt.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

To the tune of "I don't want to play in your yard," you may have sung: I don't want you playing tough sisms. I don't like you any more. With a cinch I've seen you muff slams and it hurts our total score.

You have no business stretching to a slam if you are not capable of the most unusual plays. And all unusual plays are not necessarily of the coup genuine. Some are simple acts not easy to see.

Of easy plays you will see almost a stranger in this deal:

NORTH
♠Q J 5 2
♥A J 10
♦7 3 4
♣K 6 5

WEST
♠K 10 8 7
♥K 4
♦10 9 8
♣J 10 7 2

EAST
♠9 6 4 3
♥9 8 7
♦Q 6 5 2

♥Q 6 5 3 2
♣A Q 3

South lifted himself into a small slam contract of six hearts and the opening lead from west was diamond ten. There are several losers to consider before deciding the plan of play.

There is the king of trump to worry about, a third round in the diamond suit to think of seriously, a fourth round of clubs that may cause trouble, and the spades in north to take care of.

Ruffing spades in south will not work because a lack of entries to dummy prevents picking up east trumps in time. Pulling all of the east trumps will lose a fourth club and a third diamond.

So, the first trick went to south diamond king. A small trump was taken with a finesse of dummy's ♥K. A small spade went to south spade ace. Another small trump knocked off west's king to the ace.

A small dummy club went to south queen. A small south club was taken with dummy king. And now a third club was led from dummy. The east hand can do anything he pleases without hurting declarer.

If east ruffs, south plays small. On south club ace then he can be dunned a dummy diamond and dummy will then ruff the third round of diamond after south rashes diamond ace.

If east refuses to ruff the third club, south wins with the ace and ruffs the fourth club in dummy. Only a third diamond will thus lose.

So, sometimes miss those right under our nose.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — "Pete Kelly's Blues" Jack Webb, Janet Leigh, Edmond O'Brien, in Cinemascope. Also short subject — 2.35-5.45-7.30-9.30.

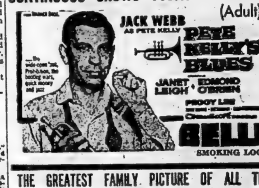
AT THE McCARTHY — "The Night of the Hunter" — Robert Mitchum, Shelley Winters — 2.10-5.25-8.40.

AT THE BELLE — Blazing guns of the roaring 20's are part of the most fabulous era of American history as shown in Warner Bros.' "Pete Kelly's Blues", which stars Jack Webb, Janet Leigh, Edmond O'Brien, Peggy Lee, Andy Devine, Lee Marvin, Ella Fitzgerald. Also shows Jack Webb as Pete Kelly and Edmond O'Brien, in a dramatic moment in the picture. (Adult Entertainment).



AT THE CAPITOL — Young Love — Debra Paget and Jeffrey Hunter, the screen's most romantic young lovers, are co-starred in "Love Me Tender" and "Seven Men" opening at the Capitol Theatre Monday with Raymond Massey heading the huge cast. On the same program "The Black Widow" in Cinemascope Color by Deluxe starring Ginger Rogers, Van Heflin Gene Tierney and George Raft.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, Dec. 12, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Experiments with new devices and machinery, untrodding, steel and iron encouraged by stimulating Venus rays now. Routine affairs may be more irksome, but never dull.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Mild Venus vibrations continue to emanate favorably between now and Dec. 16th. These, plus friendly Moon and Jupiter aspects, augur considerable accomplishment, also in many ways. Try.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Things may start slowly in the a.m., but as the day advances, events clear and the road becomes smoother — not only for you, but for several days to come. Your management now will tell.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — The Moon and Uranus aspects favor personal matters, household and family interests. This could be a productive time for more gain, increased stability, saving.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Revolving aspects for new ideas, devices, machinery, mineral; discoveries to further mankind's peace. Take due recreation in leisure hours.

August 23 to September 22 — (Virgo) — Imaginative, intuitive, creative matters emphasized now. Interesting day for leisure pastimes, necessary chores and study. Don't continue tasks until fatigued.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Friendly indications favorably but do not allow yourself to become easily irritated or unduly upset. Much good can be done.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Some restraints will be wise today. Keep serene, think before you speak or sign any document or papers. Day can yield good returns if you heed advice and work steadily ahead.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius) — Uranus' good position suggests that fine values can be found in new and unusual locations. Discoveries, tools, machinery, etc. Be alert to take advantage of these but avoid recklessness.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Although financial matters are not under good aspects now, trades, professions, industries, manufacturing and building interests can advance. Cooperate!

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — You are privileged to have Uranus in splendid aspect. Don't let the grass grow under your feet. Scan your schedule quickly but efficiently and get to work — producing.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Helpful vibrations from nearby Uranus and a generous, beneficial Venus aspect now. If feeling tops, make use of new opportunities and sound suggestions to advance your interests.

You born today are on the intellectual side, and are gifted with many fine attributes. Never petty or underhanded, you are innately above-board, honest, but may be too abrupt at times. You are fond of travel, are far-sighted, and would be a splendid prospector, journalist, artist, musician, also an intuitively sound inventor or business executive. You don't like to be restricted in action but must learn to be patient with details and slow-moving matters. Birthdate: Gustave Flaubert, Fr. novelist; John Jay, famous early statesman.

RINKS ADVANCE

HAMILTON (CP)—Two out-of-town rinks scored third-round victories Wednesday night to advance into final spectator trophy play in Hamilton Thistle Club's annual bonspiel.

C. J. Asmussen of Kitchener defeated Alex Birch of Hamilton Victoria 11-8 and Don McLennan's Brantford rink edged a Toronto Granite quartet skipped by Bruce King 8-6.

OPEN HOUSE

We have decided to hold an "Open House" on one of our New Split Level Homes before it is completed, to allow future purchasers to see the actual material that go into a home. Therefore, in this will be a service to customers wondering how a home is constructed, and the materials used.

This is one of the low priced Split Level homes financed under N.H.A. and constructed by

Charles Lambert
Contractor

who has built a number of exceptionally well - built homes.

See This Split Level

And let us show you around. This home has the heating in and is nice and warm. Sales-girl will be on hand on Saturday and Sunday

2 P.M. until 4 P.M.

THIS HOME IS ON CRESTVIEW AVE.

Go East on Bridge Street to Crestview Ave. Turn left, then 1 block to Crestview, turn right and go to the end of Crestview, and there you are

CAMPBELLFORD

Youth Object Of Wide Search By Police Depts.

CAMPBELLFORD — A Campbellford teen-ager who disappeared on Monday night and has not been seen since, is the object of a search by local and provincial police.

David Lockwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Lockwood, disappeared on Monday night, and was last reported having been seen near the bank of the Trent Canal behind a local service station.

Chief Constable George Rose organized a search party on Wednesday afternoon and firemen dragged the canal in the vicinity of the spot the boy was last seen, but about noon today had not come too much hope of locating the boy, he did not wish to rule out the possibility that young Lockwood may have fallen into the canal.

Dragging was carried out in only a one quarter-mile area today on Wednesday and Thursday although, because it was feared that prevailing low temperatures may cause the canal to freeze over within the next few days, more dragging impossible.

Further operations were being carried out today when the lower section of the canal between the railway bridge and No. 10 powerhouse of the H.E.P.C. will be searched.

Chief Rose clings to the idea that the boy has simply left home, and may be working somewhere in this district. His father, Gerald Lockwood, operates a bowling alley in Campbellford, and it is believed that the boy might possibly try to find work in a similar establishment as a pin-boy.

District police have been asked to be on the lookout for David and his description has been broadcast on television.

Lockwood's description is as follows: age 16, height, about 5' 5" in weight, about 120 pounds. He has dark hair and fair complexion. When last seen he was wearing a black leather windbreaker, red shirt and blue jeans and short rubber boots. Chief Rose has requested that anyone knowing the whereabouts of the lad contact the Campbellford police department.

POINT ANNE

Former Residents Presented With Purse of Money

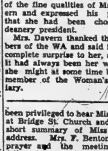
POINT ANNE — Last Saturday evening, friends and neighbours gathered at the Orange Hall, Point Anne, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Amab Akey, who have moved to Canniton, and feted them with a surprise party.

The evening was spent in a social chat, and the playing of euchre, the winners being, Mrs. Ruth Henderson, Mrs. Lena Akey, Mrs. Gertie Botting, Mrs. Frank Simmons, William Juby and Percy Akey.

Following the euchre, Mr. and Mrs. Akey were invited to the platform where they were presented with a purse of money, the address and presentation being made by Mrs. William Juby. Though completely surprised, both he and Mrs. Akey most graciously expressed their appreciation for such a generous gift, and extended a cordial invitation to each and all to visit them in their new home.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Bethel-Zion



BETHEL - ZION — The Christmas meeting of Bethel-Zion WMS was held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson with an attendance of 13 members, one visitor and three children.

The president, Mrs. Clarence Ketcheson opened the meeting. The hymn "O Little Town of Bethlehem" was sung, and prayer was offered by Mrs. Murray Sinclair.

Mrs. Morden Brough was in charge of the devotional and opened with the singing of several Christmas carols with Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson at the piano.

Readings were given by Mrs. Cranston and Mrs. Brough. Mrs. Wilbur Shorey gave a reading "Let's Keep Christmas".

At this meeting Mrs. Clifford Ketcheson told the ladies one had been privileged to hear Miss Howes at Bridge St. Church and gave a short summary of Miss Howes' address. Mrs. F. Benton offered prayer and the meeting closed followed by a social half hour.

WELLINGTON

St. Andrew's W.A. Presents Life Membership

WELLINGTON. — The monthly meeting of St. Andrew's WA was held in the town hall recently with about 34 members and some sitting down to a sumptuous pot-luck supper after which the meeting followed.

The meeting opened with a hymn with Mrs. Murray Wilse at the piano. The Scripture reading was given by Mrs. Grey.

Mrs. A. Ogilvy received 50 calendars sold and handed in the money for same.

Collections of dues, emergency box and some renewals for the "Living Message" were then taken. Mrs. Sam Tripp gave the report on the Guild Auxiliary and Mrs. Murray Wilse on the J.A. girls. All groups are making progress with new members joining each group. The president, Mrs. Ruby Nash, thanked the members and officers of the WA for their co-operation and help during the year she had been in office and asked the Rev. C. P. Heaven to take charge of the meeting for election of officers for 1956. It was moved by Mrs. J. Lavender and seconded by Mrs. Wm. Davern that all officers be returned for another year.

OFFICERS RETURNED

Honorary president, Mrs. C. P. Heaven; president, Miss Ruby Nash; vice-presidents, Mrs. E. Mathews; secretary, Mrs. G. Upton; treasurer, Mrs. D. Upton; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. Edna Platt; "Living Message" secretary, Mrs. Wm. Davern; secretary in charge of calendars, Mrs. A. Ogilvy; in charge of study book, Mrs. E. Mathews.

The leader of the G.A. girls is Mrs. S. Tripp and the leader of the J.A. girls is Mrs. Murray Wilse.

The president welcomed the G.A. girls as guests at the meeting and Miss Evelyn Evans thanked the WA on behalf of her group for the kind invitation.

Mrs. E. Mathews gave a reading on "Esther", and stressed the part that loyalty should play in life; loyalty to God; loyalty to The Queen; loyalty to the church and loyalty to friends.

The president called the meeting to order and asked Mrs. Wm. Davern to come, read and read the lovely "form of service", making her a life member of the Woman's Auxiliary.

The gold pin was presented by the secretary, Mrs. Gladys Upton. The Rev. C. P. Heaven spoke of the fine qualities of Mrs. Davern and expressed his pleasure that she had been chosen as president.

Mrs. Davern thanked the members of the WA and said it was a complete surprise to her, and that it had always been her wish that she might at some time be a life member of the Woman's auxiliary.

Mrs. Davern thanked the members of the WA and said it was a complete surprise to her, and that it had always been her wish that she might at some time be a life member of the Woman's auxiliary.

YOUR CAR

Wrong Oil Can Prevent Easy Starting

By EUGENE MILMOE

When the battery is not to blame for your cold weather starting troubles, keep these other fairly common causes in mind.

Be sure you are using the correct grade of engine oil. In low temperatures, too heavy an oil will become thick enough to slow down valve action and put too much of a load on the starter.

Next, check up on the automatic choke. If the valve sticks in an open position or is opening too quickly, you will be getting a fuel mixture that is much too lean for cold weather starting.

Finally, remember when the fuel delivery system appears to be at fault, it may be due to ice in the gas tank, fuel lines or fuel filter bowl.

From V.N.: "My 1953 car runs very well and does not use excess oil. There seems to be a slight seepage of oil around the spark plugs, however, which perplexes me because they are firmly tightened by their weight."

(A) The plugs may have been tightened too much. This results in excessive compression on the plug gaskets, breaking their seal and allowing oil to be drawn up more rapidly past the piston rings.

VALVE NOISE

T.C. writes: "Not long after having new hydraulic lifters installed, an annoying valve noise developed and I went back to the mechanic. He corrected the noise but claimed it was my fault for letting the engine oil go too low. How does this affect the lifters?"

(A) Too little engine oil will allow air to be carried with the oil supply to the lifters. This air can cause the lifters to collapse, and as a result, the valves seat themselves noisily.

M.G. asks: My 1952 V-8 engine has a built-in oil filter in the oil pan. I have been thinking of putting another filter on the outside but my car manual says it is not needed nor recommended. What is your opinion of this?

(A) Follow the car maker's advice. A second oil filter would result in an additional pressure loss which your oil pump is not meant to overcome.

From F.C.: "Ever since the 5,000 mile check-up on my 1954 sedan, the engine gives out with a noise which I am certain is a spark knock. I have tried several different brands of high octane gas but there is no improvement. Carburetor, choke, plugs and coil are all ok. Although I have done only minor car repairs for years, I can't solve this problem. The car has gone only 11,000 miles."

(A) Be sure your ignition timing is not excessively advanced. This is usually the reason for spark knock in a fairly new engine. Occasionally this trouble will be traced to faulty governor weight springs (within the distributor) which do not control the spark advance properly.

Cannifton

CANNIFTON — The Canniflton-Corbyville Ladies Club held its regular weekly euchre in Corby's Cafeteria with eight tables playing.

Prizes were won by Ladies, Annie DeMille, Elsie Philip and Barb Morgan; men, Gertie McKay, Madeline Morgan and George Sharpe. The lone hand by Mrs. Morgan and the draw by Lois Wannamaker.

Sorry to report Mrs. Gordon Laichford is in the Belleville hospital prior to going through an operation.

Mrs. Charles Matthews has come back after flying to England. She was there for a month. She reports everyone as being fine.

Mr. Cose was in Kingston and had the cast taken off. Everyone hopes he will soon be able to use his leg again.

The Women's Institute held its Christmas dinner at the Club Cedars. There was a nice turnout and all reported a good time.

Turkish Patrol Boat Fires On Greek Vessel

ATHENS (AP)—Free reports Friday said a Turkish patrol boat machine-gunned a Greek fishing boat near the Greek-held Dodecanese islands, killing one Greek crew member and severely wounding another.

The fishing boat was reported to have been within Greek territorial waters but close to the Turkish coast.

Greek - Turkish relations have been strained for some months because of Greece's campaign to acquire the island of Cyprus. That island, taken from Turkey by Britain in 1878, has a big Greek-descended majority and a Turkish-descended minority.

Metro May Share City Hall Cost

TORONTO (CP) — Fred Gardiner, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto council said Fri. it may be possible to have a new Toronto city hall built with the Metropolitan council paying some of the cost.

He said the council could share the space in the new building.

Toronto voters in the last Monday's civil elections rejected plans for a $20,000,000 city hall. The building was to be built west of the present site at Bay and Queen streets.

Mayor Nathan Phillips said Mr. Gardiner's suggestion should be discussed.

"But I can't possibly see any advantage in having the city share with Metro," he said. "We would be paying our half of the cost plus 57 per cent of the cost Metro would pay."

The city now pays 57 per cent of all Metropolitan Toronto bills.

Plan No Inquest In Poison Death

TORONTO (CP) — Coroner W. Easson Brown said Thursday night there will be no inquest into the death of Mrs. Ruth Washington, 35, who died Wednesday after eating rat poisoning.

Doctors said Mrs. Washington, mother of four children, ate the wrong sandwich after having prepared one of peanut butter and one of rat poison.

She was taken to hospital Tuesday, a day after she ate the poison. Doctors said there was nothing they could do since there is no antidote for the poison after four or five hours.

Balloons Famous

By LEONARD L. KNOTT
Illustrated by Jack Tremblay

Most Canadian boys and girls today have never seen a balloon, except the toy balloons on sticks that you buy at a carnival or exhibition. But there was a time when a balloon in Canada was a very exciting thing to watch and in which a few venturesome people even dared to ride.

Canada's most famous balloon and her most famous balloonist drifted about in the skies above Montreal and Ottawa about 90 years ago. The balloonist was an Englishman names Charles H. Grimley who called himself "Professor" and who learned ballooning in England as a boy. He came to America to seek his fortune but soon became tired of an ordinary business life and went back to his first love, ballooning.

In 1877 he came to Canada to assist this young country in celebrating its birthday. On Dominion Day that year, he made a successful ascent over Ottawa in a sparkling new balloon which he had named "The City of Ottawa". Hundreds of people stood spellbound in the streets of the capital city as the golden sphere floated overhead and the demonstration was such a success that the "professor" decided to stay in Canada.

A month later he was engaged by the St. George's Society of Ottawa to rise in his balloon from the picnic grounds and once more the people of the capital were amazed by his daring and by the beauty of the balloon. Then, in 1878, he made a marvellous ascent from Montreal. Rising from the grounds of the Shamrock Lacrosse Club, he was accompanied by H.A. Moulton, a young reporter from the Daily Witness.

ROSE TO 5,000 FEET

As they rose swiftly and gracefully, the balloonist and his passenger waved their hats and their handkerchiefs at the crowds below. The balloon rose finally to 5,000 feet, but remained in the air almost directly above th old Windsor Hotel in Montreal.

When they came down, the balloonists landed near the waterfront, shouting to a group of workmen to grab the rope and haul them down. They were then escorted to the centre of the city by a crowd of shouting enthusiasts pulling a wagon on which the balloon was displayed.

The next year "Professor" Grimley was back again with a new balloon called "The Canada." This time, he was caught in a strong wind and carried miles away over the town of St. Hyacinthe. There he made a rough landing in a field and was taken into a farmhouse by a farm couple.

For many years, the "Professor" was famous across central Canada. He was a pioneer in the art, leading the way for the bush pilots and the air fighters who were later to make Canada famous as an aviation country.

TWO CHURCHES MERGE

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Congregational Christian Church and the Evangelical and Reformed Church will merge June 25, 1957, a joint committee decided here Thursday. The churches previously decided to merge in 1949, but were sidetracked by a lawsuit brought by an anti-merger group. The committee said the obstacle now has been removed, although a minority group within the Congregationalist Church has threatened to remain independent.

Can of Nails Halts Traffic For Three Hours

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 30-pound can of inch-long roofing nails fell off Glen Allen Crosby's truck and scattered over the road.

The result — 12 flat tires and a three-hour sweeping job while traffic was detoured around the spot.

Crosby picked up, brought back to the scene and handed a broom to help the angry motorists in the cleanup job Saturday.

President Starts Brief Working Day at Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower settled down for a brief workday at the White House today while his physicians advise to take things easier raised new questions about his future political plans.

A weekend medical report said the president still is recovering normally from his Sept. 24 heart attack. But his personal physician, Maj.-Gen. Howard M. Snyder, said Eisenhower was showing signs of "fatigue" after some of his busier periods at his farm in Gettysburg. Arrangements now call for a complete mid-day rest period each day with no interruptions.

Snyder suggested the president wait at least until mid-February before deciding whether he feels physically able to seek a second term.

Eisenhower underwent a physical checkup at the army's Walter Reed Hospital Saturday. There was nothing in the subsequent medical bulletin that ruled out the possibility of his running again.

But Snyder said that if he were the president and had to decide, he would wait another two months, until the middle of February at the earliest. He said it is impossible to assess how much another four-year term would take out of the president's life span.

From now on, until doctors are convinced Eisenhower's recoveries are good for ultimate complete recovery, the president will be under 2:30 p.m. daily will be kept entirely free of business and reserved for lunch and a short rest.

Otherwise, White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said, there will be no change in the president's engagement schedule. He will go to Thomasville, Ga., where Eden here in January as planned.

There was a cabinet meeting and found unusual in the Saturday examinations. The president's doctors are good for ultimate complete recovery, the period of rest from

Hasty Pees Kiddies Party Greatly Enjoyed

Seventy-five laughing, happy children were entitled to the success of the annual kiddies' Christmas party held by the warrant officers and sergeants of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment on Sunday.

The Yuletide party was held in the main lecture room where parents and children put on a splendid outstanding seasonal film entertainment.

Santa Claus was on hand to distribute handsome gifts from a well-decorated tree, while later the children were treated to candy, ice cream, soft drinks and other refreshments.

Highlight of the entertainment was the magic wizardry of Herbert Hyatt, Picton, magician, who proved very popular with both youngsters and adults with an outstanding performance of legerdemain.

Foremen's Club Will Hold Ladies' Night

The annual Ladies' Night of the Quinte District Foremen's Club will be held Tuesday in the Masonic Temple, Foster street.

Miss Angela Armitt, of the University of Western Ontario, will be guest speaker. Her topic, "Journalism."

The program includes a turkey dinner at 7.00 p.m., Miss Armitt's address and dancing.

Miss Armitt, a graduate of the London Central Collegiate, took her honor English and History degree from Western and taught at Hanover high school and Chatham collegiate. Foxboro District Co-operative Retail Outlet Is Opened Culmination of a 13-year dream on the part of members of the Foxboro District Co-Operative was realized on Saturday when their new retail outlet and office was officially opened.

Approximately 200 members of the Co-Operative which takes in the three southern townships in the country, Sidney, Thurlow and Hungerford, were on hand for the opening ceremonies and told how the Foxboro District Co-operative had its beginning back in 1942 at a farm forum meeting at the home of E. B. Flake. Out of this meeting a larger meeting taking in a number of farm forums was called and the Co-Operative was organized.

For two years the Co-Operative operated sales off cars and in 1944 purchased Reid's Mill at Foxboro, which has since been enlarged and modernized.

The Co-Operative grew the mill was remodelled to handle bulk purchases of grain, new machinery was installed and a mill addition added. The Co-Operative received the charter and became affiliated with the United Co-Operative of Ontario.

NOW 225 MEMBERS

First board of directors for the Foxboro Co-Op included Ronald Langwell, Lorne Mills, M. M. Ross, M. C. Reynolds, M. B. Sine and David Hollinger. Morley Sine was the first president and Frank Tummon was secretary treasurer and Co-Op manager.

The Co-Op now boasts of 225 members and has three directors from each of the three townships. Directors in addition to President Harleigh Hamilton and vice president Percy Ray are J. Milligan, Arthur English, Sherry DeMille, Carman Huffman, Earl Sayers, Douglas Aitchison and Fred Heaseman.

Speaking from the provincial organization were brought by Len Harmon, assistant general manager of the U. C. O., and Julien Smith, representing the U.C.O. advertising department. Robert Blackwell, Peterborough Co-Op, and Joseph McGillivray, Picton Edward Co-Op, were also present. Speakers during the opening ceremonies included Fraser Bolwell, M. P., Hastings South; Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. Hastings East, and W. Z. Sandercock, Hastings West.

To celebrate the occasion a host of prizes ranging all the way from an electric toaster to barn brooms were given away. Concluding the ceremonies Vice President Ray presented the keys of the new store to manager Everett Phillips and wives of directors served hot coffee and doughnuts.

The new Foxboro Co-Op retail outlet is a credit to the organization. Measuring 22 by 50 feet the store provides display space for Co-Op merchandise, also office space and washrooms. And best of all from the standpoint of members it is completely paid for.

In fact the new building is complex-owner Phillips in a brief talk noted the Foxboro Co-Op this year would have a $150,000 turnover.

Eight Toronto Suburbs Oppose Amalgamation

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says the civic leaders of eight of the 13 municipalities comprising Metropolitan Toronto voiced today a suggestion from Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto that the communities amalgamate.

The Telegram says a survey of suburban mayors and reeves shows three for and eight against amalgamation.

The day after the Dec. 5 municipal elections Mayor Phillips said he considers amalgamation an eventual certainty.

The Telegram says only the heads of civic government in Mimico, Scarborough and East York favor amalgamation.

Etobicoke, Long Branch, York Township, Forest Hill, Weston, Swansea, New Toronto and Leaside were all opposed, the survey showed. North York, the 12th suburban Metro municipality, was not included in the survey.

Will Broadcast Pope's Christmas Midnight Mass

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A Christmas midnight mass the Pope will celebrate in his private chapel will be broadcast by radio throughout the world.

Only a few close associates of the pontiff will attend the ceremony, but the world can hear it via the Vatican radio, the Italian radio and other national networks.

Vatican sources reported the 79-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church was working on his Christmas speech to the world, which will also be broadcast by radio on Dec. 24.

It will be the Pope's 17th annual Christmas speech. Like preceding ones, it is expected to deal primarily with the subject of peace.

SIR WALTER AND THE DRAGON

The two leading aspirants for the mantle of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, as leader of the Federal Liberal party, are generally conceded to be Hon. Walter E. Harris and Hon. L. B. Pearson.

Like knights of old, they were sent out to slaughter dragons. Mr. Harris mounted his charger to face the fire-eating shadow of depression. Mr. Pearson entered the lists for another round with a familiar adversary, Communism. Although forced to play squire to senior knights, like Dulles, Macmillan, Eisenhower and Eden, Mr. Pearson was doing very well before the Second Battle of Geneva and could be counted to add to his prestige in spite of this affair through his trip to Moscow. Mr. Harris, meanwhile squared up to the fiery breath of unemployment pouring from the dragon's nostrils and struck the dragon on the snout with the sword Deficit Financing in a manner which made the taxpayers cheer but old dragon-fighters sneer.

Now, suddenly, the corpse of the Dragon Depression has been discovered buried under an avalanche labelled Gross National Product. The question which the leaders of tournament must answer is whether the dragon succumbed to the cut it received from Mr. Harris' sword at budget time or whether it died of old age.

Mr. Harris who had to put the traditional castle of a finance minister, a balanced budget, in hock to equip himself for his dragon-fighting role, now finds himself in the happy position of getting it back, mortgage free, without paying any interest. He will probably end the year without the deficit he anticipated when he cut taxes.

It would be rash for a braggart to maintain that this is the reward of virtue. Mr. Harris, however, would appear to be handicapped by a tendency towards honesty. Instead of claiming that he had slew the dragon, he is probably wondering whether it did. This is a question in which he has even greater interest than the taxpaying onlookers. If Deficit Financing is as deadly a weapon as it appears inside the fairy tale the dragon slayer, he will be sorely tempted to lay about him with abandon, announcing bigger and better deficits every spring, in order that the national production may reach still higher peaks every fall.

If, on the other hand, the dragon died a natural death, Mr. Harris will have to use great caution if he should ever be called upon to duel to the death with the dragon's relatives.

GARBAGE CAN KICKING BANNED

Down in Montreal, garbage collectors have strict orders not to kick the cans around.

If instructions of this type become general throughout the country, there would be a "bear" market for the shares of firms making garbage cans.

It appears, however, that householders who wish their garbage cans to be treated with kindness will have to be prepared to accept Montreal-style regulations. The city by-law on garbage collection contains a clause forbidding putting out garbage before the morning of collection. This clause has a close connection with the edict against can-kicking.

If garbage is put out the night before, the wet contents in the can freeze to it, or the can itself can freeze to the snow-covered ground. Then a kick becomes almost a necessity.

Delaying putting the garbage out until the morning would appear a simple remedy to almost anybody who has never assumed the responsibility for putting the garbage out. But the rest of mankind will know the installation is almost sure to result in a missed collection and a bulging can. - This may not be so serious in Belleville, where collections are made twice a week, but in cases where the garbage man calls only once a week. A fortnight's garbage can become the kind of a problem which it is difficult to ignore.

When most people put out their garbage the night before, the householder who forgets his chore has a potent reminder the next morning, as he wends his way to work past a line of neighbors' cans. But the can-less denial in the garbage pail can be tolerated for this convenience.

Ban on evening-before garbage chores here would not be popular.

What kicks our cans get are almost certainly aimed at them in the line of duty. Indeed, there are only two suggestions for the improvement in the garbage collection service here that we can make. One is that the garbage collectors take those few extra seconds necessary to replace the lids on the cans. A loose lid can be buried under a morning snowfall, to be blown out into the street to be run over by a car in the summer. There is nothing quite so frustrating as to find oneself the proud possessor of an unkicked can, with a lid as flat as a billiard table. The other suggestion is to place the cans on the lawn edge or on the edge of the sidewalk.

"When crimson hair and scarlet lips set-the Mississippi afire!" says an advertisement about a current movie. Must be about a torch singer. An advertising like that it probably won't end up in the red. - Still, this talk about setting a river aflame—probably the same old oil.

GETTING ON TO CHRISTMAS

It's getting on to Christmas! The old chap is in the air
The lips of love are whispering their secrets everywhere
And now the wide world over the tender hearts and true
Are plotting all the pretty deeds their pocketbooks can do.

It's getting on to Christmas! Rich and poor and high and low
Are gazing in the windows now with eyes that fairly glow,
And all the wide world over the lovely grandmas gray
Are busy knitting pretty things they're going to give away.

The grandpas now are trudging down the crowded streets along

It's plain that they are cherishing the secret in their song
And all the wide world over now the little children pause
To ask if their behavior will delight old Santa Claus.

Oh, there are weeks when selfishness and bitterness are rife,
And days when hate and malice seem to mar the charm of life,
But getting on to Christmas all the old smiles reappear
And the blustering world turns kindly at the closing of the year.

Unimpressed By Northland

(Fort Arthur News Chronicle)

One of the most interesting of Ontario government publications is the official weekly Northland News. Usually it takes up a particular section of the province and describes by word and picture with a smattering of information in bold variety. Usually there are complimentary things are said.

But the Fort Arthur party seems to have been in bad humor when he arrived in the Lake Nipigon area to Nipigon. The pictures are interesting, they couldn't be anything else, showing as they do the lonesome Beardmore, Lake Nipigon, Orient Bay, Red Rock areas. But the descriptive matter is quite uncomplimentary as it goes close to sarcasm with expressions of disappointment. References are made to "green darkness" and "primeval loneliness". Warnings to moose crossing meant for the protection of motorists are ridiculed because "moose cannot read them" and because "there's almost none anyway in what he further described as "the contemporary wild north country". To show his disgust he lists his sighting of wild life at two chipmunks and one rabbit.

There is an old saying that a man can generally find what he is looking for in the city or the primeval. Too bad the particular writer couldn't have been appreciative of the many things that have made the trip over the Transcanada highway interesting even to the point of fascination for others.

If nothing else, there is beauty can be so easily distinguished in the lakes and streams which from many others in different parts of the country by their clear and sparkling water. And it was he expecting, a parade of moose and deer with best wishes and a welcome and speed him on his way?

Meat Too Strong?

(By Harold Wolf in The Vancouver Sun)

It's both pathetic and perplexing to learn that the memorial to George Bernard Shaw and the museum planned in his honor have abandoned with the lack of public interest in these projects.

Apologists have already squared-to explain, in terms of the good old copy-book maxims, that Shaw's genius of character the coming bone, like unwanted chickens, by those who are contingent it seems, the playwright's brilliance. But he stepped on too many toes. And so those whom he sawed in his lifetime and snubbed and offended are hanging back now when it comes to putting up money in his memory.

One is somehow reluctant to accept this explanation wholly because it's almost impossible to believe that the literary world is populated with jackals that would shrink from the living Shaw and gnaw on the dead one. Although Shaw is a name that has a ring of lasting even.

But this, among other things, is what we're asked to believe in explanation of why the author's anybody can get enough money together to erect a tablet to commemorate the greatest literary figure in this century.

Some of the "other things" offered in excuse for this strange lack of interest in a memorial to Shaw is that he lacked human warmth. And even some of his passages are incredibly tender. His public reputations were probably a bit rough. He was a controversial figure who brand his work as callous.

He said, too, that he have had no respect for anybody. Who has in this age? But it is hard to imagine that his somewhat brusque and impertinent behavior would still be resented by those who knew his manners, at east for his lack of hypocrisy.

Somebody has also dragged out his irritating egocentricity as a reason for putting this slight on his memory. Well, nobody believes that Shaw was quite as good as he said he was, perhaps not even Shaw. But he was a so much greater artist than anyone else in sight that this personal distortion of him reflects rather unkindly on the sense of those who spout in terminably about how much the world owes to art.

Imagine that Shaw, in the afterworld of which he appeared to have so many doubts, couldn't care less about abasonment of his memorial and museum. Future hope to bring these projects off, then, constitute a reflection, not on Shaw, but on the mental shabbiness of his audience.

It will seem to many that the real significance of this slight put upon the memory of a towering literary figure will be found, not in wounded feelings, not in cherished malice,not in petty spite (although all these doubtless have had their influence), but in the fact of the depression of the bulk of the human race by the intellectual colossus.

The masses are terrified of genius but secretly admire it as a strange and rare species. Some geniuses, it's true, have enjoyed recognition in their lifetime, but it's generally only a deceptive genius because his creations are so simple and obvious that no one dreamed they were immortal. The reader roisters with Mine-Host Falstaff and wonders why Micawber is a god.

In the ordinary way, the possessor of first rate creative talent is a alien to the masses as anyone from another world. It's like cowering at the foot of a high and mighty mountain which, by its very size and distance show it in perspective.

Genius is seldom a comfortable companion. It's often entertaining but always irritating.

So the people are only too likely to paraphrase Julius Caesar:

"Let me have men about me that are fat-bedecked."

Texan Meets Emergency

(By Leo Aikman in Atlantic Constitution)

A transoceanic plane got caught in the fringes of a hurricane and almost exhausted its fuel supply in the high winds. In fact, the situation was so critical that the captain came back and informed his passengers: There are 30 people aboard this plane. We can never make it to land. We will all be aboard. I have consulted with my engineer, who tells me we have a slide rule. He tells me we have only enough fuel to land safely with 96. If those with wings jump out, the other 26 will be saved. That's ladies and gentlemen, is the situation."

For a moment there was a silence. Then a Texan in the rear row heard a parachute drop. Then a parachute with a full 5 feet 3 inches, marched down the aisle to the escape hatch, shouted, "We're in Texas!" and leaped into the plane.

Moved by the sacrifical courage of his neighbor from across the channel, an Englishman made the jump with a "God bless the Queen."

Again there was silence. Then a full texan got up and said, "Never let it be said that Texas cannot face up to a crisis."

With a lusty "remember the Alamo" he grabbed up two Mexicans and threw them through the hatch.

Cats Kill Few Birds

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

People are quick to believe that Domestic cats, the ubiquitous house-cat, is a great destroyer of birds, and therefore hold Puss in low regard. This estimate of cat accusations is simply not true, as veterinarians who have studied this matter, will tell you. Cats do not destroy nearly as many song birds as is generally supposed.

Recently the American Feline Society, Inc., of New York made a survey of dissection of 193 cats killed on New York State highways. Of these cats with stomachs examined that these cats would have starved to death if they had to depend on catching wild birds for food!

The contents of the stomachs were found to be: grass and vegetable matter, 35.1 per cent; young rabbits, 14.8 per cent; mice, 12.4 per cent; chicken, 1.5 per cent.; bulk of which was feathers, bones, hair and liquid, 7.2 per cent.

The astonishing thing about this survey was the apparent absence of bird meat or feathers in the stomachs of the cats examined.

It must be noted that 49.5 per cent, of their diet came from pests, mice and rats, and it is regretable that 25.5 per cent. was made up of rabbits, which, in this area, have no songbirds. Chalk that up for Pussy

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Nothing looks better on a wintry Canadian than tartan. A tartan shirt and trousers, tartan hose, tartan socks—a touch of tartan becomes the man. And it is also very good to see these Scottish designs not only surviving but, at the moment, flourishing. The kilt is apparent: older people are a little afraid of the garment. They feel perhaps it is too bold or gay for elderly.

They do not know the ancient tartans. In practically all clan tartans there are dull colors and elements as well as in museums, handed down in the families of ancestors in Scotland, there are ancient tartans which often differs from the gaudy, the contemporary and commercially produced pattern.

Most of all, they differ in being subtler, softer, perhaps a little duller, than the modern tartan. They have a sweet, faded look.

The explanation, the secret, is adhearing generally in pattern, has a soft rosy red in place of the mat-red of the present day tartan. The ancient Murray of Tullibardine and Atholl tartans, for instance, have its reds, blues and greens that tells you at once that it was dyed with natural dyes the weavers had to find within their own glens and up their own hills. No man has the right to say which is the most beautiful tartan, not even if it be his own by right of family; for each is beautiful in a haunting and unforgettable sense that defies understanding. But for one, I will say the ancient tartans are much more beautiful than the modern in practically every instance.

Many old people and elderly folk amongst us can wear the ancient tartans and look their best. Soft and perceptive colors go half way to meet the greying hair and the slightly pale skin of people who have lived. The ancient hunting tartan of the Gordons has been 250 years off a man of eighty.

In the train coming down from Inverness four years ago, and elderly man got in the compartment I was in and he was dressed from the waist down in a plaid, shawl, of incredible beauty. It was soft and warm, but its faded green and its white gave the old man an indescribe air of nobility.

"Sir," I leaned over, "might I ask what tartan that is?"

"My name," he answered, "is MacLean, and this is the ancient."

I have seen many fine fleeks of cattle, he sat there among us nameless men like a king.

For foresightedness, the city of Grand Rapids, Mich., should be awarded an air Raid warden's helmet with a cluster of whistles. It solved its civil defence problem 30 years ago! At that time the city passed an ordinance making it against the law for any aviator to drop or explode a bomb while flying over the city without permission from the city councilmen.

Two Miles Of Oxygen On The Hoof

From the reasons trumped up to explain the popular abuse of the barbiturates (variously known as phenobarbital, acrocal, luminal, veronal, nembutal, dial, amytal, reonal etc.), a moron might suppose that a person of a "high strung" or "refined" person ate up or wrote memos unless "controlled" or "regulated" or "quieted" by sedatives.

Nerves have only one function: they conduct messages or impulses. -

Nerves perform their function day by day, month after month, for years and years and never "wear out", become "exhausted" or "break down". They are comparable with the wires that carry telephone or telegraph messages.

Nerves neither generate nor expend energy.

There's only one kind of energy known to physiology, and that is physical, muscular, caloric energy. If, indeed, there is any other kind of energy than that measured by the calories expended in walking or in the dusts the whatnot, let the physicists elucidate it.

What a lot of complicated knuckleheads, feeding on sedatives prescribed by indulgent physicians or procured illegally, call "tension" is not in the nerves; it's in the heart and arteries.

Even the most rugged individualist is more or less subject to you'll know better.

SEEDS START TO GROW

Many years ago certain portions of the Mammoth Cave known only by intensely explored was open to the general public. Pathways were established and electric lights installed. Then, as is characteristic of everybody, a certain type of strange-appearing vegetation began to grow as the result of the heat accelerated by the light bulbs. The strange or unusual always interest to experts who examined it and declared that there was something absolutely new. Nothing like this had, to their knowledge, ever appeared before.

What did this mean? It meant that perhaps many thousands of years ago seeds had been made captive during periods of upheaval and finally sealed in the soil had been made captive during periods for evil.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ABILITY

We are all born with some ability. The Creator looked after that, but inasmuch as He meant it to be a gift, He left it to be used by the individual And so it is that some have small ability, where others have so developed their seed-egg of ability that they grow and grow, the ability forever enlarging.

Nothing pleases a teacher in school more than to have one or more pupils manifest an unusual ability. It's like working hard to earn some money, and then putting it in the bank and watching it grow, it, and watching it grow! Teachers love to watch a student with rare ability grow.

Perhaps none of us has more than a faint idea as to our possible ability. It is interesting to note the enlargement of a person suddenly brought into prominence because of things formerly achieved, but not the able were about Lincoln some time to recognize the fact that he possessed the greatest ability, developed slowly through trial and error.

The business man is always happy to take risks with an employee of ability and interest. It's like getting to the ground floor with such a one, and then watching him climb to higher things. Most outstanding successes started under humble circumstances, with a developed ability, and with the added blessing of a government the ablest men of ability are sought. This is as it should be.

What better gamble than to put your faith in the ability of a human being? It's really an investment in human values. Many a life develops best when given encouragement to live its best possible. Responsibility always ability, but it should always be seasoned with an abiding faith. It is amazing how people live up to — our artists, musicians, poets, writers, statesmen, and others of ability, courage, ideas and visions. Without who may we be stumped in the modern youths.

PRESENTATION MADE

MARMORA.— On Wednesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Nobes were pleasantly surprised when the members of the Marmora Legion Woman's Auxiliary invaded their home to spend the evening in games and music, and to bring a remembrance gift to Mrs. Nobes, a retired member, who is soon leaving to take up residence in Belleville, where Mr. Nobes is being transferred from Deloro Stellite Department.

Mrs. Matt Sargent presented the gift of a three-piece carving set and case. Mrs. Nobes gracefully thanked the ladies for inviting them to visit them in their new home. Refreshments were served.

BILLY GRAHAM PICTURE

Owing to heating difficulties the Billy Graham picture advertised to be held in Marmora H.S. Auditorium last Thursday was transferred to St. Andrew's United church, which held an overflow congregation. The picture "Oil Town U.S.A.", was shown by Mr. George Throgmorton of Orillia, and was much enjoyed, especially by many who were privileged to hear Mr. Graham in his Toronto crusade.

Mr. and Mrs. Hogarth Sabine visited relatives in Hamilton and Vineland over the weekend.

Mrs. Percy Miller has returned home after a successful eye operation in Kingston General Hospital.

Marmora Women's Institute will hold its Christmas meeting at the home of Mrs. F. B. Wells.

Mrs. Jacob Wilkes is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. W. T. Linton and Mr. Linton of Barrie.

The Christmas service of the Free Methodist Youth was held in the Marmora P.M. church on Friday, and was well attended. Program consisted of dialogues by Marvia Walker, Ron Beckett and carol singers; quartet by Misses Brenda Wells, Gloria Fleming, Sylvia Derry and Peggy Vansickle, piano solo, and recitations added to the evening's enjoyment.

ASSISTED REDS

LUENENBURG, West Germany (AP)—Two West Germans who smuggled Communist party leaders and couriers in and out the Soviet zone across the border near here were sentenced Friday to a year in jail. Eight others got terms ranging from one to eight months in the four-day closed trial. The chief defendants were August Stein, 43-year-old county councilor of Grunede, and Reid Meyer, 29, his stepson. They were convicted of working for the East German Communist state security service when they ran their operations in 1951.

W.I. Holds Christmas Meeting

ROSLIN — On Thursday afternoon the Christmas meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the lovely new home of Mrs. M. E. Fargey with 18 ladies present.

With the President, Mrs. A. Bates, presiding, the meeting was opened in the usual way followed by a short business period.

The roll call was responded to with wife gifts of candy which was donated to the Salvation Army for distribution.

Mrs. Walter Colden, the leader for the program welcomed Captain R. Marks, of the Salvation Army to the meeting.

Mrs. K. Sharpe gave a reading, "The greatest story ever told"; a paper on Home Economics, "What's cooking?" was given by Mrs. H. Chisholm. The convenor of Publicity Mrs. R. Clare reported on Public Relations and community activities at the regular W. I. meeting in November the speaker was Mr. Zimmerman representative for the Institute for the Blind who brought with him his assistant. The speaker had a small percentage of sight in one eye and his assistant was totally blind. It has always been custom of the branch to vote a certain sum toward the Institute for the Blind each year. The speaker gave instances where other institutes had increased their amounts considerably by a canvass so the branch decided to canvass, also. Early in the New Year canvassers will call on the people of this community asking for contributions to this worthy cause.

All joined in singing Christmas Carols. Captain R. Marks, guest speaker, for the meeting gave a talk. He said, "the standard of the Nation depends a lot on the women. A man may be the head of the house, but the woman is the neck that moves the head."

Captain Marks spoke from the text taken from 2nd Corinthians 8:9 "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor. That ye, through his poverty might be rich."

At the close of Captain Mark's address more Christmas carols were sung.

The motto: "The wrong shall fall, right shall prevail with peace on earth, good will towards men" was given by Mrs. W. Colden.

Three of the members, Mrs. H. Sills; Mrs. E. Gray, and Mrs. H. Chisholm, demonstrated the making of Christmas centrepieces.

Members exchanged Christmas gifts. The hostess and her assistants served dainty refreshments and a social halfhour was enjoyed.

ATTENDANCE UP

OTTAWA (CP)—Almost 25 per cent more Canadian militia men and women attended camp this year than in 1954. The army said Friday 20,568 soldiers, members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps and Medical Corps nursing sisters attended 21 militia camps this year compared with 16,592 in 18 camps last year

Weddings

NEILSON—SEMARK

St. Thomas' Anglican church, Belleville, was the setting for a lovely wedding on Saturday, December 3rd, at 2.00 p.m., when Anne Doreen Semark, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Semark, became the bride of Lawrence Patrick Neilson, of Picton, son of Mrs. Andrew Neilson, and the late Mr. Neilson. The altar was adorned with white chrysanthemums and the Rev. A. S. McConnell, M.B.E., L.Th., officiated.

The wedding music was provided by the church organist, Mr. R. H. Bell, Mus. Bac., A.C.C.O., who rendered, before the ceremony, "Introduction Allegro and Air," by Henry Purcell; "O Perfect Love," and three preludes on hymn tunes, during the signing of the register.

The marriage by her uncle, Mr. Albert Semark, the bride was radiant in a floor length bridal gown, fashioned in waltz-length, with modified bodice having a round neckline, and long, sheath-like sleeves ending in lily-points over the hands. Her tulle illusion veil was caught to a coronet of seed pearls. White brocaded slippers, and a single strand of cultured pearls, the gift of her bridegroom, completed her ensemble. She carried a classic bouquet of Bettertree red roses with white maline tufts, tied with white satin ribbon.

She was attended by Miss Shirley Adams, as senior bridesmaid, attired in mauve lace and net over taffeta with matching lace bolero and gloves, ruffled net cap and matching slippers. Miss Patricia Rose Post, cousin of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, also wore a waltz-length gown of pale yellow brocade and net over taffeta with matching gloves, and ruffled net cap and pale yellow slippers, while Miss Debby Semark, niece of the bride, as flower girl was sweet in her pale blue frosted nylon, floor-length frock with hooped skirt, matching maline, ruffled cap, and matching blue slippers. The senior bridesmaid carried a Zanzanine bouquet of yellow carnations, with mauve maline tufts, tied with mauve lace ribbon; the junior bridesmaid carried a similar bouquet of mauve carnations, yellow maline tufts tied with yellow lace ribbon, and the flower girl, a nosegay of pink and blue carnations, white pom 'mums, pink Sweetheart roses, tied with pink satin streamers.

Mr. Gerald Semark, brother of the bride, was groomsman, while Mr. James Zakos, of Belleville, and Mr. John Semark, also of Belleville, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at 88 George Street, the bride's home, approximately decorated with yellow and white 'mums for the occasion, where approximately 40 guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing navy blue crepe with winter white accessories and corsage of pink roses. The bride's table was prettily centred with a three-tier wedding cake, silver candelabra and white tapers, and accented by the lovely floral bouquets of the bridal attendants.

For the wedding trip to Kingston, Buffalo, and Fort Erie, the bride travelled in a grey wool suit, with navy accessories and corsage of yellow Bettertree roses. Mr. and Mrs. Neilson will reside at 233 West Moira Street upon their return.

The bride's gift to her bridegroom, an electric shaving kit; to her senior bridesmaid, birthstone earrings and pin; to the junior bridesmaid, gold identification bracelet, and to her flower girl, a silver bracelet. The bridegroom's gift to his groomsman, a leather wallet and to the ushers, initialled cigaret lighters.

Guests were present from Toronto, Dartmouth, N.S., New Glasgow, Quebec and Picton, Ont.

LESSENS SILVER POLISHING

Silver will stay clean a long time if it is kept in polythene bags when not in use. Flatten the bag out as much as possible to remove excess air and fasten with an elastic band. Silver will come out shiny as new. This trick cuts out last-minute scurrying for the polish when unexpected company arrives.

Try this with jewellery, too. A small polythene bag in a corner

Women of Moose Enjoy Annual Yuletide Supper

A most enjoyable time was held on Thursday night in the Moose Hall on Victoria Avenue, when the Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 438, held its annual Christmas supper.

The hall was decorated with cedar boughs, poinsettias, red and green streamers; Christmas bells and Santas. A 6' decorated Christmas tree sat at the front of the hall with all its decorations.

Hostess Margaret Mallette met each one at the door, and then co-worker Esther Rogers called each everyone a Christmas corsage.

At 8.30 p.m. all sat down to an enjoyable chicken supper. The tables were dressed in snowy white tablecloth and gleaming silver.

Chaplain Grace Bartlett said grace.

The co-workers, Joyce Soules, Madeline Argent, Nellie Scrymgeour, Edith Meeks and Sheila McQuaid all did the serving.

Santa Claus appeared in the doorway with his "Merry Christmas". He then made his way around the hall wishing everyone a Merry Christmas, giving each one a gift.

The meeting was convened by Grad. Regt. Ruth Mintz with co-workers Nellie Shandrew, Pearl Way, Hazel Whitmarsh, Nora McQuaid and Nora Kaiser in the kitchen.

Hostess Margaret Mallette wished everyone a "Merry Christmas" and a "Happy New Year".

A big hand goes to co-worker Lena Connell for playing the part of Santa Claus. Co-worker Margaret Mallette gave each member a stocking filled with Christmas candy.

After supper the regular meeting was held with Sr. Rgt. Mary Van Dusen presiding and called to order by the Lt. with the officers, escorts and chairman taking part in the opening ceremony.

THREE CANDIDATES

Three candidates were initiated into the degree team by Bernice LaPalm, Mary Fredericks, zoonsored by Ruth Mintz and Nellie Bird, sponsored by Annie Mintz.

The candidates were given the sign of entrance by the captain. The sponsors were brought to the altar where the Sr. Regt. congratulated them on bringing their friends into the chapter.

Thank-you cards were read from Nora Potts, Maggie McGee and Zola Kenny.

It was decided that $15 be sent to Sunnybrook Hospital in Toronto to be used for long distance phone calls, also $10 for the Hospital for Sick Children.

Ida Lake thanked chapter for the gifts sent to her sister while in the hospital and Edith Burrows thanked members for gift sent to her husband who is ill in the hospital.

Members were reminded of the annual children's Christmas tree to be held on Thursday evening.

Ruth Mintz gave ten child care chairman asked the chapter for permission to send Christmas presents to four children in Smiths Falls school for retarded children.

Reports were given by Lena Connell on pie sold after supper; Nellie Scrymgeur on chicken sold after supper; Pearl Way, social service chairman, on afternoon euchres and on draw held.

Publicity chairman gave a report on coffee-table which was won by Charles Hyde.

THANKS EXPRESSED

The Sr. Regt. expressed how glad she was to see everyone and hoped they enjoyed the supper.

The social evening for Saturday was cancelled but will be held the following week.

Draw prizes donated by Pearl Way was won by Edith Burrows, and Sunshine prize by Marian Madden.

Energetic Club Enjoys Annual Yuletide Dinner

Last Wednesday evening, the Energetic Club of Holloway St., United church held its annual Christmas dinner for members and their families.

After the delicious repast three children's films were shown. Mr. John Ross, vice-president acted as chairman for the program put on by the children.

Moira W.I. Plans Future Activities

The December meeting of Moira Women's Institute was held at the home of Miss Bessie Holbert.

The president, Mrs. Collins, opened the meeting.

Conveners, Miss Holbert, and Mrs. Frank Emerson, took charge of the program. Readings were given; "Christmas Heart" by Mrs. Emerson ,"The Educated Heart," by Mrs. Earl Thompson and "Christmas Memory," by Miss Holbert.

Mrs. Don Holbert sang a solo.

A turkey contest was much enjoyed.

Report of the successful sales bazaar showed a balance of $138.66.

It was decided in January to have a social evening and also to sponsor a party for the young people in Thomasburg.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Yuletide Customs Topic at Albert College W.G.

A pleasant Christmas meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held on Thursday, at the Manor, Highland Avenue.

There was a short business session at which the president, Mrs. Finkle, presided.

The program committee, under Mrs. J. F. Wilson and Mrs. J. G. Demeza took charge of the meeting.

Miss Helen Sulman led the devotional period. She read a Christmas poem, the theme of which was "The Whole World Comes to Bethlehem". During intervals of the reading, Christmas carols were sung. Mrs. Wilson read the story of the birth of Christ from St. Luke 2.

Mrs. Demeza, accompanied by Mrs. T. K. Franklin, sang, "Gentle Mary Laid Her Child," and Miss G. Meyers, accompanied by Mrs. Demeza, sang "Jest Bambino." Both solos were beautifully sung.

Mrs. C. Hyde and Mrs. Franklin read a dialogue "There was no Room in the Inn". It was supposed to have been a conversation, that took place long after the birth of Christ, between Mary, mother of Jesus, and the innkeeper of Bethlehem, in which the latter expressed his remorse for not having made room for Mary and Joseph in the inn.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Demeza introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. D. L. MacKinnon, whose subject for the afternoon was "Helping to Make Christmas Merry."

FOREIGN CUSTOMS

In opening her address, Mrs. MacKinnon spoke of Christmas customs of other countries some of which have been adopted in Canada.

In different parts of Canada, there are foreign settlements in which the people celebrate Christmas in their own way. There is a Dutch community in Regina, where St. Nicholas is accompanied by an assistant, known as "Black Peter".

Mrs. MacKinnon gave a short history of the mince pie from the earliest known recipe (1394), by which the ingredients were meat and poultry down to the present time when the ingredients are mainly fruit.

She also spoke of the growth of popularity of the turkey for Christmas.

Mrs. MacKinnon demonstrated ways in which to make Christmas decorations from wax.

Her candle sticks, bowls and vases were most attractive and made effective table decorations.

Mrs. Wilson moved a vote of thanks to Miss MacKinnon for her interesting address. She also thanked Miss Sulman, Miss Meyers, and others who had taken part in the program.

After the meeting closed, tea was served.

'Home Economist' Is Busy Job When It Covers 45 Counties

Written for The Canadian Press
By LORRAINE McGOWAN

NORTH BAY (CP) — "Home economist" may sound like a weighty name but to one versatile woman it has meant a career of unending variety.

Perhaps it is this variety that appeals to the person with a love for adventure and a liking for travel — a person like Lilly Petty. Home economist with the Ontario department of agriculture, she advises Homemaking Club activities in 45 northern Ontario counties and districts.

Miss Petty began her work in 1931. A graduate of Guelph's Macdonald Institute, Ontario Agricultural College, she teaches college courses in community clubs and from universities.

A native of Huntsville, 50 miles north of Orillia, Miss Petty set up headquarters here in 1932. Working with Women's Institute branches, she instructed sewing and millinery classes, travelling from one community to another.

CLASSES FOR GIRLS

In 1938 she began classes for girls who wanted to learn the art of homemaking. Eight years later she added supervision of 4-H Club work to her duties.

What is most interesting in her work?

"People generally," Miss Petty said. "It gives me great satisfaction to watch girls grow up and take their place in the community."

To make her services available to more people Miss Petty teaches women in each community how to train their own girls but gives them a helping hand during periodic visits.

HELPS TO ORGANIZE

She assists them to organize clubs, takes charge of achievement days when members exhibit their work, judges and demonstrates various phases of club work.

Miss Petty doesn't spend much time at home. In the last year she judged gardens scattered over 640 miles from Parry Sound to Kirkland Lake, gave demonstrations at Women's Institute meetings, and spoke at conventions.

ETHIOPIA'S FIRST BEAUTY QUEEN

Evening Gowns Feature Show In London

LONDON (Reuters) — Evening gowns were featured in a private fashion show put on Wednesday for the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret by London's "Big Twelve" dressmakers.

One of the most striking gowns comes from the royal dressmaker, Norman Hartnell. It is a ball dress in pure white Scottish satin embroidered in one long trail of vividly colored violets in glittering sequins.

Over the strapless bodice, buttoned down the front, is worn a matching stole lined with violet. The floor-length skirt is sheath-like in front, with a rich fold of satin on either side forming a back apron effect.

Another striking model in British slipper satin by Victor Stiebel is in two tones of pink. The bodice and a loose back apron are set off by a deep pink cummerbund and deep-shaped slip-over stole in the deeper tone.

Twelve pure white Arctic fox skins, from among the best bred in Canada this year, are used by Ronald Paterson to line the collar of a black cocktail and restaurant coat-dress. The furs were sent specially from Canada and bonded through customs for the royal show. The ensemble now is going to Canada to be shown throughout the country.

PROPER CHRISTMAS CARD IDEA

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband and I have special problems about signing our Christmas cards. We have been married only since last May, and although we are both in our middle forties this is the first marriage for both. We have been so busy trying to find just the house we wanted to buy, and then furnishing it and getting settled that we haven't had much opportunity of seeing our mutual friends and meeting each other's friends. We have made lists of these friends—both mine, ours. We have bought our Christmas cards, and we want to make them as personal as possible in signing them ourselves. We have three questions (1) When David or I send a card to a married couple, is it proper to address it to both husband and wife, or to both we know only one of them?

(2) After, when only one of us knows the couple, should only that one's name be signed to the card? Would it be correct for David to sign Dorothy or Dorothy and David? ... W

This Christmas the way you sign your cards and the way you address them is especially important, for you are now, establishing your mutual relationship.

(1) Address a card to both husband and wife, even though you may know only one. The significant idea is: To You-Two from Us-Two.

(2) Both of your names should be signed to a Christmas card to a married couple, even when only one of you knows the couple. (3) When signing the card should you write her or his name last . . . that's the Rule of Courtesy. So you, Mrs. David and Dorothy . . . and Mr. David should sign Dorothy and David.

BRIDE'S MOTHER TO GIVE RECEPTION IN HONOR OF BRIDE AND GROOM

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

As our daughter married a soldier who was stationed too far from home for us to attend the wedding, we sent announcements to all who would likely be invited to the wedding. After his discharge, they will return home here, and it would be proper for me to give regular wedding reception then, with wedding cake, and have them receive the pictures and tape recording of the marriage ceremony? Bride's Mother

It's a perfect plan for you to give a reception in honor of the couple when they return home . . . and it is a fine idea to show the pictures and to play back the tape-recording of the marriage ceremony. The relatives and friends gathered together will be thrilled! Your daughter should wear the dress she wore at her wedding (not, however, her bridal veil, if she wore a long gown and veil at the wedding). She have her wear this dress will be particularly important because the guests would be looking at this dress in the pictures.

Yes, do have a festive wedding cake, the bride and groom sharing the first slice. And serve a cold beverage of some kind for those who may be expected "To the Bride and Groom." If the groom's mother is to attend, of course invite her to stand with you and your daughter and the groom to receive the guests.

RULE ABOUT WHERE TO PUT RELISHES, JELLIES, ETC.

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Last evening a group of us were discussing this bothersome question: When relishes, jams, jellies, and so forth are passed at table, how does one decide which ones to put on one's dinner (or luncheon) plate, and which ones to put on one's bread-and-butter plate? No one knew of any "rule" about this, and we decided to write you to ask if there really is a rule. Is there? Marion S.

Yes, ma'am, there is a rule . . . an easy one to remember. Any kind of relish, pickle or jelly, that is to be eaten with the meat or whatever the main course is, you put on your dinner plate. For example, mint jelly with lamb; India relish or other relish with cold sliced meats; apple sauce or apple relish with pork. But jellies or jams that are to be eaten with bread or biscuits or rolls are put on the bread-and-butter plate: for example, marmalade for toast; honey, for hot biscuits. Celery, olives, carrot slices, radishes are placed on your bread-and-butter plate, since they do not belong with the food on the dinner plate.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHOW THAT YOU'RE NOT AS CHILDISH AS YOU SEEM

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am a 16-year-old high school student, and I wonder if Tom, who is 32 and works for my father, is seriously interested in me.

Father brought him home months ago, and since then Tom has been a frequent visitor at our home. This last week, he has been coming when he knows Father is away, we have talked about many things, and have found that we have many interests in common.

At school, Ed, the boy I grew up with, kisses me about Tom, but I think he is jealous and is trying to confuse me. He says Tom is much too old for me and that he is trying to marry me because he wants to get the family business.

Tom has asked me to go to dinner with him and I have refused. But if Tom asks me again, and I'm quite sure he will, I don't think I can say No.

Should I believe what Ed says, or should I believe in Tom: Does Tom want to be serious? — Alice Dear Alice:

Neither or not Ed is right in what he says about Tom being matrimonially inclined so that he can "get the family business," could hardly guess. But I heartily agree with Ed when he says that "Tom is too old for you." I can hardly think of anything less appropriate than a romantic friendship between a 16-year-old girl and a man of 32.

Moreover, if this employee of your father's, as you say, deliberately coming to your home to see you when he knows your father will not be there, then I think very little of him. Any such actions could only mean that he knows your father would not approve of his friendship with you and so is going about it in an under handed fashion.

What I think is that you are very flattered because a man nearly twice your age is noticing you, and you are also intrigued by the idea of it all being carried on without your father's knowledge. I suggest that you show you are not quite as childish as you seem by refusing to encourage any such inappropriate relationship.

Dutch Treat

By Mary Moore

Excerpts, which follow, from a letter from a Dutch girl, neighbour, sparked this bit of Dutch Christmas recipes. I hope our native Canadian readers will adopt some of these Dutch treats to add variety to their Christmas baking.

"Dear Mary Moore: . . . My neighbor came from Holland . . . each Christmas she brings for their traditional pastries . . . she asked me where she could get recipes . . . your name popped up naturally . . . one is called "Basket Letter" and served on Dec. 6, Santa Claus Day . . . made of flaky pastry with a filling and a glaze of cherries . . . formed into an initial "Speculaas" . . . shortbread cookie with peanuts and spice . . . "Onbejt kock" . . . like a spice cake . . . hope you have the recipes.—Mrs. H. K."

These may be reasonable facsimiles.

BANKET:

One cup butter, 2 cups sifted cake flour, ½ cup water, 2 cups canned almond paste, 1 well-beaten egg. 1-3 cup plus 1 tablespoon sugar, 1-4 teaspoon lemon extract. Cut the butter into the flour with pastry blender until particles are size of navy beans. With knife cut in 4 to 6 tablespoons ice water. Blending until it is over gradually. Roll out 1-8 inch thick. Then combine the almond paste, beaten egg, sugar and lemon extract. Make three rolls of this mixture 9 inches long by 1 inch diameter. Encase each roll neatly in the rolled out pastry, moistening ends and edges with water to seal. Form into surname initial on cookie sheet and bake at 450 deg. for 25 minutes. When cold cut into 1-8 inch slices to serve.

ONBEJT KOEK AND GEMBERKOEK

(Spice cake and ginger cake)

One and one-quarter cups each flour and molasses, sugar, 1-3 cup chopped preserved ginger and 2 tablespoons ginger syrup thinned with 1 tablsp. water, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 tablespoons butter. Make a stiff dough with ingredients in order given; pack in buttered pan to 1-2 inch depth. Bake at 350 deg. for 1 hour. Remove cake from pan to cool. For Spice Cake omit chopped ginger and replace with fruit like raisins or dates or peel.

I do not have a recipe called "Speculaas" but have a Dutch shortbread:

SPRITE KORRES

(A rich cookie)

One cup each butter and sugar, 1 egg, 2 cups sifted flour, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder. Cream the butter until light, gradually cream in sugar, beating. Beat in egg well. Sift measured sifted flour with baking powder and mix in. Drop from tip of teaspoon onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 20 minutes. Note from Kmemi "Dutch Neighbor" could add 1-3 cup chopped peanuts and 1-2 teaspoon mace (or other mild spice) to these and they might resemble her beloved "Speculaas."

Do wish her a Merry Canadian Christmas for me.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

ROUNDED SHOULDERS

Poor posture and sloppy carriage are the common good-looks faults of many boys and young women. Teachers of physical education lament bitterly, regretting the pupils haven't sufficient pride in their bodies to carry them with splendor and to move with grace. Unless some childhood defect is responsible for the slouchy stance, the cause is found in lazy muscles. It was intended that muscles should work. If they don't, they lose tone. Strong muscles are an insurance against the appearance of fat cells. They give the physical being snap and style. Unless posture is correct, the prettiest, most expensive frock is just so much dry goods, because its graceful lines are lost in the wearing.

Keep in mind that the big factor in physical loveliness is a spinal column that is always extended full length. Each of the twenty-four bones is separated from its neighbor by a little cushion that is wonderfully strong and elastic. They are all bound together with ligaments and muscles that function properly only when the backbone is extended. Let this important structure slump, and rounded shoulders will result. Not only that, but the waistline will gradually grow larger and a little shelf will appear below it. Stand tall and your midsection will take up slack, shoulders will fall into position and the chest will be lifted, which means the breasts will be of normal contour.

To be beautifully built, one must look into the condition of the spine, because the body is like any other piece of architecture; it depends for its beauty of outline upon the foundation columns. The position adopted in walking, standing and sitting tend to improve or injure the trunk. Girls who habitually lounge in the same attitudes throw their weight on one set of muscles, causing them to over - develop while the corresponding ones are weakened.

Such outdoor exercises as swimming, tennis, rowing and golf are helpful in training the shoulders into beautiful lines.

Here is an exercise for the girl who permitted her shoulders to become rounded:

Double each arm upon itself until the slightly clasped hand rests in front of the corresponding shoulder top. Move the doubled-up arms up and down twenty or thirty times. Then send the arms in circles and flap the wibows back as far as possible.

OVER 200 TRAMS WRECKED IN 6-HOUR MONTREAL RIOT

Montreal police smiled tolerantly when some 3,000 university students staged the city's second demonstration in a week in protest against a two-and-a-half cent fare increase on street cars and buses. But when adult and teen-age hoodlums joined the students, turning the demonstration into a six-hour riot, the gendarmes' tolerance turned to alarm. After the rioters burned and smashed over 200 trams and buses, transportation officials ordered all M.T.C. vehicles off the streets, leaving 2,000,000 Montrealers stranded downtown at the 8 p.m. rush hour. Officials estimated damage to equipment at $52,000. (Central Press Canadian).

On his way to the hoosegow, this rioter was one of 150, mostly adults, who were arrested by Montreal police. The riot recalled the mob violence last winter when hockey fans, irate over the suspension of Rocket Richard went on the rampage. (Central Press Canadian).

SHANNONVILLE

Candlelighting Service Held By W.M.S.

SHANNONVILLE—The monthly meeting of Shannonville United church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Damon Hinchey on Thursday last, with 18 ladies in attendance. The president, Mrs. Charles Wood, presided, and extended a cordial welcome to all, including members and visitors and also read a poem.

The Christmas music was rendered by Mrs. Hinchey at the piano. Mrs. W. D. Robertson led in the worship service, and Mrs. Wood read the responses with many Christmas carols and hymns being sung between readings of the candle-lighters.

NATIVITY SCENE

A three-panel poster showing the Nativity scene with white figures on a blue background formed a lovely setting for the candle-lighting ceremony of goodwill and friendship which was taken from the "Missionary of Monthly". The president lit the first candle, "good-will and friendship for the Jews in Canada"—the race into which Christmas was born—; Mrs. Hinchey for the Canadian Indians many of whom worship Christ, the new born king; Mrs. Asa Cook, for the French-Canadians, who worship in the Church of Jesus Christ; Mrs. Charles Kicrl, for those ancestors who came from Europe to found new homes in Canada, including Africa, Asia, the Negroes, the Japanese; the Chinese, many of whom as church members join in the celebration of Christmas.

NEWCOMERS

Miss Sara Stickney lit her candle for all newcomers to Canada from the war-devastated lands of Europe, the Dutch; Polish; Latvians and many others. Mrs. Arthur Houston, a candle of Christmas love, to obey the command of Jesus to love thy neighbor as thyself, which is the true spirit of Christmas, for love can speak a language as nationalities can understand.

Mrs. Robertson read a poem "Love Came Down at Christmas". She closed this part of the worship, candle-lighting service, and then took charge of the business portion. A card of thanks was read from Mrs. Harry Sine for the card of sympathy received at the time of her mother's death.

The secretary read a letter from Mrs. Earle Burnside of Madoc, community friendship secretary, and Mrs. Everett Stratton, a letter of thanks that came with the receipt for the $10 sent to cover the expense of sending the bale overseas.

A letter from the Presbyterial secretary of Christian Stewardship, was also read.

Mrs. Hinchey presented the list of officers for 1956.

The president thanked the hostess for opening her home for the meeting.

A bake sale augmented the funds by $13. The sale consisted of pies, cakes, homemade loaves, canned vegetables; honey, tarts, candy, nut and date loaves.

Following the close of the meeting, the refreshments were served by Mrs. Hinchey and her assistants, and a social time enjoyed.

PREPARE NEW FORCE

BARRIE (CP)—Preparations are almost complete here for scheduled change-over Dec. 31 from the Ontario Provincial Police to a new 15-man town police force, it was announced Thursday. Police chief Edward Tschirhart, a former detective-sergeant with the Kitchener police department, said he will put his men through a two-weeks training school before they officially assume policing duties.

Bulletins From Birdland

WINIFRED E. WILSON

Birdland teems with interesting oddities, from tiny hummingbirds sometimes only three inches long to big emperor penguins, at least three feet long. The hummer lays eggs which look like white beans, and it can fly forward, backward, or straight up with equal ease. The penguin, breeding in winter darkness near the South Pole, stands on ice, holding its large egg between its feet, and it cannot fly at all.

A number of Canadian birds are especially equipped for different seasons. The puffin's fine, big, vari-colored, summer bill is shed in winter, leaving a smaller, less conspicuous one. A puffed grouse grows curious, comb - like structures on its toes for winter use. These make its feet look regular snow-shoes that can carry their owner on the tops of the snowbanks. In spring the toes are bare.

When winter comes, a ptarmigan's brown plumage changes to white. Then, for the sake of warmth, the bird is provided with feathered feet, and occasionally even the bill is somewhat overgrown. Also the feet of northern owls are feathered, those of the snowy owl so thickly that the black claws are almost completely hidden under hair - like feathers.

GUMMY SALIVA

Sometimes, as in the case of Swifts, odd structure causes odd habits. Our chimney swift has bow-shaped, stiff-set wings and extraordinary salivary glands. This bird alternately buzzes and sails through the air. At nesting time it breaks off small dead twigs from an old tree by flying against them, then carries these to make a semi-circular nest inside a chimney. Saliva glues the twigs together and to the bricks, and is also used to varnish over the entire nest, giving it the appearance of a piece of wicker furniture.

A crested flycatcher places a snakeskin at the entrance to its nest whenever possible—presumably to frighten away marauders. Red-shouldered hawks keep redecorating their nests with fresh leaves as a camouflage.

Several species show great cunning. Mrs. Grebe covers her eggs with moss and rushes before leaving home; Mrs. Eider tears down from her own breast. When Mrs. Killdeer fears intrusion, she tries to lead off the supposed enemy to her young family by drawing attention to herself. And so she pretends to be injured, and staggers about, dragging one wing.

Gulls and ravens are clever enough to know the best method of opening a shell-fish. They carry it to a height, then drop it on rocks.

4,400 Members Of Union Likely To Accept Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Some 4,400 members of the Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-TLC) will vote this week on acceptance of a new two-year wage contract offered by the Toronto Transit Commission.

The result of the voting, Wednesday and Thursday, is expected to favor acceptance. A membership meeting Sunday heard the terms of the offer explained and unanimous approval was indicated.

The terms include an increase of 12 cents an hour. This would be granted in three stages over the next two years. Basic hourly rate now is $1.63 an hour.

Rawdon

RAWDON —Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoard entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ketcheson, Bethel-Zion, on Sunday. The Ketchesons left for Florida on Wednesday to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, Gerard and Charles spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Ryan, Tweed.

Barbara Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Green, underwent a tonsilectomy at the general hospital, Belleville, on Thursday.

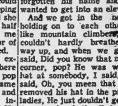
Rawdon friends were sorry to learn that Mr. Arthur Wilson, West Huntingdon, had the misfortune to fracture his wrist in a fall at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Honeycutt returned to Seattle, Washington after a three months' visit with relatives in the Bethel Community.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma left me in pop's office downtown this afternoon so she could finish her Christmas shopping without thinking about me, and she said to pop, Pick me up a half passed 5, William, you'll find me in the tea room on the 7th floor of Hookbinders, totally exhawsted.

Good, you'll find me just as exhawsted from navigating up there in an overloaded elevator, pop said. We'll drive home in the same wrecked condition. Husbands and wives should have the same initials, so what could be better? He said.



And at half passed 5 pop parked the car outside of Hookbinders and we went in and watched the people trying to get in and out of the elevators at the same time, mostly ladies, and pop said, Yee gods, this is going to be worse than I thought. Oh well, we'll have at least as much room as sardines and it will only last for 7 floors, he said.

Maybe we better wait for a emptier one, I said, and pop said, I know a man that tried that, on Chrisamas week, and when he got through waiting he had completely forgotten his name and why he wanted to get into an elevator.

And we got in the next one holding on to each others, like mountain climbers, we couldn't hardly breathe the way up, and when we got to our corner, pop! He was waving his hat at somebody, I said, and pop said, Oh, you mean that chap who removed his hat in the presence of ladies, He just doudn't get his arm back again, that's all, he said.

IVANHOE

Young Couple Honored By Community

IVANHOE — A large number of neighbors and friends gathered in Huntingdon Township Hall, Ivanhoe, on Friday evening to honor Mr. and Mrs. Gene Healey, the former Ileen McAvoy.

Mr. Reg. Haggerty acted as master of ceremonies and led in a round of community singing with Mrs. Haggerty at the piano.

A short musical program was given by Miss Marilyn Pickett, Mr. Joseph Healey, Rose Ann Mc-Avoy; Mrs. Keith Bray with Miss Margaret Wright contributing a humorous reading.

DURHAM BRAD

During the singing of "My Best to You," Mr. and Mrs. Healey were escorted to seats of honor and an address was read by Mrs. Wallace McFarlane. Both Ileen and Gene expressed thanks and appreciation in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Ileen has always taken an active part in community and church activities. For a number of years she has been a popular efficient and valued employee of the Bell Telephone Co. Her many friends are extend to her and to her husband best wishes for a long and happy married life.

Refreshments were served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

WANTS IT ENLARGED

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Nathan Phillips urged Wednesday that the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand be enlarged so that it could be possibly offered for the Grey Cup games next year. He instructed parks commissioner George Parks to look into the possibility of temporarily enlarging the grandstand, which now seats 22,000 persons.

Kinette Club Sponsors Chicken Dinner

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular dinner meeting of the Campbellford Kinette Club was held at Kay's dining room, with nine members present to enjoy the chicken dinner.

It was decided that the Club would send their usual donation to the Salvation Army this Christmas. They are also purchasing a lady's and man's dressing gown to donate to the Campbellford Memorial Hospital for the use of the patients.

They all expressed the hope that six-year-old Marie Dunne is progressing well in the hospital since her accident some weeks ago, and have delegated two of the Kinettes to visit her with a gift box from the club.

The Kinsmen will have their "Sweetheart Queen" in the Santa Claus parade in town on December 10th with a Kinette as Queen.

It was announced that the next meeting will be a social one to be held at the home of Kinette Meg Collins, on December 15th. Members were urged to come early and stay late.

Centenary

CENTENARY. — Mr. and Mrs Harm Slot were at home to a number of friends on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Sills spent Sunday in Toronto.

Several of the younger members of the community attended the "fun-night" at the YMCA, Saturday evening.

Mr. G. S. Martin of Frankford, preached the Centenary congregation on Sunday morning.

The Centenary WA catered to a supper at Holloway Street church, on Wednesday evening.

The WA and WMS meetings are being held at the home of Mrs. R. Percival, Bayside parsonage on Thursday.

Mrs. Harry Roblin spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher.

Sorry to report Miss Helen Hart is ill and in hospital. All wish her a speedy recovery.

IVANHOE

National Evangelistic Mission Held in Buelah United Church

The National Evangelistic Mission for the reconsecration of Christian Workers was held in the Beulah United Church on the Ivanhoe charge on Sunday evening.

A good number were present from the four points on the circuit and West Huntingdon church.

The choir of Bethesda United Church joined with beulah choir and gave three special numbers with Mrs. Reginald Haggerty as pianist.

A song service of the old hymns of the church was conducted by Mr. H. R. Burke with Mrs. Reg Haggerty at the piano.

The Rev. George Teakey, presiding minister, had charge of the service assisted by the Rev. W. Pace, of Tweed.

The service opened with the hymn "How Firm a Foundation" followed with prayer by the Rev. George Teakey.

Mr. Teakey introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. W. Pace who took for his text Hebrews 10:23— "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering."

Basing his thoughts on "Why do people go to church?" he said "People go to church for one reason and that is to worship God.

"The people of this day and age have come to believe that if they disobey God's laws they are just unlucky, but", the speaker declared, "that disobedience to God's law was sin and sin brought its own punishment to the evil doer.

"But he who confesses and forsakes sin, will find mercy with the Lord, for the Bible says 'If we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness' (John 1:9).

The message was followed by the reconsecration service led by the presiding minister Mr. Teakey and all Christians were asked to pledge themselves to faithfully discharge the duties of witnessing for Jesus.

The service was concluded with, "Thee will I love, my strength, my tower.

Thee will I love, my joy, my crown,

Thee will I love, with all my powers,

In all Thy works and Thee alone,

Thee will I love till the pure fire

Fill my whole soul with chaste desire."

Northport

W.A. SUPPER

NORTHPORT.—A good crowd attended the supper sponsored by the W.A. with nearly all ladies of the community assisting.

After all had partaken of the good meal served, Mr. Colin Kotcheparw led in a lively singsong.

A short program consisting of solos by Miss Faye Young and Mr. Ken Needham; duets by the Misses Carole and Lorraine Hackett and Misses Sheilla and Madelyn Aman; piano solos by Misses Lynda Barker and Elizabeth Robinson and a chorus by COIT girls. Last but not least, an amusing monologue by Miss Marie Foster, which was well received.

Proceeds were about $64.

The girls of the CGIT held a paper drive on Saturday. Mr. Kenneth Needham with his truck was an able assistant and with such co-operation had a successful drive.

Miss Judy Smith, Picton, was guest of Miss Elaine Mallett over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Slater were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevens on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hough and Carole, were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. Hough on Sunday.

Mr. Thomas Potter, Sr., Demorestville, passed away on Tuesday afternoon after a lengthy illness. He was a former resident of Northport and vicinity and had many friends who will mourn his loss. He leaves one son, Mr. Thomas Potter and one daughter, Mrs. Duncan Smith of Northport, to whom deepest sympathy is extended.

Mrs. H. Mills and Nancy, Mrs. H. Mallett and Elsene and Elizabeth Robinson attended a play at Picton collegiate on Saturday evening.

Mr. Clayton Sprague, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Sprague were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robinson and family on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Robbie have treated themselves to a new

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Simpson Miss Mae Weatherall were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rutherford, Campbellford.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Elsey and Stephen of Belleville, were guests of Mrs. Elsy's parents, Mr and Mrs. Harry Smith on Sunday.

COLD WEATHER CAN MAKE YOUR CAR STALL

Remember... when your car stalls in traffic

IT MAY BE THE GASOLINE*

ESSO EXTRA GASOLINE
STOPS COLD WEATHER STALLING

Ice in the carburetor is a major reason why cars stall. Is your car stalling these days? Before you blame it on a cold engine or badly adjusted carburetor, try Esso Extra—improved to give you even greater protection against cold weather stalling. It combats the formation of ice anywhere in your car's fuel system.

As gasoline vaporizes in the carburetor it has a refrigerating effect. Condensation from the intake air freezes. Ice crystals stop the fuel supply—and your car stalls! Avoid this with Esso Extra Gasoline.

Snead Takes Miami Tourney In Playoff

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The unlikely combination of an ant hill and a beautifully controlled, sharply slicing two-iron shot helped record-smashing Sam Snead win his sixth Miami open golf tournament.

The sensational, arcing two-iron shot saved the Slammer after he pulled his drive into the trees in a sudden-death playoff with Tommy Bolt Sunday. Th ant hill caused Bolt to miss the green and he wound up with a bogey while Snead got his par.

Snead, the White Sulphur Springs W. Va., veteran, and Bolt, a Texan playing out of Chattanooga, Tenn., finished in a tie for first with nine-under-par 271s at the end of the regulation 54 holes.

Each fired a six-under-par 64 in the final round and bypassed big Mike Souchak of Grossinger's, N.Y. who led them by four strokes after 36 holes.

Snead's rally was even more spectacular than Bolt's, however, for the Slammer did all his parbusting in the last eight holes. He carded a 29 on the back nine of the par 35-35—70 Miami Springs layout, breaking the competitive course record which he set at 30 five years ago.

Souchak's final 71 for a 204 total dropped him into a three-way tie for third with Frank Stranahan of Toledo and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of St. Louis, Mo. Stranahan and Harrison shot 69s.

Babe Progressing Says Physician

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Dr. H. W. Paley said Saturday exhaustive checks "show no extension of the cancer process" in Babe Didrikson Zaharias, the athlete.

Earlier Saturday the Galveston Tribun reported a spokesman for John Sealy Hospital where Mrs. Zaharias is being treated had said a recurrence of cancer had been discovered.

"That is not correct," said Dr. Paley, of the hospital's department of internal medicine.

Dr. Paley said "I feel the Babe will be out of the hospital after the first of the year and will be able to get up and around within a reasonably short tim after that."

He declined to answer, however, when asked about the woman golfer's prospects for eventual, full recovery.

Dr. Paley said:

"Evidence at this time following exhaustive tests reveals no extension of the cancer process beyond that observed during her confinement to John Sealy Hospital in August and September of this year.

"As a matter of fact x-ray examinations reveal healing of the (cancer) process formerly seen to exist in the sacrum," commonly called the tail bone.

Commission Puts Fight Manager On Carpet

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Fight manager Frank (Blinky) Palermo was scheduled to appear before the Pennsylvania state athletic commission today to show cause why his manager's licence should not be revoked.

Palermo, whose stable of fighters includes Johnny Saxton, a contender for Carmen Basilio's welterweight title, was accused by the commission of "acts prejudicial and detrimental to boxing."

He sought postponement of the hearing, on grounds unknown, in a petition filed at state court in Harrisburg last week. The petition was not acted upon.

Palermo, whom the commission alleges has a long record of association with "known criminals and gamblers," has been refused a licence by the New York state athletic commission—which is not a member of the National Boxing Association.

Pennsylvania is a member of the NBA, however, and the revocation of his licence here might be honored in other NBA states.

Hamilton Coach Suspends Player Fines Others

HAMILTON (CP)—Coach Ducky Skinner of Hamilton Cubs of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League said Sunday night he has suspended forward Ken Stenlund, 19, and fined four other players for breaking training rules.

Skinner said he has fined forwards Gary Sharpe, 20, and Bill Binnie, 18, and defencemen Guy James and Jack Hendrickson, both 19. Skinner did not say what the infractions were.

He said any suspended player will be replaced by a member of the junior B Burlington Mohawks.

Stenlund is reported to have returned to his home in Noranda, Que. He is the first member of this year's team to be suspended.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jean Beliveau of Montreal Canadiens slammed in three goals and picked up one assist during two weekend games to take a five-point grip on the leadership of the National Hockey League scoring race.

Beliveau boosted his goals production to 19—tops in the league—and collected his 15th assist for 34 points. Linemate Bert Olmstead—the league's top playmaker with 23 assists—took over second place with 29 points on the strength of a three-point weekend.

TiCat Coach Not Interested In Top Post

HAMILTON (CP)—Ralph Sazio, line coach with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union, said Sunday night he is not interested in the TiCat head coaching job.

Sazio, a Hamilton player before he became line coach two years ago, said he wouldn't want to take over the position, left vacant through the resignation of Carl Voyles last Friday.

Sazio was mentioned as Voyles' possible successor. However, Sazio said he has not been approached by the TiCat executive.

"I've become established here in the insurance business and I know I couldn't do both jobs," he said.

Another likely prospect for the post is coach Harvey Johnson of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Johnson said in Kitchener that he might be interested in the job.

"I think anybody would like it, but people here have been good to me and W wouldn't approach the TiCats," Johnson commented. "It would be a good chance to prove yourself though, and a wonderful opportunity for anyone."

Rams Play Browns For US Pro Football Crown

NEW YORK (AP)—It will be Los Angeles Rams versus Cleveland Browns for the U.S pro football championship in Los Angeles on Dec. 26.

The Rams clinched their first Western Conference title since 1951 Sunday by crushing Green Bay Packers 31-17 as the regular National League season came to a close. The runnerup Chicago Bears did all they could to put pressure on the Rams, tripping Philadelphia Eagles, 17-10. But the Bears needed a whopping assist from the Packers and they didn't get it.

Thus the near-photo finish looked this way:

	W	L	T	Pct.
Los Angeles	8	3	1	.727
Chicago Bears	8	4	0	.667

The Browns, who made off with the western crown last weekend, warmed up for the big championship game by defeating Chicago Cardinals 35-2. In other final tilts, Washington Redskins beat Pittsburgh Steelers 28-17, San Francisco 49ers trampled Baltimore Colts 35-20 and the New York Giants whipped Detroit Lions 24-19.

Rookie is a halfback Ron Waller broke loose for three touchdowns, including one for 55 yards, as the Rams put on one of their best shows of the season before 90,535 home folks.

For loved ones denied the joyous sounds of Christmas

Now for only $50.00

ZENITH enables you to give the precious gift of hearing

CHRISTMAS is a lovely time for a person without hearing . . . deprived of laughter, music, conversation. Perhaps someone you love is one of those locked in a solitary circle of silence. Then what present could you give more valuable than the gift of hearing! And what could be more wonderful to receive than the million golden sounds of Christmas!

Zenith has made it easy to give this miraculous gift of hearing. For the new Zenith instruments themselves are easy to give, easy to wear and easy to adjust. And today, all obstacles of cost have been removed. For Zenith, the instrument that gives the most, costs the least.

Now, a tiny, light, full-powered hearing aid for only $50

Small, compact and efficient . . . powered by long life transistors . . . the "50-X" is Zenith's finest quality . . . and yet it sells for less than one-fourth the price of many other brands.

The "50-X" is so small it can hide under a man's necktie! So light it can be worn in a woman's hair! It operates on just one tiny ten-cent dry-cell battery, available everywhere. Yes, actually just ten cents to restore better hearing and the security, happiness and opportunities it brings.

Brings your hard-of-hearing loved ones back into the family circle

Imagine how ill-at-ease you would be if you couldn't hear well! How you would wonder what people were talking or laughing about! Wonder if they were talking about you! Your hard-of-hearing loved ones wonder, too. And it's up to you to help them. What better proof can you offer that you care . . . that you want them in the family circle . . . than to give the gift of a Zenith Hearing Aid.

Now you can give this priceless gift for only $50, including air-conduction earphone, cord, stock earmold, One-Year Warranty and Five-Year Service Plan. Easy Time Payments if you wish.

See your Zenith Hearing Aid dealer now! His name is listed in the classified telephone directory. Or send coupon for literature and local dealer list. Remember, only Zenith makes the genuine "50-X," available at authorized Zenith dealers from coast to coast.

PACKAGED POWER

It might be a rarity or an oddity if you will, but while the scoring power of the pace-setting Whitby Dunlops is fairly well distributed, take away three of their top snipers and you deplete the club's punch by fifty per cent.

In other words up to and including Friday night the Blairmen had potted 125 goals for a collective total. Of this number Bobby Attersly (38), Freddie Eicher (18) and playing coach Gagnon (15) have hooked fifty or practically fifty per cent of the scoring fish. Not bad sniping in any man's league.

The scoring power from Blair's fair perhaps is better evidenced in the fact that no less than six of the Dunlop's nine scoury spots of honor in the group's top ten scoring nets. Besides the three sharpshooters mentioned the list included Sinden with eight goals, Bemille with six, and O'Connor with five. The Rae of Attersley, O'Connor and Gagnon, if you want to put it that way, have swiped opposing netmen successfully 27 times. That, with the team-spirit's colorful verbosity, gives the Dunlops the two best lines in the group.

The resurging Kingston Goodyears have gathered three of the remaining four spots in the top ten with Cornwall being the only other club represented. The Goodies, who have aggregated 72 goals thus far this season can thank a trio of their shock troops for over fifty percent of their paydirt nuggets. Don Murray, at present leading the Goodies' goal-getters, has heaved 17-lems an even dozen, with Fred Lemaire-lemaire good for a baker's dozen. Gabby White rounds out the trio with 13, giving them a total of 37 of the 72 scored by the club. Savard is the lone strange scoff in the pack, the Cornwall ace scoring ten goals and eleven assists.

On our side Peter Jones, alternating with the fortunes of the injury war, between a defence position and up front, swept into the point-getting lead last week with five goals and a dozen assists for 17 points.

The TPT's point-getting ability is distributed among seven players. Following Peter Jones in order named are: Vern Goyer with eight and eight for 16 points; Bert Hill with eight and six for 14; Davy Jones with three and twelve for 15; Chum Fryia with seven and six for 13; Gus Leonard with two and ten for an even dozen and Keith MacDonald with five and seven for 12.

Vern Goyer and Bert Hill top the goalgetters with eight each while Peter and Davy Jones are tied for assists with a dozen each. Bob Wilson is the "bad man" of the team with 36 minutes in the hoosegow not counting a three-game suspension.

Tomorrow night the Cornwall Colts, who like the TPT's have had somewhat of a dismal season thus far, will be the guests of Harry Emmerton in an effort to pull themselves on an even keel with the TPT's for fourth spot. The Colts have garnered some seven points this season thus far, two behind our side. The last time the teams clashed the Colts gave the Teepe a fancy drubbing in the down-east arena and tomorrow night they'll be out to repeat the dose in our back yard.

The Whitby Dunlops, reeling from that 5-3 setback at the hands of the Kingston Goodyears Friday night, reared back with a vengeance in the Blair lair Saturday night, drubbing the Brockville Magedonas 9-2 in the Whitby arena. The Maguire were the first team in the group to hack a defeat on the potent Dunnies, and it appears the Blairmen wreaked vengeance in no uncertain manner. That seems quite a margin of victory between two squads which have their sights lined on senior "A" company next season.

Incidentally the draw for the basket of Christmas goodies will be made at the TPT's-Cornwall game in Memorial Arena tomorrow night. Some lucky Joe or Janet will toddle homeward with a handsome prize which should go quite a distance in enhancing his or her popularity over the Yuletide holidays.

A morning dispatch reveals that the Cornwall Colts reared on their haunches in their home corral Sunday afternoon and whomped the Kingston Goodyears 6-3 to draw on an even keel with the TPT's. That means our side must needs be on its best hockey behavior tomorrow if they want to keep out of a spot from which they can only travel one way.

Whip Wings, Bruins in Stride As Toronto Scores Win, Tie; Benny Gets 7th in Six Years

By the Canadian Press

If Benedict Woit were gald to score goals he'd just about starve.

In all six years in the National Hockey League Woit could never lay claim to being a goal-scoring defenceman. He still can't. But when he does produce offensively it's usually in the clutch.

It was that way Sunday night. The 200-pound Chicago rearguard scored his first goal of the 1955-56 campaign to give the Black Hawks a 3-3 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs. That ran his Detroit-Chicago output in regular-season NHL play to seven goals.

It was the Hawks' only engagement during the weekend and dropped them into fourth place in the league race, in two other games Saturday night the Red Wings blanked New York Rangers 3-0 at Detroit Olympia and Montreal's powerful Canadiens defeated the last-place Bruins 4-2 at Boston.

SATURDAY RESULTS

Canadiens beat the Wings 4-2 at Montreal Saturday, while the Leafs were pulling a 6-3 upset over the Rangers at Toronto.

The 27-year-old Woit, traded to Hawks by the Wings this year, picked up his goal at 12:33 of the third period. In five seasons with Detroit, he scored only six goals in the regular season—one on a 70-game schedule—two years ago—he didn't account for a single goal.

Benny lumbered through the Toronto defence Sunday night, moved in on Goalie Harry Lumley and faked the veteran Leaf netminder to the wrong side of the cage before firing. The 8,310 fans at Chicago Stadium got a big kick out of it.

Five minutes earlier Leafs had moved to their 3-2 on Tod Sloan's goal. Other Toronto marksmen were Ron Murrl and Dick Duff. Johnny Wilson and Eddie Litzenberger came up with the other Chicago goals.

THE STANDINGS

After the weekend action the league race stood this way:

Canadiens are in the lead with 43 points, 10 ahead of the second-place Rangers. Detroit is third with 25 points. Chicago is next with 24, Leafs have 23 and Bruins 22.

At Detroit, Red Wing goaltender Glenn Hall had to make only 10 saves to stop the Rangers for his fifth shutout of the season before 11,422 customers. The Detroiters blasted little Lorne Worsley in the Ranger cage with 47 shots.

Rookie Johnny Bucyk's first NHL goal in the second period and another by Red Kelly in the third—both with Rangers a man short—were the only drives to beat Worsley.

Hall's 19 stops gave him the easiest night any big-league goaltender has enjoyed this season. He stopped four in the first period and three in each of the last two sessions. Worsley had to block 14 Detroit shots in the first period, 19 in the second and 12 in the windup.

THIRD-PERIOD GOALS

Canadiens whipped the Bruins on third-period goals by Henri Richard Jean Beliveau and Claude Provost before 11,572 Boston followers.

Richard broke a 1-1 tie at 6:37 of the third period as he deflected Jean-Guy Talbot's shot into the net. Beliveau, tallying his 19th goal of the campaign and his 11th against the Bruins, made it 3-1 at 12:07.

Ken Mosdell was the other Canadien scorer. Leo Labine and Cal Gardner tallied for Hawks. It was Canadiens' sixth straight victory.

The Montrealers got a big assist from their defenceman Bucky Hollingworth Saturday. Hollingworth was in the penalty box and 13,713 fans were in their seats when Canadiens scored three goals on power plays by Bernie Geoffrion, Beliveau and Bert Olmstead.

Bucky was set for charging on goals by Beliveau and Geoffrion. He was sitting out a holding sentence when Olmstead socked. Beliveau added Montreal's insurance goal by slamming the puck into the empty Red Wing net in the last minute of play. Kelly scored both Detroit goals, one when Canadiens were shorthanded.

Leaf snapped Rangers' winning streak at eight games with-their 6-1 victory at Toronto. Leafs, who had scored a total of three goals in their previous four games, delighted 12,726 fans by ramming home four tallies in the second period.

Rookie Earl Balfour and Eric Nesterenko each counted twice for Leafs. George Armstrong and Ron Hurst got the others. Danny Lewicki came through with a goal for New York.

Worsley had a hot time in this game, too. He stopped 31 Leaf drives, 12 in the middle period. Lumley was called on to handle 18 shots.

'Sugar' Fools Income Taxers'; Draws Advance

CHICAGO (AP)—It was after noontime Saturday and Sugar Ray Robinson still lay languidly in bed.

"What a glorious feeling," Robinson yawned. "You wake up and morning still fretting in your mind whether you really are a has-been.

"Then you wake up the next morning and you're middleweight champion of the world again."

Entirely unmarked after his surprising second-round knockout of Bobo Olson at the Chicago Stadium Friday night, Robinson waved at a nearby bed-stand.

FILE OF TELEGRAMS

"Look at those telegrams. There must be more than 200. A lot of people in there I haven't heard from in a long time.

"One gave me a real charge. It was from Jake Lamotta. He said 'I told all these so-and-so you would knock this guy silly.'"

Jake was the man Robinson first won the middleweight title from, also at the Chicago Stadium, Feb. 14, 1951. Jake also was knocked silly by Sugar Ray but it took 15 rounds and Lamotta still was on his feet at the end.

The federal government had a writ attaching Sugar Ray's $46,428 share of the $110,757 net gate, But Robinson already had been advanced $30,000, it was learned, and the government got its hands only on some $18,000. Olson collected $65,014.

Faces Big Job

Frank Clair to Coach Ottawa Signs 2-Year Rider Contract

OTTAWA (CP)—With the words "I'm ready to accept your offer," former Toronto Argonaut coach Frank Clair has agreed to become Ottawa Rough Riders' eighth coach in 11 seasons.

Clair, in a telephone call from Cincinnati to Rough Rider president Wes Brown, agreed Sunday night to a two-year contract with the club that finished its last two seasons in the Big Four cellar. He had been here last Friday for contract discussions.

The 38 - year - old coach, who guided Argos to two Grey Cups in his five years at the Toronto helm, faces a big rebuilding job.

During the 1955 season the club released an assistant coach, fired four imports and traded 20 players. $200 each for poor play. Another assistant coach resigned, giving poor health as the reason.

Former coach Chan Caldwell, who came here from Tennessee, was released this fall after completing one year of a two-year contract. He has instituted court proceedings after he and officials failed to come to settlement terms on his $10,000-a-year contract.

Caldwell, shortly after his release suggested Frank Clair as his successor, saying the club needed a coach with Canadian experience. and Clair would fill the bill.

Club officials declined to disclose Clair's salary. One unconfirmed report placed it at $12,000 a season with an additional $1,000 if Ottawa reaches the Big Four playoffs and another $2,000 if the team makes the Grey Cup final.

Clair resigned as Argo head coach in February to join University of Cincinnati as end coach. He was head coach at University of Buffalo for two years before coming to Canada.

He immediately begins a search for United States playing talent for Rough Riders. E. K. (Eddie) Emerson, a club director, plans to meet the new coach in Washington this Thursday and two will report to other team officials here early next week.

Can't Lose All of 'Em

Mercs Snap Loss String With 7-2 Win Dutchies Whip 'Dogs', Extend Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Owen Sound Mercurys finally snapped that losing streak in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League. They looked good in doing it.

Mercs ended their winless skein at five games Saturday with a convincing 7-2 victory over the league place Chatham Maroons. It was their ninth win in 12 starts this season and left them in fourth place in the five-team circuit.

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen increased their league-lead to 12 points with a 6-4 win over Windsor Bulldogs Saturday. Bulldogs battled to a 6-6 tie with Stratford Kroehlers at Windsor Sunday.

At Owen Sound, Ed Louttit scored twice for Mercurys. The other goals went to Ken Green, Buck Forslund, Jerry Reid, John Lumley and Jackie Hamilton. Lloyd Ferguson and Graham Joyce scored for Chatham, with Eddie Busch assisting on both.

A crowd of 3,218 was on hand at Kitchener to watch the Dutchmen overpower Bulldogs. The Windsor club, outplayed in the first two periods, scored three goals within four minutes in the final stanza to tie the game 6-6. But Dutchmen drove back to score twice in the last 75 seconds of play.

Centre Billy Colvin counted twice for Dutchies, Charlie Brooker, Ken Laudman, Jack Kemp and Jim Logan produced singles. Frank Bathgate, Bob Brown, John Beaver and playing-coach Jimmy Peters were the Windsor marksmen.

Peters, former National Hockey League star, was thrown out of Sunday's game. He was given a 10-minute misconduct sentence in the second period and then took a 10-minute and a game misconduct in the third.

George Aitken, who scored three goals for Stratford tied the game at 5-5 at 16:32 of the third period. The clubs battled on even terms during the 10-minute overtime.

Lou Bendo, Billy Flick and Mickey Roth were the other Stratford scorers. Bathgate led Bulldogs with two goals. George McLagan, George Gee, Jack Armaroo and Paul Oliver accounted for the others.

Will Try To Regain Title Quick-Olson

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A dejected Carl (Bobo) Olson, knocked out his middleweight championship at Chicago Friday night, said he would return to action today and took stock of his chances—professional, domestic and financial.

"I sure as hell will try to get that crown back—and quick," was his explosive answer Sunday to a reporter's question about his 10-day option for a rematch with three-time champion Sugar Ray Robinson.

But neither fighter's manager seemed to think there would be a rematch very soon. Sugar Ray's manager, George Gainford, said Bobo should "go out and make himself a reputation before he thinks about a rematch."

Sid Flaherty, Olson's manager, said flatly his ex-champ "will fight no more" until he patches up a breach with his wife and gets his affairs straightened around.

On Bobo's personal card of preliminaries are a pending divorce action and a $200,000 breach of contract suit by Honolulu dairyman Herbert Campos. Campos is trying to collect from Olson and Flaherty one-third of the fighter's net proceeds since June, 1951, the date when he charges Bobo bonged a contract with him to put himself under the Flaherty management in San Francisco.

Box-Office Talks

Kitchener Club Must Boost Crowds Or Drop Pool, Move to Another City

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

You know that old saying that everybody loves a winner? Well, it doesn't go in Kitchener.

Kitchener - Waterloo Canucks may be tied for first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League but their hometown followers aren't rushing up about it.

Support of the Canucks has been so weak this season that there is talk the club may have to move to another rink to attract more customers. The OHA Council pondered the situation in a meeting at Toronto Sunday. No attendance figures were disclosed but officials made no secret of the fact they are concerned about the problem.

FOURTH LOSS

Just the night before—in the loss to Junior A game Saturday—Canucks were handed their fourth loss of the 1955 campaign, a 4-2 setback by St. Catharines Teepees. However, Canucks didn't play this one at home. They were away on two stamping grounds.

In two engagements Sunday, Toronto St. Michael's Majors beat Hamilton Cubs 9-1 and Toronto Marlboros 4-2 in Senior A tilts. These games were grouped as a doubleheader at Toronto.

The Canucks have two alternatives unless they boost attendance. The other OHA clubs may ask them to drop out of the group insurance pool or move to another city, possibly Galt which has no junior A club.

The main gripe among members at Sunday's council meeting concerned the insurance pool. Under this arrangement, five per cent of each team's gate receipts go into a league pool. It is designed to protect clubs through lean years.

ALSO ALL-STARS

Last season, for instance, Canucks struggled along in the also-did class. They benefitted from the pool. This year, though, with Canucks tied for top place with St. Michael's, the situation isn't reversing itself because of the poor Kitchener support.

Canucks couldn't do much with Teepees Saturday. They trailed 4-1 at one point in the contest and made it 4-3 with only 14 seconds left to play. Gus Rosseau, Henri Vasko, Ed Hoekstra and Ab McDonald scored for St. Catharines. Ken Gribbons and Kent Douglas accounted for the Kitchener goals.

At Toronto before 4,170 fans, Majors winger Frank Mahovlich, league-leading scorer, counted twice in leading Majors to their 11th victory of the year. Pal Hamingas got the other one.

Gary Sharp, 20 - year - old left winger from Aurora, Ont., spoiled Bob Savage's bid for his third shutout by scoring at 13:02 of the third period.

FIRST SHUTOUT

A solo goal by left winger Ron Farnfield at 10:35 of the second period gave Marlboros their shutout win over Teepees. It was the first shutout of the season for goaltender Jim Crockett.

The win raised Marlboros into a fourth - place deadlock with St. Catharines.

Crockett stopped 19 Teepee shots. Goaltender Harry Edwards handled 17 Marlboro drives. In the other contest, Savage took care of 30 Hamilton shots. Dennis Riggin, in the Cub cage, stopped 36.

STOPS TOWEEL

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Johnny Van Rensburg, 13¾, South Africa, retained his British Empire and South African lightweight boxing titles Saturday night when he stopped favored Willie Towell, 133, South Africa in the ninth round.

NHL Not Ready For Theatre TV Say Managers

MONTREAL (CP)—Operators of the six National League clubs say that closed circuit theatre television for Stanley Cup hockey could not conveniently be applied to hockey for the present at least.

The Montreal Star Saturday published a review of a survey conducted among the hockey bigwigs. Here are their comments:

James D. Norris of the Chicago Black Hawks: "The only way it can be profitable is by lining up an extensive circuit of theatres. I doubt seriously if a circuit could be lined up for Stanley Cup competition when it runs over a period of weeks and is not a one-night affair like boxing."

Frank Selke of the Montreal Canadiens: "My first quick view is that hockey belongs to the media. If it does, the only purpose would be defeated."

Walker Brown of the Boston Bruins: "I don't think there would be a demand for it as far as hockey in the United States is concerned, even for the Stanley Cup games. The demand for hockey would be so restricted, I just don't think it's feasible."

Bruce A. Norris of the Detroit Red Wings: "The suggestion deserves some serious consideration. I will be interested to hear the views of the other owners on this subject."

Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs: "We are not giving any thought at the present time to theatre television for Stanley Cup competition. We believe hockey owes something to its fans and the terrific support we have had over the radio, and now from television, has enabled us to get a very fair price for our product through these two mediums."

John Reed Kilpatrick of the New York Rangers: "When a sufficient number of Canadian theatres are equipped for the system the NHL governors will have to weigh the possibility of income from this source against the income received from sponsored home television."

Yankees Name Training Sked

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees today announced a 35-game spring training exhibition schedule, including 23 games with major league clubs.

Yanks will play their world series rivals, Brooklyn Dodgers, in six exhibitions. Two of the games will take place in New York on the weekend prior to the opening of the regular season. Yanks will be at Ebbets Field, Saturday, April 14, and then will play Brooklyn at Yankee Stadium the next day.

Minor Hockey

A pair of narrow 3-1 victories for the Red Wings and Rangers were highlights of the bantam hockey action on Saturday morning. The Canadiens whipped the Black Hawks 10-0 while the Bruins dropped a 3-1 decision to the wings and the Rangers won by the same score over the Flags in the finale.

Scott and Hull fired the Wing goals, Hull netting the winner. Black and Hook gathered assists while Kelly on a pass from Maund accounted for the Bruin marker.

Ron Smith with Earl Clapp assisting scored the deciding tally for the Rangers while T. Bowers from Joe Irvin was their other scoring play. Phillips tailed the lone Leaf counter with D. Johnson drawing the assist.

In the Canadiens one-sided victory, Hunter gunned home one goal and assisted on three more to lead the attack. L. Harvey chipped in two goals and Mavety had two goals and an assist. Whitefield scored the other goal. McMullin drew one helper. Brown had two goals in defeat. Moore also scored with Bodtler and Sinclair claiming assists.

American Takes Nassau Car Race

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—Phil Hill, a nerveless driver from Santa Monica, Calif., said today he "just kept on going" to win the 210-mile Nassau Trophy sports car race.

"But I got nothing about the tires on his 3.8 litre Ferrari after completing 30 of the 60 laps.

"But I got no signals from my pit so I just kept on going," the 28-year-old auto engineer said.

He brought the trophy to the U.S. for the second time in the two years of competition. Each year, an American driver has had to duel with Marquis Alfonso de Portago of Spain to win. Hill had to drive at an average speed of 98.2 miles an hour to keep ahead of Portago.

Industrial Hockey

Point Anne maintained their lead and their perfect record over the weekend to remain atop the Industrial Hockey League.

Gabby Bennett's Cementmen whipped the Bakelite 7-3 while in the other game, the Cubs downed the Ontario Intelligencer 7-4.

The standing to date has Point Anne with six points, Odds with five, Avon four, Ontario Intelligencer three, Bakelite two, while Meads and Corbins have yet to earn a point.

The Odds-Intelligencer game was rough and rugged with plenty of penalties incurred. It descended to Doug Murray of the losers and majors to Bill Louis and Junior Day for fighting.

Shaker Baker spearheaded the winner's attack with a hyper of goals, while one each went to Jack Hanna, Shorty Smith, Webber, Kelly and Canning. Gord St. Louis was tops in defeat with three goals while Doug Murray netted one.

Lorne Maracle had two goals for Point Anne as they won their third game in as many starts. Gord Green, Mont Bradshaw, Bruce Gray, Pat Maracle and Jack Stewart completed the scoring. Allen fired a pair for Bakelite with coach Ray Lucas getting the other.

Pimlico Sees $200,000 Race

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pimlico envisaged today a race for $200,000 by two-year olds in its 1958 Futurity.

The winner would pick up a cheque for between $125,000 and $150,000 on the basis of Pimlico's forecast figures. They are based on the fact that Pimlico is doubling its contribution to the pot from $35,000 to $50,000 starting in 1957 and the rate of increase in nominations.

Pimlico estimates its Futurity next year will gross close to $100,000 and $175,000 in 1957. This year's grossed $79,350 with the winning Nail taking $67,980.

Maintain Lead In Quebec League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shawinigan Falls Cataracts kept their 13 - point lead in Quebec Hockey League senior competition while Trois-Rivieres Lions and Montreal Royals traded decisions.

Shawinigan Falls edged the third place Chicoutimi Saguenens 2-1 Saturday at Chicoutimi while the Lions upset third-place Montreal Royals on their own den Saturday and lost 3-1 at Montreal Sunday.

The Montreal victory ended a five-game winning streak for the Royals. Chicoutimi is 18 points behind the Cataracts while the Lions lie fourth, ahead of the idle Quebec Aces.

Broadway at Mid-Way Mark Of Greatest Season in Years

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Broadway, quickly closed. This year there now at the mid-way mark in has been 16—and only four have a season of record success, is finding prosperity puzzling—and perplexing.

The big delight: boxoffice grosses nearing an all-time mark of $1,000,000 a week.

The big power: how to find room for other shows.

Main reason for such a dilemma is the exceptional series of remarkable dramatic offerings which have arrived on the Great White Way since September. The trade doesn't recall such a brilliant surge of activity in many moons.

"When the hunts have to stay out of town for weeks and weeks and then take only an interim booking, the theatre jam is bad indeed," one veteran said.

He referred to the Lindsay-Crouse comedy "The Great Sebastians," which stars Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. The show comes into the Ania Jan. 5 amid hopes that some other theatre will become available before its 4½-week lease expires. Another show is already booked to move into the Ania then.

Although the current wave of boxoffice hits has emphasized the problem, the housing squeeze has been developing for several years.

Smaller houses no longer provide enough revenue to pay the mounting costs of show production—so are torn down for garages. Conversely, some of the larger houses have been rented to television networks for studios by landlords tired of gambling on finding a successful show for a tenant.

Conspicuous in the boxoffice upswing this year is the rise in popularity of serious drama. Last season seven serious dramas arrived through mid-December—and five failed.

NO MELODRAMA

The winning list is a glowing invitation to holiday theatre-going. It includes such outstanding items as "A View From the Bridge," "The Diary of Anne Frank," "Tiger at the Gates" and "A Hatful of Rain"—impressive competitors for prize consideration later.

While think pieces have been the main lure for ticket buyers, comedy hasn't been neglected with such worthy arrivals as "No Time for Sergeants," "The Matchmaker" and "Janus."

Oddly enough there's not yet a good melodrama, and neither of the new musical comedies—"The Vamp" and "Pipe Dream"—compare with such early season offerings of last year, "The Boy Friend," "Peter Pan" and "Fanny."

LONDON (AP)—Miss Vok, 15-year-old Dutch schoolgirl, bettered the world mark for the 400-yard individual medley event Saturday when her second world record in two days.

The Hilversum, Holland, girl clocked 5:19.5 for the swim at an international meet at London's Isleworth baths. There is no official world record for the women's 400 yards medley but the previous best time was 5:18.6 set by Shelley Mae of Washington.

Sam Goldwyn One of Toughest Men in Cut-Throat Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What pleases Sam Goldwyn, he figures, will please most people.

And maybe he's got something. In 40 years of making movies he has managed to turn out more fine films, collect more news clippings, get more controversies, and bank more millions than any other creator in Hollywood. He is one of the toughest men in a cut-throat business.

Goldwyn rose from immigrant boy to become probably the richest man in Hollywood. At 73, the giant appears to have lost little of his fight. He spent $3,500,000 of his own money to produce a film version of the Broadway hit, "Guys and Dolls." Because he cannot brook outside interference, he has financed his own films for 38 years. He is the only movie producer who does so—and one of the few who has suffered.

GOLDWYNISMS UNTRUE

Goldwyn has gone through dozens of publicity chiefs in his long career. One of them explained the high mortality rate: "Goldwyn squeezes minds the way Rose gave at juice stands squeeze oranges. He doesn't discard the rind; it just blows away."

One of the chiefs of his publicists was to attempt to separate Goldwyn from what came to be known as Goldwynisms. These unfuriate Goldwyn.

"They are liars!" he snaps, "I never in my life said 'include me out.' Il was dreamed up by two columnists."

Many others doubtless are spurious, like "this atom bomb is dynamite"; "anybody who would see a psychiatrist should have his head examined"; "an oral agreement isn't worth the paper it's written on."

B re are some originals. Re- Oscar for "The Best cei Our Lives"; Goldwyn pro long list connected with the movie business; and michael." He meant Hoagy. He once told a press conference that the double feature "is as dead as a doughnut"

Several months ago, Goldwyn invited the cream of Hollywood society to a dinner in honor of the visiting Field Marshal Montgomery. After a lengthy speech, he introduced his guest as "Marshal Field Montgomery."

SAW POSSIBILITIES

The producer was born Samuel Goldfish in the Jewish section of Warsaw, Poland, Aug. 27,1882. He says he recalls little of his first 12 years, before he arrived in New York.

His knack for salesmanship was first directed at the glove business. As a young man, he was earning $15,000 a year. But he couldn't stay away from the nickelodeons.

"I saw immense possibilities in the movie business," he says. "I just wanted to get into it."

At that time he was married to the sister of Jesse Lasky, a corner player who had become a vaudeville producer. Goldfish, Lasky, Cecil B DeMille and lawyer Arthur S. Friend put in $5,000 apiece to form a film company.

The firm sent DeMille west to find sunshine in which to make "The Squaw Man" in 1913. The director found it in a village called Hollywood, Calif., and brought forth his film. It started the famous trek to the road to millions.

CHANGED HIS NAME

Fiercely independent, Goldfish went on to form Goldwyn Pictures Corp., combining his name with those of his partners, Edgar and Arch Selwyn. He liked the company's name so well that he adopted it for his own.

In 1923, he sold his company and moved to a village called Culver City Studio to the new combine which was called Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer But independent Sam did not go with the merger. He formed another company, Samuel Goldwyn Inc.

In his 30 years as king of the independents, Goldwyn has made many bad pictures, but also an uncommon number of great ones. His formula: Select talented people and

Another Club Quits Hockey

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — Still smarting from their ninth loss in 13 Porcupine Mines Senior Hockey League starts only hours earlier, Kirkland Lake Tecks Sunday night announced their withdrawal from the hockey circuit for the rest of the season.

The club had been blasted 16-2 by Timmins - Schumacher Flyers before the home folks earlier in the day.

Limited finances, lack of a player reserve and a lack of patronage at home games were given as the reasons for the withdrawal of the club by president Ken Billings. Tecks had only 13 players and all previous efforts to secure additional manpower had failed.

The club was fourth in the six-team league, only two points behind Kapuskasing Beavers.

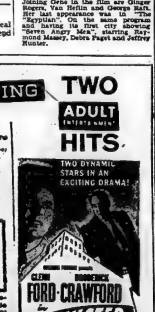
Gil St. Pierre was the devastating Flyers' attack with five goals. Gordie Warner had three, Dennis Morello two, and Steepe, Prentice, Trevenna and Crochini one each. Don Bennett got both Teck goals.

Clarkson Whips Queen's 88-58

POTSDAM, N.Y. (AP) — Dave Olmsted pumped in 40 points to set a Clarkson College basketball scoring record as the Knights defeated Queen's University of Kingston, Ont., 88-58 Saturday.

The six-foot junior forward from Montreal, Que., Canada, broke the previous high of 37 set by Hank Hodge, last coach and school athletic director.

Clarkson held a 44-32 lead at halftime. Dave Stone tallied 18 for Queen's.



AT THE CAPITOL — On Alert —Jeffrey Hunter plays a heroic role in Allied Artists' smashing drama, "Seven Angry Men", currently screening at the Capitol Theatre for its first showing with Raymond Massey and Debra Paget in co-starring roles. On the same program in Cinemascope by Color Deluxe "The Black Widow", starring Ginger Rogers, Gene Tierney, Van Heflin and George Raft.

AT THE McCARTHY — "The Night Holds Terror" for Hildy Parks and Lee Kotz in Columbia Pictures' suspense drama now at Odeon McCarthy Theatre, 2nd feature presents Broderick Crawford, Glenn Ford in the thrilling hit "Convicted."

AT THE CAPITOL — Gene Tierney is one of the surprise of stars in the thriller in color by De Luxe Lane holding forth on the Capitol Theatre. It's in the vein of her "Leave" smash. Joining Gene in the film are Ginger Rogers, Van Heflin and George Raft. Her last appearance was in "Black Widow" co-starring Van Heflin and Ginger and "Leave" co-starring Van Heflin and Raymond Massey, Debra Paget and Jeffrey Hunter.

The Kibitzer

In bridge you have your troubles. With fish that you could cook, by making foolish doubles, you let them off the hook.

A deal that came out is shown here:

NORTH
♠ A Q J 5 3 2
♥ Q 8 7
♣ A 5 4

WEST
♠ 9 7
♥ 9 7 5 4 3 2
♦ 10 8 5 2
♣ 10

EAST
♠ K 10 8 6
♥ J
♦ 8 7
♣ K Q J 9 7 3

♥ A K 10
♦ A K Q J 5 4
♣ 6 3 2

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 N-T	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♦	Double	6 ♠	Double
6 N-T	Pass	Pass	Double

In answer to an opening one bid, the no-trump takeout to two spades by north is promise of enough for game. It guarantees six tricks inclusive of two aces tricks.

Even if a little light, east could not be blamed for sticking in a lead-directing club bid. Although trumps are not yet decided, south has tricks enough to look for slam of some kind.

His four no-trump is signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he holds. Six clubs is Gordon convention reply for showing two aces and no kings. Small slam in diamonds is what south headed for.

North took li upon himself to prefer the slam in his spade suit.

With an almost certain defeat of six spades in his own hand, the east player should have closed the trap by shutting his trap.

South might have let north try it in six spades. But opponents had given warning that they could defeat either trump suit. So, the contract might have a chance at six no-trump and south went there.

Since north had announced holding the other two aces, there was no immediate fear from the opening lead that was anticipated. Maybe you can see how six no-trump makes. South did.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Goodness, if I'd known you were going to take pictures, I'd have worn my new dress."

Little Benny's Notebook

Mr. Peevy was carrying so things home from the mar wearing his sailer hat and his t coat with brass buttons, an used to walk with a cane. Did you ever work with a cir Mr. Peevy?

Well yes, for a short time, Peevy said, I was the top man a juman pyramid, with 3 below me standing on each sholders. I was the top man and I couldn't stand all that chi ing and applause, so I gave it and went ivory hunting on the Dark Continent for a while.

Was it hot? I said, and Peevy said, It was hot enough roast the bananas right on trees. They were delicious if picked them just at the right and not too ripe. Unripe is bad. But my hottest experience when the royal palace caught fire. At least they called it the ace, but it only only a grass on enter high and dry. It made look more royal than the other ones by low-grade palaces.

Was anybody in it? I said, Not that I know of, Peevy answered in it. She was leeing out the dow begging for help, though could hardly make out her fa full black figure inall the smo but I knew she'd make a good time. So I thought fast. I pi out 14 living young rats, professional tree climbers in coconut trade, and as soon as all I had them standing on other's shoulders, and I shi up that human pyramid and s the princess from a fate w than drowning. The king gave a solid ivory medal. Remind m show it to you sometime, be s And for a end in the house the grocerles.

SAY CANADA HAS FIRST OIL WELLS

Not content with the claim of a U.S. professor that the site of the "birthplace of the oil industry" is at Titusville, Penn., two Canadian researchers have produced more historic evidence that Oil Springs, Ont., deserves the title. J. J. Talman, left, historian of the University of Western Ontario, and Col. R. S. Harkness, former natural gas commissioner of Ontario, have delved into old records which, they believe, prove that the Oil Springs wells, operated by James Miller Williams in 1857, were the first commercially successful venture in history. In 1858, they say, Canada was supplying the U.S. with 15 per cent of its petroleum. (Central Press Canadian).

Clash Between Russian Papers Most Unusual

MOSCOW (Reuters)—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia clashed with the Communist party's newspaper Pravda Saturday, charging its views had been misrepresented by Pravda.

A special article in Izvestia headlined "Rejoinder" took exception to an editorial frontpaged in Pravda Friday in which the Communist party newspaper claimed an Izvestia correspondent showed a "superficial attitude" to corn growing by making the crop sound easy to grow.

Izvestia's reply suggested Pravda had quoted its correspondent out of context.

Such a clash between Russia's two most important officially-controlled newspapers is unusual, and an attack by another newspaper on Pravda is probably unprecedented.

DIES OF INJURIES

TORONTO (CP)—Wilfred Burch, 26, was fatally injured Friday night when thrown from his car in a collision.

USED NOOSE

ILFORD, England (Reuters)—A Church of England minister stuck his head into a noose erected from a crucifix in his church here Sunday night and asked his congregation to imagine a murderer's feelings while waiting on the scaffold to be hanged. The vicar, Rev. John Wesley Stone, was urging his congregation to press for the abolition of the death penalty.

SIGN TRADE AGREEMENT

MOSCOW (AP) — Sweden and Soviet Russia Friday signed a new trade protocol for 1956, continuing an agreement initiated last year. The Swedes will exchange industrial equipment, small ships and high-quality steel for Soviet oil and such other goods as coal, manganese, chrome and cotton. Specific figures were not announced.

FREE WAR CRIMINALS

TOKYO (AP)—The former allied powers today granted Japan permission to free three more major war criminals from Tokyo's Sugamo prison, the foreign office announced. The release, to be completed by Dec. 15, will leave only one major criminal in prison. Many top-ranking Japanese military and political figures were convicted after the war by the international military tribunal of the Far East.

DRI-KIL

SAVES AND MAKES YOU MONEY . . .

By keeping farm animals healthier—free from

75¢ LICE - TICKS - MITES!

Protect All Your Livestock Winter and Summer

Quick-acting DRI-KIL (containing Rotenone) is the most effective and safest insecticide known! When applied to cows, horses, cattle, sheep, poultry or hogs, DRI-KIL gets rid of all lice, ticks, mites, flies, gnats, without fail. DRI-KIL gives long-lasting protection, as winter, spring and summer reinfestation is impractical and sprays lose their effectiveness. Irritations spread quicker and do most damage. It is then that DRI-KIL shows itself to be in a class by itself, affording quick positive protection for all stock.

2 BOYS ARE DROWNED IN SULPHIDE POND

Intelligence Chief Otto John Flees To West Germany

After 16 Months With Reds He Again Makes Switch

BONN (AP)—Otto John, former chief of West German intelligence who fled to Communist East Germany 16 months ago, has returned to West Germany, the government announced today.

John has given himself up to West Germany's security police, the announcement said, and is being interrogated by the prosecutor of the German supreme court.

No further details were announced.

Reports from Berlin on Dec. 7 said John was under almost constant surveillance by Communist police who suspected he might be planning to return to the West.

How John managed to elude the cordon was not known.

He hailed to the Communists on July 20, 1954, the 10th anniversary of the bomb plot against Hitler in which he and his brother played prominent parts.

RED MASTER SPY

John's flight was a post-war German's greatest security scandal. Rueful allied officials pondered it and turned out to be Russia's master German spy.

Two months after he crossed by night into East Berlin he had visited in Washington with Allen Dulles, director of the United States' top-secret central intelligence agency. For 10 years he had curried favor with the British secret service.

John had been director of West Germany's Office for Protection of the Constitution. Its mission was to ferret out and expose Communist and Nazi plotting against the Bonn republic—work directly opposed not only with the security of the West German Republic but also of the 400,000 allied troops in the country.

After he joined the Communists publicly, John charged that Chancellor Adenauer's government was reviving fascism and militarism. He said the "common forum" he could find to combat this trend was in the Communist East.

Before today's unutional announcement he had been reported in the Potsdam, writing his memoirs and editorials for Communist publications.

MAN OF MYSTERY

It was believed that John had crossed over the same border checkpoint Hesse or Bavaria. Allied and German sources said they were certain he did not return via West Berlin.

John, who now is 46, was known as a personable, talented man who dealt in history for years. A heavy foot blonde, he always had a cloaking-and-dagger beat.

Prince Charles and Princess Anne Enjoy Hour-Long Visit With Santa

By MARY WATSON

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles and Princess Anne spent a wide-eyed hour Monday confiding their secret hopes for Christmas to Santa Claus and wrangling through a wonderland of toys.

The privacy, the first five-year-old sister were taking on their annual treat to the Queen's children of an expensive London store. There, amid sprawling acres of trees of all sizes, mauve and green representing an enchanted forest, they met Santa in the store's Santa Claus.

The Queen's children arrived without announcement soon after the store opened. The princess, in her fitted brown coat, and the prince, in a green suit, wandered unrecognized for a time, almost among the toys.

Princess Anne was fascinated, but from the look on his face Charles was obviously at an age to be critical about the fate of someone descending the chimneys of Buckingham Palace on Christmas Eve.

Santa Claus said later that what the royal children wanted in their stockings was "the same sort of thing as all lots of kiddies of their ages ask for, but I can't disclose what."

Anne dashed excitedly from counter to counter with delight. "She was enthralled by the clockwork trains—much more than Charles," said one salesman. "She spent several minutes helping me load tiny mail bags on a toy train and was fascinated by the signals."

Charles, meanwhile, was trying out friction cars and clockwork yachts with masts taller than himself and miniature dinner sets. After carefully studying the price tags he fumbled in his purse and made his decision—a gay clockwork penguin for six shillings.

Santa promised them a long time before an orchestra of mechanical chimpanzees and clapped their hands with delight at a seven-piece mechanical lion rolling passenger coaches behind it.

Then Charles went off on another buying spree. This time he tucked a miniature building set into his shopping bag and, caught up with his sister in the store's private zoo.

There they both called "hullo" to an aloof South American parrot, but on receiving no answer turned their attention to two playful sun bears.

A treat to serve such well-mannered children" commented a shop assistant.

THREE WORKMEN SCALDED TO DEATH IN HEATING PLANT

Steam from Ruptured Elbow Pipe Cause

OTTAWA (CP)—Escaping steam and water from a ruptured elbow pipe scalded to death three stationary engineers in the National Research Council's engineering establishment here Monday night.

The victims were Jean Seguin, 29, of Ottawa, Gerald Carriere, 31, of suburban Cyrville, Ont., and Ernest Hall, 50, who moved here from Peterborough 2½ months ago to join the council's staff. Seguin and Carriere had been council employees for eight years.

The explosion occurred at about 5 p.m. EST in the establishment's central steam heating plant where a recently installed boiler was being tested. Hall was standing by the boiler, the steam plant itself, housed in one of the 25 buildings of the council's east Ottawa establishment off the Montreal road where 800 persons are employed.

OTHER BUILDINGS OK

There was no damage to other buildings.

Seven other men in the 80-by-50 foot steam plant room escaped uninjured. An RNC official said the three victims apparently ran in the direction of the boiler feed room's three exits. It was almost impossible to see in the steam-filled room.

Liquor Board Stores to Close Boxing Day

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario liquor control board announced Monday all liquor and beer stores throughout the province will be closed Monday and Tuesday following Christmas and the Monday after New Year's.

The board said it does not plan to extend hours for Saturday sessions and outlets will retain their present schedules with one exception. Toronto store normally closed Saturdays will remain open Dec. 24 between Christmas and New Year's Eve.

AFFOINTS OFFICER

TORONTO (CP)—Labor Minister Daley announced Monday the appointment of a conciliation officer to attempt settlement of a contract dispute between the city of Hamilton and local 700, International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL/TLC). A. C. Dennis, a labor department conciliation officer, has been appointed to call a meeting of union and city officials, Mr. Daley said.

Suspect Cornered by Police In Cooksville Public School

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Frightened pupils of Cooksville public school Monday saw police men grappling with and finally subduing a suspect in the school corridor.

The capture in this town about 10 miles west of Toronto ended a chase in which several warning shots were fired by police.

Police said Howard Kramer of Bradford and Brantford was wanted for questioning in connection with a series of thefts in the Flamboro district 10 miles north of Hamilton and for escaping police custody there four months ago.

Provincial constable Elvin Willcie recognized the wanted man in a Cooksville barber shop Monday afternoon. He had attended Cobbs Public School, near Woodstock, with Kramer 15 years before.

Willcie said the man his name. It did not lift with that of his former schoolmate. The prisoner was left but in a few minutes returned with another constable and told the man they wanted to take him to the station for questioning.

The man said: "I've got other things to do," and ran out the door.

Police fired about 12 warning shots as they gave chase. Peel Township constable in a police car joined in the pursuit.

The man leaped back fences and ran a quarter-mile down Highway No. 10, entered the school and ran through to the back door where he was cornered by about 15 school high fences enclosing a yard.

He re-entered the school and was confronted by policemen. He pushed open a classroom door children screamed and he closed it.

The three policemen fought with him and finally got him handcuffed. He was not armed.

Sgt. Morley Hamilton of East Flamboro Township police went to Cooksville to take the prisoner. He said the last time he had seen Kramer was Aug. 29 when the 20-year-old constable jumped from a police cruiser while it was moving and escaped by commandeering a truck.

UN Truce Observers Press Probe of Bloody Border Raid

JERUSALEM (AP) — United Nations truce observers pressed their investigation today into Israel's raid on Syrian posts along the Sea of Galilee, one of the bloodiest Israeli-Arab battles since the 1948 Palestine war.

Reports of casualties in the attack Sunday night still are coming in. Israel claimed 35 Syrians killed and 29 captured and admitted four Israelis killed and 12 wounded. Syria said her losses were 25 dead and 28 missing, and Damascus radio claimed that 56 Israeli soldiers killed or wounded.

UN investigators this morning could report only a provisional figure of 41 Syrian dead, with Israeli casualties not determined.

A communique from the truce supervisory organization said its chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, Israel claimed 35 Syrians killed and 29 captured and admitted four Israelis killed and 12 wounded. Syria said her losses were 25 dead and 28 missing, and Damascus radio claimed that 56 Israeli soldiers killed or wounded.

UN investigators this morning could report only a provisional figure of 41 Syrian dead, with Israeli casualties not determined.

A communique from the truce supervisory organization said its chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, "has condemned in the strongest terms the unprovoked and premeditated attack which brought about such heavy loss of life." Burns expressed his sympathy for the wounded and the relatives of the dead."

Israel said about 300 of her troops made the attack to destroy the bases Syrian guerrilla bands used in harassing Israeli fishermen and police boats on the Biblical famed Sea of Galilee. Israel claims the entire lake — 13 miles long and eight miles wide — but Syria occupied eight miles of the northeast shore 32 feet back from the waterline. It is in this area that the attack was made.

Israel claimed that the attack spread abroad. Prime Minister Eden told the House of Commons in London Monday that the Arab-Israeli dispute is charged with "extreme danger."

"We are ready," Eden declared, "to carry out loyally with our allies any action necessary to assist Israel if she were attacked, or to assist an Arab country if attacked by Israel."

Tear Gas Used In Cyprus Riots

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—British troops used tear gas to throw tear-gas bombs today to break up demonstrations by Greek Cypriot students at the north coast Cyprus port of Kyrenia.

Nearly 250 students streamed from a Greek secondary school after refusing to take part in a protest against "illiberal laws," imposed by British authorities. They carried banners and shouted anti - British slogans and threw stones at police, who finally ordered them to disperse.

Police officers Monday visited Bishop Makarios in Kyrenia, a fervent nationalist, to inform him that his brother had been wounded in the shoulder. Renos Kyriakides, the bishop's brother, was arrested and charged in court Monday with the unlawful possession of a revolver—and receiving a maximum penalty of death under the island's state of emergency.

U.S. Colleges and Hospitals Will Share Half Billion Gift

NEW YORK (AP) — The Ford Foundation has disbursed $500,000,000 on privately supported "grants in history's greatest giving spree.

The huge gift, announced Monday, was divided as follows:

To $15 recipients, mainly private colleges and universities, primarily to help raise teachers' pay —$210,000,000.

To 3,500 privately supported medical schools—$90,000,000.

To 600 hospitals in 44 states, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico—$260,000,000.

To privately supported medical schools—$90,000,000.

Grants to the colleges and universities is in addition to $50,000,000 which the foundation gave the nounced last spring it would distribute to help raise teaching salaries.

Thirty-six colleges and universities received more than a million each. The largest gift—$5,000,000—went to New York University.

Other top gifts were: Cornell, $4,510,000, University of Chicago, $4,324,000, and Yale, $4,000,000. For hospitals, the gifts ranged down from $250,000 a sum awarded to 57 institutions.

The $90,000,000 for medical schools was divided on a formula broken into specific grants.

The giant program was given final approval by the foundation's board of trustees, headed by Henry Ford II, at a meeting last week-end. Recipients were notified by telegram and a number of institutions across the country at first thought the good news was a hoax.

The foundation was quietly recommended by medical and education leaders.

Harvard president Nathan Pusey called the grants a "splendid, imaginative effort to, strengthen higher education in America."

The special intent to improve faculty salaries—is unreservedly praiseworthy."

Chancellor Henry T. Heald of New York University stated: "The Ford Foundation has once again gratulated on recognizing in a dramatic way the great importance of teaching as a truly supported education."

Dr. Clarence B. Randall, president of the American Medical Association, and the American Hospital Association presidents describing the grants as "inspiring and "tremendous improvement in hospital facilities for the nation."

The foundation parcelled its funds among college roughly in proportion to their size. Each college's rolls for instruction in the liberal arts and sciences. The total of each grant is to be paid next July 1, and the remainder a year later.

Medical schools will get $150,000,000 more than all the foundation's assets. Sixteen years ago this was valued at $133 a share for estate tax purposes, putting the foundation's worth at about half a billion.

However, the foundation recently announced plans to sell a portion of its holdings to build capital figure the market price to be brought up. Such stock will boost foundation's worth to $2,000,000,000.

BLIZZARD RAGES ACROSS PRAIRIES, ONE KNOWN DEAD

Scores of Children Spent Night in Schools

REGINA (CP)—The first known death in a blizzard raging on the Prairies was reported today as spearheads of drifting and driving snow thrust eastward into Manitoba.

Four other persons were reported missing, one of them a six-year-old boy who left a Regina school at the height of the storm and didn't reach home.

Highways were closed, buses stalled, planes grounded and trains slowed as winds reaching 70 miles an hour hounded the crops from under temperatures and whipped blinding snow across Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Inspector R. J. McCombe, officer commanding the North Battleford RCMP sub-division, was found dead Monday night in his automobile in car in northwestern Saskatchewan.

DIED FROM FUMES

A search party said he apparently had been keeping his car running while waiting for rescue and died from carbon monoxide fumes.

Scores of children spent the night in schools or nearby homes in rural Saskatchewan and Alberta, waiting out a storm that showed little sign of diminishing.

Fall Through Ice While Skating With 10 Others

John Akey, Peter Armstrong Victims of Water Tragedy

TWEED — An after-supper skating party for a dozen school children at the Nichols Chemical Company Ltd. plant at Sulphide, eight miles east of here was turned into tragedy Monday evening when two boys broke through thin ice and drowned in eight feet of water.

The bodies were recovered half an hour later but artificial respiration by provincial police, forest rangers and volunteers who worked without letup for nearly four hours was without success.

Drowned in the artificial pond near the Sulphide chemical plant were John Akey, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Akey, and Peter Armstrong, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Armstrong. Both of the boys' fathers work at the chemical plant.

Eye witnesses of the tragedy were Jean Akey, sister of the first named boy, and Peter Armstrong, brother of the second. They told how the boys were at the far end of the pond when they broke through thin ice and disappeared into the icy water. The boys fought desperately to cling to broken ice but they disappeared before aid could reach them.

SKATING ON POND

The boys had left their homes in the village shortly after seven o'clock to skate on the artificial pond which provides water for the nearby chemical plant. At the time about 10 other local children and their school teacher, Marvin Walker, 25, principal of the Sulphide school.

The two boys were chasing a puck a short distance away from the other skaters when they broke through the ice.

The alarm was immediately raised and hockey sticks, ladders and poles were shoved out to the boys threshing in the open water but none could reach them in time and they disappeared beneath the water as their numbed fingers let go.

Connie Armstrong, 12, sister of one of the drowned boys, risked her life in an effort to save her brother. She crept as near to the edge of the broken ice as she could and shoved out her hockey stick. "I just couldn't reach far enough," she cried later at her home.

Another sister, Frances, age 8, ran home to tell her mother that Peter had fallen into the pond. Her mother, the boys' school teacher, also tried desperately to save the brothers. She tore off his skates and in his rescue efforts broke through the ice and into the water.

ENTIRE VILLAGE AROUSED

By this time the entire village was aroused and garden rakes, boathooks and poles appeared as if by magic.

Headlights from a dozen cars lined up on the roadway which skirts the pond were beamed onto the rescue operations. Police officers and other volunteers went out in boats used garden rakes to drag the bottom of the pond.

About half an hour after the accident the bodies of the two boys were found near the shore. They were taken to the nearby home of Mrs. H. G. Knapp and artificial respiration was started immediately under the direction of Provincial Const. Tweed. Two immediately under the direction readiness to rush the boys to hospital.

Working in relays teams of provincial police, forest rangers from Tweed and other volunteers strove to revive the two boys.

They refused to give up believing there might still be a spark of life. Finally shortly before midnight, Dr. Blair said further efforts would be useless.

ARTIFICIAL POND

The pond in which the two Sulphide boys met death is an artificial one built by Nichols Chemical to provide water for plant operations. It is roughly 100 feet across. Due to a scarcity of water after the water is used in the plant it is pumped back into the pond for re-use.

It is this return of water to the pond which makes it suitable for skating until after there has been a long stretch of cold weather. The water is warm when it is returned to the pond and this is said to keep the ice dangerous.

The ice at one end of the pond is said to have been safe but was treacherous at the other end and the children had been warned to stay away from that section. Police were unable to say whether any warning signs were posted but noted that for years children of the village had skated on the pond. There will be no inquest.

SELDOM SAFE FOR SKATING

"The ice on the pond is seldom safe to skate on," the grandfather of one of the dead boys said "And I've lived here all my life."

Mrs. Armstrong said this was the second time which Peter had gone through the ice this winter. The first occasion was on a pond outside the village and the lad suffered only wet clothes.

The Armstrong boy is survived by his parents, three sisters and one brother. The Akey boy is survived by his parents, his brother and a sister.

John Akey was in the fifth grade at Sulphide school directly across the road from his home. Peter Armstrong was in fifth grade.

"I don't feel much like celebrating Christmas this year," Mrs. Armstrong said as she mourned the loss of her eldest son, "but I suppose we must for the sake of the other children."

Ocean Water Could Become Fuel Akin to Kind of Super-Gasoline

CLEVELAND (AP)—The world's ocean water could become a fuel resource akin to a kind of superpowerful gasoline, Lawrence Kane the H - bomb reaction for peaceful uses, says a scientist who has played a key role in the American atomic program.

Dr. Clarence E. Larson, until recently director of the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge national laboratory, declared that the deuterium, or "heavy" hydrogen, in ordinary water packs more energy "than you could obtain from the equivalent volume of gasoline."

"If you can visualize all of the oceans of the world turned into gasoline," he said, "you have a rough idea of the potential energy reserve if we can but harness the thermonuclear (H - bomb) reaction."

The AEC has said that if man learns to tame the H-bomb "fusion" reaction, deuterium would be a likely fuel in applying the peaceful power of the atom.

Larson, now vice-president in charge of research for the National Carbon Company, spoke Monday night at an American Chemical Society meeting here.

He said that when the "nitrogen explosion" of the hydrogen H-bomb reaction were referred to at the opening of the Geneva atoms conference last summer by an Indian scientist, "the uranium boys glanced covertly at each other—New York stock exchange."

AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss has insisted, however, that even if the H-bomb reaction is tamed for peaceful uses there still will be a market for power furnished by uranium because of the world's ever-increasing energy needs.

Salmon Eggs To Be Planted

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Indians in the Hudson bay region will receive a bumper Christmas gift of 70,000 fish eggs.

The lands and forests department announced today the Pacific pink salmon eggs will be planted this winter in the Hudson bay area to provide a food source and, possibly, a new industry for the Indians, who now are mainly trappers.

City Buttermaker Sets Fine Record In Competition

Congratulations are being received by Mr. Wm. Consaul of the Belleville Creameries, for his fine record in the season's competitions of the Ontario Creamerymen's Association. The competitions include all buttermakers who have all their butter graded during the season from May 1st to October 31st.

In this year's competition Mr. Consaul had the following all - round showing:

Seventh place in the butter quality competition, with 100% of the butter being first grade, 0.63 being of 33 score, or "better than first grade" minimum.

Seventh place in the year and mould competitions, which is an indication of the strict sanitation maintained in the plant for the whole season.

Ninth place in the combined competition.

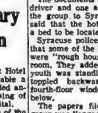
And, finally, first place for most improved showing over the previous highest score since 1951.

In addition to this showing, the Trenton Dairy Institute under ownership of Mackenzie Robertson of Belleville, won honorable mention, in the butter quality competition and in the yeast and mouldcounting.

OTHER HONORS

Other district creameries figuring in the honors of the Ontario Creamerymen's competitions were the following:

Trent Valley-Creameries, Campbellford, with an 8th prize in the combined competitions, 12th prize in workmanship, and honorable mention in butter quality and yeast and mould competitions.



Riverside Dairy, Trenton, with honorable mention in the yeast and mould competition.

Colborne Creamery of Bancroft, honorable mention in yeast and mould.

Colborne Creamery, honorable mention in yeast and mould and workmanship.

Stirling Creamery, also honorable mention for yeast and mould.

Mr. Harold West of the Stirling Creamery was elected president of the Association at its convention in Toronto this month.

MRS. NORA EVA WESCOTT
(Stirling)

One of the most active and respected members of her community, Mrs. Nora E. Wescott of Stirling, died in the Belleville hospital today.

She had lived in Stirling all her life. Mrs. Wescott was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds. Her husband, Fred Wescott, died in 1944. She had, some time ago, retired from her descendants as a shoe merchant but still continued to take part in her many and varied community activities. She was a member of St. Paul's United Church in Stirling and was the church's Sunday school for over 30 years, while her many contributions to church work can hardly be highlighted by her 30 years as secretary-treasurer of the Women's Association. She also was a member of the W.M.S., Loyal Rebekah Lodge, 211; Belleville Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, No. 53, and the Belleville Canadian Club.

Mrs. Wescott's death ended an illness of a year.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Nina Gibson, Stirling.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Great Lakes iron ore shipments during the 1957 season totalled 87,450,853 tons, highest since 1953, the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association reported Saturday. Shipments in totalled 184,390 tons in December, compared with only 17,644 tons in December, 1956.

Work of Corps Subject of Talk To Rotarians

Guest speaker to Belleville Rotarians yesterday was Col. William Davidson, chief secretary for the Canadian Territory of the Salvation Army.

Col. Davidson chose the work of the Salvation corps as his subject to tell his audience that whatever part of the earth is travelled there is the Salvation Army, well-informed and uniformed, whose grand glory it is to be of service to God and fellowmen."

He was introduced by Capt. Alf Dixon, R.A. and thanked by Rev. Ralph Middleton.

A diverting 15 minutes was provided by two companions of Col. Davidson, Capt. Ernie Parr and Capt. Ken Rawlings, who entertained the audience with cornet and piano-accordion duets.

Suit Entered Against Hotel And Newspaper

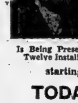
UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—The mother of a 13-year-old Canadian boy who was fatally injured in an 80-foot drop from the window of a Syracuse hotel filed a $125,000 suit in federal court here Monday.

Attorneys for the papers filed the mother alleges the Hotel Onondaga and newspaper in the arrangement of beds in a room and that a Belleville, Ont., newspaper was negligent in allowing the publication of a group of children it sent to Syracuse.

The suit was filed by Doris G. Parks as administratrix of the estate of Frederick Clarke Jr., who died April 4, 1954, as a result of injuries received March 13, 1954.

The child was a member of a group who made the Syracuse trip as a reward for "outstanding" work as carriers of newspapers published by the Belleville Intelligencer Ltd. of Belleville.

HOTEL ALSO NAMED



That the Hotel Onondaga Estay Hotel Corp., operator of the Yates Hotel, were named in the suit.

The document charged that a bus driver and one adult accompanied the group to Syracuse. They also said that the hotel had permitted a bed to be located near a window, Syracuse penal law 1171 for which that some of the boys in the group "were frequently bouncing" in the hotel room. They added that the Clarke child was standing on a bed and toppled backward through the fourth-floor window to the street below.

The papers filed here said the boy "engaged in water pistol fights, pillow fights, wrestling and other play to the knowledge of the hotel staff."

SEEKS $55,000

TORONTO (CP)—A 13-year-old girl, Pamela Todd, injured last winter while taking figure-skating lessons, seeks $55,000 damages from suburban Leaside Skating Club. George William Dodd, acting for his daughter's behalf, claimed $50,000 for her and $5,000 for himself as a result of hearing Monday before Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Marketing Policy of Hog Producers Outlined by Pres.

What the Ontario Hog Producers' Association and its marketing agency have done for hog producers in Ontario and what it hopes to do in the future, was outlined to members of the Hastings county hog producers at their annual meeting held in Stirling Monday.

Association president Chas. Hastings told a small representation of producers that ultimately the organization hopes to be able to arrange sales and direct delivery of all hogs in Ontario and to packing houses.

At the present time the marketing agency handles sales of Ontario hogs but has been unsuccessful in directing delivery of more than 10 per cent. The other 90 per cent are delivered to packing houses before they are purchased.

This, according to Mr. McInnis, puts the marketing agency in a "competitive" field.

In a move to clear up the legality of contracts and prices in marketing act, the producers' association is having the matter argued before the Supreme Court of Canada. With a decision in their favor the producers marketing agency would be able to direct delivery of all Ontario hogs sold to packing plants.

The agency's right to direct delivery is one of the points in the marketing act being questioned.

MAINTAIN PRICE

The association spokesman for the annual meeting, Mr. McInnis reviewed the position of the producers' association declaring that the marketing agency had to a certain extent been able to maintain the price of hogs despite a surplus of production.

The country had lost its export to England but had been able to export some 60 million pounds of pork so far this year to the United States. This had been done despite the fact the Canadian domestic price was roughly ten cents per pound over the price in the States.

Also the Ontario price of from 23½ to 23 cents per pound was $3.30 per cwt. above the Calgary market and $4.77 per cwt. paid for the Edmonton market.

"This did not just happen," pointed out Mr. McInnis. "It happened because the agency has experienced salesmen working in the interests of producers."

Referring to the present surplus of pork production, Mr. McInnis said such surplus could be met with inter-provincially or on a national basis. For this reason it was necessary for strict hog producer associations in all provinces.

"We have got to find a way to handle surpluses to the advantage of the producer," he said. "In the past surpluses have been handled by trade in its advantage."

Commenting on amendments to the farm products marketing act which would allow hog producers to go further than the field of dicreding sales, the speaker noted the agency proposes to set up sectional stockyards across Ontario. These would be situated in Windsor, Stratford, London, Barrie, Peterborough and in Eastern Ontario at strategic points.

Collection of hogs at these stockyards would put packing houses in the position that they would have to bid on the hogs before receiving them at their packing plants.

Mr. McInnis said the bargaining position of the producer was as good as that of the packer if the hogs were collected at a central point. It would be unnecessary to unload all hogs at these central points as long as they were listed.

Roscoe Robson, MLA for Hastings East, said some kind of a national hog marketing scheme was necessary.

He referred to the possibility of another vote of producers being asked for before producers embarked on any larger scheme. Hogs should be sold on system similar to that of cheese exchanges. The only way to get a competitive price is to have all hogs sold over a producers' board.

He said that farmers must look forward to manufacturing more of their own products.

W. E. Tummon, association director referred to the falling off of hog grades since the loss of the English market, but at the same time pointed out that high quality was also needed for the domestic market.

He said Canadian pork was able to be exported to the U.S.A. because its quality was higher than that of American pork. This alone proves the argument for higher quality," he said.

LUNCH PERIOD

A spirited question period followed with questions pertaining to grades received at packing plants and shrinkage of hogs during transportation.

It was pointed out that grading was a government responsibility but any check grading by producers would mean an additional levy.

Mr. McInnis felt government graders were trying to do a good job but noted anyone could make a mistake.

Barton Haggerty, Hungerford township, was auditor president of the County association, succeeding Ernest McCoy who had held the post for two years. Vice president Bruce Robinson and secretary treasurer Gordon Bailey were re-turned to office.

Directors elected were David Hollinger, Sidney; Gerald Tummon, Thurlow; Hec Lazier, Tyendinaga; Don Heath, Rawdon; Elmer Wood, Huntingdon; W. E. Tummon, Hungerford; Ross Moorcroft, Madoc; and Wilbur Jones, Marmora.

IN MEMORIAM

DOOLITTLE. — In loving memory of our dear son, Bruce Doolittle, who passed away December 13th, 1952.
Four years have passed since the day
The one I loved was taken away
God took him home, it was His will
But in our hearts he lives still.
—Ever remembered by sister Marguerite.

DOOLITTLE. — In loving memory of my dear son, Bruce Doolittle, who was called away December 13th, 1952.
His memory is our keepsake,
With which we will never part;
God took him in His wisdom,
He has him in His heart.
We have days and nights of yearning,
Fondly loved and dearly mourned.
—Mother.

CAR DRIVERS—GET IN SHAPE

"Three times around the track."

That's what the football coach says when his players are short on condition.

Hon. J. N. Allan might be tempted to take a leaf out of the football coach's book if he had a suitable track. All he needs is a mile or so of snow-covered highway—he can roll one out in November and then he could order that all motorists go into training for the winter months. Even once around the track might condition them for the months ahead. There might come a time when the first snowfall of the year would come without a weary traffic constable saying: "It's the same old story every year. The snow comes and the drivers don't know how to cope with it. It'll be better after this, though."

Until we can go into fall training for the winter driving season, it behooves us drivers to realize that we are out of practice and that no amount of summer-time driving on clear, dry pavements equips one to handle a car on snow-covered or icy winter roads.

Most of us mentally make a note of the condition of the road when the first snow falls and decide that we will drive cautiously. This we proceed to do, with a feeling of self-satisfaction at our commendable sense and triumph in our safe progress, until the first occasion on which we are faced with the necessity of making a quick stop. Then we suddenly discover that a snow-covered road is twice as slippery as we remembered it.

If we escape without a banged-up fender, we know that we have been more lucky than skillful. After that, as the weary traffic constable observes, things do better.

It would be nice, though, if we could discover a way to make them better before they get worse, to go Irish for a sentence.

COSTLY CHANGE-MAKING

What this country needs is not so much a good five-cent cigar as a return to the days when a nickel or a dime did not need assistance in purchasing anything.

There is no sense in the current demand for cents when purchasing a variety of articles.

Down in Windsor school children without the exact seven cents for their bus fare will be charged a dime in order to economize. It is hoped, there would otherwise be "too much fumbling" for change.

Making change on a bus can certainly be annoying, can delay service and can prove costly. At the same time, the bus company will be losing a rather big bonus, every 40 per cent, when it charges a dime for a seven-cent ride.

If it costs time, and money, to change a dime on a bus, it appears reasonable that it costs time and money for one needs to purchase a soft drink or a package of cigarets also involve a lot of change fumbling which is expensive, to customer and merchant alike.

Why cannot those firms manufacturing these goods devise some means by which we can get back to the days when a copper was not a necessity, except for use in parking meters?

In many cases there would appear no reason why the size of the article purchased could not be adjusted to make the price come out to even nickels.

CHEESE PRECEDENT

Reeve James H. Sprackett of Tudor and Cashel townships, who is completing his term as Warden of Hastings County, has been presented with a five-pound stilton cheese.

One would like to think that this gift had been tendered solely as the result of the recognition of the superiority of old cheese over other compliments, which are all too often all a retiring warden, reeve or mayor gets at the end of his term of service. However, it appears that the presentation of the cheese sprung from the dearth of cattle in Tudor and Cashel, which Reeve Sprackett remarked earlier in the session that one of these municipalities has only five milch cows.

That leaves a fine point. Is a man who represents a municipality which is overrun with cows to be deprived of the cheese of office? If so, may he not conceive the possibility of a substitute? What is to prevent him from remarking on the absence of any oyster beds in his township, the rarity of olive trees, the remarkable fact that not one brewery is located within the bounds of the municipality or that it so happens that not a single automobile factory can be discovered in any nook or cranny of the entire county?

KEEPING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

Hon. Bryan L. Cathcart, Ontario Minister of Travel and Publicity, recently said that every dollar spent on advertising and promoting Ontario is bringing back more than $250 to tourists.

A contemporary comments that, if this is so, it is "the sort of percentage return on money invested that is the dream of every captain of high finance, the country over."

There is no good reason to doubt Mr. Cathcart's figures. At the same time there is no reason for feeling guilty about the high returns on the dollar invested in advertising. This is not a case of reaping an exorbitant profit. The $250 which we obtain for every dollar spent in advertising is not profit but gross income. In most cases we give the tourist good value for his money. If the profit is higher than in many other lines of economic activity, it is not because the visitor is short-changed on value, but because our cost of production of the type of goods a tourist wants, good fishing, grand scenery, new sights and new friends, is remarkably low.

THE FRIEND

He had no splendid gift to make,
Or so thought he,
But many an extra step he'd take
A friend to be.

Whenever he could helpful be
His course was laid.
He never spared the strength which he Could spend for aid.

From what of others' need he knew
He never hid.
The tasks which he had power to do
He gladly did.

He played the friend to poor and weak
Braved rain and cold
To do the service some men seek
To buy with gold.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 13, 1923

Bruce Wilson, son of Dr. J. M. Wilson, Foster Avenue, and a fourth form student at the Collegiate and Vocational School, was elected representative to the Boys' Parliament for this district at a meeting held at the local "Y" on Saturday. He will attend the meeting of the Boys' Parliament which will assemble in the Provincial Legislature Building in Toronto on December 28 and will be in session until December 31. He is well known as an amateur orator of ability and has taken part in several contests here and in Toronto. In 1933 he won the lower school debating championship in Toronto.

At the supper meeting of the members of the Hi-Y Club which was held in the "Y" following the gym. and swim period on Saturday evening, the following officers were elected: president, Jack Dickens; vice president, J. Boyle; secretary, M. Clare; educational and religious chairman, R. H. Hanson; social and intellectual chairman, H. Monteith; membership chairman, G. Atyeo; foreign work chairman, M. Mitchell. The executive committee will be composed of the elected officers along with Mr. J. E. Sherrit and Mr. Ralph Morden.

Merchants and several citizens will co-operate in decorating the streets for the Christmas season.

A large Christmas tree, brilliantly lighted, will be erected on the triangle plot in front of the Rotary Club; Kiwanis Club will decorate the bridges and the Kinsmen Club the trees on the up town parks and boulevards. The city council and the Hydro Commission will also assist the decorators in obtaining a display worth while.

WANTED, a ten thousand dollar snow job. This is what the local merchants would like to have happen immediately, so as to snow makes the season seem more like Christmas and people feel more like buying. Without snow, merchants say that business lags, when we have snow business is excellent right up to Christmas Day. However, they say business has not been too bad — in fact quite good, but snow would make much better.

30 YEARS AGO

December 13, 1923

Mr. and Mrs. D. Herbert and Mrs. Patterson of Rochester, N. Y., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Salisbury, Cedar Street.

Mr. R. J. Graham left today on a business trip to Detroit, Windsor.

Mr. Jack Denmark of Kalkaska, formerly of Belleville, city, is visiting friends here.

At a meeting of the members of Quinte Chapter, Royal Arch Lodge No. 274, the following officers were elected for 1924: Comp. past master, Peter Murray; worshipful master, Cassiel Rinkoff; deputy master, A. E. Easton; chaplain, Rev. A. L. Geen; recording secretary, Everett Brindle; financial secretary, George Hay; treasurer, Wm. Robinson; marshal, Wesley Merritt; first lecturer, Fraser Paul; second lecturer, George Easton; committeeman in order given, T. A. Burit, D. M. Farrell, J. H. Hannon, Percy Reid and Delos Sparks; auditors, D. M. Farrell and Everett Bell.

40 YEARS AGO

December 13, 1915

At a meeting of the city council the following were appointed to be permanent members of the fire brigade: Fire chief, Archibel, W. J. Brown; firemen, Robert J. Symons, W. Lynch, James Clement, Harry Reeves, Gilbert Symons, T. D. Hartley, George Smith; drivers, S. Wadsell, J. P. Clarke and W. Morey.

Mr. D. Adna Brown of Philadelphia, Pa., spent a few days here this week with his mother at her home on Coleman Street.

The editor of the Daily Ontario is very grateful to Bro. James of the Bowmanville Statesman for the following very complimentary deference: "Editor J. O. Herity of the Daily Ontario, Belleville, has proved himself a splendid interviewer and a keen reporting critic, rather than judge by the intensely instructive articles he has recently given of the cities and towns he visited last month to get at first hand the people's testimony on the working of local option."

A new pipe organ, which cost $10,000, is being installed in St. Michael's Church here this week.

Mr. William Carnew, County Crown Attorney of Prince Edward, very generously donated unconditionally an extra fifty tons of horses to Col. Adams of the 155th. Battalion which will be mobilized in this city. It is needless to say that the gift is much appreciated and that the donor has been heartily thanked for the same.

50 YEARS AGO

December 13, 1905

Considerable damage was done by fire about three o'clock this morning at the residence of Sheriff Gordon Clarke on the southeast corner of Bleecker Avenue and Bridge Street. Col. A. A. Farley of Quebec City is the owner of the building. Loss by tenant and owner is covered by insurance.

Belleville Lodge NNoN.N

Belleville Lodge No. 251 Ancient Order of United Workmen recently elected the following officers: J. A. McCamon, W. M.; S. S. Peck, foreman; W. C. Mason, overseer; George Denmark, recorder; H. J. Clarke, treasurer; W. O. Adams, financier; W. G. Conniniam, guide; J. Canning, inside watchman; trustees—J. H. Moon, J. W. London and E. L. Palen.

The skating rink will open this evening with the band in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sargent of Bancroft are in the city today enroute to Cuba where Mr. Sargent has large interests. They will spend a few days here with friends before continuing their journey.

To bring to mind former well known residents of Belleville (now in 1955) the following from our file copy of this time in 1895: "At the annual meeting of Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, which was held last evening, the following officers were elected: John McCaugherty, chief; Alex McGie, chieftain; Allan McFee, chaplain; A. Milne, secretary; William McIntosh, financial secretary; John McKenna, marshal; Wm. Waters, standard bearer; Archibald Urquhart, senior guard; William Irving, junior guard; Dr. A. E. MacColl, physician; trustees—Thomas Sinclair, Donald Waters and Allan McFee; William McIntosh, piper; auditors, William Sutherland and William Sneath."

Do Not Know Capital's Name

(Milwaukee Journal)

Only three governments recognize Outer (Mongolia as a nation: The Soviet Union and India.

How seriously has "recognition" by India affected Outer Mongolia is indicated by the fact that the well informed Indian diplomats at the UN said the Indian delegation is not searching through documents in the name of the capital to which their ambassador had been accredited in Mongolia.

This is not surprising since 60 percent of the "republic" is composed of the Gobi desert and the rest of sparsely settled steppe lands. In any case India has recognized Outer Mongolia merely to form than in substance—New Delhi merely accredited its Russian ambassador to Peiping to the Outer Mongolian People's Republic as well.

Letter To The Editor

Plight of Farmers Seen as Disturbing

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,
Your many constructive editorial references to the perennial problems of the farmers, tempt me to take a hand, primarily to send the following authoritative pictures where they will catch the attention of your busy city readers:

(a) — Farmers men know, in this country farm prices have dropped 37 per cent—fourth since the Korean War peaks, while the prices paid by farmers have come down somewhat less. (b) — (Private) an address on "Men and Machines" by Hon. Clifford Hope, Secretary Ezra Benson, at New Orleans, La.); and,

(b)—Certain farmers are in dire financial straits: their collective net income last year was less than half what it was in 1953, and less than a third of what it was at the high point of 1951. If rising farm living costs are taken into account, the decline for 1941, net farm income in 1954 was lower than in any year since 1938 — Urban Canada in the three prairies is augmented quickly—the succeeding four years will make up—the whole country will feel the effects of prairie distress, and feel them a little later." (Extracted from Star-Phoenix editorial, "Industrial Progress Program", Dec. 3).

I realize that our country has been making giant strides in post-war years, so-to-speak, away from "Hewers of wood, drawers of water" as one of the financial columnists described us. On the other hand, if anything seriously disrupts the net income strata of the farming community, I am convinced that it cannot be long before the whole country is landed in the pulpe-beast of the industrial east. Our ambitious industrial towers are rich, and rightly so, component upon their foundations. It seems to me that we would be wise to give them our attention now, rather than later; yes, and on both sides of the fence.

This System Is Outdated

(Hamilton Spectator)

The idea that a boy or girl can "work his way" through college is a hang-over from the good old pioneer days. We lifted it, we suppose, from the days when it becomes folklore the better. And it is folklore, however, the idea that everybody has a "right" to a university education. This has often given space to incompetent at the cost of the talented; it is false democracy—and it is costly foolishness. Our government can no longer afford to let universities go begging cap in hand for lack of funds, nor can the universities expect to retain, with a government grant, their academic independence. There must be no boondoggling and bursaries: education from kindergarten to university must be regarded as one continuous stream, with summer projects devoted to planned practical experience in the student's own theoretical study, not to selling ice cream cones or working in a lumber camp to pay for text books.'

There is every sign that the Soviet Union's educational system engineers and scientists will soon swamp the output of the rest of the country world. The satellite nations and China are already adopting the Soviet's system.

"Time presses hard on the heels of the West.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KEEP EXPECTING!

It is a good thing, at any age, to keep expecting something worth while ahead. Expect the best, at any rate, for then you will be most likely to get it. Expect to have a stout heart, and with your flag still flying! Expect each new day to be a better and happier one.

Keep thinking and working toward definite aims. Live in a spirit of healthy excitement, never doubting that something fine is going to happen. Continually forging nearer to your goals. Expecting that you'll be satisfied. Be a positive force, whatever you occupation may be.

I recall hearing Dr. Gene Tunney, long before he became heavyweight champion. Because of his attitude of mind, I was greatly attracted to him. I turned to him and asked him said: "Gene, you will be the next world's Champion." He looked at me quizzically, one in a surprised manner and said: "Why, I hope so, I expect to be just that." In six months he was!

We must never sell ourselves short. We have a wise selection in some investment, we expect that it will get better and become a better investment. We ought to look at life like that, believing that the future holds many a good things for us because of faithful past endeavors. We ought to be good peptomists! (My word invention!)

Thomas Edison was one of the world's greatest inventors and optimists of his time. He was always working on something that should be perfected far in the future. Many of Edison's big ideas man and inventor, is always an inspiring one, for he was working on many things far in the future. Think ahead, but keep expecting, expecting.

Vision of mind is a wonderful thing. It enables all things of man to be done to add to the world's progress. Universal peace among all nations is the most important. Why should we keep expecting something, when the expect peace is so hidden in the hearts of millions who don't want any more war? and it time that the people's will and prayers should be heard?

Daffy Definitions

No Courage Without Fear

(Montreal Gazette)

An American psychologist says that one of the many things psychology has given mankind is a new understanding of courage. Before this understanding came, fear was associated with cowardice; the courageous were believed to be without fear.

This was no compliment to most courageous people. Real courage, in fact, depends on that which enables a person to do his duty despite fear. The more fear a person has to overcome the greater is his carry on. The horseman who has been thrown, perhaps injured, yet rides again shows a courage unknown in the horseman who has never been unseated.

Fear, then, is largely a matter of experience, fed by memory and imagination. As such, it is one of man's most important safeguards. A child will ride a horse, or injury without thought; an adult knows, or should know better.

One of the marks of maturity is a wholesome fear of things which may cause harm. Real fearlessness, such as used to be idolized in boys, is actually a mark of immaturity.

Real courage is what enables a person to overcome reasonable fears when duty demands that they be overcome. It seems a sensible view.

Politicians Served Well

(Ottawa Journal)

One of the candidates for the mayoralty in Toronto came out last week with a large newspaper advertisement setting forth his virtues and qualifications with this: "Not a Politician but a Public Servant."

A sad thing in a democracy to see a candidate for public office exhibiting such political illiteracy, such failure to recognize that he brings politics into contempt, and which he himself is the first victim of the best of our youth from a political career.

To be too many people in this country the word "politician" has a connotation of disgrace, something shoddy or sinister.

Yet what exactly is a politician? One answer is that Winston Churchill is a politician and has been a politician all his life; that Gladstone and Disraeli and Lloyd George and Asquith were politicians; leaders who spent all their lives in politics, who were in fact what we should describe as professionally as "professional politicians".

Politics is the science of organized politics from the day he left his little law office in Illinois until his martyrdom. Also that Franklin and Webster and Henry Clay, and Abraham Lincoln.

The men who brought about Canadian Confederation were politicians; not a businessman nor an engineer nor a scientist among them. Sir John A. Macdonald was a professional politician from the day he abandoned his Kingston law office long before Union until the day he died in Ottawa a half century later. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was a politician who believed in political parties, who gave his whole energy to them to his own and the nation's hurt. Sir Robert Borden was a politician, and Sir Robert Borden and Mr. King and Mr. Meighen and Mr. Bennett.

Always it seems a pity to us, a pity of the waste of energy, of our loud and sloppy way with thoughts and words, when we hear people sneering at "politicians". For what they are sneering at, actually, is our system of democratic freedom.

Do Not Know Capital's Name

(Milwaukee Journal)

Only three governments recognize Outer (Mongolia as a nation: The Soviet Union and India.

How seriously has "recognition" by India affected Outer Mongolia is indicated by the fact that the well informed Indian diplomats at the UN said the Indian delegation is not searching through documents in the name of the capital to which their ambassador had been accredited in Mongolia.

This is not surprising since 60 percent of the "republic" is composed of the Gobi desert and the rest of sparsely settled steppe lands. In any case India has recognized Outer Mongolia merely to form than in substance—New Delhi merely accredited its Russian ambassador to Peiping to the Outer Mongolian People's Republic as well.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

In The Spray Of Conversation

According to a newspaper item the health officer of a midwest city says the best treatment for "colds" is to stay in bed 24 hours, but for the term "common cold" he would prefer "upper respiratory infection."

That's pretty radical teaching, for a politician. Of course, if the question were raised he can always fall back on the old holsum bromide, the nineteenth century quibble sanctioned by Osler and most other medieval authorities of that era: Exposure to cold lowers resistance. If I seem to pay everybody's out of step but Brady, that's because you are (watch out, now) uninformed. I beg to inform you that neither Dr. Osler nor any other medical authority has shown and no present day authority can show that "exposure" to everyday cold, sudden change, dampness, draft and the like has any effect on susceptibility or immunity to some illness, especially what's damp middle!

(Mrs. H. B.)

If you enjoy reading your column — (What! Some paper prints the whole thing?)

I don't think you should tell mothers that the baby is warm enough if his feet are warm to the touch. I'd have to walk until my feet were cold, to put on that extra blanket. The body can be warm and still uncomfortable because not warm enough. Try it yourself some time, especially with a damp middle!

(Mrs. F. B.)

From sophomore days in medical school I have— been trying things on the body and such experiments were of great value in my education. But I was unable to follow your suggestion, Ma'am, for I might get the habit, and I'm afraid it might interfere with notwithstanding the sympathy and kindness in my nature, my grandma and everybody.

Seriously, we are discussing dampness, I want to assure every youngster wh wets the bed that I established a record in that department which very few kids have everybody knows what it is — and, equaled to date.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GET GOING

If you have ever had a cardigan made you know that the first thing the technician does is to ask you for your watch, which he straightway takes out of the room. The mechanism of the instrument which makes a cardiogram would adversely affect the watch and might indeed cause permanent damage. This is true also of a host of a variety of instruments which exercise influence upon the more delicate instruments and very often damage them permanently.

As we go through life we encounter all sorts of temptations. Sometimes these temptations take individuals with whom we come in contact, or crowds with which we associate, or places we visit, or words we read, or pictures we see, thoughts we cherish. When these tempting influences, whether good or impersonal, come in contact with our lives, they begin to work in us quite definitely, and very often they injure us, sometimes they do us awful damage is very simple and easily understand—keep away from these influences. Sometimes when we consider the strength of these great temptation and overcome it, we become very philosophical and commend to ourselves very complicated schemes. But the problem is relatively simple—keep away from persons and things that tempt you.

The temptations which overcome us are often the ones we encounter as the ones we seek out.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In New York, there are several restaurants specializing in smorgasbord, or smorgasbord as they spell it in the Scanandinavian— and don't lets you and me try to pronounce it that way. The chief frequent has a slowly revolving merry-go-round of a small table three decks high, loaded with large glass and silver dishes of the most tempting edibles you ever saw. Selections of Scandinavians have been made by the chef.

There are huge bowls of cold salads of potato and cucumber, green; beet, shrimp, fruit, fish. There are platters of fish of every description from sardines in shredded eels from pickled herrings in sauce a dun brown to caviars from smoked mackerel to shadroe. Sausages on toothpicks to sausages you could hardly lift. Sliced cold meats from fresh to withered with age and beauty.

Slowly, slowly, as you stand there with plate in hand and fork at the alert, the three decker table revolves, giving you just time to make a quick selection. Then you wait for it to come around the second time. In the revolution, the table passes through the wall, and from the kitchen behind, it can be reloaded as fast as the dishes become depleted.

I usually wait for it to go round four times before my plate is loaded for the first time.

Then you sit down, set up and a fresh plate and reload as often as you like or can.

But in eating at my favorite table, which is next to the smorgasbord, that I made an interesting discovery about big eaters. It is amusing to sit and watch the performances of those around you. Interesting to note the comparative merits and methods of those between the fat and the thin, for instance, or between the tall and the short.

I find that short, thin ladies eat more than tall thin ladies; that short fat ladies and tall fat ladies eat the same; that blond men are more eating pigs than dark men; that men like fish more than young men, and men like fish very old and starting to bend in the middle, they like their fish smoked, spiced, sour, or set before them with the eyes.

But above all, I call to your attention the fact that the biggest eaters of all have bulging foreheads.

Now isn't that odd!

A CHRISTMAS STORY

The Coming of the King

by Norman Vincent Peale

1-A CARPENTER in NAZARETH

Far across the seas, in a small and country all the eastern end of the Mediterrean Sea, there is a little town called Nazareth. Two thousand years ago—or 1955 years, to be more exact, because our calendar dates from the time of this story—the carpenter in that town was a man named Joseph. They say that he was a fine craftsman and people were proud of his work.

He had his shop in one of the rooms of his modest home and it was always filled with children watching him work. They enjoyed the clean, fresh smell of the wood shavings as they fell away from his knife. And he enjoyed their company and their chatter.

Sometimes Joseph's wife, whose name was Mary, would sit in the room and watch too. She liked having the children there as much as Joseph did. And everyone knew that very soon she was to have a child of her own.

Then, one day, as they were in that room— Joseph working, the children laughing and Mary sewing a tiny garment—they were startled by the sound of pounding hoofs and iron wheels on the road outside. They rushed to the door to look and saw a Roman chariot on its way to the Nazareth marketplace.

Now, neither Romans nor their chariots were an everyday sight in Nazareth, which was a quiet, sleepy Galilee town. And when Romans came they came as conquerors in a conquered land. So the women and children stayed indoors while the men hurried to the marketplace to see what was happening.

Christmas Concerts

ALLIANCE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Tall evergreen trees, star-tipped, with gleaming, colored lights stood sentinel before the "Little Town of Bethlehem" as it loomed from the walls of the sanctuary, last evening, in the Alliance Church, for the annual Christmas exercises, and glowing down upon the scene beneath was the colorful star of Bethlehem star. In each window a white candle nestled in a bower of evergreen sprays, making in all a pretty atmosphere for the little Sunday School pupils who told the story of the Christ Child in song and recitation, while the choir and there by the well beloved carols in which the congregation joined.

Mrs. Fred Fraser, Sunday School superintendent, presided as chairman for the program which also included the Boys' Choir Brigade of Belleville, under the direction of the pastor, the Reverend Eric Strain, who demonstrated to the assembly some of the interesting points brought out on attention to commands by the playing of "Murphy says".

Another highlight of the program was a lovely pageant on the "Nativity" presented by the two young peoples' classes, that of the pastor, and that of Mrs. Emile Masse.

PRIZES PRESENTED

Following the program, prizes were distributed to those who had perfect attendance during the year and to those who had missed but one Sunday. For perfect attendance: Cathie Baker, Earl Millard, Peter Strain, Georgina Whittaker, Eleanor Millard, Patsy Courseyea, Mary Baker, Ferne Millard, Murray Dixon, Alfred Baker, Elizabeth Baker, Dwight Strain, Catherine Millard, Eric Strain, Jr., and Michael Strain.

Those who missed but one Sunday: Ruth Dixon, Dawne Burshaw, Linda Baker, Joey Jackson, Lenore Dixon, Leona Embury, and Shirley Blakley. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown were in charge of these.

A happy occurrence was the taking of a special offering for the purchase of a new projector to take the place of the old one which had worn out, to which the audience most generously donated.

The superintendent extended appreciative thanks to all who had worked so faithfully to make the evening so successful.

The conclusion brought the distribution of the treats of candy, nuts, and apples, much prized by both young and those not so young.

The program was as follows:

ALLIANCE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Opening congregational carol, "O Come All Ye Faithful"; opening prayer; chairman's remarks; "Welcome," Dawne Burshaw; recitation, "An Important Announcement," Donna Allen; recitation, "Hello Everybody," Peter Strain; beginners' class song, "Follow, Follow" and "Happy Birthday"; recitation, "I'm Only Three," Earl Millard; solo, "To a Little Town" (carol), Joan Fershino; recitation, "Not Very Big," Lorne Hawley; primary class song, "Ring the Bells of Christmas" (Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. Embury);

Boy Is Forced To Wash Out Mouth With Soap

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP)—One of boyhood's traditional agonies was sanctioned Monday by district attorney Frank Gulotta.

He refused to prosecute a teacher who forced 10 - year - old Johnny Urgo to wash out his mouth with soap. The boy's parents had complained.

The teacher, John Hartman, 26, didn't like the language Johnny used during a game in a Baldwin, N.Y., gym.

"No cause for criminal action" Gulotta ruled, citing the right of a teacher under the law to use force "reasonable in manner and moderate in degree."

BLIZZARD RAGES

Missing in addition to the schoolboy were a trucker, being sought by a search party 100 miles west of Saskatoon, and two men unreported in an area 115 miles southwest of the same city.

The accident rate soared. A truck was smashed by a westbound CNR transcontinental train at Wallowright, Alta. The driver had left the truck parked while he helped a stalled school bus and it rolled on to the track.

OVER EMBANKMENT

In Regina, four motorists blinded by driving snow drove their cars over a steep embankment on a residential street. A truck missed a city bridge and plunged into a snow drift so deep that only the box and rear wheels were visible.

In Edmonton, the Alberta Motor Association interpreted 30 calls for help in one four-hour period and said the calls were still coming.

A report from Saskatoon said the blizzard was the worst in prairie history, while a Regina dispatch said it was "perhaps the worst in living memory." However the Edmonton weather office said there were so many factors involved in determining the severity of the blizzard that it was almost impossible to compare such storms.

Temperatures nose - dived as much as 40 degrees in a few hours. Saskatoon had rain Monday morning and then 15 to 20 below as forecast overnight. Regina was having its warmest day in weeks at 32 above when the storm sent the mercury plunging to five below in three hours.

Two-Way Fight For Reeveship After Nomination

STIRLING — There will be a two-way fight for the reeveship of this village on Thursday, December 29th.

At the second nomination held here last night Messrs. Russell West and Harry Philp decided to throw their gauntlets into the municipal arena and contest the reeve position.

By the same token eight nominees were presented for council with one to be elected. These include Messrs. Frank Stanley, Jim Wright, Lindsay Pollock, H. R. Templeton, Don Rodgers, Earl Fox, Bill Morton and Bill Montgomery.

The nomination meeting last night was the second to be held this year. At the original meeting no one qualified for the reeveship while three councillors were elected by acclamation. These are Ken Ray and Albert Wells both re-elected and J. Y. Holt. One more is necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin, Deseronto, Wed Fifty Years

Fifty years of happily married life was recalled by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin of Deseronto late in November, when their golden anniversary was observed in the form of a family dinner and social gathering for friends.

The couple were married November 28th back in 1905 by Rev. A. L. Geen at Moody Cottage in Belleville, and had written marriage certificate given them by Mr. Geen is still one of their cherished possessions.

Mrs. Martin was the former Sarah Brant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brant. The couple have spent their entire life in the Deseronto area where they farmed until a few years ago. Mr. Martin is 77 and Mrs. Martin is 72. Both still enjoy good health.

Reminiscing about old times on their anniversary, Mrs. Martin commented that if she had the 50 years to live over again she would have them the same.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin have four children, three sons, Wallace Martin of Belleville, Everett of Toronto, and Robert of Winnipeg, and one daughter, Mrs. Erie Lewis of Kingston. There are three grandchildren.

50th Anniversary Is Celebrated

Second couple to be married in St. Michael's church at Belleville and former residents of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Pelkey of Toronto, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple were "at home" to friends and relatives at their home, 37 Marjory Ave., Toronto, on November 26th. Many of the friends present had also attended their 25th anniversary.

Mrs. Pelkey was the former Johanna Boland, daughter of the late John and Catherine Boland, 129 Dundas Street, Belleville. The groom of 50 years ago is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Pelkey of Canniton and Belleville. The couple were married by the Rev. Father Twomey.

The couple received many messages of congratulations and were the recipients of many lovely gifts and beautiful flowers on their anniversary. Out-of-town guests at the anniversary included Mrs. Francis Moriarty of Chesterville, Ont., and her daughter, Karen, and Mrs. Timothy Cannon and Miss Minnie Boland, of Belleville. Both are sisters of Mrs. Pelkey.

Shortly after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Pelkey moved to Toronto, where for 38 years Mr. Pelkey was associated with the T. Eaton Company. He is now retired.

The couple have two daughters, Kathryn and Vivian Pelkey, both of Toronto.

THREE WORKMEN

Steam passed through the six-inch elbow pipe from three boilers. The pipe fed it into the distribution lines which heat the establishment's buildings. When the elbow burst, scalding water and steam filled the room and immediately extinguished the boilers. For a time heat was cut off in the establishment buildings. The weather was below freezing.

It was several minutes before firemen were able to enter the room and the badly scalded bodies of the victims were found.

SPARROWS FELL

Several sparrows which were in the habit of roosting on supports near the roof, 75 feet above the ground, were also found scalded to death on the floor.

J. C. Elliott, superintendent of the steam plant, was about to go home when he saw steam pouring out of the building. He described the scene as "terrible."

Chief engineer Laurent Farley, 56, had started to repair the coupination of the elbow pipe when the accident occurred. Stoves had informed him there was a sign of a leak, and Farley, who mounted a ladder to investigate, discovered a possible fracture.

"I climbed down the scaffold to warn the operators but the pipe collapsed as I was going down," he said. "The place was filled with dense steam and I couldn't see where the others were.

"I was able to grope my way out to the window. I don't know what happened to the three men. I don't know why they didn't get out. I think perhaps they were trying to stay at the controls."

Farley survived his wife widow and three daughters, Brenda, 16, Janis, 7, and Lorna, 5; Carriere by his widow and two sons, Jimmy 3, and Denis, 3; Seguin by his widow and two daughters, Lisa, 3, and Nicole, a two-month-old infant.

'BON VOYAGE' GIFT

On Friday evening an informal at home was held by Miss Dorothy Clarke, 34 Station Street, in honor of Mrs. Marjory Foster, who is leaving the city tomorrow for Fairbanks, Alaska, where she has accepted the position as head of the classified ad department on the local newspaper there.

As a farewell gift and tangible evidence of the esteem in which she is held by her girl friends, she was presented with a beautiful silver necklace and matching earrings, also a blue leather travelling hat case by 15 friends who wished her 'bon voyage' via air, and a happy sojourn in the land of the midnight sun.

Hospital Shadow Plan Meet the Admitting Dept.

By MRS. J. E. PUGH

Recently, I spent a pleasant day at our Belleville General Hospital in the admitting department. There Mr. Kenneth Boss, administrator of the hospital, introduced me to Mrs. N. C. Armstrong, head of admitting, who has been with the Belleville General Hospital for 10 years.

During the course of the day I was a lively shadow, with not only Mrs. Armstrong to watch, but also, five other ladies who work under her. All six ladies could not have made me feel more welcome, more at home.

The admitting department lies to the right immediately inside the front entrance of the hospital. In that wall of it is a window headed "Information." This position and that one word "Information" give the key to the life of the admitting department.

Sitting at the threshold of the hospital, removed from its somewhat times stark realities of birth and death, the admitting department holds all the information, all the news of life and drama in the hospital. It is a place of tense excitement and interest in people and patients, a place where the telephone rings constantly, and doctors, nurses, visitors and patients are always coming and going.

Mrs. Armstrong works from 9 to 5, while most of the other ladies are on shifts from 7 to 3, 3 to 11, and 11 to 7.

INVENTORY OF PATIENTS

The introduction over, I sat down beside Mrs. Armstrong's desk, and noticed that she had the inventory of all patients in the hospital with the location of each. After counting 34 white slips for maternity patients, and 23 orange slips, I gave up on the green ones for surgical and pediatrics, and asked Mrs. Armstrong how many patients were in the hospital.

"One hundred and seventy-five," she said, "but we often have 210."

The rated capacity of our Belleville General Hospital is 138.

The revolving file proved to be the "nucleus of life". Except, of course, for emergency cases which are always taken into the hospital immediately and given whatever accommodation is available, a patient must have a booking to get into the hospital because space is limited. Only a doctor or his office can make a booking for any patient. Calls come from 40 doctors, 29 in the city and the rest, doctors in outlying areas. As Mrs. Armstrong enters the booking for his patient lists the date and the hour at which he made application for a bed for his patient and the telephone number of the patient.

THREE TYPES

These bookings, typed on thin cards are sorted into (1) the S.A.P.'s—"soon as possibles", (2) the elective bookings that especify the date desired, and (3) the T. and A.'s—tonsils and adenoids.

On the revolving file these cards can be scanned quickly and are easily removable to be sent to the admitting clerk for new patients at the proper time. Sometimes patients have to wait as long as two weeks for a bed.

This, Mrs. Armstrong says, is bad for the patient's morale, and creates an inconvenience in that someone must always be on hand to answer the telephone at the home in case the hospital calls. The booking list sometimes reaches such length that all the present hospital and the new wing, as well, if it were ready, could be filled in a day.

Patients requesting private rooms go on that list, according to the date and hour of their booking and have to wait until a private room is free.

The hospital is always overcrowded that now no patient can be transferred without the doctor's request. The request has to be booked by date and hour like any other application and the patient must wait until space is available. Sometimes requests for transfer reach as high as 10 a day.

RELATIVES WANT TRANSFER

Usually it is not the patient who wants to be moved, but the patient's relatives who think the patient might be better off elsewhere. In actual fact, Mrs. Armstrong says, that moving a patient is often more harmful than letting him stay where he is.

At 10.00 a.m., we had a cup of coffee in the friendly atmosphere of the Sinai Bar, which is operated by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

On our return to the office, a notice of discharge from the hospital had arrived—four copies of it, one to go to the cash office, one for medical records, one for Mrs. Armstrong so that the patient's name will be removed from the hospital inventory, and one for the dietitian so that no unnecessary trays will be prepared. Mrs. Armstrong passed on these copies to the switchboard operator who removed the name from the telephone inventory and also from the ministerial record, which is a register of all patients in the hospital by church denominations. During the day three ministers came in to consult this record.

Besides attending to the telephone, the switchboard operators answer all inquiries at the information window, of which there were 25 during the day.

As visitors' hours are 3.00 to 4.00 p.m., and 7.00 to 8.00 p.m., new patients are requested to arrive between the hours of 4.00 to 7.00 p.m. To an observer, the reason for this rule was plainly obvious. The halls were then clear of the extra confusion and commotion caused by the influx of visitors and newcomers could arrive to a scene of quiet, orderly business. Nurses were freer to attend to them. Beds vacated by 3 or 3.30 had been readied by nurses for new arrivals.

ADMITTING NEW PATIENTS

At four o'clock I moved down the corridor to the room for admitting new patients to watch procedures there.

The admitting clerk explained to me that any patient who arrives by ambulance or who has to be brought in by wheel chair is taken right to bed by the nurses in these cases are accompanying relative gives all the necessary information to the admitting clerk.

Patients are asked to be at the hospital by 7.00 p.m. at the latest, but often they arrive later, sometimes seven or eight arrive at once and the admitting clerk just has to do her best. The questions asked took little time.

For children, parents were asked to sign the admission slip. Patients or their relatives can assist the admitting clerk greatly by bringing along their Blue Cross or other such insurance cards, or at least the number of same.

The admitting clerk makes four copies of the admission, one for the records and admission to the floor, one for the business office, one for the superintendent and one for the 24-hour sheet for records in the morning.

Any patient who is not too ill is required by government order to have a miniature chest X-ray. In a period of three years a dozen cases of tuberculosis and other ailments have been discovered by the miniature chest X-ray. On the average, 300 such X-rays are taken each month.

ADMITTING DRAMA

In all, I watched four actual admissions. They were too close to the real purpose of the hospital for my comfort. To see a little three-year-old girl admitted to isolation, no matter how kindly and smoothly done, just isn't pleasant, even with the child a model of good behaviour as she sets a fashion seeking fashions was. Nor is it pleasant to hear a husband making the admission for his wife only 37 who has had a stroke. One begins to grow rapidly conscious of what a treasure is one's health.

—Central Press Canadian.

The superb organization of the admitting department, on the other hand, was a day-long delight, full of appreciation of its benefit to the smooth running of our Belleville General Hospital. Were I to visit the hospital again in some other department, I'd probably depart as I did that day, certain that I had found "The" essential key to the smooth operation of our hospital.

In truth there are probably many such keys, all with the same accurate attention to every detail and all as essential as the admitting office, and what is more, all working together to provide Belleville citizens with an admirable institution in which we may take pride, our Belleville General Hospital.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW ABOUT TRYING CO-OPERATION INSTEAD OF CONFLICT?

Beatrice Fairfax:

I am married to what you might call a "Mama's Boy." I prefer to call him confused.

Before we were married, we went together for two years. He cried grown up and independent, and was very considerate of me in every way.

Then after we were married his mother became his first considération. She has been a widow since my husband was 10 years old and is sister 7, and he was "the man of the family," so she has always kept him close to her. The problem now is that they can't do enough for each other, and every time the children and I try stayed alone because they spend so much time helping each other. I've seen my husband sit up all night trying to decide how he could do this for me, or that for his mother. Once in awhile he becomes nice. Usually, if it's a choice between me wanting him to be somewhere and his mother wanting him to be with me, he'll choose the latter.

I don't want to break up his relationship with his mother. I don't want to hurt anyone. I only want him to realize he has a greater responsibility to me and his children, and to have his mother realize he is her husband now. I've tried talking to her, and when I've she goes crying to my husband, even so much as to tell him I was trying to turn them against each other. Then the whole family chooses on me.

During the first four years of our marriage, my husband couldn't tell the difference between his mother and me. By that I mean that he didn't know that I was a wife, his mother. But I kept up and kept working on it, and after while I was in the hospital with my last baby, he told me he seemed to realize the difference between us. That was two years ago, and that the first "apron string" has been broken.

Since then, I've been working on another second, which is to make him see what I see—that he seems to have all I need is for him to give me money, but that his mother needs him! I want him to realize that I need him, and the children need him.

At times, I feel that I am up against an immovable object, and the thought of divorce. But I love my husband, and I don't feel that is the solution. So what can I do?

—Mama's Boy.

Now? — A.H.W.

Dear H.W.:

You are not only a very loving, devoted and patient wife, but a very intelligent one, too, and because you have these qualities, you can't believe that your situation is as hopeless as it sometimes seems to you.

You say that you have tried talking to your husband's mother about the problem the two of them create for you, and got nowhere. What I am now wondering is if you might try a slightly different approach.

That is, instead of working on the specific problem between you, on which you are at odds, how about concentrating on the things you have in common? Or put it this way: don't stress conflict; stress co-operation. Make such a firm and fast friend of your mother-in-law that you get her on your side where your husband is concerned. When you specially want your husband at home, or to do something for you, or with you and the children, tell her about it and ask her help in bringing it about. Say nothing about feeling that you and the children should be his first consideration. Say that you know she wants him to be with you and the children just as much as possible, and ask her to drop a word in his ear to this effect. Let her feel that she has so much influence over her son—and, after all, she does, of course, only you're going to be smart enough to let her believe you respect, instead of resent, this influence"—that she can do a lot to shape his attitudes in the right direction.

It will, of course, take all of that love and devotion and patience you have—plus the intelligence — to carry this out. And don't expect results too soon, or be discouraged if they don't come quickly. It will take time to bring them about. But I think you can do it.

Will you try this plan for a reasonable period, and then let me know how you make out?

B. O. B. Homemade Soup

(French Style)

By Mary Moody

All I needed to do was make noises like a martyr and my sister came a-running to the rescue. She certainly did! She came with my one-homemade-soup-per-week soup pot, told me how to desert my letter-stacked desk with a clear conscience and fold forth over just where I was in the puzzle.

So feasty offered to make a different dish-tickling soup, invited me over to their house for dinner, and it certainly filled the bill and my stomach. It is reminiscent of Pyrnch Onion Soup but the meat was left in and beans were added. Topping that was a raft of toasted cheese.

FEADY'S B.O.B. SOUP

(Beef, onion, bean)

My sister bought a beef shin. When the meat was cut off it weighed 1 1-3 lbs. This she cubed finely and sauted in a dry pan, browning it in its own fat which was not trimmed from the meat. Removed the beef, rinsing out pan with some of the required water. Cover with 7 cups cold water, add the stripped shin bone, 1 tablespoon salt and 2-3 cup soaked white navy or small or large lima beans (measured before soaking). Simmer 3 hours. One-half hour before time is up add 1 large Spanish onion which has been thinly sliced and blanched for 1 minute in boiling water and drained before adding (removes strong taste). Add the blanched onion rings and finish cooking. You may want to skim off surplus fat.

Serve in your largest soup bowls, being sure there are plenty of the thick rich ingredients in each bowl. Top with round of toast spread or sprinkled liberally with cheese. Pass for a couple of minutes under hot broiler to heat and bubble and brown the cheese. Serve at once.

As a second course we had corn on the cob alone—to carry on in the French spirit of serving a single choice item. Recently with Hollandaise or liberal individual salad plates would be other good choices.

HEAVENLY PINEAPPLE PIE

was our dessert treat.

This is entirely new, improved —say recompounded— by Feady friends and raved over by them. You fit one of these categories no doubt!

Sour Cream Pie Crust—1-3 cup ice cold sour cream, 1-4 teaspoon soda, 1 tablespoon soft butter, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-3 teaspoon almond extract, 1-4 cup sifted whole wheat flour chilled. Sift the flour, salt and soda into bowl, add sour cream and soda and mix into a soft dough. Divide in halves, knead one half for a minute and roll out to fit pie plate. Chill other half, roll out spread with butter, and fold and roll three times. (That much is for a 2-crust pie.) Make only half recipe, including butter for this one-crust pie. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. 10 or 12 minutes. Filling—Combine 1 cup cream, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 beaten egg yolks, 1 cup cottage cheese, 1-3 cup drained crushed pineapple, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, mixed well. Pour into baked shell. Top with meringue made by beating together 2 whites and 4 tablespoons brown sugar until stiff. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. 20 minutes. Chill before serving. Heavenly is right.

CHRISTMAS AS A HOLY DAY . . . NOT AS A HOLIDAY

"To hail we learn to understand
The simple faith of shepherds then;
And clasping kindly hand in hand
Sing 'Peace on Earth, Good-will to men!'".

The really wonderful news about Christmas cards this year is the preponderance of religious cards. The true spirit of Christmas cards that provide a reverent means of keeping Christ in Christmas. It is fortunate indeed, and most significant, that the more secular phases of Christmas-card-sending are giving way to wider recognition and greater use of truly reverent Christmas greetings.

There must be a very special significance in the fact that in the past few years the sending of religious Christmas cards has more than tripled . . . and that this year one card out of every four has a religious theme. It reveals the wondrous truth that so many hearts and spirits are reaching for the inspiration and comfort of religion, want to share that inspiration and spiritual comfort.

Everywhere you will find a wide variety of appealing and impressive religious cards. The Wonder of the Nativity; the Blessed Christ Child, the gentle Madonna, the Holy Family, the Adoring Angels with their triumphant message. Beautiful cards with reverent words "Keeping Christ in Christmas." The Star of Bethlehem, with its eternal radiance. A prophet shepherd, watching his flock by night." The Three Wise Men with their unforgetably eager, searching faces.

There are many reproductions of famous and beloved paintings of the Madonna. And there are lovely and colorful illustrations of religious symbols . . . church steeples eternally reaching to the heavens, church bells ringing, carolers singing, worshippers entering and leaving the Christmas service. And never before have there been such handsome cards flowing with the "religious light" of stained glass windows.

Many cards carry Biblical quotations, some beautifully printed, manuscript - style, on parchment papers with elaborately illuminated or antique lettering, some with illuminated borders. So many cards in the form + heart + to + heart prayer. "May the Peace and Joy of Christmas abide with you through out the year." And on many, many cards this year and always are the inspirational pages: "Glory to God in the Highest, And on Earth, Peace, and Good Will toward all."

LITTLE GIRL'S NAME ON ENVELOPE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband has been stationed in Europe for several years with the Army, and he and I have lived there. Now we're living "back home," and in making up our Christmas card list I'd like to address them with the "inside" before the name. Is a nice little lesson in a social grace!

Yes, indeed, it is a nice little lesson in a social grace, and one that will be appreciated by your friends. Remembering how I, when a little girl, delighted in receiving my "very own" cards, I went to send their "very own" cards to these little girls with a Christmas message from my husband and me. How should I address the envelope to such a little girl, say four or five or six years old? — Marie S

A NEW COMPLEXION — IN MINUTES

A facial mask treatment, just before a big date, does wonders for tired looking skin.

There's nothing like a facial masque for imaging a new glow to the complexion and a radiance that seems magically to erase the marks of time from even the most tired looking face. Generally speaking, we recommend the mask treatment once a week to supplement the nightly soap-and-water or cream cleansings. But this ritual does not have to be limited to one in seven days. Actually, a quickie facial of this type is fine on any night when, after a tough day at the office or in the home, you feel the need of rejuvenation before a big date.

There are many masks to be found at the cosmetic counter of your favorite drug or department store, and application just before your step into your tub, will make you feel like a new woman once it is removed. One of the newer ones, however, is especially stimulating and has the added advantage of containing a humectant which keeps the skin moist and dewy, and Vitamin A to promote smoothness. These ingredients, combined with milk of magnesia, say the makers, make the mask an especially effective pepper-upper for skins of any age.

The method of application is simple. First, all make-up should be thoroughly removed; then the mask is smoothed on with upward, outward strokes. A light film is sufficient, but be sure to keep it one inch away from the eyes. While the facial muscles are relaxed, the mask is allowed to dry. The time you spend in your tub will be plenty for this phase of the treatment. After you have bathed and toweled yourself dry, rinse the mask away with cool water and follow up with a slathering of skin lotion, and you're all ready to apply make-up.

Generally, facial masks are not recommended for teen-agers, since soap-and-water is just about the best "cosmetic" for young skins, but the new mask can be used by those youngsters who are afflicted with oily or blemished skin, since its stimulating properties encourage the flow of blood which carries away waste. Regular use will help refine the pores, too.

Next time you're down in the dumps, give yourself a facial and feel your spirits revive.

Ontario School for Deaf Presents Nativity Pageant

Last evening the auditorium of the Ontario School for the Deaf was 'en fete' for the annual Christmas pageant, presenting the "Nativity," the old, old, but ever new story of the Babe of Bethlehem, which was unfolded to the capacity audience of parents, teachers, friends and relatives in a series of five scenes beautifully adapted and directed by Miss Helen Keeler with music and dialogue arranged by Mr. Alec Gordon.

The cast was composed of the students of the school who had made their own lovely costumes, which were colorful and resplendent, especially the angel throng with their glistening, white robes and rustling, wide-spread wings as they knelt in adoration of the new born King.

CORDIALLY WELCOMED

The evening began with a cordial welcome extended by the superintendent, Mr. J. G. Demeza, B.A., B.Paed., to the assembled guests. Mr. Demeza also briefly outlined the work of the school, pointing out the various degrees of hearing of those taking part, some with no hearing, and others with but a shade.

After the brief introduction, the program began with the singing of the Christmas carol "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and the selection by the senior IV rhythm band, "Teddy Bear's Picnic." A solo, "Jesu Bambino," by Miss Gaele Meyers, one of the teachers, was greatly appreciated and another carol, the favorite "Silent Night," without which no Christmas would be complete, concluded part 1.

Pictures of "The Nativity" and "On the Hills of Judea" were also shown on the wall at the right of the stage, as well as the various Scripture selections which were read throughout the play.

The cast of the play is as follows:

Scene I—The Annunciation.

Mary, Christina Bennett; Angel, Sheilagh Kerr.

Music—'Ave Maria' by Mrs. M. Davidson.

Scene II—The Arrival at the Inn.

Music—'No Room in the Inn.'

Scene III—On the Hill of Judea.

Young Shepherd, Jackie Wales.

Herald Angel, Lyia Garnett.

Heavenly Host, Faye Westbrook, Elise Cushing, Catherine MacDonald, Patsy Bishop, Jean Drury, Anita Jackson, Barbara Beaumont, Geraldine O'Dell, Evelyn Caldwell, Marlene Coulson.

Music — 'While Shepherds Watched.'

Scene IV—King Herod's Court.

King Herod, John Fossum.

High Priest, Kenneth Searson.

Altar Boy, Gerry Sullivan.

Scribes, Norman Roggie, Billy Gardner.

Roman Guards, Billy Bates, Brian Murphy.

Slave Girls, Mary Michelson, Shirley Bevens.

Wise Men, Donald Sattler, Robert Hillman, Brian Meany.

Scene V—The Nativity.

Mary, Christina Bennett.

Joseph, Alan Ogawa.

Guardian Angels, Sheilagh Kerr, Lyia Garnett.

Cherubs, Danny Worzik, Teddy Patterson, Cecil Baer and Michael Perry.

Shepherds Gordon Henshaw, Edward Rosengren, Cecil Martin, Austin Barron, Gerald Grifforce, Glenn Hagedorn.

Wise Men, R. Hillman, D. Sattler, B. Meany.

Angels, Wertbrook, E. Cushing, C. McDonald, P. Bishop, J. Drury, A. Jackson, B. Beaumont, G. O'Dell, E. Caldwell, M. Coulson, H. Ament, C. Williams, L. Heuvel, J. Saunderson, N. K. Mathewson, S. DeWolfe, E. Tackaryk, S. Warren, S. Elliott, M. Bishop, B. Gonneau, B. Moore, M. Kwandibens, M. Gwalter, D. Bell, D. Mott.

Music—'Silent Night,' 'We Three Kings,' 'Adeste Fidelis.'

An offering at the door was received for Pupils' Benefit Fund.

Refreshments in Home Economics room after the pageant in charge of Miss K. E. Daly, were served.

Stage Manager, Keith Dornbrunner; assistants, E. Hales, H. Alton

Appreciation is extended to Mrs. M. Davidson for her rendition of "Ave Maria"; to Miss Keeler and Mr. Gordon and to the students for a fine portrayal of the world's greatest story.

OPERA HOUSE BURNS

CORK, Republic of Ireland (AP) — The Cork Opera House, for 100 years one of Ireland's best known theatres, burned to a shell Monday night. The blaze broke out while 40 members of the cast of a Christmas pantomime company were rehearsing. All got out safely.

ARCTIC PRIEST ILL

NEWARK, N. Y. (AP) — Rev. Bernard R. Hubbard, famed "glacier priest" who led numerous scientific expeditions into the Arctic wastes of Alaska, was in serious condition here today from a cerebral hemorrhage. The 67-year-old Roman Catholic priest from Santa Clara, Calif., was stricken Saturday while visiting friends. Father Hubbard led his first expedition to Alaska in 1926. For several years he has been an adviser to the United States Army on cold-weather clothing.

Duplessis Bill Would Regulate Newsprint Sale

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis announced Monday he will introduce a bill in the Quebec legislature Tuesday "regarding the sale, distribution and production of newsprint" coming from crown lands in Quebec province.

Mr. Duplessis' statement did not mention the word "control." However, it was understood the bill re-su'ts from his recent announcem: ia that he would ship control on newsprint in Quebec unless producer • companies gave special treatment to provincial newspapers.

The legislation would affect only newsprint produced in Quebec from lumber taken from crown lands.

HEATED CONTROVERSY

The premier made Monday's announcement in a statement to newspaper men.

The newsprint industry has been the subject of heated controversy for nearly two months, during which 11 Canadian companies have announced price increases ranging from $3 to $5, bringing the p'ice delivered in New York to $130 a ton.

In the midst of the price-increase announcements, Premier Duplessis announced in the legislature and later repeated at a conference with labor chiefs that his government was considering price controls, and that the controls might also be extended-to distribution.

He said the newsprint companies were merely "lessees" of the forests, which were owned by the people of Quebec. The rights of newspapers as "co-owners" of the forests would have to be recognized.

COLOR TV READY IF "

TORONTO (CP)—Fred W. Radcliffe, vice-president of RCA Victor Company's Canadian division, said Friday color television could be operating in Canada within two months if the government would issue licences for color to television stations.

Sudan Governor Resigns Post

LONDON (AP)—Sir Knox Helm, governor-general of the Sudan, has submitted his resignation for "personal reasons," the colonial office announced Monday.

A spokesman told newspaper men that the British ambassador in Cairo, Sir Humphrey Trevelyan, has notified the Egyptian government that Britain is prepared to accept the resignation and "does not intend to nominate another British candidate in his place."

The spokesman said the possibility could not be excluded of appointment of a Sudanese to the governor-generalship.

In any case, the post would have lapsed next year with the end of the period of self-determination and the formation of an elected Sudanese government with a chief of state. The only question involved now is who will perform the governor general's duties during the interim period.

The governor-general is responsible for the security of the territory during the period of national self-determination.

Fire at Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP)—Four downtown Kitchener businesses and two clubrooms were damaged Monday as fire struck one of the city's oldest buildings for the second time in six months.

Damage is estimated at $50,000. Hardest hit was Denton Studios. The fire of undetermined origin, destroyed the second-storey photographic business and crept up through partitions before it was stopped on the third floor.

PLAN STATE VISIT

BONN (Reuters) — Italian Premier Antonio Segni and Gaetano Martino, his foreign minister, will pay a state visit to West Germany from Feb. 6 to 9, it was announced Friday. The two statesmen were to have visited West Germany in October, but their visit was postponed owing to the illness of Chancellor Adenauer.

Opens Talks On Singapore Self-Government

LONDON (Reuters)—Singapore chief minister David Marshall opened talks with British colonial officials Monday on plans to bring internal self-government to the Far East crown colony by 1957.

Marshall handed over a memorandum setting out in detail the case for the early granting of internal self-government. It also dealt with each subject listed on an eight-point agenda which will form the basis of negotiations with Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd.

Marshall's stand is that unless self-government is given to Singapore Britain may have another Cyprus situation on its hands.

Marshall's demand for internal self-government excludes control of foreign affairs and defence at this time, which he wants to see remain vested in Britain for the present. He also wants a continuance of Singapore's association with the British Commonwealth.

Russian Bishop Assails U.S. For Excluding Him

OTTAWA (CP) — Archbishop Boris of the Russian Orthodox Church charged Monday that the United States has put political pressure on religion by refusing him a visa to visit that country.

He told a press conference that many Russian Orthodox churches in the United States and Alaska were built with funds donated in Russia by its church members there.

A reporter asked him if he approved of Russia's atheistic Communist government. The archbishop in reply asked whether the U. S. government could be considered Christian when it refused to allow him into the country.

Madoc

W.M.S. — W.A.

MADOC — A union meeting of Madoc Trinity United W.M.S. and W.A. was held at the parsonage on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of over 40. The parsonage was beautifully decorated for the occasion during the old Christmas spirit to the meeting.

The W.M.S. president, Mrs. Carmen, took charge of the meeting bringing friendly greetings to all. A Christmas hymn, "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks," and prayer for the true observance of Christmas was used.

The financial reports of the W.M.S. and W.A. were given and a motion was passed that $100 be given to the M. and M. Fund by W.A. A shower of gifts from the members for the port at Halifax was received and will be forwarded at once. At the suggestion of the W.M.S. president, a pair of blankets will be forwarded to the parsonage, at Pierva.

Mrs. R. C. Jackson, W.A. retiring president, was in charge of the worship service using Christmas carols. Miss Annis Holmes read the Christmas Bible story. Mrs. Jackson gave some Christmas thoughts, and was assisted in Christmas readings by Mrs. E. Moore; Mrs. A. Bailey, and Mrs. W. J. McCoy.

Mrs. Carmen, leader of the program gave as an opening number a reading, "Let's Keep Christmas" emphasing the real meaning of Christmas, and followed at request numbers of Christmas Carols.

Mrs. E. Moore gave a reading, "Animals Keep Christmas", Mrs. C. Johnson a reading, "The Legend of The Black Madonna".

LIFE MEMBERSHIP

A pleasing feature of the program was the presentation of a W.A. Life Membership pin to the retiring president, Mrs. R. C. Jackson by her parents, the Rev. G. E. and Mrs. Coulter, of Picton, and presented by Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Tanner.

Mrs. Jackson also received a cup and saucer, a gift from Madoc W.A. and presented by Mrs. George Fox, for which she graciously thanked the W.A. The meeting was closed by Mr. Lane and an enjoyable social hour followed.

ST. PETER'S W.O. OFFICERS

St. Peter's Women's Club held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. James Watson with Mrs. Carl McCoy and Mrs. Symons as co-hostesses.

Mrs. A. Woods president presided over the meeting and Mrs. Robert Wright conducted the devotional period using the Christmas Bible story as told in Luke's gospel. Christmas hymns were used.

After the business period, the report of the nominating committee was received and accepted. Members of the St. Peter's choir gave a delightful program of song and story based on the Christmas theme. Officers elected for the year:

East president — Mrs. A. Woods; president — Mrs. Robert Wright; 1st vice-president — Mrs. Leonard Trotter, 2nd vice-president — Mrs. John Atkinson, secretary — Mrs. Harry Stout; treasurer — Mrs. Angus Mackenzie; press reporter — Mrs. Jas. Watson; announcements — Miss Cecilia Heslip; lunch conveners — Mrs. D. Kernahan, Mrs. K. Nicol, Mrs. W. Hill, sick committee — Mrs. Carl McCoy.

Man Shot by His Car Door, Plane Downed by Jackrabbit

So everything happens to you? Maybe you just think it does. For instance:

Have you been shot by your car door? By your dog? By a fish?

Have you swallowed your toothbrush? Has you dog driven your automobile? Ditto your two-year-old son or daughter?

Have you proudly named your Place Dew Drop Inn, only to have to do just that—into the lake?

All these odd little happenings and many others were uncovered by the National Safety Council in its annual roundup of freak incidents. Here's the rundown on the dizzy doings in 1955, writes Paul Jones of the National Safety Council in Public Safety magazine:

Gene Scott, of Rushville, Neb., had hoped his hunting trip would warm up something special. It did. He got shot by his car door. Gene was getting out of the car when a gust of wind blew the door shut on his coat pocket. In the pocket was a rifle shell. Bang! You can bet the next hunt will find Gene astride a good old-fashioned doorless horse.

In New Liberty, Iowa, 12-year-old David Dahl placed his rifle against a ladder in the barn and started to climb to the loft. His dog Terry jumped on the ladder, struck the rifle trigger with his paw, and shot his ascending master just below the hayloft.

SHOT BY FISH

Some fish stories are greeted by raised eyebrows. But when Bobby Bright, of Gonzales, Tex., reported he had been shot by a fish, no one could doubt him. He had the fish, the gun and the wound to prove it! A freshly caught catfish flopped around in the bottom of Bobby's boat, struck the trigger of his rifle and shot him in the arm.

And in Detroit Mrs. Dorothy Gazzeny brushed her teeth so vigorously she swallowed the toothbrush. Fortunately, she had another.

At least two dogs tried their paw at driving an automobile in 1955—a Doberman pinscher in Fort Wayne, Ind., and a boxer in Black River Falls, Wis. Both ended up by crashing into something. They also ended up in the doghouse.

TWO-YEAR-OLDS DRIVE

Timothy Davis made headlines in Long Beach, Calif., by taking his grandfather for a little spin in the family car. The trip was newsworthy for three reasons. One was that the car tore off the porch of a nearby house and came to near running down a neighbor that she fainted. The second was that Timothy propelled the car by sitting on the accelerator. The third was that Timmy was only two years old. Timmy's mother had left him in the car with his grandfather. Timmy turned on the ignition, sat on the gas pedal, and—swoosh!

Now, if a two-year-old boy can drive a car by sitting on the accelerator, a two-year-old girl can do it too—and do it better. So Margaret Ann Kilby, of Indianapolis, did it. Margaret Ann wasn't content to crash into a mere house. She rammed into a fire-plug, knocked out the neighborhood water supply for three hours, turned the rest of the street into a sheet of ice, and, of course, wrecked the car. Another woman driver, eh, fellas?

ONE BRINK TOO MANY

The New Deal, said Port Huron, Mich., lived up to its name during a wild wind and rain storm, and dropped into Anchor Bay. One brink too many!

Traffic experts say it's safe to go on the green light. Try to tell that to Motorist E. T. Drake, Jr., of Atlantic. As Drake dutifully obeyed an overhead traffic light that flashed him a green go-ahead signal, the light fell on top of his car and sent him to the hospital. Drake saw red.

The sign over the door of a used car salesman in Los Angeles said, "We need your car — drive in!" Lewis Jackson, Jr., did—with his throttle stuck. The car crashed through a heavy wooden door, ran head-on into a costly convertible, and bounced the convertible into another car. They took down the sign.

SAPPY LANDINGS

Stanton Sapp and his brother Daniel happened to run into each other on the street in their home town, Mount Vernon, Ohio. That would have been perfectly all right, of course, if each of the brothers hadn't been driving a car. Neither was injured in the head-on crash, but it did prove the need for the safety slogan, "Be Your Brother's Keeper — Stop Accidents!"

And in Copenhagen, Mrs. Else Sorensen and Karen Kirk Lassen couldn't resist the dance music coming out of a radio in the Old Folks' Home, and decided to try the mambo. They both landed in the hospital with broken legs. Both dancers were 80.

Every theatrical act strives for a knockout finish. The ballet "Streetcar Named Desire" literally achieved it. As tiny ballerina Nora Kaye whirled in the middle of a pirouette during a New York performance, her elbow caught her husky partner Igor Youskevitch smack in the face, and he went down for the count.

Ordinarily, a hung jury is one that fails to agree. But the jury that hung midway between the first and second floors of the courthouse in Reading, Pa., in a stalled elevator for almost an hour agreed perfectly. It wanted down!

BIG LEAGUE CATCH

To one family, at least, the most important catch of the year wasn't made on a baseball diamond, but on the sidewalk outside an apartment in Chicago. Mrs. Isobel Gutierrez looked up to see her three-year-old daughter teetering on the edge of a narrow window ledge 22 feet above the ground. Mrs. Gutierrez raced over and caught the falling child. Total casualties—one small cut on the girl's leg and cold chills for the mother.

Four-year-old Walter Adams, Jr., was showing his younger brother some of the acrobatic stunts he had seen on TV, when he happened to glance out the window of his fourth-floor apartment in New York City. He noticed that several small girls on the sidewalk 40 feet below were observing his antics. Walter decided to show them something really good. He opened the window, put his hands together like a high diver, and took off. The girls pulled him out of the big snowbank and carried him up, crying, to his mother. Nothing was hurt, but his pride.

In Milwaukee Animal Trainer Robert Bierwirth had been painstakingly teaching two baby elephants to step safely on and off a small platform 18 inches high. He blithely tried it himself, slipped, fractured his left ankle.

RABBIT DOWNS PLANE

On the same day in June, 1955, two planes were brought down in the United States—not by anti-aircraft fire, but by a steer and a jackrabbit.

The steer was being chased through a wheat field near Bremen, Ind., by a low-flying plane whose pilot, Bob Unsicker, dived again and again at the animal in an attempt to guide it toward a gate. Suddenly it leaped up and was hit by the plane's wheel. The plane went out of control and crashed into a treetop. The pilot escaped with minor injuries.

The jackrabbit scored its hit near Grand Fork, N.D. It did it by the simple act of leaping into the air directly in the path of a crop-dusting plane being flown close to the ground by Leo Mondry. A damaged propeller forced the plane to land.

In Hollywood, Calif., where even toys must be colossal or bigger, the Burns and Allen television show was using a 20-pound stuffed Teddy bear in a department store scene. The king-sized bear fell off the shelf, bopped Gracie Allen on the head and knocked her out cold.

FAITHFUL JALOPY

Walter Bergman, of Ashton, Idaho, was aware that his jalopy had served him long and well. But he didn't realize how faithful it was until he parked it in front of the postoffice and hurried in to get his mail. Somehow the car slipped into gear and followed him in, right through the postoffice window. Move over, old dog Tray!

And out in Los Angeles there's a man who just can't stay out of accidents. He's had several traffic escapades that made news for the papers. And this year he fell through the floor of the laboratory where he works and landed nine feet below with a bang that knocked him out. His name? No kidding, folks, it's Safety First!

Still think everything happens to you? Monotonous life you lead, isn't it?

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1955

Endorsement of Fluoridation By Health Dept. Welcomed; Many Ont. Cities to Approve

TORONTO (CP) — Endorsement of fluoridation by Health Minister Phillips of Ontario brought almost-immediate reaction in at least four cities.

In a fifth, North Bay, announcement coincided with a city plebiscite in which the voters approved fluoridation of community water supplies. North Bay is the first city in Canada to endorse the measure by a public vote.

In London and Windsor, health officials said they will ask their city governments for early approval. Sarnia and St. Thomas, both of which have shelved the measure, said they will reopen discussions.

BRANTFORD TEST

Mr. Phillips said in a statement that introduction of fluoride in drinking water appears harmless and beneficial. He referred to his department's findings in a 10-year fluoridation experiment in Brantford.

The report said there was a 50-per-cent decrease in the number of decayed, missing and filled teeth among Brantford school children since fluoride was introduced into the city's water system.

Dr. C. A. Harris, medical officer of health for London, Ont., said Monday he would recommend fluoridation to the city as soon as possible. Dr. John Howie, Windsor medical health officer, said Dr. Phillips' announcement a step he has looked forward to for six years.

Earlier this month city council defeated Alderman Wilfrid Morel's motion for the program has been allocated in the city budget. Dr. Howie said council now is free to act on his recommendation and he will ask early approval.

In earlier Windsor council discussions on the matter it was estimated installation of fluoridation equipment will take between three and four months. The operating cost was estimated at $14,000 a year.

AWAITED RELEASE

At both Sarnia and St. Thomas, city and public utilities commission officials are reported to have been awaiting release of figures on the Brantford study.

Sarnia council said it will seek a full report from the minister. St. Thomas health board said it plans to review an appeal to city council to introduce fluoridation.

Purpose of the Brantford experiment was to determine whether 1.2 parts of sodium fluoride in 1,000,000 parts of water would reduce the number of tooth decay to the lowest level found naturally-fluoridated regions.

The report said Brantford physicians and dentists found no ill-effects. Dr. observable ill effects. Dr. decay rate decreased and was comparable to that of Stratford, a naturally-fluoridated city.

HAVE INTRODUCED IT

Some Canadian municipalities including Sudbury, Kapuskasing and Deep River have introduced the measure but without a plebiscite.

Dr. Phillips warned that the maximum concentration should not be higher than 1.5 parts of sodium fluoride to 1,000,000 parts water.

"The safety of ingesting water fluoridated at the recommended dosage has been studied and has been attested by many of the leading agencies and organizations concerned with the health of the public," it said.

The report said the cost has been between 3 cents and 5 cents a year through the use of sodium fluoride but this is expected to be reduced o six cents by using sodium silico-fluoride.

It asserted that the saving in treating decayed teeth amounts to 10 to 20 times as much as the cost of fluoridation.

Visit Compared To Police Mission By Ukrainian

HAMILTON (CP)—A Ukrainian Orthodox priest Monday night compared the visit of three Russian churchmen to Canada to a secret police mission.

"As far as we are concerned, they might as well be NKVD men in disguise," said Rev. William Fedak of St. Vladimir's Ukrainian Orthodox church here.

He was critical of the United Church of Canada in inviting Archbishop Boris and his party on the visit without consulting with Canadian Orthodox churchmen.

"We have no quarrel with the United Church," Father Fedak said in an interview. "But we do after all know a little more than they about Russia. We know that the Soviets deliberately disorientated the Orthodox Church in the Ukraine alone, and only a few have been replaced."

Father Fedak said the visitors were interested only in gathering information, presumably for the use of the Soviet government.

Three Russian Churchmen Leave For Edmonton

OTTAWA (CP)—Three Russian churchmen left for Edmonton Monday night after issuing an invitation for a delegation of United Church clergymen to visit Russia.

Archpriest Constantine Rashlikov rector of Moscow Theological Seminary, expressed the hope that some Canadian church leaders can visit the Soviet Union in the near future, in a brief speech to a 600-person audience at Southminster United church.

He said he is sure other officials of the Russian Orthodox Church will visit Canada now that he and his companions have established a spiritual relationship between their church and the United.

The Russians, headed by Archbishop Boris of the Russian Orthodox Church, spent three days in the capital in the course of a Canadian tour at the invitation of the United Church of Canada. The third Russian visitor is lay brother Anatoley Gorbatchov.

GETS U.S. REPLY

At a press conference Monday, Archbishop Boris said the United States used unofficial pressure on religion in refusing him a visa. In Washington, however, the state department said the permission of the U.S. indefinitely as head of the Russian Orthodox Church in America was not granted the archbishop because the Russians do not allow reciprocal visits to these privileges in the Soviet Union.

Archbishop Boris wanted to make a temporary visit to fulfil his administrative duties he could, but any Soviet clergyman staying indefinitely in the U.S. should be bound by the same regulations as an American clergyman in Russia. They permitted him only to minister to American nationals.

Archbishop Boris said a member of the Communist party cannot belong to the church in Russia because Communists are unbelievers. He approved of the Soviet government because of what it was doing for the Russian people.

Board Plans New System To Stop Watering

TORONTO (CP) —Warning to bootleggers: The Ontario liquor control board plans to eliminate certain weakness in its bottling system.

The board is importing a new type of capping machine and aims to put a stop to the illicit practice on watering whiskey.

Officials have reported to have discovered that a recently-introduced mechanical system for capping liquor bottles made it impossible for them to remove the cap and replace it with a provincial seal. The liquor then could be watered and the cap and seal replaced.

Man Charged With Attempted Murder After Officer Shot

TORONTO (CP) — A car-theft suspect cornered in an alley Monday pulled a sawedoff shotgun from under his raincoat and fired it point-blank into the face of a pursuing policeman.

Walter Swetloff, 29, wounded in the hand and leg by police bullets, was later arrested at gunpoint and charged with attempted murder.

Police said he first gave the name of Walter Dether.

In critical condition in hospital is constable John Earls, 30, who has but one eye and part of his face from the blast. Believing he was chasing an unarmed car thief, he had not even drawn his gun.

His cap was riddled with more than 20 shotgun pellets.

Swetloff's arrest climaxed a wild flight and flurry of gunplay that started when two cruising policemen spotted a car parked the wrong way on a sidewalk of Dovercourt street in west-end Toronto. It had been reported stolen 45 minutes earlier.

Constable Fred Mason and James Stevens pulled over to check the man sitting in it.

The occupant started the engine, rammed the rear of the cruiser, continued on down the sidewalk, swerved to avoid a group of people in front of a theatre, bounced the car off a telephone pole and crashed into two parked cars.

The driver fled with Stewart pursuing him on foot as Mason radioed for assistance.

Among the scout cars answering the call was one manned by Earls and constable Herbert Creamer. It pulled to the curb behind the fugitive and Earls sprinted after him.

The same ran down Lisgar street and into an alley with Earls right behind him. Stewart and Creamer took separate routes in an attempt to box him in.

Then followed confusion. Police later pieced the chain of events together this way:

The suspect stopped in the entrance to an open garage, pulled a shotgun from under his coat and fired. Earls managed to crawl to a window and tap on it.

A woman, police said, called the dispatcher minutes later and said:

"There's a policeman crawling around in my back yard on his hands and knees. There's blood on his face."

Creamer heard the shot, ran into the alley and snapped a shot at the suspect as he climbed over a fence. Then he stopped to help Earls.

Stewart was on the other side of the fence and ordered the gunman to put up his hands. Instead, he ran down the alley and Stewart pumped five shots after him. One missed, but he was covered a hotgun out of his sleeve where it had been concealed. Another Stewart pursued the man out into the street and fired a second shot hit by a passing car. Another patrol car which had answered the general alarm took up the chase.

The suspect was finally caught and surrendered quietly with constable Harvey Powell's service revolver jabbing him in the ribs.

Creamer, meanwhile, carried Earls to the street and took him to St. Joseph's Hospital in a taxi. Doctors removed as many pellets as they could and ordered him transferred to the Toronto General Hospital.

His doctor gave him a 50-50 chance of survival.

TRAM DAMAGED

A taxi stand sign sags inside one of the damaged Montreal streetcars after a riot against rising fares pulled many windows out. It resulted in more than 100 arrests. The riot started with a students' demonstration then flared out of control. (CP Photo).

Tram Riot Has Repercussions In Courts, Council and Labor Circles, Fresh Trouble Feared

MONTREAL (CP) —Montreal's wild tram riot had repercussions Monday in the courts, the city council and labor circles.

Approval was given by organized labor for a one-day work "orderly" boycott of the publicly-owned Montreal Transportation Commission starting Friday. There were scattered union-meeting protests that the decision might touch off fresh trouble.

Municipal Judge Pascal Lachapelle handed out two six-month sentences to persons charged in connection with Friday's six-hour spree of violence against MTC vehicles.

He delivered four lesser jail terms, three fines ranging from $50 to $250 and five remands, and freed five accused who had been in jail since their arrests.

Another 48 of the 121 persons arrested in the riot are due to appear before him Friday, pleading not guilty to charges of loitering, assault and causing public damage.

Friday night, Mayor Jean Drapeau issued a statement saying that he would not have handled the mob outburst against streetcar fare increases any differently. He said that a student protest parade Wednesday had given no indication that a second on Friday would turn into a riot, but added that his ban on mass gatherings and processions will remain in no repetition.

The labor boycott is being organized to protest over the transfare increases inaugurated 10 days ago.

Supports Claim Ontario Oil Well Started Industry

TORONTO (CP)—Further support was given today to Ontario's claim to oil wells preceding the one drilled by Edwin L. Drake at Titusville, Pa., Aug. 27, 1859.

Dr. J. J. Talman, chief librarian of the University of Western Ontario said that on Aug. 26, 1858, the editor of The Observer at Sarnia stated that by that date oil from western Ontario's Enniskillen township had been "barrelled up and sent to Hamilton to be prepared there."

By Sept. 23, 1859, only 27 days after Drake struck oil in Pennsylvania, Talman said the Enniskillen industry was mature enough to produce, complain of high prices from consumers.

He added that James Miller Williams, founder of the Enniskillen field, "must be given his rightful place as father of the oil industry."

Dr. Talman's comments were contained in a release from Canadian Oil Companies Ltd., which announced Oct. 21 that it had bought the site of what, is believed to be the first well and planned to establish it as a national historic site as the birthplace of the North American oil industry.

Dr. Paul H. Giddens, former curator of the Drake Well Memorial Park and author of "The Birth of the Oil Industry" had replied that oil wells had been drilled before either the Drake or Enniskillen finds, but claimed that the Drake well, in its results, was the first of the industry.

Dr. Talman quoted evidence to show that Canada supplied about 15 per cent of the total United States petroleum trade in 1858.

Is Neither for Nor Against Communism States American Soldier Released by Chinese

By DAVID J. ROADS.

HONG KONG (AP) — Richard Roger Tenneson, 22, turncoat American prisoner of the Korean War, arrived here today from Red China. He said he was neither for nor against communism, but believed the Red charges that the United States used germ warfare in Korea.

Tenneson, who comes from Aldeen, Minn., was among 21 Americans who refused repatriation after the Korean War, Last September he said he wanted to go home, and the Communists gave him permission to leave.

He held a press conference in a hotel room provided by the Red Cross, the same room occupied by three other Americans who came home last summer.

TALKED RAPIDLY

Tenneson was nervous as he spoke, talking rapidly in a high-pitched voice and gesturing constantly. He said he had been permitted to read both American and Chinese newspapers and concluded that conditions in the U. S. were "favorable" for the Reds.

"I know definitely about communism today, more than in 1951," he said. "I am not flighting for communism, nor am I against it."

Tenneson said he believed the Chinese charges that the American gang had waged germ warfare in Korea because of the "evidence" the Communists had assembled.

He added: "I go back to some hostility when I arrive home because of my views on American germ warfare."

U. S. HAS DENIED

The U. S. has repeatedly denied the Red charges of germ warfare and in turn has charged that Chinese planes deliberately purpose to be of germ bombs and insects allegedly dropped by American aircraft were infected.

Tenneson termed his stay in China as he worked in a paper factory — "something like attending school, and now my decision to return to the United States is something like a post-graduate course."

The U. S. defence department gave all 21 turncoats dishonorable discharges in January, 1956, after their decision to go to China. When the first three returned to the U.S., the army arrested them on charges of betraying their government.

But the U. S. Supreme Court ruled last month that persons now civilians cannot be tried by courts-martial for offences allegedly committed while in service. After the ruling the army released the turncoat trio. The government has not indicated whether it will seek to try them in a civil court.

Member Favors Some Type Of Health Insurance

TORONTO (CP) — A freshman member of the Ontario legislature Monday night said the time is not ripe for a federal-provincial healthcare plan much reason was that Quebec "is not in favor of it."

Ross Whicher, Liberal member for Bruce elected at the June 9 provincial general election, made the statement during a speech over a CHC radio network program on provincial affairs.

Text of his speech was released to the press before delivery.

Mr. Whicher described health insurance as political dynamite, perhaps too big for an amateur to talk about.

FAVORS INSURANCE

He said he favored some type of health insurance as a combined operation between the federal government and the provinces.

"However, I try to be realistic about it and I am sure that at least for the present time no such cooperation will take place, if for no other reason than the reluctance of Quebec is not in favor of it," he said.

"The cost of a health plan such as some people advocate would be astronomical as much of the whole budget for the province is now.

DOUBLE TAXES

Mr. Whicher said the total cost of a plan suggested by the CCF would almost double provincial taxes immediately and the province cannot afford it.

He suggested that a form of "catastrophic insurance" be introduced by the provincial government, providing for payment of all medical bills over $500 or $200, depending on what the government can afford.

"The legislation to permit this should be put through now," he said.

DOCTOR SHORTAGE

GENEVA (Reuters)—There are 1,200,000 doctors to deal with the world's population of 2,500,000,000 according to a study published by the World Health Organization Monday. The study shows that in 22 countries there is only one doctor to every 20,000 or more inhabitants, while in another 14 countries there is one doctor to every 1,000 or less.

Court Rejects Appeal To Reduce Sentence

TORONTO (CP) —The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday rejected an appeal to reduce the 21-year sentence of a man who allegedly assaulted two women while posing as a doctor.

W. Eugene Ford was sentenced in Kitchener on a charge of indecent assault. Similar and other complaints had been received from two cities.

Ford asked that the court find the sentence "unduly harsh and unreasonable."

"You're asking us to review the sentence," said Chief Justice J. C. Pickup. "We could increase it."

Evidence given by Cavin Monkman, chief inspector for Ontario, was that Ford also may have been practising medicine without a licence.

STEALS POTENT DRUG

CHICAGO (AP)—Theft of more than $100,000 worth of a "powerful drug" that might sicken anyone who took it has prompted directions reported to police Monday. Sixty cartons of the preparation, a mercury ester of the cortisone family of the so-called "wonder drugs" were toted out of the Chicago quarters of the Schering Corp. during the weekend.

FREED OF MURDER

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. Sunny Worden Monday was freed by a county grand jury of charges she murdered her husband on a lonely island in October. The 42-year-old mother of three children said "I have been fairly dealt with and vindicated." The body of her husband, Don Worden, 43-year-old real estate man, was found Oct. 29 in a shallow grave on Padre island, just off the Texas coast near here. Mrs. Worden said she killed him and buried his body after he had made her dig a grave and said he was going to force her to kill her five-year-old daughter and herself.

FAMILY AFFAIR

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Fighting fires in this city is a family affair. The 987 men in the fire department include 39 pairs of brothers, a trio of brothers, and 24 father-and-son teams.

Gardenville

GARDENVILLE — "Answered of God" is Theme of Anniversary Service at the Carrying Place United Church.

Sunday evening marked another milestone in the life and service of the United Church in Carrying Place, as many friends joined with the congregation to give thanks for blessings received this year and to pray that the year ahead may be one of consecrated service with the members more closely united in Christian brotherhood and love, "seeking first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness".

Mrs. Wm. Hendricks was organist, leading the full choir in the anthem of praise and thanksgiving and also accompanying the soloist, Miss June Bowerman, of Albury, who sang most effectively "I Met Him Today on the Highway".

The Reverend E. V. Cook based his message on the words of St. Paul to young Timothy, "Study to show thyself approved of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed".

Mr. Cook, in summarizing Paul's life of hardships and persecution, following his conversion and during his ministry, pointed out that Paul was well qualified to give to his young friend the advice contained in his Biblical letter. He also drew attention to the fact that the same advice is good for us all today, "to worship, trusting God for courage and strength, keeping our eye ever on the goal of the race of life - which goal is God; and to run it with assurance and determination, through His good grace".

Mr. Cook traced the progress made by the local church over the past year - in the beautifying of God's house with new front doors and an electric Minshall organ, as well as repairing the Memorial window - all of which are paid for but even more significant in God's eyes perhaps, is the life given to His work by a member, Jack Hart, now studying for the ministry at Queen's University, and also the contribution being made, week by week, by the Sunday School teachers in guiding and teaching the children "the church of to-morrow".

Great hymns of the church, "Onto the Hills", "The Church's One Foundation" and "Fight the Good Fight" added impetus to the message which was one to march forward with, resolved to do greater things for Him Who gave Himself for us.

Flowers were placed on the Communion Table by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baxter in loving memory of Mrs. Baxter's sister and father.

Practice began this week for "The Nativity" pageant which will form the Christmas Service on Sunday Dec. 18, at 1.30 p.m. It is hoped all families of the community, and friends, may plan to attend. Directed by Mrs. Jack Baxter, this pageant is most impressive and every pupil of the Sunday School will be taking part.

SOCIAL NEWS

Mrs. Fred Walker has returned home after visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Colesil were guests of their son, Jim, and his family in Brighton on Sunday.

The ladies of the Women's Association of the United Church held a successful sale of baked goods and sewing on the Trenton market, on Saturday. A gratifying sum was realized and the effort of those who cooperated are most appreciated. Mrs. Joe Rollins, Mrs. E. Hennessey and Mrs. Jack Baxter sold the goods on the market.

Mrs. D. Meaker, Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnot Young, and was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Doug. Baxter for supper, Saturday evening.

Mrs. Sarah Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dunsmoor of Burlington and Miss Joyce Stapleton, Brighton, spent Saturday in Picton and had supper with Mr. and Mrs. Stapleton. On Sunday they were all guests of Mrs. Sarah Hart at Gardenville along with Miss Barbara Stapleton, Miss Marie Hyatt of Trenton, Mr. Ron Richards of Brighton and Mr. Herb Hart who stays in Brighton during the week.

Burke, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs Howard Aselstine, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baxter; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vader and Jimmy, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Baxter, Gardenville, were recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Baxter and Susan.

Mr. and Mrs. George Griffin and children, Thomasburg, visited the former's mother on Saturday.

The annual Christmas party of the Carrying Place Women's Association was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Stanley Hart, on Wednesday evening.

NURSARIES OBTAINED

Mr. Jack Hart was home from Queen's University and attended the commencement exercises at Trenton High School, Friday night. He was presented with a $200 bursary from the Trenton Rotary Club and also the $100. Hinde and Dauch scholarship for the boy with the highest average in any eight Grade XIII papers. Jack's ability was also recognized by the Life Membership Honor Society pin. The community congratulates Jack, too!

8 DIE IN CRASH

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco (AP) A four-engined U.S. C-54 military transport crashed and burned Sunday night in the rugged Riff mountains, killing all eight airmen aboard, Spanish authorities said Monday.

BORED BY EFFORT

LONDON (Reuters) — Joyce Ainger, 19, Monday night gave up an attempt to beat the world record for continuous roller skating. After skating for 60 hours and one minute at Aylesbury, near here, she fell and gave up not because of any physical hardship but because she was just bored.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was walking to school slow with Putie Simkins and Dopey Short. Judge, and I said, Heck, here we are on our way to school again.

Yeah, this is a heck of a life, Puds said, and Shorty said, I'm not going to do it forever, like me. As soon as I get old enough to go in bizness like my father I'll be free, he said.

Oh boy, that will be the life, Puds said. All you do is sit in your office giving orders and making money and going out to lunch every time you feel like another sunwich and a bottle of root beer, he said, and I said, Yeah, and if anybody talks back to you, you just fire them to show who's the boss around there.

Yeah, and if you need some extra large, you don't have to ask anybody for it, you just writ your self another check, and there it is Shorty said.

Yeah and when you go home you just sit there reading your paper and smoking and watching your wife and kids and nobody whether they feel like it or not, he said.

And we kept on walking slow and sad, and Shorty said, Oh well I'm not often late to school and I got a lot of homework in a breeze and he's still working on it when all I have to do is go to bed.

Yeah, so does mine, I said, and he said, Oh, that's right, mine does too. And I bet there's still other things about going to work that we're not going to like so much, he said.

Yeah, I can we tell? I said, and Shorty said, Yeah, what's the use?

Dying is one fool party lucky.

DIES ON JOB

TOKYO (AP) — Ken Yoshida, 37, called the Japanese "king of the railway pickpockets," died on the job. Police picked him at work on the Hiroshima express and took chase. He clambered to the roof of a car to escape. A low overhead bridge got him.

HOPE FOR VISIT

LONDON (CP) — The Evening Standard said Monday that Canadian Steamship Company officials are hoping that Princess Margaret will be a passenger when the Cunard liner Carinthia makes her maiden voyage to Canada next summer. Princess Margaret, who has never seen an official visit to Canada, has said she wants to go if it can be arranged.

SHELL FOR SAFETY

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Aromatic smells will be used to give fire alarms in the coal mines of the Ostrava region of Czechoslovakia, Prague radio reports. It says this form of alarm system is much more efficient than sound or light signals in mines.

OFFERED POST

RCMP Superintendent George J. Archer, has been asked by Vancouver to become chief constable of the city. The 56-year-old officer commanding Vancouver's RCMP subdivision said he will accept the $10,000-a-year post if his Ottawa superiors approve. The post has been vacant since former police chief Walter H. Mulligan was fired at his own request during a Royal Commission investigation of charges of graft and corruption in Vancouver police department. (CP Photo).

COMIC BOOKS ENCHANT CHINESE URCHINS

Youngsters are the same the world over and here, in Hong Kong a group of urchins are engaged in one of their favorite diversions—reading comic books, or at least looking at the pictures. The Chinese have added their own particular business angle to it, however. The books are rented to the youngsters, who return them to the news stand for other children to rent and read. Many Ontario Cities Declare Weekend Holiday of Four Days

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Christmas falls on Sunday this year and the question of giving two week days off—one for Christmas and one for Boxing Day—has had a mixed reaction throughout Canada.

Where cities have a free choice, the selection of Monday as Boxing Day has an edge over Tuesday—and a four-day weekend.

In England, Boxing Day used to be the day when employers gave employees presents.)

Four provincial governments—British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba and Newfoundland—have declared Tuesday Dec. 27, a holiday. Alberta and Manitoba qualified their declarations by saying the holiday isn't binding as statutory. Quebec cities against the Tuesday Boxing Day holiday are Montreal, Quebec, Hull and Sherbrooke.

ONTARIO CITIES

Ontario, where the provincial government has left Boxing Day declarations to the municipal governments, shows Toronto, Oshawa, Windsor, Port Arthur and Orillia against a Dec. 27 holiday, Ottawa, Kingston, St. Catharines, Brantford, Stratford, North Bay, Timmins and Fort William have declared a four-day weekend.

Sarnia, Sudbury and St. Thomas haven't reached a decision.

Ontario banks are to be open Tuesday.

Two Maritime provinces have taken opposite stands on the question. In New Brunswick, Saint John, Fredericton, Moncton and Lancaster indicate they will hold Boxing Day, in Nova Scotia, Sydney, Halifax, and Dartmouth have ordered thumbs down.

In Manitoba, Winnipeg and Portage La Prairie are against a holiday while Brandon is for it.

In Alberta, Edmonton will treat Monday as Boxing Day.

LEFT LICENCE NO.

STRATFORD (CP)—The writing was on the pole for George Fox of nearby St. Marys. Police Monday testified that Fox's licence number was imprinted on a hydro pole hit by an auto. Magistrate A. P. Cook fined Fox $20 and costs for failing to report an accident and recommended that his driving privileges be cancelled when Fox said he could neither read nor write.

Editor Says Jews Denied Churches In Soviet Russia

TORONTO (CP) — An Israeli newspaper editor, recently returned from a trip behind the Iron Curtain, said Monday 2 000,000 Jews in Russia have been denied synagogues, Jewish schools and their own press. Chaim Shurer, editor-in-chief of Davar, said there is only one synagogue for Moscow's 500,000 Jews.

He told the 12th annual Histadrut conference he found it extremely difficult to make contact with Jewish people during his visit.

He said he found no Jewish newspapers, schools or libraries in the country.

Britain Arrests 135 Red Leaders In Cyprus Raids

Wave of Violence Follows Banning of Communist Party

Bulletin

LONDON, (AP)—The Labor party tonight elected Hugh Gaitskell as its leader.

St. Laurent Hopes to Avoid Railway Tie-Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today expressed the hope that a railway tie-up will not develop from the current dispute between the carriers and non-operating unions.

In his first public statement on the deadlocked negotiations involving 150,000 workers, he said railway operations are necessary to Canada's very existence.

Mr. St. Laurent was speaking to the annual legislative delegation of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. The delegation asked that the federal government not only preserve the right of railway workers to strike.

The brief, read by TLC president Claude Jodoin, said the government in recent years has a abridged parliamentary legislation and abrogated the railway workers' right to strike.

ST. LAURENT REPLIES

Mr. St. Laurent replied that the cabinet has no right to abridge legislation and does not attempt to do so.

"I do not think there is any desire anywhere or on anyone's part to abridge, or interfere with the right to strike," he said.

"But there do at times arise situations which create deadlocks that have effects on the Canadian economy, in principle, no one wants to bring about important practical effects on the economy.

"When deadlocks do arise, there has to be found some way to overcome them. We have to bring about resumption of operations necessary to our existence."

Mr. St. Laurent said that in the present dispute the labor dispute department already has acquiesced to a request of the rail unions that some reconciliation procedure be speeded up.

The congress brief said the non-operating workers, who are asking for a wage-health-welfare package, should be given freedom to enforce their demands without the use of government-appointed conciliation as was employed last year.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Britain banned the Communist party in this crown colony today and rounded up 135 Red leaders in lightning raids.

The island flared in a new wave of strikes, bombings and demonstrations protesting the anti-Red move.

Strikes for political purposes are illegal, but building workers in Nicosia downed their tools, military cantonment employees a 24-hour work and even waiters in hotels refused to serve guests. Newspaper printers held urgent meetings to decide whether to block publication.

TEAR GAS USED

In some towns the strikers tried to march to their union headquarters, but were dispersed by troops using tear gas.

One British army private was shot dead and another seriously injured when a terrorist fired at them from behind in the main street of Nicosia.

Three British soldiers were injured by a bomb explosion in Famagusta. Another bomb was exploded at Famagusta.

Communist organizations were outlawed and the party newspaper Haravgi suspended after ban was extended to the labor federation, however, Gen. Sir John Harding, British governor, saying his regime "is most anxious not to disrupt the work of legitimate trade unionism."

Harding said the new crackdown on the strategic east Mediterranean island—headquarters for British forces in the Middle East—was ordered because the Communists appeared determined to "provoking dissension and turbulence" in the colony.

THREE TEEN-AGERS KILLED AS CAR MISSES CURVE

Two Others Injured In Goderich Crash

GODERICH (CP)—Three teenagers were killed and two others injured when their car missed a curve on Highway 21 and went out of control on an ice-covered county road north of here Tuesday.

Paul Swan, 16, Leonard Harvey Steels, 18, and William Garrick, 18, were killed.

Garrick was the owner and believed by police to have been the driver of the car. It was southbound on the highway, missed a curve, continued along a hard-surface, ice - covered county road, crashed into a concrete culvert, provincial police said.

Gary Ross, 20, and Charles Robertson, 18, were taken to hospital in serious condition with multiple injuries. Ross is known to have suffered a fractured left arm as well as other injuries. The car was wrecked.

Constable Doug Whitfield of the provincial police said an inquest has been ordered and will likely be held Friday.

Urge Federal Employees Get Pay Increases

OTTAWA (CP)—Immediate pay increases for federal government employees were urged today by the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

The congress, in its annual brief to the cabinet, said wages and salaries throughout Canada have continued to rise since the government reviewed the pay scales.

It also asked that the five-day week be extended to all administrative classes and that the five-day 40-hour week be given to those operating engines and those worked in excess of the standard week should be paid for at time-and-a-half rates.

Leaves Estate Of $1,276,586

KINGSTON (CP)—Dr. Frederick Ellerbeck Jeffery, 72, a former dean of medicine at Queen's University, left an estate of $1,276,586, probate of his will disclosed Tuesday. He died Nov. 10.

Most of the estate was left in endowments to Queen's and Kingston General Hospital. His wife, the former Agnes Richardson, died in December last year.

Charge Man Beat 4-Year-Old Boy

TORONTO (CP) — Robye Figuray, 23, was charged Tuesday with assault in connection with the beating of a four-year-old boy.

Joanna Lavigne was admitted to Hospital for Sick Children suffering a badly bruised face and a leg injury. Figuray lived in the same house as the boy and his mother, police said.

FARE IS CUT

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Transport Commission today announced a five-cent fare cut for winter ferry services to Toronto Islands.

The cut, beginning Dec. 18, lowers the fare from 30 to 25 cents.

Harry J. Fenton, chairman, said the number of tugs used will be cut from four to three, saving $10,000 a year.

2 Bandits Rob Service Station

WALLACEBURG (CP) — Police today reported two men, armed with guns and wearing pillowcases over their heads, robbed a service station operator of $122. Detective Bill Hall said two men held him up outside his station, six miles northwest of Wallaceburg, and 22 miles northwest of Chatham, district midnight hour.

Mr. Bishop said the men took his money and told him to drive his automobile while they ran north. However, he turned the truck around and submitted the men with his headlights. They turned and fired twice. Both shots missed.

Grand Maple Leaf Ball Is Enjoyed By Canadians in London, England

LONDON (CP)—Members of the Canadian colony in London danced rhumbas, sambas, lighthouse reels and the Gay Gordons till 3 a. m. today at a grand Maple Leaf Ball organized by the Canadian Women's Club of Great Britain.

Chairman Mrs. Stanley Vanis, Canadian High Commissioner Norman Robertson and Mrs. Robertson received the 350 guests at the swank Dorchester Hotel. Guests included Finance Minister Harris of Canada.

After a four-course dinner including turkey with chestnut stuffing, pineapple and ice cream, the guests chased under cover of darkness for hidden prize-winning tickets. The lucky ones got theatre seats and wool sweaters.

Metro Approves New Speedway

TORONTO (CP)—Metropolitan Toronto Tuesday approved construction of a $28,000,000 thoroughfare between the northern and southern limits of downtown Toronto.

The projected 2½-mile valley parkway will be built to speed up motor traffic and relieve the city's metropolitan Chairman Fred G. Gardiner said the council in 1956 may appeal to the Ontario government for financial aid in building a series of rapid transit lines.

Labor Congress Brief to Govt. Stresses Health Insurance

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today urged the federal government to join with other governments in combatting "seasonal unemployment and to lead in setting up Canada-wide health insurance.

The two points received greatest emphasis in the TLC's annual submission to the cabinet, a 12,000-word brief which will be the 600,000-member body's last. It merges with the Canadian Congress of Labor next April.

With Canada now in the period of rising seasonal unemployment, the congress said it is concerned with the number of unplaced job applicants this winter will crowd the 500,000 mark.

To expand job opportunities, it proposed:

1. Collaboration by the 11 senior governments in planning and timing public works for maximum winter and off-season jobs.

2. Correlation of federal and provincial tax structures to reduce the total tax load on the lower and middle-class income groups and increase their purchasing power.

Reduction of work hours also was suggested, and the congress said the largest is the 35-hour day and 30-hour week.

A further measure proposed was the establishment of a government-management-labor commission to direct the development of natural resources.

The brief includes, the TLC said the time now is opportune for the federal government to take the initiative in a nationwide plan despite constitutional difficulties.

Such a program would be contributory but government-subsidized and should provide everyone with hospital, medical, dental, optical and hospital care, and include psychiatric treatment and supervised mental homes.

Dealing with unemployment insurance, the TLC said benefits for jobless should be increased to at least two-thirds of average wage. The top now is $30 a week for persons with dependents.

On immigration, the congress said it should be related closely to job opportunities and for this reason should be "very selective" in the next year.

Blizzard Tightens Its Hold, 11 Missing in Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP)—A numbing blizzard which has caused one death tightened its disrupting hold on Saskatchewan today.

The wind-driven storm, with 11 persons missing in the third day of its sweep across Alberta and this province, stranded hundreds at farm homes and hamlets. Snow drifts, some 10 feet high, halted traffic. Offices and schools will be weeks before some rural roads are open.

Rail traffic was running two to four hours behind schedule. Bus and truck lines were not moving and air flights in and out of most Saskatchewan points remained grounded because of poor visibility.

Schools remained closed over most of this province and in several parts of northeastern Alberta. Officials said it might be a week before they are recovered from days of snow-plugged roads.

Mail, milk and newspaper deliveries were almost halted in Saskatchewan cities. Even some essential services, including electric power and telephone, were cut off in some rural districts.

Across the Prairies, the cold that came with the blizzard and intensified weather office said the blizzard conditions in most of Saskatchewan will continue into Thursday fall.

Blizzard warnings were continued for the Prince Albert, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and Regina areas of Saskatchewan where temperature and winds of 20 miles an hour are to continue.

In Alberta, where the storm struck Monday morning, most essential services had returned to clear and cold weather with light winds.

This was in sharp contrast to the icy winds up to 60 and 70 miles an hour that blasted through with the storm from southern Manitoba, which received only fringes of the storm, winds were light and temperatures ere around zero.

An unidentified farm hand, unheard from since he left his shack at Halbrite, 90 miles south of Regina, is the only death as well for water, was feared dead.

One Indian farmer, William Carey who has not been seen since Monday afternoon when he left his Regina farm for a shopping.

RCMP at Regina said they knew of 10 persons in the province and unreported since Monday night. The Kindersley area. 120 miles southeast of Saskatoon, two others were unreported since the night the storm came.

Alan Guest, 53, of Regina, has been missing since he left the city in a taxi Monday afternoon to deliver newspapers to Balgonie.

Many who were reported missing earlier have been found. Two children, among them a six-year-old who was reported missing Monday, failed to return home from school Monday night, were reunited with their parents.

Tuesday night nearly 150 persons who had been stranded in small towns around Regina, were taken to warm homes by police and transported to the Saskatchewan capital.

Twenty-seven persons were rescued from 25 miles west of Regina, where they had been housed at a service station. The group came to Regina from a small garage and cafe about eight miles from the city and about 30 persons stranded at Belle Plaine were taken in by train.

Use Tear-Gas to Trap Men Holding Child, 3, as Hostage

BULLETIN

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Police used tear-gas to recapture two fugitives who escaped from the suburban Mental Hospital today.

The pair had held a three-year-old girl hostage in her parents' home at nearby Ajax. Whitby is 15 miles east of Toronto.

Mrs. Sam Barry, 30, and her husband were alone with the child in the house when the men gained admittance by asking to use the telephone.

They appeared to have been drinking and one of them had blood on his hand as if he had smashed a window," she said.

Elmira Man Severely Stabbed

ELMIRA (CP) — A man was stabbed in the chest Tuesday with a knife used for sticking pigs, police said.

George Porteous, 40, was reported in serious condition by hospital officials in this village 10 miles north of Guelph.

Ella Barrie, 31, was charged with assault causing bodily harm.

NAMED CHAIRMAN

TORONTO (CP)—W. H. Besley has been appointed to a six-month term as chairman of the Ontario Tax Commission, it was announced today.

Vancouver Police System Changed Result of Slaying

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver acquitted one of its policemen Tuesday as police drafted battle plans against the underworld which killed him.

Allan Rossiter, acting chief constable, said steps would be taken immediately to reduce the city limits of two-man patrol cars.

In addition, he said, a four-shift system would be introduced to allow withdrawal of a limited number of men from active duty for training.

Return to the two-man car system was urged by a coroner's jury inquiring into the slaying of Const. Frank Hamilton, 27, shot down a week ago as he stepped alone from a patrol car to question suspected gunmen.

At the same time, Brigadier William Bell, chairman of a board member of the police commission, disclosed that Const. Sinclair had not had a day of training during his 13 years on the force.

He said 24 per cent of the uniformed officers had never had any police training.

Const. Sinclair was buried Tuesday with full civic honors. His casket, the coffin as it passed through streets lined with people.

TRAPPED IN ALLEY, GUNMAN IS SLAIN BATTLING POLICE

Winnipeg Taxi Driver Trails Stolen Auto

TRANSCONA, Man. (CP) — A gunman was fatally shot Tuesday night during a battle with police who had cornered him in a snow-covered alley.

In a nearby house, a frightened 31-year-old girl and her brother lay on the floor as shot gun pellets whistled through a window and peppered the side of their home.

Police chief J. G. Bilodeau and three constables fought it out with the gunman in running gun battle.

They later identified the man, who was dead on arrival at hospital, as Peter Malcolm, about 35. His address was unknown.

The man, using a shotgun sawed off at the butt, was cornered in the alley by police who had exchanged shots with him after he drove a taxi into a ditch.

FLAGGED TAXI

Police said the man flagged down a taxi driven by Peter Falk in north Winnipeg and ordered him to drive towards this town 10 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

Falk said his passenger, sitting in the rear seat, suddenly pointed a gun at him and said: "Don't be bandit. You get out now." The gunman then drove off.

Falk flagged another car, followed the taxi into Transcona and, with police, gave chase. Bilodeau ordered the gunman to get out.

Police said Falk told them Chief Bilodeau ordered the gunman to get out. It appears the gunman shot at the cruiser car and ducked behind the cab. Several shots were exchanged before the man ran between two homes into the lane where another gun duel started, in which he was killed.

Patricia Bishop and her brother Robert, 12, were home alone when the shooting began. Shot gun pellets shattered windows and struck the house and they dropped to the floor in fright.

Fire Damages Sudbury Hotel

SUDBURY (CP) — A midnight fire at the 50-year-old King Edward Hotel early Tuesday left many homeless and many in their night attire, and caused damage which was estimated at several thousand dollars.

The blaze, discovered shortly before midnight by an unidentified guest and a waiter, started in the hotel's dining room and some 20 rooms in the south section of the building.

Many of the 20 rooms were heavily damaged by fire, smoke or water. None of the remaining 80 rooms nor the 18 apartments on the top floor escaped smoke damage.

All the guests and permanent roomers escaped safely.

CABINET RESIGNS

PORTSMOUTH, Eng. (Reuters) — Two convicts who greased their wrists with butter and then slipped their fetters escaped from prison here Tuesday. The two men, James Murphy, 24, and Peter Allen, 22, made their break here while being transferred from one prison to another. They took butter from their lunch sandwiches to help slip off their manacles.

Russia Requests Emergency Meet On Membership

Asks Council to Assemble After Vetoes Kill Scheme

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) Russia today called for an extraordinary meeting of the UN Security Council to reconsider the deadlocked membership problem.

Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev asked the council president Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, to call the 11-nation body into session either this afternoon or tonight.

There was no immediate indication whether the Russians had any new proposals. Vetoes by Nationalist China and Russia Tuesday killed a Canadian-sponsored package deal which would have admitted 18 new members to the UN.

Word of the Russian move came as angry sponsors of the veto-riled package deal demanded a full airing of the problem in the General Assembly which previously had called upon the council to act favorably on the package plan.

DEBATE PROMISED

Assembly president Jose Maza of Chile told the assembly that it would get a chance to debate the problem again before the current session ends later this week. He said, however, he would not place it on the agenda unless the security council had concluded its efforts in China's solution.

Chief U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., and Soviet delegate Sobolev met with Soviet Union in the security council Tuesday to thwart the will of the majority.

An unprecedented total of 16 vetoes were cast by the two countries, all but one of them by Russia, in Tuesday's Security Council session which killed the Canadian package proposal calling for the package admission of 18 countries, five of them communist.

The result was in doubt until the moment when Chinese Nationalist T. F. Tsiang shot up his hand in opposition to Communist Outer Mongolia, against which he had threatened privately — but never publicly — to use his power veto.

A Chinese move to add South Korea and South Viet Nam to the 18 candidates sponsored in the original proposal drew the first two vetoes from Russia. Already a Sobolev. The council then proceeded to vote on the original package, country by country.

Communist Albania won instantaneous approval with the required seven votes. Then Tsiang's veto fell on Mongolia and then Nepal. Outer Mongolia and the plan was doomed.

VETOED ALL 12

Sobolev proceeded to veto all 13 Western - sponsored candidates— Austria, Ireland, Italy, Libya, Portugal, Ceylon, Laos, Cambodia, Nepal, Libya, Jordan, Japan and Finland.

Communist Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary all won tentative approval and joined Albania as the sole survivors when the vote was taken on the enabling paragraph calling for their admission. Their admission vanished as Russia cast the sole vote in favor. Peru, Brazil, Turkey and China voted against the enabling paragraph while Britain, France, Belgium, the United States, Iran and New Zealand abstained.

Two weeks the Russians had threatened to kill the package unless all their satellite candidates were accepted. Sobolev Tuesday restated Russia's willingness to vote for a resolution including all 18 candidates.

Passage of the resolution would have brought the first countries in the UN since 1950, when Indonesia was admitted to the UN. However, since 1945, when the international organization was founded, only nine have been admitted. Russia has consistently vetoed Western-sponsored candidates.

Though Tuesday's action shattered hopes of an early settlement of the membership problem, Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold Sir Leslie Knox Munro of New Zealand said "the matter cannot rest here and the possibility of seeking agreement may be reopened."

Accused Driving At Excessive Rate Says Jury

TRURO, N. S. (CP)—A charge of criminal negligence was laid today against L.Cpl. Gordon Finkle of nearby Camp Aldershot.

The charge followed a decision by a coroner's jury that Finkle was driving at an excessive rate of speed when involved in an automobile accident that claimed the life of George Warde, Truro.

Finkle's home address was given as RR 2, Mallorytown, Ont.

Given 20 Years For Strangling His Child Friend

QUEBEC (CP)—Roland Roy, 25-year-old carpenter, was sentenced today to 20 years in penitentiary for the strangling death of Francois Vachon, 6, of a child friend.

Judge Gerard Lacroix handed down the sentence as an "example," so that "other lovers in the same situation" would not allow their quarrels to reach violent proportions.

Roy was found guilty of manslaughter Saturday. He had been originally charged with murder for strangling and beating 34-year-old Francois Vachon to death last Oct. 6 during a violent quarrel.

Minister Says Santa Claus Often Pot-Bellied, Drunken Materialist

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Christmas has become a Roman holiday instead of a Christian celebration, Rev. H. Pinzi, minister of Adelaide Baptist church said Santa Claus often is nothing more than "a pot-bellied, drunken materialistic representative of materialism."

He was quoted in a newspaper story he had changed his regular Sunday service to 4 p. m. from 7 p. m. to avoid conflict with Mr. Pinzi said in this way a family could worship together. He said he would have a special service for "Christian Christmas around the tree at home."

"Too many people now celebrate Christmas by becoming intoxicated, this is blasphemy."

Mr. Pinzi, 38, father of two girls and a boy, denounced the materialistic aspect of Christmas symbolized by Santa Claus.

"Santa is often the symbol of 'give me,' whereas Christ is the symbol of 'give to others' in celebration of what He has done for us."

He said he does not condemn the commercial aspects of Christmas but don't criticize merchants wanting to make business out of Christmas who want to present gifts. But every gift should be "a symbol of the unspeakable gift of God's Son."

Mr. Pinzi, a former resident of Peterborough and Montreal, said he felt that gifts as a means of promoting business goodwill, such as those gifts which industries liberally sprinkle among purchasing agents who can do them a good turn, is "Christmas blasphemy."

"There can be no secular Christmas. We want to put a manger scene in every home so that people kneel and worship before it.

Three Wanted In Forged Cheque Racket

MONTREAL (CP) — Sgt. Albert Brouillet of the provincial police is en route to Port Arthur, Ont., to pick up three men wanted for questioning in connection with a forged cheque racket that lifted an estimated $12,000 out of Quebec province merchants since last April.

Names of the suspects were not disclosed even. Police said two of them were given short sentences by Ontario courts after pleading guilty to forgery. A third was free pending trial.

Director Hilaire Beaurgard said the men will be questioned in connection with a racket in which a small portable press was used to produce cheques in the names of well-known firms and business companies.

The forged cheques were passed off on small merchants in various parts of the province.

City Council Approves Placing Of New Federal Govt. Building In Station-Pinnacle St. Area

Belleville city council at a spec- he new 100 per cent in favor of ial meeting Tuesday evening placed its stamp of approval on the Federal government's intention of constructing a new public building in the city and also on the proposed site in the Station-Pinnacle street area.

The proposed building, to cost an estimated one-and-a-half million dollars would house the Belleville post office department, income tax office and other federal offices located in the city. Construction is expected to get underway in 1956.

In a communication from the Federal Department of public works, city council was asked for its approval on three questions: 1. whether the proposed site was satisfactory; 2. whether the city agreed to close Pinnacle street and if so would there be any cost to the department, and 3. whether the area allotted for the widening of Station street was satisfactory.

After a lengthy discussion on the matter council went on record as commending the federal government for its proposal to erect a new building in the city and indicated in the communication received by council. At the same time council indicated its intention of co-operating with the requests of the department.

Preliminary plans for the new building call for a block long structure, fronting on Church to Pinnacle street with the front of the structure facing Pinnacle. The building would straddle what is now Foundry street.

BUILDINGS TO BE RAZED

Present buildings to be razed in preparation for the new structure are the Greenleaf building, including the Garage Supply premises; the Sidney Chevrolet building and Beer Warehouse and residential properties on the north side of Foundry St.

Property not taken up in construction of the new federal building would be reserved for parking area.

Council was particularly interested in the property offered for the widening of Station Street in exchange for the closing of Foundry St.

City Engineer Charles Moti said the maximum width to be received for widening Station St. would be 50 feet, tapering off to a point at Church St. and at the intersection of Pinnacle and Foundry. The amount of property to be received would allow complete elimination of the present curve on Station St. at this point and would do away with the present traffic bottleneck.

Mayor J. Both spoke favorably of the property exchange offered Foundry St. considering the area which would be received to allow widening of Station Street. He said, however, that the matter was entirely up to council.

Alderman Art Keegan assured

$10,000 Will Be Raised For Strikers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Labor Council (CIO-CCL) Tuesday night approved a minimum objective of $10,000 to be raised among trade unions in support of 18,000 employees of five General Motors plants in Ontario who have been on strike since September.

The appeal for funds was made by Don Smith of Oshawa, acting chairman of local 222 of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL). He said the money was needed to provide a better Christmas for striking workers and their families.

$10,000 Will Be Raised For Strikers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Labor Council (CIO-CCL) Tuesday night approved a minimum objective of $10,000 to be raised among trade unions in support of 18,000 employees of five General Motors plants in Ontario who have been on strike since September.

The appeal for funds was made by Don Smith of Oshawa, acting chairman of local 222 of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL). He said the money was needed to provide a better Christmas for striking workers and their families.

JUST TRANSZPER CONGESTION

"I thought the 401 highway was to take traffic out of the city, not bring it in," returned Alderman Ben Safe.

"But trucks and other traffic would still have to come in," returned Ald. Keegan.

"The question would merely be transferred to another place."

Alderman Moxam took the attitude that the city could not do much in regard to any event and the government could expropriate what property it required.

Alderman Hyde said the city should receive compensation for the property taken from the city. It should have the opportunity of purchasing the present post office property for a nominal sum. Aldermen Keegan, Moxam and Tile took much the same attitude.

Mayor Both noted, however, that a letter from city council requested the opportunity of purchasing the present post office property was already on file at Ottawa.

He said that the opportunity being offered the city to widen Station St. was one which should not be missed and was one which would cost the city thousands of dollars if the property was purchased in normal channels.

"A federal building would mean a new base on life for that section of the city and would beautify the city in that area."

"I am not trying to push this down council's throat, but I am highly in favor of it," he continued. "It would be a definite asset no matter how you look at it."

Making a definite request for additional property in exchange for closing of Foundry St. would be a wrong approach, in the opinion of Alderman Bruce Smith. In this view he was supported by Ald. McCabe.

ELIGIBLE FOR TAXES

The loss in assessment which the city would have to take when present buildings on the proposed site of the new federal building were demolished, was brought up.

There was a difference of opinion on this thought, however, with Ald. Hyde noting that federal property in 1958 would be eligible for city taxes.

Alderman Safe brought the matter to a head when he assured the city would not lose as it would receive more from the government in taxes than it would be losing.

He noted that the building was badly needed in Belleville and although there had been a few rumblings of discontent with respect to the change in the post-offices site he suggested these were negligible.

Another thought which the city might consider, he said, was that other municipalities would be happy to have the proposed federal building. Belleville should feel itself fortunate.

Although he was opposed to any direct approach to the government with respect to acquirement of the present postoffice site, he assured that responsible people in Ottawa were well aware of the desires of the people of Belleville.

NO REPLY TO PROTEST

"The government does not want to antagonize the city or the citizens of Belleville," he said.

"I can assure you that the postoffice property is not going to slip away from us."

There was no reply to a protest from Alderman Tice that if any information had been received from the government with respect to the present postoffice site, "the council had a right to know about it."

Alderman Smith here moved that council recommend the government for its proposed erection of a public building in the city, the recommendation which was carried without opposition also assured the city would co-operate with the department in its requests.

The only other matter of business before the special meeting was a recommendation from the board of health asking for increased licence fees for city restaurants.

Council felt the matter should be dealt with carefully and referred it to the 1956 executive and finance committee.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Gains in key industrials moved the group's index ahead a point in first-hour stock exchange trading today, but on average there was little trend. Volume at 11 a. m. was 975,000 shares against Tuesday's 842,000. More than a quarter of the total turnover was in shares of New Jason, current mines feature on news from its Chibougamau area property. The stock added three cents at 40.

Liquors and financial institutions won irregular industrial support. Papers were dull, reflecting to some extent restricted control of newsprint operations in Quebec. Utilities and foods also lost ground.

Canada Bread Co. Ltd. Chibougamau continued to forge ahead in the mining section and at a new peak value of 19¼ was ⅝ ahead. Seniors were dull.

Rayrock led the higher uranium with a 24-cent advance to $2.20.

In a restricted oil section, Petrol continued to tumble, losing 16 cents at 81.60.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Trade was draggy on slaughter steers and heifers on the Toronto public stockyards today with most of the sales made on common and medium kinds. Top-fed yearlings, cows and bulls were in fair demand at steady prices.

Receipts: cattle 368; calves 101; hogs 317; sheep and lambs 78; carryover from Tuesday 1,800.

Prices: choice steers 20, sales to 20.50; goods 18.50-19.50k, medium 15-18.50; commons 12-15; good heifers 17-18; medium 14-17; commons 12-14; boner steers and heifers 8-12; choice fed yearlings 21-22; goods 20-21; medium 15-19; good cows 10-10.50, sales to 11; canners and cutters down 5; good heavy bologna bulls to 13; heavy fat beef bulls slow and hard to sell with sales to 12; common and medium light bulls down to 9.

Replacement cattle: this chart was slow with good stockers and stock calves to 18; medium 15-17.50; commons 14-16.

Calves were steady at 28-29 for good veals with a few choice to 30; mediums 20-28; commons 12-19; grass calves sold for slaughter 9-12.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds in the Bank of Canada reported noon today, Tuesday's noon rate was 99 29-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.80½, up 7-16.

One Ship Safe, Another in Tow Off Newfoundland

HALIFAX (CP)—One of three storm-tossed ships was towed into port today, another was being towed to St. John's, Nfld., and a tug was speeding to the side of the third.

The 5,500 fishing boat Emma Marie was towed into her home port of Shelburne, on Nova Scotia's southwestern shore, by another fishing craft. The Emma Marie sailed for aid Tuesday when her engines went dead.

The Halifax salvage tug Foundation Frances, meanwhile, sped toward the disabled and battered British freighter Lord Church.

NO CONTACT YET

Company officials said the tug had not made contact with the 6,219-ton freighter whose last reported position placed her 580 miles southwest of Cape Race, Nfld.

Heavy seas pounded the freighter smashing her bridge and lifeboats and knocking out the ship's steering mechanism. Two of the 28-man crew were reported injured.

Closer to shore, the 125-foot freighter Ida Ann was being towed home to St. John's, Nfld., by her sister ship Blue Foam. Gales and high seas ripped away the Blue Haze's steering gear and part of her wheelhouse late Saturday.

Number of Mining Claims Climbs

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario mines department said today the number of mining claims recorded in the province during the first 11 months of the year is 8,231 more than for the corresponding period last year.

Claims recorded in November, however, were 1,500 fewer than those of November, 1954.

This year's total for the first 11 months is nearly 4,000 more than the record of 50,176 set in 1954.

Last month 3,638 claims were recorded in the province's 12 mining divisions compared with 5,149 in November, 1954. The 11-month total is 54,123, against 45,886 for the same period last year.

The most active divisions were Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury.

Leaves Big Estate

TORONTO (CP) — George A. Morrow, former vice-president of the National Trust Company Ltd., left an estate of more than $2,000,000, it was revealed Tuesday.

Mr. Morrow's will, filed for probate, provides legacies for his widow, his son and daughter-in-law and two grandchildren.

Succession duties are estimated at $1,257,000.

Think Newsprint Shortage Could Become Worse

MONTREAL (CP) — Observers said here today Canada's already-tight newsprint situation could be sharpened by an ultimatum presented to the industry Tuesday by Premier Duplessis of Quebec.

Newsprint sources, however, declined comment on the ultimatum under which export of pulpwood and production, sale and distribution of newsprint may come under government control.

Premier Duplessis said it will come into effect unless newsprint companies within one month exempt Quebec newspapers from recent price increases.

Observers recalled that on Dec. 6 the Newsprint Association of Canada reported the industry appears currently unable to meet newsprint demands because of a "remarkable increase of consumption," especially in the United States.

Quebec's 55 newsprint mills account for more than half of Canada's output, producing some 3,000,000 tons annually.

In addition, Quebec makes large exports of pulpwood to other provinces, and this would be stopped under the premier's threatened legislation.

Montreal sources said that, at least theoretically, only the British North America Act, Canada's constitution, could limit the government on just how far the proposed controls could go.

They pointed to Mr. Duplessis' statement that provision to control production would be entrusted to a newsprint control board.

"That means production would be limited to the reproductive capacity of the forests," Mr. Duplessis said. "Quebec is entitled to such protection to ensure our forests against dilapidation."

Three Children Suffocated As Home Burned

CHESLEY, Ont. (CP)—Three small children were suffocated today when fire destroyed their home in this community 25 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

Cunard Liner Is Launched By Princess

GLASGOW (CP)—Princess Margaret today launched the 22,000-ton Cunard liner Carinthia, newest passenger vessel for the Atlantic run to Canada.

The ship, capable of carrying 868 passengers at a speed of 19 knots, slid from its berth into the Clyde from the shipyard of John Brown and Company shortly after noon.

"I am delighted that the first ship I should launch in this world-famous yard should be for the Cunard company," the princess said. "My grandmother, my mother and my sister have all launched ships here, ships which have names honored across the seven seas."

The Carinthia will make her maiden voyage to Montreal and Quebec June 27—a trip that some say will include Princess Margaret on her first visit to Canada. The ship is the third vessel of Cunard's Canadian quartet.

FOURTH IS COMING

Already in service are the Ivernia and the Saxonia. The fourth, the Sylvania, will enter the Atlantic service in 1957.

In pressing a button that launched the Carinthia, Princess Margaret said the ship would carry across the Atlantic people who were making new lives in Canada and bring to Britain many thousands of Canadian visitors.

"She will help to bind us still more closely to that land of boundless opportunity and ever-increasing influence.

"I speak not only of the exchange of trade, or the carriage of individuals, but of the all-important traffic in ideas and viewpoints and the making and renewal of friendships."

Named to Board

NEW YORK (CP) — Col. E. A. Baker, managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Toronto, has been re-elected to the board of directors of the American Foundation for Overseas Blind, it was announced today.

Sides of Pit Again Collapse, Two Are Buried

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — The sides of a deep pit in which two men were buried Tuesday beneath tons of dirt and debris crumbled again early today, thwarting the efforts of rescue workers to find the victims.

Lost in the 28-foot excavation are Lee Otis Silvey, about 45, a Fort Smith fireman, and 18-year-old Donald Dagge, a construction worker from nearby Hartford, Ark. Both are believed dead.

They were imprisoned beneath dirt, chunks of old concrete and splintered timbers when the sides of the pit collapsed for the second time within a three-hour span Tuesday.

Early this morning, after digging for more than eight hours, a rescue team of 100 men found one of the victims. Before he could be brought to the surface, however, the soft walls of the hole gave way again, piling more dirt on the lost pair.

Dagge and two fellow workers, Aubry Bynum, 19, of Hartford and William Medley, 36, of Fort Smith were buried when the hole first caved in. They were quickly freed Barnes and Medley.

Silvey and two other firemen, Nick Hudgkins and Hoyle Sallis, were attempting to release Dagge, who was still alive, when the second collapse caught them. Hudgkins and Sallis were rescued, but Sivley disappeared beneath the rubble.

CABNET RESIGNS

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—King Hussein of Jordan today accepted the resignation of his cabinet after a crisis over Britain's proposal that Jordan should join the Baghdad defence pact. He called on Samir Mahali, former minister of the interior and deputy premier, to form a new cabinet.

CAR DEALERS' PROBLEM

A regional meeting of all automobile dealers in Eastern Ontario in Belleville last week was an eye-opener to say the least.

It was pointed out that Canada's automobile dealers, en masse, have a capital investment in garages, parts, buildings and stock that is several times that of the capital investment of manufacturers.

Just how big is the automobile business?

It is fantastically big. Manufacturers in Canada and the United States talk of producing 6,500,000 cars in a single year and something more than 8,000,000 vehicles of all kinds.

The dealers' story, the other half of the automobile saga, is not so easily capsuled as a monthly or yearly production record.

Figures close to home are impressive. In 1954, for instance, there were 24,731 passenger and commercial vehicles licenced in Hastings County. This total included 19,922 passenger and 4,809 commercial vehicles. In Belleville alone, in 1954, there were 6,245 passenger and 1,076 commercial vehicles.

The automobile business in Belleville is big business. The 13 firms selling new and used cars in the city employed 265 full-time employees last year. These employees included office staff, salesmen, mechanics and service department personnel but clerks, stenographers, accountants and bookkeepers. Wages paid totalled $790,000.

That is a lot of money. Since it was paid to workers in the city most of the money was spent here for groceries, clothing, amusements, medical and dental bills, newspapers, magazines, tobacco, drugs and so on.

Financial statements and wages do not include those for industries allied to the sale of automibles such as-gasoline wholesaling and retailing, auto accessories, tires, auto finance and the like stabilization should be a prime concern of everyone who buys from or sells to, the local dealers and to their employees.

BRIDGE STREET ADMIRAL

He was only headlight-high and any attempt to control the torrent of traffic that edded about the corner of Bridge and Front in the noonday rip-tide would obviously have left him hopelessly out of his depth.

He must have realized that as he strode westward across the bridge, and his imagination lifted him above the flood.

He jumped up on the parapet between road and sidewalk and stood there, white and green whistle in his mouth and right hand raised, palm outward, in the policeman's universal gesture of "stop" used in New York, or London, or Singapore or Buenos Aires.

Or perhaps it was not the traffic at all that he was thinking of. Perhaps it was the whole panorama that was as much an incident of apparel as the cap he wore. Perhaps the upraised hand was supposed to be a salute. For he faced the north, towards the Bay of Quinte Bridge, looking seaward to imaginary ships sailing an ocean where adults could only see the ice of the Bay of Quinte.

Policeman or admiral, he had a confident smile for the curious glances of passers-by who looked up at him, far below the heights to which his imagination had lifted him when he hopped up on what appeared to the uninitiated as a concrete slab, but may have been, in fact, the bridge of a great ship.

He stood there boldly, not afraid of making a fool of himself, if anyone cared to look. He could imagine, knowing that, a few short years from now, hopping up onto that parapet would be almost an impossibility, a task which, if successfully performed, would justify his stood there not knowing that, after the passing of a few summers and the coming of a few winters, that parapet will never again be the corner of Broadway and 42nd street, or the bridge of a great ocean liner. He will not be able to stand on it without the certain knowledge that he is making a fool of himself and, being like almost all adults afraid of making himself look silly, he will not do so for he will have lost his policeman's power, he will have lost his fleet of gallant ships, he will be living, like all the rest of us, in a world where men are more and more aware that their occupants may eat, in order that they may work, in order that they may eat again.

But, for a brief while, the bridge is silv-place in the wide world he wants it to be and, for a moment, he even conjures up for the plodding pedestrian an image of the wonderful world that must stretch out before the eyes of any still adventurous enough to make the leap with him from the sidewalk to the magic pedestal of the bridge, to make it unafraid of being thought a fool.

THE COURSE OF MAN

At twenty, life is fair to view And nothing is too much to do; No race too long, no pace too fast; Youth has sufficient strength to last. And while the old their pillows Youth thinks it wasted time to sleep.	The pleasure of a gentler kind. At forty-five, he finds he needs The aid of glasses when he reads And he has also learned that he Is short of breath and energy And thought at ten the youngsters mock, He longs for bed at ten o'clock.
At thirty-five, a man begins— To notice waists and double chins, And though his spirit young flies His flesh is prey to aches and sighs He turns from strenuous sports to find Some pastime more resigned.	At sixty, quite content is he At peace with all the world to be The game of cards, the book he reads Are quite sufficient for his needs He once was young, but now he sighs His last one boast: "I have grown wise!"

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A BOOK FOR THE AGES

A book to which I turn again and again is that one by Charles Lamb on "The Essays of Elia." There is a world in all literature that is more interesting and whose author is more lovable. In this book are the choicest essays, such as "Dream Children," "Old Chelsea," "Poor Relations," and over fifty more—each one a classic of its kind. The copy I have from that fine series of small books that Dutton published.

Charles Lamb lived with his sister Mary, and the two worked together, and both gave of it to a best that was in them. Lamb was born February 18th, 1775, at a time when the American nation was about to be born through its independence, his father was a barrister's clerk. He left school before he was fifteen, and because of a stutter he remained shy and much to himself, but he was so beloved that he had his own close group, in which there was a companionate interest all around.

A reviewer said of Lamb that "he was a helper, seldom one of the helped. Both he and his sister eked out their slender means by literary work, humble in design, but honest in accomplishment."

Each, he and Mary, gave of his and her best.

Not until 1818, and in 1820 and 1823, were the essays collected and put into book form. Today these books are treasured wherever you find their way to choose who love beautiful literature and inspiring thought. Lamb was a famous punster, and had a sly humor that was like a breath of fresh air. He numbered his friends among Wordsworth, Coleridge, Hazlitt, and others. They (Mary and Charles) were poor, but "poor gentility was of the noble order."

There have been many books published on Lamb, but the finest is that one in two volumes by E.V. Lucas. Lucas was himself a fine essayist. This was issued in 1905, and is quite a rare book today. But in any book about Lamb there is the flavor of a great life, simply and greatly lived.

Perfect Gift For a Woman

(Sherbrooke Record)

Here you are, men. The perfect Christmas gift the little lady. It's a new lady's model car, complete with low rates and vanity case, being produced by the Daimler Automobile Company in England.

It looks like the standard Daimler from the outside, and performs in exactly the same way in other things, like drivers, being equal. But it is equipped with a vanity case fitted into a rear seat arm rest. Tucked away inside a walnut drawer under a glove box are a flashlight, note pad, cigaret packet sleeve, sun glasses, and a rolled gold pencil.

Also standard equipment on the lady's model are a sheep-skin floor rug, a motoring rug, four air cushions, a picnic case complete with accessories, an ice box, telescopic umbrella and pole.

The price of this gorgeous machine is a trifle steep—$3,984.

Air Pollution Problem

(Toronto Saturday Night)

Five years ago 22 persons died and 320 were taken to hospital in the city of Poza Rica, Mexico. Seven years ago, 20 people died and 6,000 became ill in Donora, Pennsylvania, and in London more than 60 people died and many hundreds sickened in Belgium's Meuse Valley.

In each instance, they were victims of polluted air.

The weather and the waste from the chimneys of their industrial communities combined to make a deadly brew, the effect of which has taken an annual toll of life and health in the great sooty cities of Britain and the United States and has undoubtedly started to do the same in the growing manufacturing centres of Canada.

In disasters such as those in Poza Rica and Donora, there was immediate evidence of what polluted air could do to the human body. Medical scientists have not yet collected enough data, however, to be able to say precisely what the accumulative effects may be on breathing, year after year, air that is unclean enough to provide such quick poison to cause illness within only a few hours.

But it seems that there must be some effect. Dr. Clarence Mills, professor of physiology and medicine at the University of Cincinnati, even went so far, a few weeks ago, as to say:

"Pneumonia, tuberculosis and lung cancer are the most important prevalent among people living in the industrial areas of the industrial cities. Doubtless a similar situation would be found for sinusitis bronchitis, asthma and respiratory diseases if reliable statistics were available."

Of the economic cost of air pollution, there is no doubt. The chemists in charge of the highly successful smoke abatement institution in Pittsburgh have calculated that the cleaner air has resulted in an annual saving of $27,000,000, or $61 a person.

Dr. Ira Cutler, chairman of the International Joint Commission's technical advisory board on air pollution(Canadian section) has stated:

"In agricultural and forest areas, extensive damage has been caused to growing crops, trees and animals by the liberation of excessive quantities of sulphur dioxide, fluorine compounds, metal dust and other effluents. The damage to human health and well-being, although more difficult to evaluate, is nevertheless real and substantial.

"In urban areas . . . economic effects are evident in accelerated corrosion of metals, deterioration of stonework and other building materials, paint and household equipment, soiling and injury to textiles and other fabrics, and excessive laundry bills.

"No estimates are available in Canada of the annual economic loss from smoke and other air pollutants, but estimates for the United States place the national loss at over $1,500,000,000 per year."

What's being done about air pollution? In the United States and the United Kingdom, a great deal. Scientists, municipal officials, engineers and a few industrialists are giving the matter a lot of attention. But no other governments, particularly at the federal level, are known to exist that no problem exists and that the filthy air of their communities is something to be accepted as evidence of a bustling economy.

Yet the United States and other countries have only academic value if it is ignored by municipal officials and scientists, like those in Canada, who are the people in the best position to give practical effect to recommendations of the specialists—and it is at the municipal level, in the final analysis, that real community leadership, that there has been the greatest delinquency. Municipal officials and governments reets are by no means blameless, for they have been reluctant to provide more funds for research and give local authorities some measure of control over the smoke of railways and steamships; the latter have been exempt from action by municipalities and get rid of such pollutants as cinders and grit manufacturers beyond the authority of smoke-abatement by-laws.

No amount of research or legislation, however, can clean the air of Canada's cities if the only apathy and ignorance in those cities.

British Ideas Useful to U.S.

(New York Times)

Admiral Earl Mountbatten's visit to the United States, emphasized the need for a closer rapprochement between the two English-speaking nations in the light of recent developments. Britain's First Sea Lord saw most of the U.S. Navy's newest ships and recent developments — but one outstanding exception. He did not board the nuclear submarine Nautilus.

The Nautilus is now—liberalized in interpretation by Congress in 1954 — nevertheless leaves in doubt the question whether or not Britain will have access to the vital information.

Such affirmative arguments for a full exchange are overwhelming. The United States Navy has been built up largely by a discreet and mutual interchange of information with several of the British Commonwealth fleets. Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. It is an old truism that the navies of the English-speaking peoples are the closest of allies. Also Anglo-American cooperation. But the record seems to show that in a more narrow sense our service-interest demands a free technical exchange with the British.

Since World War II the British Navy has deliberately put its main emphasis on research and development and has refused to operational fleet. Our own Navy has had to maintain worldwide operational commitments, while at the same time developing the Navy of the future. Partly because of this, partly because the British are more advanced in certain technological nations on earth, we have benefited by a considerable number of British developments. These include the angled deck, the steam catapult, the mirror landing system which collectively have made possible the appearance of the aircraft carrier; the chemical torpedo and the hydrofoil for marine propulsion, new radar and antisubmarine weapons and many other devices.

The British are now starting to develop their own type of nuclear submarine reactor. We may be sure, from experience, that it will embody some ideas worth trying. But we cannot expect a flow of information which has greatly benefited us to continue unless it is a genuinely two-way street. The British armed forces is essential to the defense of the United States, of Britain and of the whole free world.

Helen Hayes On Amateurs

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

Community Theatre "is playing a growing part" in the lives of Americans, says Helen Hayes, first lady of the American stage, reports in the January issue of Reader's Digest.

"No one anywhere could possibly know how many millions of amateur actors we have on Earth . . . but my guess is that in almost every community of 10,000 or more there is some little group of amateur actors," she says. "In all there are towns of only 1,000 that have their own theatre groups. We also know that play brokers estimate that somewhere between 150,000 and 200,000 plays are staged each year in North America."

Miss Hayes tells how the Broadway theatre named in her honor, continues: "It is easy to see why sounds are a thing of growing. There are today only 32 theatres in New York, London and Canada which have any "legitimate" attraction, and the sprawling road show out of New York. The small resident professional theatre, which was the training ground in the local Orpheum, fell before the onslaught of the talking pictures of the Thirties. Even in New York City the number of producing theatres is down to 15. No other stage about 80 shows a season . . . Little wonder that the 'little theatre' available to millions in North America—must create its plays for themselves. This they are doing everywhere."

Miss Hayes lists the choice of a good director as "the most important thing" in the success of community theatre group. "Too often," she says, "the director has a nice person, whose one qualification is that he has read the script once oftener than anyone else. He may have a supreme number of professional theatre experience, but he will work for little or nothing at least at the outset to help get such an interesting start."

Many a Little Theatre, Miss Hayes goes on, contributes substantial sums to community projects, the result of succeeding "in producing such good plays that they win their audiences on the basis of good entertainment, rather than on the basis of community loyalty."

"Community theatre is good of your town, for great fun for everybody, try some Little Theatre."

Golden-Rule Days

(Sydney Post-Record)

An item in the news tells of a 25-year-old mother who became a schoolgirl because her twin sons were away from home five days of the week at school. So she decided to go to school herself, to finish the grade eight work she missed when she had started up to get married. And that's all right with papa and the twins—except that he misses his wife's bread, butter and jam in the packaged and boxes he gets. But no one should object to having an educated wife or mother.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

X-Ray Diagnosis Often Misleading

Every man, woman or child requires from one-quarter to one-half teaspoonful of calcium daily to keep him or her in fine fettle. Only one who is ignorant of physiology and nutrition will question this.

In my talks, I ascribe many common complaints to calcium deficiency through the years, but in no circumstance do I advise or have I ever advised any one to take more than one-half teaspoonful of calcium a day.

Mrs. T. M. says her father, 72, complaining of a numbness in his legs, took three calcium tablets a day for several months, on the advice of a druggist friend. The numbness seemed to get worse, so he finally consulted a physician.

Remarkable acumen—he went straight to the doctor, without trying the treatment recommended by the cop at the corner, the neighborhood Salesgamp or the character who has been through the big "clinic."

He consulted a physician, says his daughter, "and after X-ray the condition was diagnosed as arthritis of the spine, complicated by osis. Both my mother and my father believe that the calcium tablets either caused this trouble or greatly aggravated it. They are bitter toward me in particular when the druggist suggested that I buy calcium. I want to do the so, believing that if it did no good at any rate it could do no harm."

Probably both mother and father consulted many crazy radicals, a quack or whatever type of renegade the trick specialists in that mess of the woods say I am. Nevertheless here is my answer to Mrs. T. M.'s query: Did taking the calcium tablets aggravate the trouble?

In the first place it is highly improbable that three calcium tablets a day would give the man more calcium than he would get from a pint of milk.

In the next place the diagnosis of re-ierioscierosis—if we can fairly call that a diagnosis—for it would be unique if any man 72 years old did not have arteriosclerosis—any man except Ol' Crotchety, and maybe I'm just kidding myself that my arteries are nice and soft—is correct or incorrect regardless of the gratuitous statement about calcium.

Mrs. T. M.'s parents are indulging in petulance, in my judgment.

Whether sclerosis in the arteries of the legs impedes circulation is for the doctor to determine.

The likely explanation of hardening of the arteries, for the numbness described, is American diet fallacies. I've touched on his heels and rise without using his hands he needs, an optimal daily ration of vitamin B-complex to supplement his diet—say four tablespoons more than a tablespoonful of B-Nutron syrup every day for two weeks comes home, like miracles. But two or three weeks of this will show whether it is likely to do any good. If not, no harm done.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

STANDING ROOM ONLY

A woman came to a minister some time ago and declared that she was lonely and in despair because she seemed to fit nowhere in modern life. She was a widow therefore she did not belong with the unmarried. She had no children therefore she could not be accepted into the fellowship of those whose chief interest was their families. She was moderately well educated and so was not happy either with illiterate or the highly intellectual. She was just plain lonely, filled with a feeling of having left out everywhere, and it was getting on her nerves.

The minister was noted for his rather spectacular methods. He insisted an advertisement in a newspaper recording what the woman had told him and suggesting that all persons there present who also felt as the woman did and might like to meet her should call the lonely woman and talk things over.

He expected three or four to show up at the meeting. There was a crowd around the door when he got to the church that evening. They had to find chairs for 180.

Is there anything astonishing about this? You think you have a peculiar set of troubles and the worst set in the world. But not so. You have lots of company. The church and each of its members gather people together to discuss their problems.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Twelve ducats, or about $24, was the price asked of his publishers by Beethoven for his second piano concerto.

I wonder how many millions and millions of dollars, francs, lira, pounds and marks are spent on the piece of music has been involved in since 1801, when Beethoven made the deal in a Vienna inn. In the orchestras of the world, the great concert pianists, in the opera houses, in the palatial concert halls, the countless millions of people who have attended concerts, with supper parties afterwards, thousand nameless cafes de Paris, Sherry's, the Cafe Royal, the Golden Roof" and the like in his shabby grave, Beethoven!

There is something measureless in the range of music. No other art, not even that in marble, approaches it in its vastness, than art its birth. Writing, as it stiffens into classic mould, relires into the niches of scholarship, the cathedrals become stopping places for tourists; painting is restricted, immured; but music, however old, joins with youth and youth's joy.

Youth is it? A couple of weeks ago, on the concert hour, I heard Pierre Monteux conducting the New York Philharmonic with Misha Elman playing the Mendelssohn violin concerto. It takes about 37 minutes to play, and goes like a dream, and youth is in the finish. Monteux is in his eighty-first year, Elman in his sixty-fifth. I do not propose to say whether their production of the concerto was the best or the worst ever given of musicologists; but it was s u b l i m e enough, passionate enough to give one the feeling of having been up on a mountain top for 37 minutes in company with the gods. Elman, alone there with his fiddle in front of the massed glory have expressed the fire of sixty-four years old. And, on the podium, Pierre Monteux all together the same, of his tiny baton, and looking all the while like Franklin Roosevelt. Pierre Monteux, eighty years old.

So I'll tell you what I did. I got on the train and went down from next weekend to New York and sat in the stalls at Carnegie Hall to see Pierre Monteux, this time conducting with Robert Casadesus at the piano. Boys, girls: let me tell you. It is better than cinemas. Better than theatres, better than great cities, mountains, summer, autumn, better than youth. It is music, never dying.

Monteux opened with Beethoven-Pierre Monteux conducting.

I wonder how many ducats Beethoven got for that!

A CHRISTMAS STORY

The Coming of the King

Norman Vincent Peale

II—A DECREE OF CAESAR

Conquered people are always a frightened people. And when a Roman soldier came in his chariot to the marketplace at Nazareth, the men of that town who came running to hear what he had to say were frightened, too. For, in those days, the Romans had conquered not only the Jews but all the world they knew of.

The soldier held a parchment in his hand and read from it. The Emperor Caesar Augustus—nephew and heir of old Julius Caesar himself—had decreed that all the world was to be taxed. Each citizen was ordered to go to what they called "his own town," but which really meant the town his family had originally come from. There a kind of census would be taken and each person would pay a tax to the Romans. It was just as if I, who live in New York, had to go all the way back to Ohio, where I grew up, to pay my taxes each year.

Now both Mary and Joseph, although they were humble folk like most of us, were descended from famous Jewish families. In fact, Joseph was descended from the great King David, who slew Goliath. And the ancestral home of King David was the town of Bethlehem. So, to obey the order passed on by the Roman soldier, Joseph knew that he and Mary would have to journey to Bethlehem.

Mary would soon have her baby, but the decree of Caesar Augustus permitted no delay. They could not wait. And, although it is only about fifty miles from Nazareth to Bethlehem, Joseph was worried, as any good husband would be. For the road lay through deep valleys and over mountains and along dusty roads. By automobile today, it is only a short journey. But neither poor people nor rich people then had automobiles. Poor people didn't even have horses. All Joseph had to help him was one slow little donkey.

Foremen's Club Ladies' Night Much Enjoyed

"Humor is the lighter side of living. Too many people go around worrying when they should be laughing."

This delightful philosophy was the subject of an address by Miss Audrey Armitt, of the University of Western Ontario, delivered Tuesday to the annual Ladies' Night of the Quinte District Foremen's Club held at Masonic Temple. About 200 foremen and their wives attended.

Miss Armitt, armed with a million sparkling stories, kept her audience guffawing with witty examples of her remarks about humor.

"Humor is the importance of not being earnest," she said and proceeded to prove it.

Five different kinds of humor mentioned by Miss Armitt were: (1) using words with double meanings, (3) the ageless witticism, (3) situation humor, (4) the unexpected ending, (5) nonsense or comic verse.

"No country has a monopoly on humor," said Miss Armitt. "It depends on you whether you get a kick out of living."

She was introduced by John Villeneuve and thanked by Al Armand.

DANCERS ENJOYED

Eight costumed dancers from Batawa, under the sponsorship of the Women's Sokol Club, danced a Czechoslovakian "Besedia". Dancers were: Josephine McLeod, Helen Hollmann, Meriam Letherbrad, Zita Golobic, Stanja Regent, Marion Baker, Yvonne Arcon and Helen Kralic. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Vlasta Kanak.

Lionel Blaker led a sing-song of Christmas carols accompanied by Ralph Beasley.

Alfred Bryant, former president of the Toronto Foremen's Club, proposed the toast to the ladies. Mrs. P. J. Cleary, wife of the president of the Quinte District Foremen's Club replied.

During the evening Mayor-elect Jane Forrester spoke briefly to the audience.

Frank Grandame and Harold Regensburg conducted a Chinese auction.

The evening concluded with dancing to the music of Hugo Diggins and his orchestra.

OUT-OF-TOWN PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stevenson, Miss Frances Stevenson and Miss Pat Keane of Kingston were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Stevenson and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Mantle of Wellington.

Women's Institute

MELROSE W.I.

Mrs. K. McKechan opened her specious home for the Yuletide meeting of the Melrose W.I.

Mrs. C. Wrens, 1st vice-president, presided in the absence of the president and conducted the business period during which it was decided to invite Tyendinaga East W.I. to a euchre on January 30, and also to serve luncheon at the County Federation of Agriculture meeting this coming Thursday evening.

A committee was appointed to select and deliver gifts to needy families in the community.

Mrs. E. Lazier took charge of the excellent program that followed which opened with a reading, "The Christmas Gift", by Mrs. R. Denill followed by the Motto "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Mrs. E. Embree gave a timely reading entitled "Christmas on the Train", after which all joined in singing Christmas carols.

The topic "The Charm and Beauty of Christmas", prepared by Mrs. J. Milligan, was given by Mrs. Lazier. "Happy memories return and family ties are strengthened during the festive season and it is only when we give ourselves in service and spread good-will that "Peace on Earth" will spread o'er the whole world."

PRESENTATION

A presentation was made to Mrs. T. Leslie, a life member of the W.I., by Mrs. Lazier, who, while Mrs. Roy Badgley expressed the W.I.'s regret at her departure from this community.

During her term of two years as district president of East Hastings she established a record in organizing four new Institute branches.

Mrs. Leslie expressed her thanks for the gift and invited all to visit her in her new home in Belleville.

Mrs. Wrens was the winner in a contest "Famous Persons".

Refreshments were served during a social half hour.

Ladies' Aux. B.R.T. Sponsors Annual Party

Ladies' Auxiliary to Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen held its annual Christmas party, on Friday in Engineers' hall, Pitt Street.

President Reynolds introduced the children entertainers: Misses Helen Addy and Sheila Canning (dancers); Miss Diane McCallum also danced and Miss Penny Simmons played a piano solo; Miss Janice Rombky was another youthful dancer and Master Francis Rose played his guitar and sang.

Everyone joined in the singing of Christmas carols until Santa Claus arrived. All the children received a gift from Santa and the ladies exchanged gifts.

Edith Cavell Lodge Installs 1956 Officers

Edith Cavell Lodge, L.A. to B. of R.T., held its regular meeting yesterday last Thursday in the Engineers' hall, Pine Street, with Sister Reynolds in the chair, Sister M. E. Firth, 2rd Vice Grand President, inspected and installed

OFFICERS INSTALLED

After the opening ceremony, the lodge exemplified short form of initiation and balloting and Sister Firth installed the following officers: Councillor, F. Alexander; past president, Mrs. W. Smith; president, Mrs. L. Reynolds; vice-president, Mrs. G. Clapper; secretary, Mrs. F. Beaul; treasurer, Mrs. S. Morgan; chaplain, Mrs. E. Willerton; conductress, Mrs. O. Bobby; warden, Mrs. C. Coleman; inner guard, Mrs. H. Quincy and outer guard, Mrs. F. Flunder.

After the closing ceremony, delicious refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

GOING SHOPPING?

Asking that question nowadays is like carrying coals to Newcastle—or is it heaping coals of fire on your head? Both probably. This is the time when the word 'shopping' seems to make one irritable, yet, it is a time, if we just admit it, when the rush and bother of all our shopping gives us secret pleasure.

There is so much to see and we may be forgiven if we are unable to "see the woods for the trees" so in case we may have seen something you missed, we offer a few observations.

Have you noticed the new, glistening Christmas tree aprons? They are made of white plastic, and they will catch spilled water or dropping needles. They also provide a festive, snowy background for gift packages. Spread on the floor under the Christmas tree placed on it, then the large square plastic apron can be gathered around the base to hide the tree-holder. The inexpensive tree apron protects the floor, or carpet beneath, against spilled water or seepage from the tree-holder. Dirt washes off easily and the apron can be used over and over again. Are you considering the advisability of giving roses for Christmas? We are told that you do not need a lot of roses to make an attractive bouquet—that it is the quality, not the quantity, that produces beauty. To make your roses last longer, you must keep them well, and here is a tip from the florist. A stem should be placed in warm water for five minutes before it is put in a vase. The warmth will dissolve air-bubbles which stop the flow of water to the bloom. And too, don't forget those hobby angles when choosing gifts for your friends. There are any amount of books on the subject, and do-it-yourself hints on home-decorating, etc., also for a splendid flower-raising, and so forth. This year there seems to be a universal demand for metallic articles and jewels—silver, gold, and copper tones are everywhere in daytime and evening wear. Costume jewellery is fashionable and formal, and women will sparkle like Christmas trees at parties during the holiday season. Indeed, formality appears to be back with all its former splendor.

Formal entertaining too, finds everything it requires and dishes in our Belleville stores. There is on display a limitless variety from which home-grown vegetables to imported tidbits. Prices are quite steady on the whole and eggs are down a bit.

Books are always a popular present and do not overlook the several fine books written by Canadian authors. If you think your friend would enjoy a book about color, try "The Fifth Regiment" by a local writer, Farley Mowat, and it tells the glorious story of our own regiment "The Hastings & Prince Edward'.

Good Shopping!

Last Saturday this & that mentioned the intangible growth of our community by referring to the diversity of universities represented at a recent meeting of the University Women's Club. We want to tell you about a member who came to us from the Prague German University. Mrs. O. B. Dickinson, from our neighborly town of Trenton, is a graduate of Prague University.

Mrs. Dickinson was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, of German parentage. She was educated in Prague attending university in her home city. Mrs. Dickinson explained that there are two distinctly separate Prague Universities—the Czechoslovakia University and the German University. Mrs. Dickinson told us that the Prague German University is the oldest German University of all of Europe. It was established fifty years after Caesar broke around the middle of the thirteenth century. We could be giving Mrs. Dickinson the correct title because in reality, she is a graduated doctor of medicine. She went to London, England, before the war where she practiced medicine and was associated with hospital work. Mrs. Dickinson left there early in 1939 throughout the war. It was in England that she met Dr. O. B. Dickinson, a graduate of Queen's and of Port Hope boy, who had gone to London for postgraduate studies. Like many of us who have been there, she loves London, but she and Dr. Dickinson were married and they returned to Canada. Dr. Dickinson has been in practice medicine in Trenton.

Since coming to Trenton, Mrs. Dickinson has not taken up the practice of her profession, but it is nice to welcome her to our community even after four years. She is the only graduate of Prague German University that we know of in the Bay of Quinte area. The University Women's Club is happy to have a representative to interpret the culture and meaning of one of the oldest universities in the world.

Women are certainly attaining increased stature in the diplomatic corps of the world's citizens. We add another today, Mrs. Alva Myrdal, Minister-Designate of Sweden, presented her credentials to the President of India in Delhi on December 5th. She is the first lady envoy ever to be accredited to India.

Christ Church E.B.W.A. Enjoys Yuletide Supper

Members of the Evening Branch of the W.A. of Christ church enjoyed a delicious supper on Monday evening, in the parish hall.

Tables were covered with Christmas cloths with a variety of centrepieces, candy canes, tied with bows, green and red candles, all carrying out the Christmas motif.

Following the supper, the president, Mrs. A. Cooper, welcomed the special guests and wished all the compliments of the season.

The Rev. Everett Smith expressed his appreciation for the invitation to be present.

The exchange of gifts from the gaily decorated and lighted tree was most enjoyable with Mrs. T. Clark doing the honors of Santa.

After the singing of many favorite carols, Mrs. M. Button, assisted by Mrs. Clark and Mrs. A. Swain, conducted games with many novel ideas for the alloting of prizes.

The members all thoroughly enjoyed this annual Christmas party.

Citadel Home League Holds Yuletide Party

"Maple Haven", Trent Road, was the scene of a happy Christmas party on Monday evening, when the ladies of the S.A. Citadel Home League gathered for their final meeting of the year.

Roast turkey with all the trimmings was much enjoyed by all present after which a few games were played.

The evening was brought to a close with the singing of favorite carols, and a brief message of Christmas candles, by Mrs. Capt. Marks.

Housekeeping Will Just Be Sideline for New Mayor

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Housekeeping will be just a sideline for 49-year-old Eunice Wishart. The mother of two grown children Monday was elected mayor of this Lakehead city of 27,000.

During her campaign Mrs. Wishart said she would make a full-time job of being mayor. She received the blessings of her husband, J. A. Wishart, prominent clothing merchant in neighboring Fort William; he was one of her strongest supporters.

"Well just have to work the housekeeping in," Mr. Wishart said Tuesday.

Mrs. Wishart's election—she is the city's first woman mayor—capped a long career in civic politics. She has been an alderman for the last seven years and was chairman of many important boards. When any controversial issue arose the name Mrs. Wishart was usually in the thick of it.

Here election to the $2,700-a-year job came as a surprise.

"I've lived in Port Arthur all my life," she said. "People are used to seeing me around. I just can't see what rallied the voters to me in such numbers."

Mrs. Wishart received more votes than her three male opponents combined. She received 3,707 votes, former alderman Roy Furman had 2,109, former alderman R. A. Robinson 1,331 and lawyer Harold Blanchard 1,120.

The mayoralty seat was made vacant when F. O. Robinson retired this year from civic politics.

GREATER CO-OPERATION

Mrs. Wishart's platform was greater co-operation among city departments and between Port Arthur and Fort William.

In addition to her civic duties Mrs. Wishart was actively engaged in many local and national organizations.

She is vice-president of the Northwestern Ontario Municipal Association, convener of economics for the Provincial Council of Women, director of the Canadian Child's Health League of Canada, patron of the Ontario Association of Film Councils, director of the Thunder Bay John Howard Society, director of the Port Arthur Humane, unit member of the Fort William Port Arthur Soroptimists and vice-president of the Canadian Toilet Association and Women's Institute.

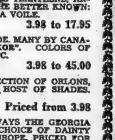
Bringing Up Baby

Mom Collected by Mrs. Lou Parker (Mother of 2)

Almost everybody loves to give advice. And baby-care advice from doting grandmothers, neighbors and others is given with the greatest relish of all. Most of it is well-meaning, but all too often the recommendations are conflicting, and thereby confusing to the new mother. It's helpful to remember that:



- Baby's doctor is your most reliable advisor.
- You can trust your mother instincts in most cases.
- If you look and feel carefully you'll discover baby has ways of telling you his needs.

Early dietary need for the crib and tub set: vitamin C—no vital to sound gums and body tissues. Gerber Strained Orange Juice, prepared just for babies, has a uniformly high vitamin C content the year around. Only true-ripened oranges, selected for mild natural flavor, are used. It's carefully pasteurized, of course, and finally strained so it can be fed easily from spoon, bottle or cup.

Formula for baby's formula. If your doctor has recommended the terminal sterilization method in preparing baby's formula, be sure to shake bottles vigorously two or three times during the cooling period. This minimizes forming of scum and clogging.

Surprisingly soon baby's appetite will expand to the point where he will require (God welcome) solid food. That's when you'll be glad to know about Gerber's 8 varieties of Cereals. Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Wheat and Mixed Cereal. Easy for introducing cereal variety. Thoroughly precooked for easy digestibility. Special baby cereals are nutritious too ... fortified with iron, calcium and B-vitamins. Mild but distinctive flavors combine with a smooth-on-the-tongue texture for baby's eating pleasure. Precooked—just add milk, formula or other liquids. Gerber-Ogilvie Baby Foods Ltd., Niagara Falls, Canada.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

DAINTINESS A BEAUTY ASSET

A deodorant, sprayed on, not only assures feminine daintiness, but protects clothing against damage.

If beauty is your goal (and it is, of course), daintiness is the virtue which must be cultivated above all others. The dictionary may give you a different definition but, in the bright lexicon of beauty, daintiness means "cleanliness plus". And, as with good groomer, daintiness is made up of small "little things." Taking it for granted that you keep your person and your clothes scrupulously clean there are still some points on daintiness which may serve as reminders these busy days.

Consider your powder puff, for instance. Did you know that a soiled powder puff is a dangerous thing? It is because it retains and spreads germs. So, every few days, douse your puffs up and down in warm soapsuds, using a soft brush on the bad spots. Rinse, blot in a towel, and pin up to dry.

Then there's the matter of your brushes and combs. These feminine necessities have a big beauty job to do and they can only do that job well when they're clean. Purse combs, as well as those on the dresser, should get a suds - scrubbing every time the hair is shampooed. The same holds true of hairbrushes; they must be as fleckless and clean as the hair they touch. Give the small brushes in Your office beauty kit a weekly wash, too. The miniature clothes brush, the eyebrow and mascara brush, and the lipstick brush are also more pleasantly usable after a good soap and water bath.

Soiling makes hand mirrors sparkle, too, so be sure to wash all the mirrors in your compacts and pocketbooks. Clean mirrors not only help to make good grooming easier but, viewed by others, mark you as a fastidious person who cares a great deal about "little things".

And, speaking of fastidiousness, one cannot overlook the subject of deodorants. They are an absolute essential to feminine daintiness. There are so many fine ones on the market that the choice is really up to you, but, whether you prefer them in cream, liquid or powder form, do use one daily. It is the only way that you can be sure you're as fresh as the proverbial May all day long. One new one is sprayed on from an aerosol container. The soft spray which is possible because of a specially designed valve, dries on contact, thus treating your clothes with care, too. The misty deodorant contains no aluminum salts which are irritating to some persons and it can, therefore, be used on the tenderest skin — even immediately after shaving. This also explains why it is harmless to the most delicate of fabrics — an important quality in any deodorant since a dress damaged in the underarm area is anything but feminine and dainty.

Bring Home the Bacon

By Mary Moore

Agriculture experts proclaim "Near-record year in hog production" "lowest pork prices since 1942" "Food value of pork is high" "Millions do not eat adequate proteins" "27 billion lbs. pork will be produced in U.S. in 1956" so little me bought 2 lbs. $ 1-4 cse. for $1.05 to help relieve the glut.

If we want to save some meat money let us climb on the pork wagon while it is free wheeling.

In front of me on my desk I have four cut-out pork ads: Back bacon ranges from 45 to 59c per lb. In price this weekend; cottage rolls are 41c lb.; 8 to 10 lb. pork loins 49c (and thrown in for free "custom cut into chops and roasts and wrapped for freezer if desired"); wieners range from 29 to 35c lb.; spareribs and sausages seem to be 41c for either in several ads.

I cooked some chops in sweet-sour sauce; I baked a centre cut of back bacon; and barbecued some spareribs. I toyed with the thought of pouring a sweet-sour sauce over a pork loin roast as a change — but would you try that for me? — because I think I'm sprouting a snout.

PORK CHOPS IN SWEET-SOUR SAUCE

Slit the fat edges of pork chops — 1-2 to 3 lbs. — and sear them in a hot pan until edges are golden. Pour over them this sauce: Sweet-Sour Sauce — 1 cup sweet pickle vinegar or 1-2 cup vinegar and 1-2 cup water, 1-4 cup brown sugar, 1 cup tomato catsup, 1-2 cup cold water, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 2 cup chopped sweet pickle, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Mix the cornstarch with the sugar well, then combine all ingredients and pour over the chops, reduce heat, cover and bake or simmer for 1 hour. If baked temperature should be 300 deg. Fahr.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

One tablespoon chili powder, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1-4 cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon paprika, 2 lbs. spareribs, 1-2 cup vinegar, 1 10-oz. tin undiluted cream of tomato soup. Mix together first five ingredients and rub them over the surface of the ribs. Broil on each side about 8 minutes, with top of meat about three inches from burner. Place in roasting pan rounded sides up. Mix vinegar with soup and spread over. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-2 to 1 3-4 hours, basting occasionally.

ROASTED BACK BACON

NOTE:

This is a wonderful item for Christmas entertaining. Slices well cold. Excellent for sandwiches. A 2 or 2 1-2 lb. piece back bacon. (If your is pre-sealed) wash it off and dry it. One-half cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons prepared mustard, 1 cup pineapple juice. Score the fat side of the bacon with a sharp-pointed knife. Mix together the brown sugar and mustard and spread over top. Place in shallow pan. Pour pineapple juice round. Bake occasionally while roasting at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 1 1-2 to 2 hours.

CHILDREN! will like creating sheets of gift-wrapping paper from pads of large size newsprint. Art supply stores have the pads, and they're inexpensive. Crayons or water colors will work equally well on the paper, and it's fun to make a special sheet for a special gift.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I DON'T THINK YOU CAN LOSE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I am in love with a widower who says that while he wants to marry me, he can never love another woman, because he was so much in love with his first wife. I told him that if he felt that way, we should break up right now, but he won't hear of that.

He has two young children, and sometimes I wonder if that isn't the only reason he wants me to marry him—so his children will have some one to look after them. He insists it isn't, but how can I be sure?

I love children, and I know I would love making a home for them and for this man. I feel sure I could make the children happy, and that they might learn in time to love me, too.

What do you think about it? Remember that I really do love this man. He is 35 years old and I am 29. — Mary T.

Dear Mary T.:

If you feel so sure that bringing up this man's children, and making a home for them and for him, would be enough to make you happy, even though you found that he did not show any more affection toward you after marriage than he apparently does now, then my feeling would be that, if he is a good, kind, dependable man in every other respect, the marriage might work out all right.

Some may think this a strange point of view on my part. But I am inclined to go along with Robert Louis Stevenson, who once said that whether a woman married "well or ill," it was better for her to have had the experience of marriage than to have gone through life without it. For I think no one will dispute the fact that the vast majority of unmarried women — whether or not they ever admit it, feel that they have been cheated by this part of one of its most enviable experiences, and one which should be the birthright of every woman.

Moreover, I think it entirely possible that this man actually cares more about you than he realizes. Perhaps he believes that he should be forever faithful to the memory of his first love, and feel guilty that he wants to marry again, and so tries to pretend to himself that he doesn't really love you.

Whatever his feelings may be at this moment, however or whatever he merely thinks they are, I strongly suspect that if you do marry him, you will see a change in him as time goes on. I believe that your loving care of his children, and your desire to make him a happy home, will gradually have their effect, and he will presently turn to you for love and companionship as a husband naturally turns to his wife.

This is the most likely thing to happen.

If it does not and you find that this man you have married continues to hold aloof from you, you will still have the children. And you will be in no worse a situation than many another wife who had her husband's declared love at the beginning of marriage and then, in later years, found herself thrown back upon just this combination of home and children for her emotional satisfaction, when the man she thought would love and cherish her forever proved faithless, neglectful or too engrossed in business to give her the affection and comradeship of earlier days. For there are wives without number who however much they may have suffered because of their husbands' indifference, still have felt that what they made of marriage amply compensated for what was denied them.

So my advice to you is to take a chance. Give this marriage everything you've got of devotion, loyalty, interest and affection, and my guess is that with such a program you'll be the winner. It may take a little while. Don't expect too much too soon. But if you start out knowing that you have practically everything on your side—your own love for this man, your interest in his children, your desire to build a happy home—I can't believe that it it's possible for you to lose.

HE'LL LIKE YOU ALL THE BETTER

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I went to a dance the other night and enjoyed it very much except for one thing. It all happened when the Emcee said it was a "Ladies Choice." I asked a boy named Joe, and another girl started arguing and told Joe that he had promised her, which he didn't. So Joe danced with her because of the scene she made, and because she told him that if he didn't dance with her she would tell his father. She knows that I like this boy, and that is why she started what she did — A.L.

Dear A.L.:

If you and Joe are good friends, it seems to me that you can well afford to simply ignore this incident. If Joe is a sensible boy, he would be influenced by such a performance on the part of this girl, except to regard her as a very petty person. In fact, if you are sensible enough to take this in your stride, and just brush it off with a laugh, I think it would make Joe like you all the better.

Christmas Meeting Held By WMS

The Christmas meeting of the Melrose Woman's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Bates, Sr., with an attendance of 17.

The president, Mrs. Morgan, opened the meeting with a gracious welcome to all and read a poem "In the Carpenter's Shop."

A short business period was conducted. The treasurer, Miss McLaren, gave a gratifying report for the year and said that the allocation for $240 had been forwarded.

The group leader, Mrs. John Milligan, presented a Christmas program and Mrs. Sherry Demille presided at the piano.

Mrs. R. MacFarlane and Mrs. E. Embury read the Christmas story from Bible readings, with each passage of Scripture being followed by the singing of a carol. This worship service was closed by the singing of "Glory be to God, the Father" and followed by prayer by Miss Bailey.

Mrs. Fred Jeffrey gave a reading "How Do You Propose to Spend Christmas?" Mrs. Roy Roy Badgley gave "The Two Christmas Travellers", and Mrs. Milligan Christmas message:

"Open the doors of our minds, of our lips of our hearts."

"Let not our hearts be busy inns, That have no room for Thee, But cradles for the living Christ And His Nativity."

Mrs. Hogerward delighted everyone with the singing of several carols in the Dutch language. The carols were "Out of the Dark Clouds of this World has Come the Light of Light"; "O Come, All Ye Faithful," and "I Hope Upon Thee, My Saviour." Mrs. Bates was her accompanist at the piano.

The service was closed by all singing "Away in a Manger", followed by prayer by the Rev. Mr. Hogerward.

The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Roy Badgley.

COUNTRY COAT

By VERA WINSTON

How the fur-trimmed coat has changed, and for the better too! Remember when it was so opulent, often overdone affair of velvet trailing fluffy banks of fox or else with wide tuxedo sides of flat fur? Now it is neatly charming, a nice balance between dressy and the casual and so an excellent choice for general wear in town or out and for travel. Sable-dyed kolinsky is the fur for the collar of this cashmere coat done in either red or natural. The fur is detachable leaving a plastic collar beneath which makes the coat a doubly useful garment. Double breasted with brown composition buttons.

Centre St. W.A. Re-elects Officers

On Wednesday afternoon, Dec. the W.A. of Centre Street Mission met at the church for its monthly meeting and the annual Christmas party. There were 13 members, nine visitors and seven children present.

The president, Mrs Keitha Ferguson, presided.

The meeting opened with singing "O Come All Ye Faithful", followed by prayer by Mrs. Ferguson. The Scripture taken from St. Luke 1:26-33 was read by Mrs. Blanche Kingston, followed by a reading from the "Upper Room", by Mrs. Ferguson and the prayer for the day's reading and the thought of the day."

Mrs. Ferguson asked Mrs. Islay Bealey, wife of the student minister, Bruce Bealey, to preside for the election of officers.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mrs. Keitha Ferguson was re-elected president; Mrs. Iva Stacey elected vice-president; Mrs. Gladys McLeod re-elected secretary treasurer.

Mrs. Ferguson thanked Mrs. Bealey for conducting the election and thanked the members for their confidence in her and the co-operation and help in the past and said she would try her best to make the year a successful one.

Mrs. Ferguson called on Mrs. Bealey to give a reading which was much enjoyed by all, the reading being "Christmas Sermon" by the late Rev. Peter Marshall.

Mrs. Ferguson thanked Mrs. Bealey for her reading.

Mrs. Dorothy Howes favored with a solo "I Came Upon a Midnight Clear", which was much appreciated.

The meeting closed with the hymn "Silent Night".

Following this all present sat down to the well furnished tables which were Christmasy looking with their Christmas tablecloths and candles.

Mrs. Elizabeth Empson and Mrs. Emmeline Osborne poured tea.

After the repast, Christmas presents were exchanged and a social time had by all.

Art of Public Speaking Seen At H-S Assoc.

The Shannonville Home and School Association held its monthly meeting on Monday evening with a good attendance present. The president, Mrs. Jean Kilburn, opened the meeting.

Minutes and reports were heard and business looked after. Mrs. Kilburn thanked each and all who worked so faithfully to make the bazaar the success that it was, especially Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Rickman, who gave their home for the occasion.

A large majority of the parents and members present were much in favor of equipping the playgrounds for the children to enjoy than to sponsor a trip. Preparations for the playground equipment will begin as soon as weather permits.

Mr. Slavin, one-time president of the Home and School Association, was the guest speaker. His points on the Home and School were most interesting. He is a true believer in public speaking, and for the benefit of all present, he introduced Eleanor Shannon, 13-year-old, who spoke of "Atomic Power" and compared the different ways of loving, such as of today and the olden days.

It was remarkable what public speaking can do for the children of today.

Mr. Slavin was thanked by the Home and School Association, after which refreshments were served by the convener of the month.

"SHIP AHOY"

"Ship Ahoy", a 50-cast play was given last Friday evening at Shannonville Orange Hall, by the volunteer firemen of Desoronto, and the Desoronto high school and Shannonville public school, under the sponsorship of the Home and School Association, and was greatly enjoyed by both young and old.

The lovely costumes and especially those of the gay movie actresses coupled with Mr. McVickers, as master of ceremonies, made everything go over fine; but the small number of parents present was a disappointment.

This undertaking was taken over by the Home and School as a get-together in order to equip the school grounds for the children's enjoyment as soon as possible.

Following the performance, the Desoronto cast was served refreshments at the school by Mrs. Fred Louis, Mrs. Ruth Rickman, Mrs. Margaret Hill, Mrs. Gordon Sager, and Mrs. Helen Louis.

On behalf of the association, appreciative thanks are extended to the Desoronto folks, trusting they may be in attendance in the not too distant future.

Women's Activities

FRONT ROAD W. A.

The Front Road W.A. held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. T. J. Brown and Mrs. Clinton Brown. The president, Mrs. Brown opened the meeting.

Correspondence was read, including "thank-you" notes. Business was discussed and an exchange of Christmas gifts. The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Reid, one week later, January 12.

Miss Louis Bradshaw had charge of the program, opening with a reading "Keeping Christmas." Mrs. Clifford Reid read the Scripture, Matthew 2:1-12. Lesson thoughts were read by Mrs. John Botting; reading, Mrs. Glen Bradshaw. The Christmas message was read by Mrs. Jones; a reading "I Know Something Good About You" by Mrs. W. C. Mitchell. Prayer and the hymn, "Silent Night" brought another Christmas meeting to close.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her lunch committee.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

NEVER WRITE "CITY" IN ENVELOPE-ADDRESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion our family was having last evening, please answer this question: When addressing a letter to be delivered in ones own city or town, is it proper to omit the name of the city and write "City" instead? Or even "Town," as I've sometimes seen, or "Local" as I've also seen? — Bob J.

I'm 100 percent against writing "City" or "Town" or "Local" or anything else except the name of the city. It certainly isn't a sensible or practical way to address an envelope, particularly in these pre-Christmas days when the Post Office attendants have enough troubles. In these days of frequently-changing addresses, your letter may have to be re-addressed to another city or town, and it's very easy for a busy postoffice clerk to change the street - address and overlook changing "City" to the name of the new - address city. So . . . a fruitless wandering for the carelessly-addressed letter. In my work, with its many self addressed envelopes, I am very often confronted with the problem of a wandering letter . . . so very particularly I'd like to urge all readers to abandon the idea of writing "City," as an address, and instead write the name of the city.

CORRECT CARDS TO ENCLOSE WITH GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I don't have any engraved calling cards. Is it equally correct to use a small plain card in a plain envelope to enclose with a wedding gift? If this is correct, on this plain card the formal name should appe written for example, Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Brown. Right?

Is it ever correct to write an informal message on this plain card —for example, "Best wishes from Bob and Louise Greene"? Reader

It is entirely correct to use a plain white card (not necessarily small) in a plain matching envelope, to enclose with a wedding gift. And this is just as correct as using an engraved calling-card. As a matter of fact this plain white card and envelope is the kind usually supplied in stores or gift shops specializing in wedding presents, to be enclosed with present to be gift-wrapped.

On this card may be written only the formal name . . . Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Brown, as the names would appear on the calling-card. But, if you wish, you may write an informal message, then this to be signed with the informal names. The example you give is entirely correct: "Best wishes from Bob and Louise Greene."

Very convenient for this use are Informals (the names written in the center of the first page, if these aren't engraved on the Informals; the address written in the lower right corner); then the message may be written on an inside page.

Christmas Concert

BETHEL UNITED S.S.

RAWDON — The annual Christmas concert of Bethel Sunday School was held at the church on Friday evening with a large attendance.

The pastor, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher was chairman and spoke briefly and the program opened with a Christmas Carol.

Jean Reid gave a "Welcome Reading", and Nancy Thompson contributed a recitation; the members of the Mission Band presented a lovely pageant. Allan Fletcher rendered a vocal solo; recitations were given by Judy Reid, Gayle Hoover, Linda McMullen, Janet Ives, Fletcher, Gordon Sine, Elizabeth Treasur, Beverly Green, Margaret Mulheron and Dennis Rush.

A vocal duet — Faye Cooney and Patsy Thomson; the juniors sang, "Bethlehem Lullaby", and the Intermediate contributed "Star of the East."

Ronald Heath and Donalda Heath rendered a piano duet.

Presentations were made by Mr. Robert Treasur and Mrs. Don Heath.

At this juncture Santa arrived with a treat for all the children and he and his helpers distributed the various gifts from the lighted

FRENCH GUARD SPANISH MOROCCAN BORDER

Under careful guard is the road separating French and Spanish Morocco at Beni Ziri. Once an open highway, it was found a handy avenue for Riff rebels and now a crude barrier has been put up and a soldier keeps watch against invaders from the Riff mountains, just beyond the frontier. France has accused Spain of arming the Riffs and giving them sanctuary after raiding in French Morocco. (Central Press Canadian).

tionships, as neighbors sharing the northern half of this continent, the two countries again set an example of friendship for the rest of the troubled world.

Irritations and complaints, some perhaps accentuated by Canada's rising stature, developed on both sides of that oft-cited unarmed border but, as one Washington official put it, the two countries "continue to agree and disagree in a most agreeable manner."

There was, for example, a continuation of Canadian government protests against U.S. policies in agriculture and trade while the Americans, for their part, raised a few howls over rising Canadian newsprint prices, stuck Ottawa and Canada's hold on the headwaters of rivers flowing on both sides of the international boundary.

SMOOTH RELATIONS

But there were wide areas of agreement. Joint plans for defence of the continent, and especially the Canadian northland, advanced smoothly. The St. Lawrence seaway and hydro project, the biggest — defence co-operative effort ever launched by the two countries, moved along without hitch. In civil defence, atomic energy and other fields, relationships were harmonious.

Two major agreements were signed during the year. One covered the construction of the DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar line across the top of the continent. The U.S. will be responsible for the costs of construction and operation of the line; Canada will handle personnel costs if she mans any of its installations.

Another provided for co-operation between the two countries in peaceful uses of atomic energy and for exchange of atomic information for mutual defence purposes.

The two countries also ratified a third major agreement calling for joint wage on the deadly sea lamprey, a blood - sucking parasite which is threatening the commercial and sports fisheries of the Great Lakes with extinction. The agreement also provides for joint fisheries research in the Great Lakes region.

Culturally, Canadian - American relationships were cemented more firmly when the National Ballet of Canada visited Washington for a 10-night run in the capital's opening Arr Carter Barron amphitheatre. Critics gave the Canadian company high praises.

Canada's Growing Stature Draws American Eyes

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada's growing stature in world affairs drew American eyes northward during 1955.

One of the things that impressed official Washington observers most was the increasing independence and leadership displayed by Canada in the United Nations, where she ran counter to U.S. policy by proposing that U.S.-opposed Outer Mongolia be included in a slate of new UN members.

One state department official made this comment:

"You Canadians are very clearly staking out a policy of your own in the UN. You no longer are following the line presented by the United States or the United Kingdom but are moving ahead very much on your own."

Administration officials, who have come to regard Canada as an interpreter of the U.S. to other nations, watched with undisguised interest the fall trip of External Affairs Minister Pearson through the Soviet Union. The state department arranged to get frequent reports of his impressions from Ottawa.

EYE ECONOMY

American newspapers and magazines paid increasing attention to Canada's striking economic and industrial development.

Economists, too, watched this domestic expansion and, with a healthy and long-standing respect for the Canadian dollar, noted a new development—Canada's entry into the world money market. They saw the Dominion pick up an $18,000,000 Australian government bond issue that in other days would have gone almost automatically to the U.S. financial markets.

'Spirit of Geneva' Broken Down in Latter Part of Year

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The world's leaders toasted each other in 1955 and agreed that their differences could be settled without bloodshed.

While the July air was filled with talk of the "spirit of Geneva," communiques from the first Big Four summit conference since 1945 told of disarmament proposals, plans for German unification and of a possible lifting of the Iron Curtain.

But four months later, when the Big Four foreign ministers met to negotiate the details of their chiefs' pronouncements, they found they were as far apart as ever on how to disarm, how to reunite Germany and how to re-establish normal contacts between East and West.

AUSTRIAN INDEPENDENCE

One comparatively minor problem was settled during the year. After years of deadlock, Russia finally signed the treaty giving Austria her independence for the first time since 1938.

An uneasy calm settled over the Far East, after artillery exchanges between the Communist China mainland and the Nationalist-held isles of Quemoy and Matsu appeared to herald full-scale hostilities in the early months.

The Middle East, however, became a new danger spot. Renewed border warfare between Israel and Egypt threatened to assume major proportions as Communist Czechoslovakia, backed by Russia, sent arms to Egypt.

In a sudden change of tactics Russia's leaders made unprecedented trips abroad to shop for goodwill. Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist party secretary Nikita Khrushchev banqueted with Marshal Tito in Belgrade, posed for photographs with the Western Big Three in Geneva and wooed Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi. At home the Kremlin was equally busy, entertaining Nehru, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, Canadian External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson and the premiers of Norway and Burma.

GERMANY JOINS NATO

Russia offered technical assistance to underdeveloped African-Asian countries, returned the naval base of Porkkala to Finland, made a token reduction in her armed forces and permitted an increasing number of cultural, trade and technical exchange visits with the outside world.

On the other hand, Russian recognition of newly sovereign West Germany and repatriation of German prisoners did not prevent the Adenauer government from joining the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. As a counter-measure, Russia organized an East European defence system.

Later in the year a new Middle Eastern anti-Communist alliance was signed by Britain, Pakistan, Iran, Iraq and Turkey.

Of the participants in the summit conference, only President Eisenhower was in power in January. Bulganin, British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure all came to office during the year.

Bulganin took over the Soviet premiership when Georgi Malenkov suddenly resigned Feb. 8 because of self-avowed "inexperience" in handling domestic problems. Stalin's successor was down-graded to deputy premier in charge of power developments.

Eden inherited the leadership of the Conservative government from Sir Winston Churchill in April and a month later led his party to a sweeping 59-seat majority in a general election. Churchill kept his seat in the Commons but his appearances have been few.

Faure, 51st post-war French premier, replaced Pierre Mendes-France in February when the negotiator of the Indochina peace was defeated on his North African policy. After nine months in office, Faure also lost a vote of confidence but, instead of resigning, dissolved the assembly to bring about a general election. This will be held Jan. 2.

Unrest in North Africa was a major cause of France's political problems. A wave of nationalism swept Algeria, Morocco and Tunisia, culminating in bloody riots. Premier Faure negotiations, the Faure government quelled the disturbances in Tunisia by granting home rule and attempted to appease Moroccan nationalists by restoring the exiled Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef to the throne.

A growing agitation for union with Greece produced a series of terrorist attacks in the strategic British Mediterranean colony of Cyprus.

A campaign against colonialism by a group of African-Asian nations — the "Bandung powers"— was conducted in the United Nations with occasional Russian and Latin American support.

This neutralist power bloc got its name from the Indonesian town where 29 nations, including Red China, met in April. The conference ended with a declaration emphasizing peaceful goals and rejecting all forms of colonialism.

Latin America had more than its share of political unrest.

A revolt of the armed services removed President Juan Peron, ending a 10-year dictatorship. Two months after Peron went into exile his successor, Maj.-Gen. Eduardo Lonardi, was ousted by the army chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Pedro Aramburu, who pledged a return to democratic rule.

In Brazil, where President Joao Cafe Filho suffered a heart attack in the last weeks of his term of office, his successor, Carolos de Luz, remained in office only two days before being ousted in a bloodless coup. Charging a plot to prevent president - elect Juscelino Kubitschek from taking office in January, the rebels installed Moreu Ramos as provisional president.

Panamanian president Jose Antonio Remon was assassinated Jan. 2 and his successor, Jose Ramon Guizado, was arrested two weeks later. He was charged with complicity in the murder and given a six-year prison term.

A short-lived Costa Rican rebellion was crushed.

For several months world interest was held by the romance of Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend, a former royal equerry now serving as a Royal Air Force attache. Apprehensions of the effect of a possible marriage between a divorced man and a member of the Royal Family were stilled when the princess announced her decision not to marry him.

A vaccine against poliomyelitis invented by Dr. Jonas Salk was put into wide and effective use in several countries, including Canada and the United States. Russia and the U.S. both announced plans to launch the world's first man-made satellites within two years.

CUPID A REGULAR PASSENGER VANCOUVER TO HONG KONG

These young Chinese-Canadians are but four of many who fly each month from Vancouver to Hong Kong to find wives. Joe Soo, Billy Chew, Fug Check Yen and Jim Eng all have their wedding rings ready, and since all other Chinese on cupid's errand have come back with wives, they are reasonably certain they will be back in their home city, Toronto, in a few weeks with their mates. The airlines have carried hundreds of Chinese girls to Canada, but there is no record of any of them returning to China. "Some of the marriages are arranged by relatives in Hong Kong, some of the bachelors just explore the bride market themselves. (Central Press Canadian.)

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. D. Bowers were Wednesday evening callers of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fair, of Belleville.

Bayside was well-represented at the Santa Claus parade in Trenton on Saturday.

Miss Marjorie Mallory spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Mallory.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bowers opened their home on Tuesday evening for choir practice and also to practice for the Christmas concert.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heagle opened their home on Sunday afternoon on Sunday afternoon to honor her father, Mr. C. M. Sine, of Stirling on his 90th birthday. Mr. H.M. Brown, Mr. Gerald Brown, Miss Mabel Brown and Mrs. Leonard Young of this district were present.

A few in this district are suffering from colds.

On the 3rd Sunday of Advent Mr. Robert Percival chose a letter of Paul for his text and how Demas had forsaken him and departed for Thessalonica. For the children he told a story on, "Detour", and how a lie can be a wrong detour and much rougher than telling the truth. Next Sunday will be communion service and also baptism service at White's Church.

Mrs. Walter Jones and Mr. Leonard Young spent Friday afternoon in Trenton with Mrs. Albert Hockaday working on costume for the Christmas concert. Practice will be held at White's Church Tuesday evening with a dress rehearsal.

Mrs. Lorne Hunt was visitor in Toronto Sunday to her brother, Mr. Jack Miller, a patient in Sunnybrook Hospital will be able to return home Christmas.

Finest of fine cars with marvellous new push-button gear selection

When you see and drive this newest New Yorker, be prepared to change all your ideas of how fine a car can be! In every gleaming contour, you'll see fresh new design that marks a new height of fashion.

For example, the eager look of its slim, horizontal grille bars . . . the unique flair at front bumper tips . . . new high-sweep rear fenders, accented by distinctive chrome "louvre" decoration . . . magnificent new taillights that seem to reach for the sky.

At your finger tips, you'll find the ultimate in automatic driving. Just press a button to operate Chrysler PowerFlite—the truly automatic transmission.

Under your toe, you'll discover smooth-as-the-wind response of a new, more powerful engine. What a thrill when you press the accelerator and put this mighty FirePower V-8 into action!

If you want the finest of the fine cars, your Chrysler dealer invites you to see and drive the New Yorker today.

Just touch and GO!

You simply push a button to operate PowerFlite automatic transmission. Then step on the gas, and go! No shift lever. Instead, there's a special push-button panel you can easily touch with your left hand.

Just touch to STEER!

You can guide your New Yorker with a feather-light touch! Full-Time Power Steering provides "hydraulic muscles" that go to work instantly . . . save you 80% of turning effort. Available at extra cost.

Just touch to STOP!

A light pressure of your toe on the wide power brake pedal now provides easier-than-ever stopping. Every 1956 New Yorker is equipped with completely new power brakes that respond faster with less effort.

TORONTO (CP)—A Dutch immigrant couple Tuesday resumed their fight for the custody of their 11-month-old twins.

Herman Mast and his wife Trudy have filed notice of appeal against a decision handed down Dec. 2, awarding custody of their natural children to foster parents Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hepton.

The Heptons, of nearby Cookville, have cared for the children from the age of one month.

Stirling

STIRLING, — Miss Lenora Williams, Toronto, is spending some time with her sister, Mrs H. C. David.

Mrs. Harold Bird recently entertained the Hon. J. R. Cooke Chapter of the IODE. The regent, Mrs. Carl Potter, presided, and Mrs. Bruce Bell presented the study on the Empire.

Mrs. Albert Fraser demonstrated how to decorate cakes. Later the cakes were won in a draw by Mrs. Don McIntosh and Mrs. Herb Wood.

Mrs. Stella Leonard is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Babcock, Buffalo, N.Y.

The Rev. W. H. V. Walker and Mr. Percy Craighead attended the Kingston Presbytery meeting at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Belleville, on Tuesday.

Mrs. Nora Wescott is a patient in the General Hospital, Belleville.

Mrs. Will West was hostess to Stirling Women's Institute with the vice-president, Mrs. Blanche Reid, in charge. A Christmas program which included carols, piano music and poems followed.

Plans were made to pack a box of used clothing and Christmas gifts for the Salvation Army.

The hostess and her assistants served refreshments.

Mrs. C. I. Hatton spent the weekend with friends at Napanee.

2 ESCAPE INJURY

PARRY SOUND, Ot. (CP)—Two men escaped unharmed Tuesday when their light plane crashed on the Canadian Pacific Railway line near this Georgian bay town. Stan King of Parry Sound was pilot of the plane, police said. The passenger was not identified.

Breadman Saves Six from Death

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—A St. Catharines breadman woke up six occupants of a Kalar road home Tuesday after he noticed smoke emerging from the two-storey brick house.

Firemen said Ray Attick, 35, a salesman for a St. Catharines bakery, roused four children and two women in the house and then started pouring water on an overheated stove pipe. The blaze was finally extinguished by firemen.

Sweeping Newsprint Controls Ban on Export of Pulpwood Are Threatened by Duplessis

CANDIDATE

James A. Maloney, Renfrew, Ont., lawyer, has been nominated Progressive Conservative candidate for the Jan. 13 by-election in Renfrew South constituency. The seat in the Ontario legislature was left vacant by the death of James S. Duncanson in October of this year. (CP Photo).

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec newsprint industry today was faced with a demand by Premier Duplessis to exempt provincial newspapers from price increases or face government control of newsprint and a ban on pulpwood exports.

Premier Duplessis flung the one-month ultimatum in the face of the powerful pulp and paper industry late Tuesday in an angry speech in the legislative assembly. He threatened to ban pulpwood exports to other provinces and to also controls on production, distribution and price of newsprint within the province unless the newsprint companies act within one month to exempt Quebec newspapers from recent price increases.

"We want to make sure the wood from Quebec is not used to feed the mills of some companies which are situated in neighboring provinces," the premier declared.

MAJOR SOURCE

Quebec produces more than one-half of Canada's newsprint. Eleven Canadian companies recently announced price increases ranging from $3 to $8.

The premier, whose speech was filled with sharp remarks about "certain company officials," declared: "When certain people refuse to observe some elementary system of self-control, then government controls must be enforced."

His threat was backed up by the introduction and first reading of government legislation that would impose controls on the production, distribution and price of newsprint and halt exports of pulpwood.

While first reading of any bill is a formality and Mr. Duplessis has said the whole project will be dropped if newsprint manufacturers comply with his demands, the legislative machinery now is in gear to impose far-reaching controls.

COULD CREATE BOARD

Mr. Duplessis said the controls would be exercised by a newsprint control board which would keep an eye on production levels, fix prices, and establish the share of newsprint firms in providing Quebec newsprint buyers.

He added that under the proposed legislation export of pulpwood would be stopped.

"I can promise not one stick of pulpwood from Quebec would be exported to another province under this proposed legislation," he said.

Quebec exported 869,236 cords of pulpwood—mostly to Ontario and New Brunswick—during the 1953-54 timber-cutting season.

The controls would hit 53 pulp mills, paper mills, and newsprint mills in Quebec province which account for more than half of Canada's entire newsprint production.

Mr. Duplessis said what his demands boil down to is that the price paid by Quebec newspapers prior to recent increases of from $5 to $5 a ton be maintained.

The present price varies between $117 and $119 a ton compared with Canadian basic price of $122, a ton and the New York price of $126 a ton. Both the New York price and the Canadian basic price include delivery costs while Quebec clients arrange their own delivery.

The special Quebec price, paid by Quebec newspapers since 1952, was fixed after negotiations between Mr. Duplessis and the newsprint manufacturers.

Canadian Canal Will Close Down At Midnight

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Shipping officials say there's little danger of any Great Lakes vessels being bottled in Lake Superior at the end of the 1955 shipping season.

The Canadian canal here is scheduled to close to downbound traffic at midnight Dec. 14 and to upbound ships midnight Dec. 15. The United States canal, however, will take any downbound vessel leaving port "on or about" midnight Thursday.

Sixteen ships are reported in the northwestern area of Lake Superior and one ship, the Ashcroft, owned by Canadian Steamship Lines Ltd., is expected to be past through today or Thursday on a last round-trip.

SOME ICE SEEN

Only small ice formations have been spotted—in the lower St. Marys river and virtually no ice above the American locks. A U. S. coast guard ice breaker, the Mackinaw is watching for ice formations in the lower river. The Mesquite aided three ships through ice Monday.

U. S. officials said an application from Canada Steamship Lines that the locks be held open until Dec. 18, has been forwarded to Washington.

Meanwhile Sarnia reported the first freighter among 32 ships expected to winter there tied up Tuesday. The John Ericsson, a grain carrier, owned by the Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company arrived light from Goderich.

Two more ships are due at Port Colborne to complete the winter fleet of 18 vessels. More than 3,000,000 bushels of grain will be stored afloat this winter at the Lake Erie port.

More lake giants will tie up than in some years, with the James Norris and Canada Leitch, Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation newest ships, storing grain along with the company's Ralph Budd. These three will store 1,250,000 bushels.

To Pay Costs

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Jockey Club will pay full cost of a traffic interchange on Highway 27 to be built by the Ontario government to allow access to the new Woodbine race track at nearby Malton.

The interchange will be open only during racing season.

Cost will be $200,000.

Tired and Pale Martin Watches Defeat of Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP) Health Minister Paul Martin watched, dejected and misty-eyed, as the Security Council tore to shreds Canada's laboriously-planned scheme for widening UN membership.

Tired and pale from weeks of hard work aimed at bringing 18 countries into the UN organization, the chief Canadian UN delegate stood on the delegates' floor and scarcely moved as Russia flung veto after veto at the Western-sponsored candidates.

"We did our best," he was reported to have remarked simply to another Canadian delegate.

Asked later whether Canada would pursue its efforts to break the membership deadlock at next year's assembly, Martin said this was not now planned.

21 INJURED

Adenauer Govt. Keeps Otto John Under Security

By BRACK CURRY

BONN, Germany (AP) — The West German government kept multiple turncoat Otto John, defector under security wraps today while a high-level investigation continued into his defection to the Communists and return to the West.

Communist East Germany issued a brief comment on the arrival in West Germany of the Bonn government's former counter - intelligence chief after a 16-month stay with the Reds. The 47-word comment, distributed by the East German news agency ADN, tried to give a sort of tacit blessing to John's departure to the West, saying:

"Herr Dr. John, former president of the Bonn office for the protection of the constitution, who was granted asylum in the (East) German Democratic Republic on July 20, 1954, has left the German Democratic Republic. Dr. John had repeatedly stated he intends to conduct the fight against neo-fascism in West Germany."

GIVEN CHALLENGE

In Bonn, where John was brought after slipping secretly into West Berlin Monday, he was given a thorough grilling by an examining judge. Federal officials said that after several hours of questioning the judge took off Tuesday night for Karlsruhe, seat of the Federal Constitutional Court, West Germany's highest tribunal.

Only a stenographer was with the judge and Dean during the questioning. A summary was turned over to two federal prosecutors who had been investigating John's case for over a year.

John officially is tagged as a traitor by West Germany—is being kept strictly secluded, officials said. They want to get the best of what the government might do with the handsome, ale-foster, who has at one time or another described the three German regimes with which he has been officially connected—Nazi, post-war West germany and Communist East Germany.

Interior Minister Gerhard Schroeder planned a report to Chancellor Adenauer on cabinet to day on John's return flight to the West.

Syria Expects Security Council Meeting on Israel Dispute

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Syria expects the United Nations Security Council to meet soon on the Damascus government's protest against Israel's attack on Syrian posts in Galilee.

Ahmed Shukairy, chairman of Syria's delegation to the General Assembly who announced the protest at a press conference, indicated that his country will ask the council to take stern action against Israel. He did not disclose Syria's strategy but said it would call for "measures which have not been asked before."

The UN charter authorizes the council to recommend a cessation of aggression. That failing, the council may call on UN members to sever diplomatic, economic, and communications ties with the aggressor nation. Finally, it may call on members for armed force halt aggression.

However, the council so far has never voted sanctions against one of the parties in the Arab-Israeli conflict, contenting itself with ensuring the country it considers the guilty party.

Israeli forces attacked four Syrian posts on the northeastern shore of the sea of Galilee Sunday night, Israel charged that the posts had fired repeatedly on Israeli fishing and police boats on the lake along which Christ spent much of His life.

Israel said 55 Syrians were killed and 29 captured. Four Israelis were killed and 12 wounded in the operation.

The Syrian protest said 40 Syrians were killed—five officers, 30 soldiers, and 12 civilians, including three women. It said eight other Syrian soldiers were wounded and 30 captured. Damascus radio claimed earlier that 100 Israelis were killed or wounded.

Frigid North Holds Fate Of 3 Missing

EDMONTON (CP) — The deep snows of the frigid north today held secret the fate of at least three men aboard two missing aircraft.

One has been missing since Sunday in the McMurray area of northern Alberta, the other lost for eight days in the wilds of the far northwestern Yukon.

Little hope is held for the survival of two men aboard a United States two-seater Luscombe, missing in the uncharted wastes 1,100 miles northwest of Edmonton.

But searchers held high hopes of finding a single-engined Fairchild, believed to have one man aboard, in the McMurray area.

A third plane, a Beaver with two men aboard Tuesday was reported returned to safety at Yellowknife, N. W. T., after being downed overnight in 30-below-zero cold near Conwoyto lake, less than 100 miles south of the Arctic circle.

Insurance Stand Criticized By CCF Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, Tuesday night criticized both the provincial Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties for their stands on government - sponsored health insurance.

In a speech to the CCF Riverdale Club, Mr. MacDonald criticized the Liberals for "successfully confusing the health-insurance issue once again so that the public has no idea where it stands."

And he criticized the Frost government for "producing a step-by-step approach which will have the result of giving us inadequate social services for years."

He said he CCF program calls for the Ontario government to establish a province-wide hospital plan now, as the first major step toward full health services through a national health plan by federal government action.

Mr. MacDonald, criticizing a statement Monday night by Ross Whicher, Liberal member for Fort Rouge, that Ontario cannot afford to "go it alone" on the health program, said Mr. Whicher's claim is a "deliberate confusion of the whole issue."

New Permanent Bridge Opened

NEW YORK (AP)—The State Power Authority announced Tuesday a new permanent bridge on the St. Lawrence river project from Cornwall to Barnhart Island. It and will be opened to traffic Thursday.

The authority said the bridge was substantially completed.

"This bridge, built at a cost of $5,000,000 and rushed to completion during the busy construction season, replaces a temporary floating bridge which must be removed before substantial ice forms in the St. Lawrence river," the authority said.

The bridge carries two lanes of highway traffic and one railroad track which will be removed upon completion of the power project, the authority said.

Potato Growers Ask for Higher Tariff Protection

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian potato growers who have asked for higher tariff protection against imports of United States potatoes got little encouragement Tuesday from the report of a six-month tariff board study of their problems.

The report by the three-man board said that through the years Canada has exported more potatoes to the U.S. than it imported.

In a speech last week Agriculture Minister Gardiner appeared to be opposed to any increase in the potato tariff.

Mr. Gardiner warned the Maritimes and British Columbia, which asked for the protection, that Canada has a big seed potato market in the U.S. and that higher tariffs might kill off a good market to save a poor one.

Confidence in coming year will raise current levels of business

Extracts of addresses delivered at the 89th Annual Meeting of The Canadian Bank of Commerce

"If confidence in the future continues firm," said James Stewart, C.B.E., President, addressing the 89th Annual Meeting of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, "then most fields of activity should continue to show further improvement."

NINETEEN fifty-five has turned out to be a record year with new peak levels presently being established in many segments of our economy. The encouraging feature of the current picture is the recovery from the slow-down in business activity that took place during 1954, and which continued into the early months of 1955. In the late Spring our export position began to improve and a renewed wave of capital spending served to recreate the atmosphere of confidence so necessary to the maintenance of the growth cycle. For a large part of our population, conditions have never been more favourable. For some, however, the situation is not quite as buoyant as it was a few years ago. Despite the over-all prosperity as reflected in national accounting aggregates, farm income is down and there is an unemployment problem in a few localities. In point of fact, continuing difficulties in such industries as primary textiles, farm implements and coal mining are contributing to the unemployment situation.

MAJOR economic developments during this year have again centred largely on resource development. Iron ore production is well ahead of last year with increased shipments from the Steep Rock area and from the Iron Ore Company in Labrador. The first shipments from the Labrador mine began in August 1954 and total shipments to the end of August of this year have been over four million tons toward a target for this year of six million tons, which objective, it is reported, will be raised to ten million tons next year and to twenty million tons when the St. Lawrence Seaway is opened. Another new iron producer came into production with the first shipment of ore from the Marmora area in May of this year.

While the first expansionary phase in the oil industry appears to be over, a steadily increasing rate of production and a continued inflow of investment capital characterize the industry today. Intensive exploration is still being carried on in all three prairie provinces. Indicative of the rate of development work done by the industry, Manitoba is now producing at an annual rate which will supply almost half of its annual consumption. Natural gas discoveries have been well up this year and with the recent announcement of plans for the construction of the pipeline to carry gas to central Canada, this source of wealth will in the foreseeable future flow into the economy. An early start on the Toronto-Montreal branch of the pipeline is planned, for completion late next year, when it will, pending approval of the United States Federal Power Commission, be fed by gas from the Tennessee Gas Transmission Company until such time as it is connected with the line from western Canada.

PROSPEROUS conditions in the economy during the past year have contributed to and in part resulted from an expansion in foreign trade. The high level of domestic spending and capital investment increased our imports by some 12 per cent in the first nine months of the year, with all areas except the United Kingdom sharing in the increase. Likewise the high level of industrial activity in other parts of the world resulted in increasing foreign demand for many Canadian primary and extractive products. The value of our exports to the United Kingdom and Commonwealth countries increased relatively more than those to the rest of the world, while to Latin America and the Far East, exports will be lower than last year. This is resulting in a much larger favourable balance in merchandise trade with the United Kingdom, and an increase during the first nine months of this year of more than $150 million in our deficit with the United States. In other words, our bilateral trade with our two major trading countries is more unbalanced than last year, and the overall multilateral deficit in commodity trade in the nine-month period was $43 million larger than in the nine-month period last year.

A study of the pattern of export commodities reveals that the gains this year were largely in primary products with the exception of newsprint and chemicals. Secondary goods appear to be suffering from cost or price differentials. While actual comparisons of prices and wage levels between countries are subject to many inaccuracies, it is generally recognized that the high standard of living and high wage levels in Canada at the present time reduce the competitive position of Canadian manufactured goods against those made in Britain, Germany and Japan, among others, and that we have not, generally speaking, the benefits which the United States derives from mass production methods made possible by their larger market.

WHILE dealing with the agricultural scene I cannot refrain from commenting on certain aspects of the current situation that bear contemplation and reflection in the light of the wider applications. Production artificially encouraged by subsidies or support prices cannot, in the long run, result in other than market disturbance. When products enter into world markets, such activity invites retaliatory measures such as import restrictions and the like — restrictions certainly not within the framework of multilateral principles seemingly supported by many of the free nations of the world. The world wheat situation presently is a case in point and surely we can do something more than rely on acts of God to solve difficulties and reduce surpluses.

SINCE the steady rise in capital investment has been one of the dynamic factors in the maintenance of buoyant business conditions one is bound to ponder the questions and issues inherent in encouraging a steady flow of investment funds. It is generally agreed that over the past few years a large proportion of total capital formation has come from corporate saving as contrasted with open market activity. It is possible that this pattern may shift and that more capital may have to be sought from the public, provided of course that the investment climate is favourable. Time does not permit of exhaustive discussion of possible alternative government measures in the field of monetary and fiscal policy to encourage capital investment, but I am compelled to suggest that the tax policy should be geared to the encouragement of venture capital. I suggested a moment ago that we well might see some shift towards seeking public subscription for capital expansion. Generally speaking, in a period of growth, a corporation's working capital position will need to expand accordingly and a growing corporation well may have to look to the public for its capital needs.

THE price structure continues to be strong and, in fact, evidence is accumulating to suggest, tentatively at this point, that prices may again move upward in the months to come. We continue to have the wage-price spiral ever before us, though differing in impact from time to time.

This invites comment on the growing belief that parity wage rates can be achieved as between the United States and the Canadian economy. Whether this view is encouraged by international influences or is of domestic origin is difficult to ascertain. Regardless of source, it is suggested that, while the factor of monopoly power over an important element of production possibly and probably can achieve this statistical relationship for a short period of time, the longer run implications will equally influence such action. Bearing in mind the size of our markets and the disposition of our resources, there is bound to be a social cost in achieving such a goal. As we improve our productivity and as our markets expand, thereby allowing for reduced costs per unit, it is conceivable that we can achieve some measure of parity at some future date. But legislating for it or negotiating for it now are fraught with difficulties and particularly since "full employment" continues to be an objective of policy, we must not price ourselves away from this goal.

AS we turn our thoughts to the year ahead it is well to bear in mind the continuing importance of our trade to the maintenance of a high level of business activity. It may well be that the diversity and depth of our industrial evolution has provided some degree of "insulation" from recessions in other parts of the free world. On the other hand, the breadth and extent of the upsurge in United States business conditions certainly played an important part in stimulating our economic recovery this year. If it can be anticipated — and signs are not wanting to invite such anticipation — that the momentum presently inherent in the American economy will carry well into the coming year, then we can expect stimulation in at least two directions: in continued demand for our export products, and in the psychological factor — confidence in business.

We seem at this point to have established a tempo of production and consumption reflected in a level of Gross National Product approximating $26 billion. If productivity improves during the coming twelve months by two to three per cent in the aggregate, and if we assume even an average agricultural outturn, we well might anticipate an even higher Gross National Product for 1956 — in the neighbourhood of $26½ billion. Should this be the case such improvement would be reflected in a relatively higher level of disposable income than last year and the natural concomitant thereof — a high level of employment. If confidence in the future continues firm then business in most fields of activity should continue to show further improvement.

On the spending side it would be in line with the prospective movement of Gross National Product to suggest that both capital spending and consumer spending will continue in an upward direction. The consumer spending pattern continues to be quite flexible and it might be that increasing amounts will be spent on services during the coming year. In the capital sector it is likely that somewhat less will be spent on housing than during this year while industrial expansion is likely to show some acceleration.

I WOULD conclude on a note of caution arising from the growing awareness of the fact that scientific developments may have brought us closer to the absence of war as we understand it at the mid-twentieth century. In fact, atomic and nuclear developments seem at this time to have generated a form of military stalemate. We must adjust our thinking to meet the change that this signifies. But of even greater significance to my mind is that under such conditions the dangers of propaganda are heightened rather than reduced. We must be on guard lest internal disturbances and doubts weaken the political and social fabric to the extent that our basic objectives are obscured or that we lose the will to defend them. We must learn to live with the technological and scientific developments that we already have witnessed and those that are ahead of us, and we must be prepared to resist attempts from whatever source to destroy the political and economic framework within which we have accomplished so much up to the present and which promises so much for the future.

NEIL J. McKINNON, VICE-PRESIDENT and GENERAL MANAGER, after reviewing the balance sheet, highlights of which are summarized below, said in part:

The eighty-ninth Annual Statement of the Bank now before you reflects a record breaking year of growth in the business of the institution. Aggregate deposits increased by more than $272,000,000 and total assets increased over $298,000,000 to a total of more than $2,356,000,000 reflecting the greatest year of growth in the Bank's history.

Business conditions during the past year moved forward from the pause in 1954 into steadily increasing activity and practically all aspects of the economy with the important exception of agriculture will achieve new records. In agriculture the generally good, even bumper, crops tend to offset the lower farm prices for many products and farm cash income for the year will not likely differ much from that of 1954.

The increase during the year in all forms of credit has been substantial and with business at a higher level of activity and with presently no general labour surplus of consequence available for employment some caution is necessary to guard against the possibility of an increase in money supply with no corresponding increase in production of goods and services, which would of course encourage increasing price levels. No one under these conditions can justifiably object to a degree of restraint designed to avoid an unwarranted expansion of credit but it is at the same time of the greatest importance that there should be continuous adaptation to the legitimate needs of business growth. The banking mechanism is a sensitive one and policies and attitudes need to be at all times flexible, with a full understanding that the business and trading environment is constantly in a process of change.

The Balance Sheet shows an increase in personal savings deposits in excess of $95,000,000 and an increase in other deposits of approximately $169,000,000. Deposits by governments declined $16,000,000 while deposits by other banks increased by $24,000,000.

There has been an increase of $150,000,000 in the quick assets of the Bank reflected principally through an increase in cash and transit items of $32,000,000, an increase in holdings of Government of Canada securities of $42,000,000 and an increase in call loans of $38,000,000.

Other current loans increased by $98,000,000 and mortgage loans under the National Housing Act increased by $43,000,000.

The Balance Sheet also reflects the increase in capital stock and Rest Account arising from the issuance of subscription rights to shareholders in December 1954. The Rest Account has been additionally increased by a transfer of $2,250,000 from profits and, in all, the shareholders' investment in the Bank has increased by more than $22,000,000 during the year.

The Statement of Undivided Profits shows an increase in profits after taxes of $855,000 and after paying enlarged dividends arising from the issuance of additional capital stock there remained a sum of $3,001,000 out of which, as already mentioned, $2,250,000 was transferred to the Rest Account leaving a balance in Undivided Profits of $1,399,000 compared with $647,000 a year ago.

Stock Market Raced Through Greatest Boom in History

By RADEK WINGET

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market raced through the greatest boom in its history this year.

Nothing seemed to stand in its path. The old boo-a-boo about 1929 high prices was swept aside with little concern. One record after another fell by the wayside. And the market met and passed its most severe test since the panic days of 1929.

Profits made during the year were, to use an understatement, high—an estimated $35,000,000,000. Those profits were to an unmeasurable extent on paper, of course, but as a broker once remarked, dollar bills also are printed on paper.

Looking into the future of the market as far as a full year, there was little the experts could see to cause concern. That fact in itself troubled many persons. They persisted on the theory that when the future looks brightest, then watch for trouble.

The more sophisticated in Wall street readily acknowledged that booms don't last forever. However, they didn't anticipate a bust as a shaking climax to the boom.

TRADING RUSH

They felt that the stock market should keep step with business itself, avoiding excesses and extremes in price swings either way.

The year started with a rush of trading on the New York stock exchange that hadn't been matched for more than two decades. On 15 of the 20 trading days in January, volume was between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 shares a day. The average session this year accounted for a little more than 2,500,000 shares. For the entire year of 1955, it is estimated that more shares will change hands than for any full year since 1933, making it the fifth busiest year the stock exchange ever had.

As for price movements during the year, the major trend was sharply higher with five distinct reactions. In every case, the market recovered completely and swiftly.

The first dip came at the start of the year as margins were boosted to 60 per cent from 50 per cent. That meant you could borrow a maximum of only 40 per cent to purchase stock on credit instead of 50 per cent.

BROKE BARRIER

The setback lasted a matter of days, and the market started upward again. On the way it broke through a barrier that had stood for more than 20 years—the old historic peak of 1929 from which the stock market began its chilling plunge that ended in a numb depression.

On Sept. 2, 1929, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks touched $107.76. On Feb. 9, 1955, the average surged ahead $2.30 to $158.10 and established a high mark.

The rise continued on into March, and it was then that Senator Fulbright of Arkansas began what was termed a friendly investigation of the stock market. There was an argument over the effect the hearings had on the market, but that week prices tumbled more than at any time since Germany invaded the low countries and France in 1940. When the hearings ended, prices went up again to record highs.

April brought the first of four increases in the discount rate, the amount the federal reserve charges for lending money to its commercial bank members. Such harder money moves tend to choke off inflation. Margins again were raised, to 70 per cent from 60 per cent. Another step at inflation.

QUICK DIP

It was then that the market ran into its third reaction of the year. A big blow was given to the decline by Washington moves to confer with Red China. That dip didn't last long, either, and the market started on its way again.

Second-quarter profits were up 26 per cent from the previous year, and the second quarter gross national product was at a record high. Both now are headed for a record for the full year.

There was a July-August reaction of minor extent during which the discount rate was raised again to brake inflation, but the market continued still higher.

It was on Friday, Sept. 23, that the AP average of 60 stocks stood at $181.50, its highest level. Then came the coronary attack and word of President Eisenhower's heart attack.

EMOTIONAL SELLING

On Monday the market dropped like a plummet. The fall that day was recorded by the AP as the worst day suffered in the crash of 1929. A great portion of the selling was emotional. There was a sudden slackening of confidence in the stock market. The question was: What would happen to business without Eisenhower at the helm?

One-Armed Pilot Teaching Others To Fly Bombers

MANBY, England (CP) — Air Commodore .G.A. (Gus) Walker, one-armed commandant of the RAF Flying College, Manby, is going on a jet flight to the Arctic.

He is flying a Canberra twin-jet bomber from Norway over Spitsbergen and several hundred miles of ice to give Arctic navigation experience to navigators at the college.

Scores of Canadians served under the short, stocky bomber ace during the Second World War. He was commanding officer of RAF stations Syerston and Balderton in Nottinghamshire during 1941 and 1942 when Canada's No. 408 Squadron was affiliated with the RAF's No. 5 Bomber Group. The squadron later moved to Yorkshire following the formation by the RCAF of No. 6 group.

He lost his right arm in 1942 in an airfield explosion.

The whole thing was over in 2½ weeks and the reaction hit bottom. The recovery of the market paced that of the president himself, and by Monday, Dec. 5, the AP coverage was back up again to $181.50.

In the final weeks of the year, dividends hit a record rate, profits were at top levels, the rage for price-boosting stock splits had cut up 83 issues on the New York Stock Exchange (another record), and there were almost uncounted mergers of small companies into bigger companies or companies of equal rank combining forces to boost their profits.

All of these were basic factors in the rise of the stock market. There also was a powerful intangible. That was the confidence the 7,500,000 stockholders have in the future of business and their desire to share in the tremendous profits being made today.

As the year drew to its close, a man's hand could easily cover all the clouds in the economic sky.

Ross Seeking To Prevent Retrial of Case

OTTAWA (CP) — Counsel for Thomas A. Ross said Tuesday former Toronto mayor Allan Lamport was angry at the taxicab operator when he accused him through the press of trafficking in taxi licences.

R. N. Starr of Toronto said in the Supreme Court of Canada that Mr. Lamport was angry at Mr. Ross because the latter took court action to force the Toronto board of police commissioners — headed then by Mr. Lamport—to issue him a taxi owner's licence.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury found Mr. Lamport guilty of slander and libel in connection with the charges made Oct. 30, 1953, and printed in the Toronto Star and the Toronto Globe and Mail. The jury awarded Mr. Ross amounts totalling $40,000 on two charges of slander and two charges of libel.

The Ontario Court of Appeal last May 9 ordered a new trial on the ground the award was excessive. Mr. Ross seeks to prevent the retrial through his appeal to the Supreme Court to confirm the original jury's verdict.

NEW TTC CHAIRMAN

Mr. Starr contended it was apparent that Mr. Lamport, now chairman of the Toronto Transportation Commission, sought to achieve the ruin of Mr. Ross through the statements to newspaper reporters.

He also argued that the charges were proven in court to be untrue.

He said Mr. Lamport in his statements attacked Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court, by claiming Mr. Ross had been dishonest with the judge and that in some way he had obtained the judge's favoritism.

Mr. Justice I. C. Rand of the Supreme Court interjected that "apparently he (Mr. Lamport) was ignorant of the conceptions of the law and the courts."

SUGGEST SHAKEUP

LONDON (Reuters) — A new wave of speculation started here suggesting Prime Minister Eden will make major government changes before Christmas involving the posts of treasury chief and foreign secretary.

May Request Supreme Court To Give Ruling

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal and Ontario officials Tuesday considered a possible request to the Supreme Court of Canada for clarification of federal and provincial powers in farm-marketing legislation.

The meeting was attended by Justice Minister Garson, his deputy, F. P. Varcoe and Attorney-General Roberts and Agriculture Minister Thomas of Ontario.

Mr. Garson told a reporter the talks were exploratory and were confined to discussion of the request's possible terms of reference.

He said there has been no federal decision as yet to place a request before the Supreme Court.

He also declined to comment whether a reference might be submitted to the court next year.

Mr. Garson indicated there will be further meetings with Ontario officials on the question.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

Premier Frost said in October that Ontario and the federal government will ask the courts to clarify the two governments' powers on enactment of farm-marketing legislation.

Mr. Frost made the comment in a statement following a conference in Toronto between Ontario farm-marketing organizations and government officials. His statement also followed a decision by Thomas Dore Parker, a Stratford, Ont., farmer, to challenge the legality of Ontario's hog-marketing legislation obliging farmers to sell their hogs through a co-operative.

The Toronto conference was a farm-marketing organizations with one of a series to consider what steps should be taken to clarify the farm-marketing powers of the federal and provincial governments.

Melrose

MELROSE — Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Harvey and Albert, also the former's mother, have purchased Jack McLaren's farm and have taken up residence there. All welcome them to this neighborhood.

Many of their friends from Richmond lately surprised them by a raid on their new home and presented them with gifts, symbols of regret at their departure and reminders of lasting friendships they had left behind.

Mrs. William McLaren accompanied Mrs. W. Sherry of Belleville, to Toronto, last weekend where they attended the funeral of their cousin, the late Keith McKeown.

Sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. William Cumbley, a former resident on the third and hope for her a speedy recovery.

Sunday school teachers are busily engaged in preparing their classes for the entertainment to be held on the 20th.

The absence of the clerk, Mr. Denis Callahan, from the council meeting on the evening of the 5th made all aware of his illness. It was with sincere regret that it was learned he was a patient in Kingston Hotel Dieu Hospital. His many friends hope he will soon be well enough to return home.

Mrs. Kenneth McMechan was hostess for the Melrose W.I. December meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Badgley spent Sunday evening with Mrs. George Badgley. Mr. and Mrs. Orrin McLaren were callers at the same home.

Children having mumps have recovered and are back at their classes. Only one new case developed last week.

The farm sale of Sam Elliott's was well attended on Saturday last week.

Marmora

MARMORA. — Mr. and Mrs. Sam Walker of Peterborough and Mr. Wayne Walker of Bancroft visited their mother, Mrs. Roy Walker, on the weekend.

Mr. William Meehan, Jr., of Toronto, spent the weekend with his parents, here.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Walker visited Mrs. Walker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Derry in Madoc on Sunday.

Santa Claus visited Marmora on Saturday riding on the fire-reels. His first stop was at the Sacred Heart parish hall where children under seven were entertained by a picture show, then Santa and his helpers gave each a generous bag of candy, oranges and nuts.

Next he sped over to the Plaza theatre, where the over seven (which took in a goodly number), who had also been treated to a show and the same treats were given out. The affair was sponsored by the Canadian Legion 237 Branch. Over 1,000 bags of treats were given out.

Springbrook

RAWDON.— Rt. Wor. Bro. Fred Bateman, Past Grand Master of Ontario East Orange lodges, presided for the annual election of officers at his home lodge Springbrook L.O.L. No. 448, and later installed the 1956 slate as follows: J.P.M., Bro. Elwood Johnson; W.M., Bro. Percy Bateman; D.M., Bro. Byron Seeley; chaplain, Bro. Arthur Broadworth; recording secretary, Bro. Clayton Burkitt; financial secretary, Bro. Gordon Webb; treasurer, Bro. Orrie Barton; marshal, Bro. Alex. Grabosk; 1st lecturer, Bro. Ralph Wellman; 2nd lecturer, Bro. Denton Burkitt; tyler, Bro. Thomas Welsh; outside tyler, Bro. Jason Baker; committee, Brothers Jack Sharp, Rev. H. E. Beare, Delbert Mumby and Fred Bateman.

Following the impressive ceremony, several men in the group spoke briefly and the new slate of officers gave a few impressions.

An appetizing luncheon followed in the lodge dining hall.

3rd Hillier

3RD OF HILLIER.—Mr. Mac Hardy is a patient at Trenton Hospital, having undergone an operation on Monday.

Mr. Donald Dainard is also a patient at Trenton Hospital.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. P. Heaven entertained the members of Christ church guild on Wednesday evening at their home in Wellington.

The new officers for the new year, will be the same as last year. Mrs. H. Weese, president; Mrs. Fred Morton of Wellington, treasurer and Mrs. W. Jordon, secretary. Receipts of the bazaar were $160.15. All thanked Mrs. Heaven for a pleasant evening.

Miss Joyce Benway of Kingston, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benway.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benway and Miss Joyce Benway called on Mr. Mac Hardy at Trenton Hospital on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Marshall Trumpour of Hillier, is spending a few days with her cousin, Mrs. Stanley Thompson, before Mrs. Thompson leaves for Toronto, to spend the winter with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. I. Flint.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Benway and family called on Saturday evening on Miss Florence Miller.

The members of Hillier Institute are planning on having the Christmas meeting on Friday afternoon, at Prince Edward County Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Benway spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Harper Broad of Wellington.

Mr. Raymond Spencer spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Spencer at Wellington.

Vital Behind-the-Scenes Debate on Defence Policy Took Shape in Capital in '55

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A vital, behind-the-scenes debate on defence policy took shape in the capital during 1955.

Generally speaking, the issue centred on the increased importance placed on North American defence and the debate involved how best to achieve more home defence without boosting the defence budget.

Perhaps the most significant public statement on defence was made by Prime Minister St. Laurent April 26 during the Dominion-provincial conference. He said:

"If a major war commences we cannot but expect at its very beginning—that is, in the first few hours—heavy attacks on North America with large nuclear weapons. These attacks would likely take place on Canadian targets as well as on those in the United States."

EARLIER VIEW

Previous to this, officials had said or implied that Canadian targets would be only secondary and that Canada might escape heavy bombing in event of attack on North America.

With the premise that this country could be badly crippled by a Russian air attack, the great debate on how to strengthen home defences opened up full force. Some of it came into the open, more of it went on behind the scenes in the defence and external affairs departments.

One suggested solution was that the 12 RCAF fighter squadrons in Europe be brought home to augment the nine CF-100 interceptor home defence squadrons. But this would be a blow at the North Atlantic alliance which the government has supported since its formation six years ago.

In 1949, the main threat to the west was considered a Russian thrust at Europe. But with development of long-range jet bombers and more nuclear weapons, the main threat now is thought to be against the industrial might of North America.

U.S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles said during a visit to Ottawa that Russia would have little hope of winning a major war unless it knocked out North America.

STUDIED AIR STRENGTH

During the year, the RCAF took under serious study the possibility of forming more regular CF-100 squadrons. It was found that the 10 reserve fighter squadrons would be unable to cope with the latest jet planes without long hours of training.

Meanwhile, strengthening of North American defences took a big stride forward with construction of the Mid-Canada and DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar lines.

It is expected the radar gear will be installed next year and that the lines — the Mid-Canada along the 55th parallel, the DEW in the Canadian Arctic—will be in operation by 1957. Canada is building the former for $110,000,000; the U.S. the latter for $250,000,000.

At the same time, military planners began laying basic plans for a heartward expansion of fighter defences—that is, airfields, hangars and interceptor control radar. This may not come for four or five years.

More North American defence posed a touchy problem for the government: Whether to permit more American troops into Canada to help man defences. There now are fewer than 3,000 U.S. servicemen in Canada, excluding the some 15,000 on the three leased bases in Newfoundland. At year's end, it appeared likely the U.S. would take over manning of the DEW line.

QUESTION OF EXPENSE

Another aspect of the great debate was whether a country like Canada can afford financially to try to prepare for two types of war—nuclear and conventional—at the same time.

Up to now, Canada has tried to have it both ways. Some officials feel that this approach drops defence policy between two stools, that as a result Canada is prepared for neither atomic war nor one of the conventional type.

This debate came out into the open briefly last June when Air Vice-Marshal John Plant suggested in a public speech that the army be scrapped to make way for a bigger air force.

Though it was claimed Plant spoke in a jocular vein, it is known that a good many air force officers share this view. To them, it is pointless to maintain a navy and an army when in all probability they would never be used in a short, violent war fought with hydrogen bombs and fleets of bombers.

On the other hand, others—chiefly navy and army officers—believe that the hydrogen bomb is recognized by both sides as such a terrible weapon that it will never be employed. That leaves the possibility of comparatively small conventional wars like Korea in which ground and sea forces would be needed.

WOULD INVOLVE CHANGES

If a decision were taken to prepare solely for atomic war and thus rely solely on the deterrent effect of atomic retaliation, big changes could come in the structure of Canada's armed forces.

In recent years, increasing emphasis has been placed on the air force. Its share of the $1,775,000,000 defence budget this fiscal year is 43 per cent, as much as the navy and army combined. Total strength of the services now is limited to 120,000 but during the year the air force ceiling was raised slightly at the expense of the navy and army. Ceilings now are 51,000 for the RCAF, 49,000 for the army and 20,000 for the navy.

The structure of the forces themselves is in a approaching problem. With the advent of guided missiles, some soldiers feel that the air force will be completely superseded in 20 years.

The services unveiled new weapons or plans for them during 1955.

The navy took delivery of the destroyer-escort St. Laurent, first of 14 warships of a new type for anti-submarine work. It disclosed it is working on development on an improved type of sonar equipment. Sonar is the underwater counterpart of radar.

NEW WEAPONS

The army came up with its new anti-tank weapon for infantry, the Heller, and disclosed that it has counter-mortar radar to help eliminate enemy mortar batteries. The army adopted the FN (Fabrique Nationale) .300-calibre automatic Belgian rifle in place of the Lee-Enfield .303.

The air force equipped the air division in Europe with the Mark VI Orenda Sabre, considered by many the best day fighter in the world. A new version of the CF-100 has been produced which has a higher operational ceiling than the interceptors now in use.

It was disclosed that development of the 1,500-miles-an-hour CF-105 will cost some $100,000,000. New plans for anti - submarine and coastal patrol work were being delivered to the navy and the air force.

The year saw withdrawal of the Canadian infantry brigade and three destroyers from the Korean theatre. Only an ambulance unit and five support troops are left in Korea.

The 2nd Brigade moved to Europe to relieve the 1st Brigade. The 1st Infantry Division held its first peacetime manoeuvres at Camp Gagetown, N.B. Canadian soldiers took part in American atomic tests in Nevada. The Royal Canadian Artillery celebrated its centennial in May.

14.3 Tons Acre All-Time Record Yield for Beets

CHATHAM (CP) — Sugar beet growers delivered an average of 14.3 tons an acre this fall, establishing an all-time record yield of 4% per cent above a 35-year average, the Canada and Dominion Sugar Company said today.

Record yields in Chatham and Wallaceburg districts were reported, current estimates being more than 15 tons an acre.

Substantial deliveries made in December to complete the harvest were not included in the estimates. Average yield an acre during the last quarter-century has been 12.07 tons. Previous high was 12.8 tons an acre in 1952.

The company said the heavy yields are reflected in today's payments to farmers in 12 counties totalling more than $1,197,000 for November deliveries. Less than three weeks ago Canada and Dominion Sugar Company paid $1,-200,000 for October deliveries, making total payments to date more than $2,400,000.

HIGH PAYMENT

When payment is made for December deliveries, the company said, the average farmer will have received nearly $3,000 in initial payments.

Chatham and Wallaceburg district growers, who produced more than 70 per cent of this year's crop, have been paid an average of $1,180 an acre of sugar beets harvested.

Growers in southwestern Ontario will receive an average of more than $158 an acre when payment is made for December deliveries.

Before harvesting began company officials forecast the sugar beet crop would be 221,000 tons but unexpected growth at the season's end increased the crop to 267,700 tons. Sugar content is expected to exceed 16 per cent.

HIDDEN GUN BLASTS POLICE OFFICER

The sawed-off shotgun which, seriously wounded Toronto constable John Earls is examined by Inspector William Brownlee. The shotgun was fired at point-blank range as the officer was chasing a robbery suspect who had the gun hidden up his sleeve. Pellets struck Earls in the face, blinding one eye and knocking him, semi-conscious to the ground. His hat, as shown here, was also riddled by the pellets. Other police, called to the scene, arrested Walter Swetloff, 30, who was wounded superficially when he tried to escape.

Deadlock Likely For Australian Senate Control

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — A deadlock appears to be shaping up for Australia's new federal Senate. With the count from Saturday's general election near completion, the governing Liberal-Country party coalition probably will control 30 of the 60 seats.

In such a setup the Anti-Communist Labor Party likely would hold the balance of power. It is expected to win two Senate seats, 29 for the regular Labor party. The splinter labor group, composed largely of Roman Catholics, broke away from the Labor party on the grounds that it was too tolerant of communism.

In the House of Representatives, which determines the political color of the government, Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies' government is expected to hold at least 76 seats to Labor's 45. One Independent candidate—likely to vote with the government—also is expected to win.

Menzies' followers won only a seven-seat majority in the lower house in 1954.

With only 4,000 votes uncounted, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Labor party leader, likely will speak through. His lead over his Liberal opponent, W. Y. Arthur, was 1,086 today, but under Australia's complicated preferential system, most of the vote which went to a third candidate, an independent, probably will go to Arthur, cutting Evatt's lead to less than 500.

Crofton

CROFTON — Miss Lorna Leichford, of Mountain View, spent Saturday with Mrs. E. Crook.

The Ladies' Aid met at the church on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Keith Foster as hostess.

Mrs. W. J. Gray spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Art and Mrs. Clare McGrail.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nutcon were dinner guests of Mrs. E. Crook, on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Latter and family, of Belleville, were Sunday dinner guests, at their mother's, Mrs. W. J. Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Crook and Mrs. E. Crook were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Salisbury and Janet, at Belleville, on Sunday.

MINISTER

Christmas is a family festival of a deeply religious character."

In Toronto several ministers today commented on Mr. Plant's criticism of Santa Claus.

Rev. J. M. Finlay, United Church: "There has been considerable of what Mr. Plant condemns. There is just enough truth in what he says to make us all thoughtful."

Rev. William Jenkins, First Unitarian Church: "While Santa is materialist because children enjoy receiving gifts at Christmas, I see no aspect of drunkenness in what he represents. Children everywhere regard him as the symbol of fun and jollity."

Rev. Gordon Domm, United Church: "If a church's Christian education program is sound, there should be little fear of any Santa symbolism detracting from the Christian symbols of Christmas."

Dr. T. D. McDermand, general secretary-elect of the Baptist Federation of Canada: "Why lambaste Santa Claus for just one day? Materialism is rife in the world every day of the year."

Mr. Lorne Hagerman acting as chairman presided over a short program after which dancing was enjoyed with lunch being served at midnight.

Marsh Hill

MARSH HILL — Mrs. Frank Pinkle was a dinner guest Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lindenfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Demill called Sunday afternoon on Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Demill, of Trenton.

Mrs. Ada Leslie Pinkle and girls were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell.

Radio Farm Forum was held Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell.

A number from here attended the opening of the new showroom and offices of the Foxboro district Co-Operative.

BOY IS MISSING

TILBURY (CP) — Richard Regnier, a 16-year-old boy who yearned to join the armed forces has been missing for a week from his home 12 miles northeast of Chatham.

Clarence Regnier said his son, five feet nine inches tall, ran away on his bicycle and may be making the rounds of recruiting centres. He had little money when he disappeared.

STIRLING

Hundreds Line Street to View Outstanding Santa Claus Parade

STIRLING — On Saturday afternoon Santa Claus and his retinue paid a visit to Stirling and the around 1100 children enjoyed a bag of confectionery with free movie at the local theatre—one of those of school age.

The event was sponsored by the retail section of Stirling Chamber of Commerce and was well planned. It is estimated that about 850 children took part in the parade while the others were spectators.

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Reserve Army assisted the chief of police in keeping the local traffic in the proper channels.

The parade was headed by Stirling Citizens' Band, under the leadership of Mr. S. Leroy and the girls displaying their flag. R.F.-10 — the very latest in aircraft.

Williams School, S.S. No. 4, Rawdon—red, navy-grey-and-white Two Ponies—with riders Dale and Roy. Salvation Army float with teen-age band that provided Christmas music. Jack's Circus Wagon—an original Black Magic model. "Old MacDonald Had a Farm", complete with children, ponies, goat, dog, cat, by School Section No. 7, Rawdon. Stirling Wolf Cub pack, complete with Children and leaders. Old King Cole and his retinue with Phil Carr acting the king's part. Red Riding Hood—a very colorful float.

Stirling Brownies, in charge of Mrs. C. Fairey; and bringing up the rear, Santa in his red cutter —he and his helpers passed out the bags of treats to all the children at a huge Lighted Christmas tree on the Martin lot, Front St.

PRIZES AWARDED

The judges awarded the prizes as follows: first, $25, to S.S. No. 7, Fourth Line School, "Old MacDonald Had a Farm; second, $15, S.S. No. 4, Williams School, "Stirling Co Kopel"; third, $10, equally divided among Cubs, Brownies, Guides and Scouts.

The parade was the best ever staged in the village and hundreds of adults lined the streets to view the sight as it passed along Front St.

The stores were gaily decorated for the occasion and there were lots of bargains for the shoppers.

Frankford

20th Century Prospectors Take to the Air

Bomb-like aerial magnetometer, which measures local variations in earth's magnetic field, is checked by member of aerial survey team. Airborne prospectors from one major Canadian metals firm alone have already charted more than 40,000 square miles in surveys of Canada's potential ore resources.

Aerial prospecting is big business, calling into play the talents of geology, electronics and photographic experts. Here Nora Kiernan, employed by an aeromagnetic survey firm, checks over film from camera synchronized to record ground from which each signal of the magnetometer was received.

In the constant search to find and develop new mineral deposits lying beneath muskeg and rocky outcrops of the Canadian shield, prospecting has become a precise science. Replacing the grizzled sourdough's traditional shovel and canoe, the aerial magnetometer and scintillometer have become 20th Century tools of the modern geologist-prospector. Trailing the highly-sensitive, bomb-like magnetometer, this "flying lab" can criss-cross 500 square miles a day, while the signals emitted by the "bird" ferret out gold, nickel and uranium deposits lying deep beneath the forest floor.

Conference on day's findings is held in the field by engineer-geologists and flight crew of an aerial survey team. Push-button prospecting by air has advantage of speed and secrecy: a flying laboratory can survey a tract of land 10 miles by 50 miles before returning to its bush-land base.

Mounted in a five-foot tube in tail of Canso flying boat, a magnetometer scanner is examined by electronics operator before take-off. From impulses recorded on a zig-zag graph, geologists can determine areas rich in minerals; motion picture camera simultaneously records ground from which impulses were received.

General Manager Of Co-operative Gives Report

TORONTO (CP)—Hugh Bailey, general manager of the United Co-operatives of Ontario, said Tuesday the co-operative this year earned more than $200,000 for the first time in its history.

He also said the organization is in the midst of a capital expansion involving expenditure of $1,000,000, mainly for a new head office at suburban Weston and a fertilizer plant at Stratford.

Mr. Bailey, attending the co-op's annual meeting here, said in an interview that the dollar volume of business this year reached $50,000,000 and $397,000 was distributed back to Ontario farmers in earnings.

"We'd like to stop and get our breath," said Mr. Bailey. "But I've given up hope. The farmers of Ontario are demanding more and more services."

Prof. Fred Jones, dean of business administration at the University of Western Ontario, told an afternoon session that farmers must be on their toes to keep up to tremendous changes today.

He said farmers have already developed production through mechanization and chemical developments but must now concentrate on merchandising their products. He suggested that the co-operative movement, instead of being forced on by urbanization, expand into the urban market by taking people who move into rural areas as customers.

CABINET RESIGNS

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—King Hussein of Jordan today accepted the resignation of his cabinet, ending a crisis over Britain's proposal that Jordan should join the Baghdad defence pact. He asked Hazzah Mahall, former minister of the interior and deputy premier, to form a new cabinet.

Communist Heads Leave India

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Marshal Nikolai Bulganin and Nikita Khrushchev ended their 15-day tour of India today by proposing a conference on Far East problems similar to the Geneva "summit" talks last July.

The Soviet leaders also declared that Russia was "compelled" to go on making atomic and hydrogen bombs while the West, instead of reducing armaments, "loudly announced they intend further to increase them."

They surveyed Russian foreign policy in a six-page statement read in correspondents before they left by air for Afghanistan, which they are visiting on their way back to Moscow.

Although attacks on the West were renewed, the Russian leaders said the "Geneva spirit" generated at the "summit" talks was neither dead nor dying.

NOT READY YET

That the Geneva conference of foreign ministers last November did not reach the results desired was "only due to the fact that the situation probably was not ripe (for a settlement)," they said.

Labor Party's Votes on Leader Are Rolling In

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters) — The final ballots for Britain's new Labor party leader rolled in today, with scholarly politician Hugh Gaitskell still a heavy favorite to win the post.

Many sources predicted that Gaitskell will have an absolute majority when the votes are announced tonight—thus winning the party leader's post outright to replace Clement Attlee who retired last week.

Others thought the three-cornered fight between Gaitskell, ex-foreign secretary Herbert Morrison and left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan would prevent a final verdict on the first ballot and make further voting necessary.

But belief is widespread that Gaitskell will take the leadership on either the first or second ballot and thus win recognition as one of Britain's two top political figures, in opposition to Prime Minister Eden.

Carmel

CARMEL — Mrs. F. Guay spent several days recently visiting relatives and friends in Belleville.

The regular W.M.S. meeting was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. F. Hicks with 15 members present, a fine Christmas program, arranged by Mrs. C. Horton, was enjoyed.

HELICOPTERS PROVE THEIR VALUE ON ARCTIC TRIP

During the five-month cruise of HMCS Labrador in Arctic waters last summer the ship's helicopters acted like well-trained police dogs in spotting clear paths through the ice and shoals that would have wrecked or stalled the big ship. Here one of the "eggbeaters", a single-motor model, squats on the ice as a buoy marking the path for the ship to proceed. Then the copter would take off again, find another ice-free path and signal the ship to continue. (National Defence Photo from Central Press Canadian).

Copying Mistake Gives Council Seat to Loser

PORT ERIE (CP)—A copying mistake on a tally sheet Tuesday gave a council seat to a loser in municipal elections.

Three tally sheets prepared when Ward 4 votes were counted each gave Arthur Burnett 215 and Daniel Lonsbury, incumbent, 202.

But the official returning sheet submitted to chief returning officer Albert Jepson, showed Mr. Lonsbury with 202 votes and Mr. Burnett with only 178.

A legal technicality made it necessary for Mr. Jepson to declare Mr. Lonsbury official winner.

Mr. Burnett said he would apply for the recount.

Herbert T. Guess was elected mayor with a 154-vote majority over Howard E. Thompson, present mayor.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG.— Several from here attended the annual meeting of the Elliott's I.O.L., in their lodgeroom on Highway No. 37, about two and one-half miles north of the village on December 6, at 8 p.m. A social hour was enjoyed after the business of the evening.

A preaching mission to mark the beginning of an all-out Evangelistic campaign by the United church, in the coming year, was conducted in the United church here last Wednesday with the Rev. George Teskey of Ivanhoe, in charge.

Recently a similar meeting was held in Ivanhoe with the Rev. W. K. Pace of Tweed, as the speaker, while on Friday night the Rev. C. R. Coleman of Thomasburg, was the guest speaker in St. John's United church in Tweed, Ontario.

Mrs. W. A. Morton spent last week with her sister, Miss Emma Porter, here.

The regular meeting of Thomasburg IOOF Lodge took place in the hall last Friday evening. A film was shown during the program and a social hour enjoyed after the lodge session.

The pupils of Thomasburg public school are busy preparing for their annual Christmas concert in the IOOF hall on Tuesday, December 20. Everyone is cordially invited to attend and encourage the teachers and pupils in their undertaking.

Divine service took place in the United church at 11.15 a.m., and in the Anglican church at 3.30 p.m., on Sunday.

2,700 Persons Now Employed On Hydro Job

TORONTO (CP)—A progress report on the St. Lawrence power project says 2,700 persons were employed on Ontario Hydro's part of the seaway at the end of November.

The report was released Tuesday by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and includes progress highlights last month on work by the power authority of the state of New York.

Progress was outstanding during November despite unfavorable weather conditions, the report said. As the tempo of construction increased, the work force has grown.

About 6,100,000 cubic yards of earth have been moved since the Hydro project was started, including excavation on the powerhouse site, dike work, cofferdams, railway and highway relocation and other phases.

The first section of the relocated Highway 2 was opened to traffic last month, the 7.2-mile stretch from Cornwall to the Moulinette area, diverting traffic away from construction work in the powerhouse and administration areas.

Withdraw Charges In Fatal Shooting

BRANTFORD (CP)—Crown attorney C. C. Slemin Tuesday withdrew charges laid against four youths following the fatal shooting of Clifford Froman, 17, on the nearby Six Nations reserve Nov. 20.

They were Harry Maracle, 19, Jack Thomas, 18, Sandford Hill, 15 and Floyd Hill, 16.

Maracle faced a charge of criminal negligence. The other three were charged as material witnesses.

A coroner's jury last Friday brought in a verdict that Froman was killed by a shot from a pistol "accidentally fired in the hand of Harry Maracle."

LEAVE CHILDREN HOME

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Carswell air force base's dental authorities have issued a new set of rules on dental care for wives of military personnel. Rule 3 states "mothers reporting to the clinic for dental care will not bring their children with them." It was issued after an irate three-year-old boy, observing a dentist filling one of his mother's teeth, proceeded to bite the dentist.

Strikers to Get Christmas Bonus

OSHAWA (CP)—A spokesman for the United Auto Workers union (CIO-CCL) said Tuesday night that General Motors strikers here will receive at least $18 each as a Christmas bonus.

Clifford Pilkey, financial secretary of the union's Oshawa local, said the bonus may reach $20. He told the Oshawa and District Labor Council (CIO-CCL) that all strikers who have done picket duty are eligible.

The General Motors of Canada workers, 10,000 in Oshawa and 7,000 in four other Ontario cities, have been on strike since Sept. 12.

Prices of Major Steel Products Will Be Raised

NEW YORK (AP)—The chances are that prices of practically all major steel products will rise by March 1, says Iron Age, the national trade weekly.

The prospects for a moderate price rise by that date are much better than 50-50, it adds, and it's a foregone conclusion that there will be another rise after wage negotiations next summer.

Iron Age reports the American steel supply outlook is worse, if anything. Producers are straining to maintain high production levels, but fuss approaching holidays, cold weather and maintenance problems. The freight-car-building program is so huge that pressure on steel on this score will be on for months.

The lag in automobile sales is worrying steel mills, but it is a sign of hope for a freer steel supply to other consumers. The chances are, however, that there will be little change in the volume of steel demanded by Detroit.

Labor Groups Want Controls Reimposed

CORNWALL (CP) — Two Cornwall labor groups have presented city council with demands for the reimposition of rent controls in this seaway-boom city.

Representatives of Cornwall Trades and Labor Council and the Cornwall Labor Council presented briefs to council urging immediate action be taken to provide relief from skyrocketing rents.

Their reply was that the matter would be taken up at the first opportunity with Cornwall township council.

The two bodies also suggested low - housing programs such as those now in effect in other centres including Arnprior and Smiths Falls.

HIGH SCHOOL OPENED

KITCHENER (CP)—A new $225,000 high school for girls was formally opened Tuesday night with a ceremony of dedication by Hugh F. Ryan of Hamilton.

St. Mary's school is designed to accommodate 375 students and is staffed by the School Sisters of Notre Dame.

West in Retreat Before Revolt Says Columnist

TORONTO (CP) — Dorothy Thompson, United States author and newspaper columnist, said Tuesday night the West is in retreat before revolt from the masses, both within democracy and without.

She told an audience in Convocation Hall at the University of Toronto that democracy must face up to two major problems. One was Russia; the other the "mass-man" who is the result of Western democracy.

Miss Thompson delivered the first half of the Marfleet lecture for 1955. She concludes her lecture, "The Crisis of the West," tonight.

She defined the masses within Western civilization as the people who do not think for themselves, are without self-reliance and are interested in everything else with security.

STIRLING

1956 Legion Officers Installed

STIRLING. — The annual meeting of the Stirling branch of the Canadian Legion was held in the Legion hall, Tuesday evening with Cde. Ray Tanner, presiding.

The various heads of committees gave their reports and the year's work was reviewed, and discussed and plans made for the new year. The treasurer, Cde. Clive White, gave a satisfactory report.

A letter of appreciation will be sent to the First Company of Stirling Girl Guides for their excellent assistance on Poppy Tag Day.

The legion members are planning to again sponsor the necessary use of the arena and thus have skating facilities for the young people of the district. A good amount of work has already been done in order to have it in shape for flooding.

The Legion set December 20th as the date of its social and draw for three baskets of cheer.

SLATE OF OFFICERS

The following is the 1956 slate of officers:

Gore

GORE— Mrs. Winston Pulver was hostess for the December meeting of the Centre W.A., on Tuesday afternoon. A goodly number were present. At the organization conducted by Mr. Pulver, Mrs. Floyd Carter was elected to the presidency replacing Mrs. Alfred Cairns who has resigned.

Victoria W.A. met at the home of Mrs. R. Brewer, 3rd concession, on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance. Mrs. Clifford Linan, retiring president, was given a warm vote of appreciation for her fine and successful years of leadership. Mrs. Sidney Fox was elected president. To both Centre and Victoria meetings, "White Gifts" were brought and presented for the work of the Children's Aid Society in the county.

The W.M.S. of the Redeemerville pastoral charge met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Noblin. Mrs. Roy Giles, 2nd vice-president, was in charge of the Christmas program. There was a good attendance.

Mr. W. Fox called Thursday afternoon on Mr. Roy Anderson, who is a patient in the Belleville hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks, Stirling, were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Kenneth Green. Ronald and Sandra ate tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dabell, Cayuga, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Redner.

Miss Betty Redner, Port Credit, was a weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Redner.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulver entertained their family to a dinner party at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, on Sunday. The occasion was their wedding anniversary. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. H. Pulver, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pulver; Mr. and Mrs. Winston Pulver, Beverly and Howard; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver, Linda and David.

The school children have been busy in the annual canvass for funds for the blind. The canvass is supervised by the local W.I.

Science Shrinks Piles
New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—

Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "This is no need to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 or 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Rock Hudson Proves Movie Marriages Can Be Kept Secret

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood's bridegroom of the year is handsome Rock Hudson, who has proven that movie marriages can be private.

This is heresy to the Hollywood publicity mill. The lives of the stars, particularly one so popular with the younger set as Rock, are supposed to be public property. Theoretically players are required to divulge everything, from what they eat on their corn flakes in the morning to whether they sleep in the raw.

While not being as defiant about it as Marion Brando, Rock has genially rebelled against the system. He will play ball up to a certain point, but draws the line when his privacy is involved.

The success of his methods was proven Nov. 8, his wedding date. No one suspected he was going to get married, although he had decided last March that he loved Phyllis Gates, secretary in his agent's office.

"We couldn't get married then," he related, "because I had to start 'All That Heaven Allows' with Jane Wyman. After that, I went into 'Magnificent.' That's what delayed us so long."

He said that he and Phyllis decided on a Monday that they would get married in two days. The marriage was carried out in secrecy.

An operative was sent north to Santa Barbara to scout the situation. He lined up the place for the wedding and interviewed the minister. When Rock and Phyllis drove up with a small party on Wednesday he applied for the license under his legal name, Roy Fitzgerald. No one divulged his identity.

After the wedding was over the necessary news sources were mailed, to keep peace with the studio. Then the pair vanished on a honeymoon.

They even had privacy on their honeymoon. They went to Jamaica under assumed names, the airlines playing along with their hoax. They flew to New York as Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, and no one was aware they were in town. They even attended the play that nearly took the actor's movie name—"Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter?"

Now they're back in Rock's small home above the Sunset Strip, and he reports that the fans haven't even bothered him there.

All this adds to prove that stars can have privacy—if they want it. But do they want it? Ah, that's another question.

Errol Flynn heads the cast of Allied Artists' CinemaScope production of "The Warriors," costarring Joanne Dru and Peter Finch, at the Capitol theatre, starting Thursday for its first district showing.

AT THE McCARTHY — William Lundigan and Susan Hayward are the young romantic couple very much in love in Twentieth-Century-Fox's Technicolor romantic drama "I'd Climb the Highest Mountain", coming to the McCarthy Theatre on Thursday. The film deals with a fearless circuit riding minister of 40 years ago. Also showing on the same program is "Titanic", featuring Clifton Webb, Barbara Stanwyck and Thelma Ritter.

At the Capitol

Errol Flynn in Royalty Role

Errol Flynn, Joanne Dru and Peter Finch head the huge cast of Allied Artists' spectacular CinemaScope production of "The Warriors," the widely acclaimed romantic drama which will open at the Capitol next for three days starting Thursday.

With a cast of thousands, the picture is set in France in 1358, just after the end of the 100 Year War when the provinces were in the hands of the English under King Edward.

His warrior son, Prince Edward, played by Flynn, is left in command of the French, who are led by fierce Count de Ville, played by Finch. The Lady Joan Holland, Miss Dru, is the beautiful pawn in the tense drama.

The Technicolor picture was produced by Walter Mirisch and was directed by Henry Levin.

AT THE BELLE — Kit Taylor who plays young Jim Hawkins, Robert Newton, who plays the peg-legged sea-cook, and Grant Taylor, as the Bristol Patch, eight land in this scene from "Long John Silver", the first pirate adventure story, CinemaScope and color DeLuxe, which continues the famous adventure yarn of Robert Louis Stevenson, this production, however, was filmed from an original story by Martin Rackin.

Newcombe of the Brooklyn Dodgers didn't pitch any more in the World Series after his appearance. On the other hand, Roy Campanella, the Dodgers catcher, who was the first person interviewed when the program began, was picked this year as most valuable player in the national league.

100th 'Person to Person' Interview Program on Friday

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—A fellow was sitting around the other day with John A. Aaron and Jesse Zousmer, co-producers with Edward R. Murrow of CBS-TV's "Person to Person," when he thought up a question: "Where are they now?"

In a kind of chorus Aaron and Zousmer replied: "They're just about where they were."

This game of "where are they now?" was occasioned by the fact that Murrow will conduct his 100th "Person to Person" interview program next Friday when he looks in at the Chicago home of actress Kim Novak and the New York home of columnist Leonard Lyons.

Statistics are always deceptive, but maybe you can conclude something else the lives of the famous and near-famous after Aaron and Zousmer finish running through the 190 names Murrow has interviewed in these last two years. Here's what they say:

More than $5 per cent still live in the same homes. Although two couples have had marital roads since "Person to Person" looked in on them, there has been only one divorce—that of Fleur and Gardner Cowles. Only two have died—Mayor Steve Allen. (Jayne, by the way, is the only person to be visited twice—once when she lived with her sister, Audrey, and again after she married Allen.) Mohammed Zafrulla, ambassador to the United States, now has two wives instead of one. Groucho Marx has married again but has not changed his name. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and Renee Jeanmaire.

Not so many have had additions to the family; the Phil Rizzutos; Bob Smiths (he runs Buffalo Bob on "Howdy-Doody"). Eva Marie Saint received a baby as well as a Hollywood Oscar. The Ernie Wallts had a child 10 days before a visit from Murrow.

A few generals and the like have left the military to enter arts, politics and the world of entertainment are still running along. In fact, there's an interesting trend in the forward greater success after you appear on "Person to Person." Krishna Menon, Ethel Waters, Lillian Gish, Ernie Kovacks are a few of those who have enjoyed upswings in public notice. David Sarnoff, who was merely president of RCA when interviewed, now is chairman of the board. George Meany, who was merely president of the AFL, is now president of the new AFL-CIO.

Athletes tended to take a dip after appearing on "Person to Person." Paddy DeMarco lost the lightweight championship. Don

Made No Effort to Keep Grey Cup Game

TORONTO (CP)—A University of Toronto athletic official says in a letter to The Globe and Mail that "neither the city of Toronto nor any other organization made any financial effort" to keep the Grey Cup game in Toronto.

Phil Loosemore, financial secretary of the university's athletic association, answers what he terms "criticism that high rental charges on Varsity Stadium, Toronto site for many years of the fall football classic, were mainly responsible for the game's going to Vancouver."

He writes:

"A year ago when it appeared quite possible that the Grey Cup game would be played in Vancouver, the university offered to release its rental by approximately 25 per cent for this game because of its importance to the city of Toronto.

"But there was no support from the city or other groups.

"Provincial government and city support were instrumental in securing the game for Vancouver, thus making the game an attractive proposition because of this governmental subsidy at two levels."

CLAIM 5 SINKINGS

TAIPEI, Formosa (Reuters)—The Nationalist Chinese defence ministry said Nationalist air force planes Tuesday sank five Chinese Communist gunboats in the Min River estuary outside the Communist port of Foochow.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thurs., Dec. 15, 1955

March 21 (or April 20 (Aries) — Maintain a constancy of interests in humanity, helping others over the hard spots, and you will have unexpected assistance and cooperation when you least expect (but likely need) it.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Here is a day for reviewing, noting wherein to make changes contemplated and thought desirable. But be careful to avoid errors.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — There may be an unexpected reversal in plans, new problems, added responsibilities. Take all in stride and philosophically; they are a part of life.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Even if you cannot accomplish all you hope to, do what you can, well, without worry or strain. Set aside the remainder for tomorrow, or later if you must. Your best at the right time will be fine.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — This day's aspects especially favor religion, patriotism, children's interests, assistance to the ill and infirm, and domestically. Aim straight and high and put qualms behind you.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Apply your energies well and be sure they are being directed in proper channels. Waste—illness of time and money are conditions now.

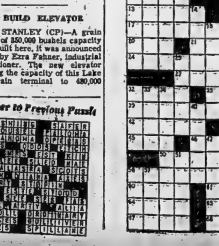
September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Others are watching your example; and many are instinctively following your lead (so build; make errors, if you are not careful). Calm troubled waters with stability, confidence.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Be generous — but practical. You could if not careful, pass yourself unevenly in habit, activity and spending. Save as well as spend; same time, money, nervous system.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Note Scorpio. Your indications are similar today. By re allocation of activities and abilities you can achieve much, and conserve vitality and resources properly.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Here is a period for some serious inspection of your personal and general habits; of methods: are they safe?

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Look into the worth of a situation before assenting or dissenting. Be eager but not overcautious. Handling families for home, children and adornment highly favored. Be discriminating.



February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — You can get more out of this day than you may first suppose. Be agreeable to the will of the majority where you can cooperate in matters for the general good. This is no day on which to quarrel.

You born today have a wealth of talents, and the enthusiasm to push ahead regardless of obstacles — which usually appear minor because of your sense of balance and your ability to take things as they come. You have the happy faculty of expecting to work and will work hard. When finished you do not sit back but go quickly to some other activity. Don't let your sympathetic nature be imposed upon nor personal affairs neglected while you assist others. You could do well as musician, artist, writer, religious. You sometime waste time, but rarely money. Birthdate of: Maxwell Anderson, author, playwright.

MIXED RECEPTION

LONDON (Reuters) — Critics Tuesday night greeted the first television to Sir Laurence Olivier's "Richard III" production, hailed by widely heralded as Britain's film of the year. The critics praised individual performers in the film but generally did not rank it as Olivier's best movie adaption of a Shakespearian play.

IT MAY BE YOUR LIVER

If life's not worth living
It may be your liver!

It's a fact! It takes up to two pints of liver bile daily to digest your food. And if your liver doesn't empty bile into the bowels every hour your food may not digest — the bowels will not move — you may suffer constipation and the fat and calorie in food may not be digested. Then, gas bloats you, acid indigestion may result, you lose your appetite, you feel sick and miserable. Carter's Little Liver Pills stimulate the flow of liver bile. Soon your complexion clears, eyes sparkle, you feel and look better. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today. Always keep Carter's Little Liver Pills on hand.

Plan Brisk Drive On Drunk Driving

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Roberts said today police are starting on the "most intense police action against drunk drivers" in the province's history.

He said the provincial police are preparing a drive to reduce the number of accidents caused by impaired drivers during the Christmas holiday season.

In Toronto, traffic inspector Robert Kerr said the police are using firemen to watch for impaired drivers and holiday office parties.

Mrs. Carleton Potts conducted a sing-song of carols, and Mrs. Grant Hubble read the story of "Silent Night". Mrs. Kenneth Weaver presided at the piano.

Twenty-five children delighted with their singing and music. The adults exchanged gifts and Santa Claus arrived and treated each child with a bag of candy.

Refreshments were served and a good half hour enjoyed.

Born—At Campbellford Memorial Hospital on Saturday, December 10th, 1955, to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ostrander of the Mount Pleasant community, a daughter.

Staff Sgt. John H. Barron and Mrs. Barron are leaving soon for the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Barron, 4th concession. They arrived at Halifax, via "Queen Frederica" after spending some time in Germany with the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade.

Mrs. Barron is the former Donald Barron, of London, Ontario, is also holidaying with his parents.

He arrived on Thursday and his parents came on Friday. Jim has to report to Kingston the early part of January, where he will receive his posting.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sports page, and I said, Hey pop!

Yes indeed, pop said.

Meening what, and I said, How do people get those Help Wanted suvvertizements in the paper?

Oh, you just telefone to the avvertizing department, and if you have an honest voice they accept your ad and send you a blank and you send them a check, pop said.

Why, are you thinking of inserting an add for a tooter to do your homework for you? he said, and I said, No sir, I'm the Christmas present I'm going to give ma.

Heh? pop said, and I said, She often says she would be happy if we only had a maid to do all the work the way we do on the farm I can remember. So I'll put the avvertizement in the paper, and you can send them a check and I'll pay for it with the dolier I saved up for ma's present. Will a dolier be enough, pop? I said.

I guess so, but let's think this thing over, pop said. If this maid shows up at the door, how will we know she'll expect to be paid a queen's ransom everyweek, and that might prove imbarrissing. No, I'm afraid it's not practical, he said, and I said, I've got another idea. I saw a cook-book in the window of the book store, and it's called The Best Recipes of the Countries. So if I give ma one of those, she'll never have to ask you what to have for dinner any more. Only the only thing is, it costs 3 dollers, I said.

Dont worry, I'll provide the other 2 dollers, pop said. It's a lovely idea. All your mother will have to do is flip the pages, and a brun new dinner will be reddy. She'll be as happy as a lark, he said.

Proving I had at least one good idea.

RESCUED BY TOW

The 8,200-ton Makedonia is towed to port at Vancouver by the 204-foot Sudbury after a battle against Pacific storms. The Sudbury towed more than 3,200 miles to rescue the Makedonia which was in distress south of the Aleutian island with a broken tail-shaft. The Makedonia drifted for 12 days before being rescued by the Sudbury which claimed the freighter as a salvage prize. (CP Photo).

FIRST U.S. SHIP FOR THE JET TRANSPORT AGE

Looking very much like the original Canadair Jetliner, whose production was discontinued, the first U.S. jet transport plane will be in service in 1959. The plane, a Boeing 707, shown in sketch, has a cruising speed of 550 to 570 mph at 30,000 feet and will carry 118 passengers and 7,000 pounds of freight. Its speed will cut travelling time between distant points by close to 50 per cent. (Central Press Canadian).

Strike at General Motors Of 17,000 Workers Making Itself Felt Across Country

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The strike of 17,000 workers at five General Motors of Canada plants in Ontario, now in its 12th week, is making itself felt across the country.

Feeder plants have had to reduce production and in some cases workmen have been laid off.

Many of the 1,200 GM dealers are trying to import cars from the United States and repairmen in most places are scrambling for parts because no replacements are coming in.

GM workers in Oshawa, Toronto, St. Catharines, London and Windsor left their jobs Sept. 19 to enforce demands for a 15-cent hourly wage increase and other benefits.

Most GM feeder plants are located in Ontario and have been able to continue production on a reduced basis because they also supply parts to Ford and Chrysler plants in Windsor, Ont.

At the Carsteel Corporation of Canada plant in Windsor, a six-day strike started after 50 of 100 employees were laid off because of the loss of GM stamped-metal orders.

Two companies in St. Catharines have laid off a total of 230 employees because of lost GM orders and factories in Kitchener and St. Thomas, Ont., are working with reduced staffs.

Dealers in major Canadian centres are importing American-built cars for demonstration, despite the 10-per-cent excise tax, 10-per-cent sales tax and 17½-per-cent duty.

Eastern and central Canada dealers indicated to a Canadian Press survey that they are being hit hard by the prolonged strike. Western dealers said orders for new cars are coming in normally, but delivery is not promised before spring.

DEALERS REPORT

In St. John's, Nfld., one dealer said he is "praying the strike will soon be over and asking customers to be patient."

Saint John, N.B., dealers were more optimistic, reporting at least as many orders as usual for this time of year.

Montreal and Toronto dealers said they are losing business and a London, Ont., dealer said "I'm losing my shirt." Ottawa dealers said business is about normal.

Winnipeg, Regina and Edmonton dealers said orders for new cars are plentiful and Vancouver dealers said orders are running high.

Most dealers are offering delivery in the spring. A GM official said it will be four or five weeks after the strike is settled before the first cars leave the assembly line at Oshawa.

The spare parts situation varies from "threatening" to "critical," dealers said. Many, especially in the western provinces, are importing parts from the U.S. and absorbing the tax and duty cost.

In Brockville, Ont., garages reported hundreds of cars have been taken off the road because a police check found they need repairs and parts are not available.

Body and trim parts are hardest to get, garages said. Cars in many centres are being returned to their owners without grills or chrome trim.

New Russian Move Gives 16 Nations UN Membership

Only Japan and Mongolia Dropped from Canada's List

IGNORE RED LETTERS

Pretty Helen Lohmus is one of hundreds of new Canadians in Gordon birth who have received letters mailed from East Berlin attempting to lure them back to their native country. Majority of the recipients agree with Helen, who says: "I'd rather starve in the world than go back behind the Iron Curtain." Officials of the Estonian Committee of Canada are not worried about the drawing power of the Communist "return home" campaign. They are concerned, however, over how the Reds obtained the addresses of so many Estonian-Canadians. Could fear or ardent Red spy ring is operating in Canada. (Central Press Canadian).

By JACK BEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Ten years of deadlock and frustration came to an end Wednesday night as the United Nations welcomed 16 new members into its ranks.

A new move by Russia, only 24 hours after Soviet vetoes had buried a Canadian-sponsored proposal to admit 18 applicants, made the 16-member deal possible, increasing the UN's membership rolls to 70.

Omitted from the original list of 18 were Japan, vetoed twice in as many days by Russia, and Outer Mongolia, vetoed by Nationalist China Tuesday in the move which touched off a flood of Soviet vetoes and apparently had doomed for another year the efforts of Canada and 20 co-sponsors to add new blood to the UN's councils.

CRITICISM HEARD

Gloom and bitterness were evident after the Tuesday session of the Security Council in which the 18-member proposal was killed. There was sharp criticism of Russia and Nationalist China among many delegations.

Then, at 4 p.m. Wednesday, the council met for an emergency session at Russia's request.

Diplomats sensed something important was in the air when Russia suddenly raised the U.N. membership council meeting. Soviet delegate Arkady A. Sobolev quickly got to the point. Asked that Nationalist China's veto of Outer Mongolia as the price for the package plan's failure, he made this announcement:

Wishing to co-operate, the Soviet Union withdraws its negative vote to the series of countries. The Soviet Union will vote in favor of their admission to the organization of Japan, bearing in mind that the question of Japan and the Mongolian People's Republic (Outer Mongolia) which did not yield positive recommendation be postponed for consideration by the next session of the assembly."

VOICES HOPE

In an obvious call for the ouster of Nationalist China Sobolev voiced hope that between assembly sessions the UN will take united action to "purify" the name of both Japan and Outer Mongolia.

Angered over Russia's action against Outer Mongolia which touched off the Soviet veto barrage, a number of delegates had threatened to join in a move to unseat Nationalist China representatives. The outcome of the stalemate may have softened this feeling.

Australian delegate Henry Cabot Lodge rose to move that Outer Mongolia be admitted in a bloc of 16 members, but Russia's veto killed his amendment.

Then Lodge rose and the last serious roadblock in the path of the package deal was removed. Lodge, the West and four by the Communist group agreed to back down on the council's approval and the measure was sent back to the General Assembly. There it was already endorsed the principle of the 16-member package by an overwhelming margin.

FOLLOWING NEEDED

Wednesday night's assembly session, which completed action on the newcomers, was slowed only by the necessity of polling the members on each of the 16 applicants—Albania, Austria, Bulgaria, Cambodia, Ceylon, Finland, Hungary, Italy, Ireland, Jordan, Laos, Libya, Nepal, Portugal, Romania and Spain.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Light snow has been falling over northern Ontario but is gradually clearing. Colder air pushed into southern Ontario during the night. Early this morning temperatures ranged from 15 at Windsor to 21 at Trenton which point had not yet felt the full effect of the wave of cold air. Snow accompanied the outbreak of cold air and more falls were considerable to the southeast of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

Cold weather is expected to continue throughout the province today and Friday. Frequent snowflurries will occur to the southeast of Lake Huron and Georgian bay, but elsewhere the flurries will be mostly light and scattered.

HUGH GAITSKELL NEW CHIEFTAIN OF LABOR PARTY

Scores Victory Over Bevan and Morrison

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Hugh Gaitskell, one-time university professor, is the new leader of Britain's power-ful Labor party.

Climaxing a meteoric rise through party ranks, the moderate-minded economist scored a classic victory over Aneurin (Nye) Bevan and Herbert Morrison in an election held Wednesday to pick a successor to Clement Attlee.

Gaitskell polled 157 votes, 47 more than the combined total of his two veteran opponents. In the balloting, restricted to the party's parliamentary members, Bevan received 70 votes and Morrison, deposed leader under Attlee, 40.

Victory for the 49-year-old Gaitskell had been freely forecast. But the size of the margin was believed by many political observers to indicate the party's determination to end the bitter four-year struggle that has split apart the right and left wings of the party since the Conservatives took power.

QUICK RISE

The son of a middle-class civil servant and graduate of the great-est university in Britain, Gaitskell took less than 11 years to vault from the back benches to one of the top position. He became chancellor of the exchequer in 1950 at the age of 44—one of the youngest men to hold the important portfolio—and only five years after entering Parliament.

Leader of the party's younger set and identified with the more moderate section of the party's right wing, he is expected to reconcile any malcontent leftists.

The big surprise of the ballot was the comparatively strong showing by Bevan, the fiery, 58-year-old leader of the extreme left, whose bitter opposition to Attlee and Morrison blamed for many defeats for Labor's defeat in the general election last May.

Most observers had forecast that Bevan would be the low man in the balloting, but the 70 votes he obtained may encourage him to continue his fight to make the party more socialist in outlook.

SLIM VOTE

Another surprise was the slim vote for Morrison, 68, who had considerable support among the party's right wing because of his long service with the party.

Before Gaitskell leader Attlee's 20-year tenure as party chieftain, came to an end in 1935 in an hour after the election result was made known at a meeting of the party in the House of Commons, Morrison announced his resignation as secondin-command. Election of his successor is expected to be delayed until after the Christmas recess.

CCL Has Ousted Mine Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Congress of Labor today declared expelled its local affiliation of the United Mine Workers of America, which owed nearly $1,000 dues to the Congress about a year ago.

The UMW has 20,000 members in Canada, in the coal mines of the Maritimes and Alberta, and in a miscellaneous group known ago.

Says Dulles Saved Kremlin Chiefs From Blast of Indian Indignation

NEW DELHI, India (Reuters)— The Times of India, leading Indian independent newspaper, says only Secretary of State John Foster Dulles prevented Soviet visiting Russian leaders from an outburst of Indian indignation over their "brick-dropping."

The paper, a foe to anti-Western speeches made by Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev during his visit, in the newspaper's political commentator says: "The brick was not actually dropped and buried were so sudden, unexpected that they left no room even for Indian opinion to react to them."

As a shower of bricks fell all round, the Indian public began to feel the unique sense of uneasiness which yielded place to bewilder- as a dawn."

Prison Guards Were Dazzled By Ghost Writer

TAVISTOCK, England (Reuters) Two tough British prison guards with literary ambitions will go on trial on charges of aiding the escape of a "ghost writer" prisoner who promised to cut them in on a book about prison life.

The writer-convict, Cyril Bond, sent articles to the United States for publication through guard Lesley Abbott, it was alleged in court here. He also found time to knock out a comic little piece about officer-prisoner relations for which the other guard, Stanley Clarry, allegedly published reports under his own name.

Bool meanwhile dazzled the two guards with prospects of a flood of television scripts and a book which he planned to write in Dartmoor prison under their patronage.

He thus won his way to freedom in a brief days—last month, telling his two enthusiastic literary fans that he was only going to make a phone call.

Princess Likely To Tour Canada This Summer

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Mail says an announcement is expected shortly from Buckingham House shortly that Princess Margaret will make a tour of Canada next year.

The princess launched the new Cunard liner Carinthia in Glasgow Wednesday and there has been talk that the princess may be appointed to the honorary colonelcy of the exchequer in 1950 at the age of 44—one of the youngest men to hold the important portfolio—and only five years after entering Parliament.

Leader of the party's younger set and identified with the more moderate section of the party's right wing, he is expected to reconcile any malcontent leftists.

Rail Unions Ready to Go Limit But Federal Action Hinted

OTTAWA (CP) — Rail unions saw a suggestion from Prime Minister St. Laurent that they won't be allowed to tie up the carriers over their new contract demands.

But the chief union spokesman says they intend to go as far as the law allows, which includes a strike of the 150,000 persons engaged in the current union-railway dispute.

"The railway workers will exercise all their rights," labor representative Frank H. Hall said here in an interview Wednesday after the prime minister had told a union delegation the government's views on a strike.

In his first public pronouncement on the big railway dispute since Mr. St. Laurent hinted as federal action against the type of strike that tied up the railways for 16 days in June in 1950.

Speaking to the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada's yearly legislative delegation he said rail service fees are regulated by Canada's very existence, referring to rail workers' right to strike.

"I hope they can avoid a situation that would be prejudicial to themselves and to the Canadian population because of the essentiality of the service to all Canadians."

Mr. St. Laurent's words were interpreted by labor leaders as meaning the government feels it has the right to intervene and halt strikes in recent years and could do so again.

But before a strike was called, it called Parliament into emergency session to settle the issue. Last year, it pushed the unions into accepting compulsory arbitration after a threat of calling in Parliament. There was no strike.

The railways are now involving more than $80,000,000 a year in wage and fringe benefits. Before the TLC suggested to the government Wednesday that the annual increase be used that the unions should have freedom to strike.

Mr. Hall said later in an interview that "nothing in what the prime minister said is going to change the plans of the unions, for prosecution of their case."

Hall's group is resuming discussions with the railways at Montreal Thursday. The new meeting came about, following a breakdown of negotiations, through conciliation.

Meanwhile, the federal labor department at the request of the union group has decided to set up a three-man conciliation board.

NASSER WARNS FURTHER RAIDS WILL MEAN WAR

Egypt Will Throw All Forces Into Action

CAIRO (Reuters)—Prime Minister Gamal Abdel Nasser declared today that in the event of any "further aggression" by Israel on Egypt or Syria, Israel's frontiers "Egypt will throw the whole of her armed strength in action against Israel."

Nasser's warning came four days after an Israeli attack on Syrian positions in which, according to Israeli accounts, 56 Syrians were killed.

This attack, on Sunday night, was the most serious Israeli-Syrian clash since the Arab-Israeli war. Egypt signed a treaty with Syria last month pledging military cooperation and mutual assistance in the event of attack.

Nasser declared his peaceful attitude taken by the Arab countries "will not continue so long as Israel keeps aggressive."

The premier made the comment to newspaper men. He said he had notified the British and American ambassadors of his warning and will send to the United Nations Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold.

Earlier today Nasser saw British Ambassador Sir Humphrey Trevelyan and U. S. Ambassador Henry Byroade.

Nasserjan said he discussed international matters "including the Suez" with them.

Tweed Mother's Courage And Tear Gas Save Son From 2 Mental Patients

Mrs. Teresa Barry Exchanged Herself as Hostage for Son

SUES FOR $500,000

Cyprienne M. O'Part, former Montreal restaurant hostess, is suing $500,000 slimsony and a $200-a-week allowance. John H. O'Part, one-time vaudeville showman, carnival operator, is named co-defendant and now a Toronto business man. In her suit the plaintiff claims she married O'Part by proxy in Mexico in 1943. Divorce denies there was any marriage. (CP Photo).

Editor's note: Mrs. Sam Barry, heroine of the following story of terror and a mother's bravery is the 56-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Trudeau of Tweed, Ont. Mr. Barry who is a carpenter, formerly resided and worked in Tweed moving to Kaladar with his family three years ago. Lynn Trudeau, after whom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barry is named is employed with Bateman's Meat Market of this city.

Mrs. Barry's father said over the telephone this morning that his daughter was doing as well as could be expected after her harrowing experience. She is suffering from shock. Mr. Trudeau said Mrs. Barry will come to their home for rest and recuperation after she is reported fit to travel.

"We are very thankful things turned out the way they did. It could have been a bit worse," said Mr. Trudeau. "She is a very plucky girl and we all admire her courage and bravery."

Mr. Jack Trudeau of Trudeau Corners here is an uncle of Mrs. Barry.

WHITBY (CP) — A mother's courage and police tear gas ended a two-hour siege by two mental patients who broke into the provincial police detachment here threatened to kill her son.

The mother exchanged herself for the hapless boy for the safety of the three-year-old boy. The tear gas routed the two men from the home after the woman slipped out the back door.

The patients, Frazie Fillis, 38, of Toronto and 16-year-old Johnston of Oshawa, Ont., were returned to the Ontario Hospital here, from which they had escaped Tuesday night.

HEROIC MOTHER

Mrs. Teresa Barry's heroism ended a long train of events that led to the men's recapture. As police surrounded the house Mrs. Barry exchanged herself as hostage for her son and barred them from the house, confining them a meal.

Until shortly before noon, Mrs. Barry had battered into a small family routine in this town five miles west of Whitby. Her children, Stephen, 6, was at school 200 yards away, Samuel, her carpenter husband at work.

The terror began when two men knocked on the door and asked whether they could use the telephone. Mrs. Barry said no.

Then one man could walk into the house, searching police started investigating. Mrs. Barry's father saw the officers, grabbed the boy, Lynn, and pushed Mrs. Barry outside.

KNIFE AT THROAT

The next time she saw her son the boy was in the corner clutched in one of Fuller's hands. A knife was at the boy's throat.

Police told the men to surrender. They quoted Fuller as screaming in reply:

"Clear off! Leave us alone. You can't do anything. We're not lunatics. They won't hang us. We don't mind being inside for 30 years."

Police shouted: "Let the kid out or we'll shoot."

The retort: "If you try to come in we'll kill him."

HELD THEIR FIRE

Police held their fire. Police chief Ira Fraser of Whitby police said "we had to do something. The boy's life was in danger." He asked Mrs. Barry if she would talk to the house. She said she would do anything to save the child's life.

Police tried to reason with the men. The men shouted the boy out the door as Mrs. Barry went in and started to cook them a meal.

A tear gas bomb was lobbed through a window shortly after. Johnston said Mrs. Barry, pounced on it and threw it back out. In the confusion, she ran out the back door.

Other tear gas bombs were fired into the house. The patients soon stumbled from the building, crying and screaming at police.

TO HOLD INQUIRY

Mrs. Barry was treated for shock. Officials of the department of health said an inquiry will be held to determine whether the men should be committed to another institution where their movements can be watched more closely.

DESERT TWEED MOTHERS

Mrs. Albert Baxter, who lives near the Barry house, had left the two men dropped at her home first and threatened to kill her. But she was laughing out of washing when two men approached.

"One took out an awful knife and backed me against the porch," she said. "I'm a big woman." He kept that terrible knife pointed at my throat.

CONSTABLE ATTACKED

"Then the other man said 'Don't hurt her, don't hurt her.' Then they walked away."

Police said they went from the Baxley house to Mrs. Barry's home.

The men escaped after an entertainment program in a pavilion on the hospital grounds. Before going to the Barry home they attacked constable Andrew Rankin of Ajax police with a dagger as he tried to stop them for questioning. He was not hurt.

Dr. D. R. Fletcher, superintendent of the hospital, said Wednesday night he didn't think the men should have been sent to Whitby. Neither, Dr. Fletcher said, had a record of violent action and each was a man who was not a criminal or melodramatic scene. At the same time, Dr. Fletcher said he does not want to minimize the seriousness of the episode.

Think Hoodlums Bribed to Incite Montreal Riots

MONTREAL (CP)—The Herald says police are investigating reports that bribed hoodlums, paid $1 or $2 bill, were behind the causes or fanned the flames of the tram-fare riot here last Friday.

The newspaper said police sources refused comment on question: "Who did the bribing?"

High command officers said they agreed the rioting followed the innocent student protest parade, and was made dangerous and deadly long by the presence of "hoodlum leather-jacketed thugs."

Inspector Gregoire Allain, chief of the detective bureau, was quoted by the newspaper as saying that his office had received reports that no unknown number of rioters were "paid, to get the vandalism going and to keep it going.

Allain said investigating has turned up no evidence of a payoff so far, but he added: "We're interested in finding out the bottom of this if there's anything in it."

Of the 21 rioters arrested, police said five were men with criminal records and these were questioned exhaustively.

Canada Wins Warm Tribute For Her UN Membership Role

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The General Assembly Wednesday night paid tribute to Canada for the part she played in breaking the long deadlock on UN membership.

After the voting which brought 16 new members into the organization, assembly president Jose Maza of Chile called on Canada's Health Minister Paul Martin for a statement.

The chief Canadian UN delegate, principal sponsor of the 18-member ship plan, headed a parade of speakers who praised the 16-nation plause which broke out when Martin rose to speak, and when he finished, the applause was the loudest they had ever heard at the UN. Many called it a tribute not only to Canada's initiative. Among the warmest in his praise was Sir Pierson Dixon of Britain, who expressed pleasure at "the great work which the senior Dominion played in this matter."

Martin said: "One of its great statesmen, by his statesmanship and courage, has more than once saved the deadlock which has divided us now for nine years."

He quoted Lester B. Pearson of Ireland, December president of the Security Council, said he was sure that Martin would be recognized as the leading figure behind the membership solution.

The Canadian delegation here was being delayed by telegrams from grateful people in all parts of the world, particularly those countries admitted to membership. In his address to the assembly Martin said:

"All here are conscious that this is a great occasion. We also recognize our great debt to the Secretary-General for his tireless recommendation it made.

"The assembly played a great part in organizing so many states and demonstrating the wide, deep desire for inclusion in the United Nations of so many important countries. Japan, Portugal, Ireland, Spain and Italy, to mention only a few.

"I and my delegation and my country do not take credit for this result. The credit belongs to many nations and many delegations. The result came from a collective effort based upon constructive negotiations.

"We have one regret, however, that Japan was not accorded membership. It is only a matter of time, the earliest possible opportunity, to the inclusion of this nation in our ranks. . . ."

Sun Spots May Make You See Double When You Watch TV in 1957 or '58

OTTAWA (CP)—Sun spots may take part in Canadian television reception for you in 1957 and 1958.

Dr. Dave Forsyth of the Defence Research Board's tele-communications laboratory said Wednesday occasional strange television reception probably will occur during the sun spot cycle of those years.

Double reception means picking up a television screen the normal picture from your local station, plus a superimposed picture now and then from a station in a distant city.

Dr. Forsyth was one of four scientists who outlined at a press conference general plans for Canada's participation in the international geophysical year in 1957-58. Twenty-four Canadian scientists will take part.

Canadian participation will be mainly in those fields already being investigated by Canadian scientists: The ionosphere, aurora and geomagnetism, cosmic radiation, solar activity, meteorology, cosmic rays, glaciology and ocean research.

Dr. Donald Rose of the National Research Council said Wednesday that the ionosphere, a layer of electrically-charged particles in the upper atmosphere, will have a general relation to defence. Long-range communications, for instance, are affected by solar activity on the ionosphere, a layer of electrically-charged particles in the upper atmosphere.

It is hoped that two long-range results of the studies will be better forecasts and improved radio communications.

Canada's Butter Sales Protested By New Zealand

OTTAWA (CP) — New Zealand has officially protested Canada's import of butter to George at lower cost. However, negotiations have started in connection with further trade and it was learned today.

The protest, it was learned, was made by New Zealand's High Commissioner to Canada.

Neither Canadian nor New Zealand officials would disclose details of the criticisms. The external affairs department said only that the representations "are being considered."

The protest followed a Canadian government deal to ship some 7,-000,000 pounds of surplus butter to Communist East Germany through a firm of Dutch importers.

7,800-Pound Trailer Lifted By Helicopter

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — The flying crane," Hollywood's latest movie prop, has lifted a 7,800-pound trailer van in its first test.

A hush-hush project after its long-reception five years ago, the world's largest copter, A spokesman for the Hughes Aircraft Co. (builder) said the trailer van was the largest object ever carried by a copter.

Designated the XH-17 by the United States Air Force, the flying crane has a gross of 40,000 pounds and has rotor blades 136 feet long. It is powered by two engines which has hit 70 miles an hour in level flight, the company said.

Everybody Waiting for Other Fellow To Decide on Boxing Day Holiday

Whether or not this will be a traditional Dickensian Christmas for Belleville, the very holiday itself at present finds the city's merchants in a Gilbertian dilemma.

Succinctly, the situation is: Will they or will they not close on Boxing Day, which this year falls on December 27th.

Just two months ago the merchants themselves, sitting as the Retail Merchants of the Chamber of Commerce, voted to stay open on Boxing Day. A Christmassy card of the holiday store hours then was issued to the members of the body to place in their stores and windows. The bottom of the card read: "Tuesday, December 27th — Regular Hours."

Then complications set in.

Some time before municipal election day Mayor Both decreed December 27th a civic holiday. Since then a mild confusion is covering the scene.

The cards proclaiming the hours can be seen in several store windows.

But on most of them the hours for Tuesday, December 27th have been cancelled and a "Closed all Day" notice inserted instead.

That at present seems to be the general intentions of many city merchants. Some others however, are not so sure.

"If the rest of the town doesn't close I won't. That's a cinch," one business manager said. "But if they don't stay open neither will I."

"Who's leading the parade for what, anyway?" he wanted to know.

"Naturally I'd like the holiday and would like to give my staff a holiday."

It is a peculiarly local situation. The Chamber of Commerce points out the manufacturers are not closing that day. Neither are the banks. Neither are federal offices.

At the moment that's the situation.

But just what it means has everyone guessing — including the city Sawdust Bun Company.

Yesterday the company promised to run full service on Boxing Day, which is, remember, December 27.

If the workers of the city have to put in regular working hours. But if not....

Well that's just about where the situation stands at the moment.

DOWN THE DRAIN

BALTIMORE (AP)—Nearly 20,000 gallons of raw whisky went down the drain Wednesday with firemen using water as a chaser after two railway freight cars sideswiped and one loaded with whisky, caught fire.

Christmas Party Enjoyed By Brewers' Staff

Belleville district members of the Brewers' Warehousing Company, which includes Cobourg, Trenton, Belleville, Picton, Napanee and Tweed are a happy family and this was exemplified last evening, when the staff members with their wives and sweethearts with a few invited guests gathered at the new Columbus Hall for their annual Christmas party. Richard McLaughlin, president of the Recreation committee, with George Whalen as secretary and energetic members conducted a most enjoyable evening for all.

Ted Jones, district manager, with Mrs. Jones and Danny Cox, assistant manager with Mrs. Cox were the special guests and welcomed the visitors from the district. Following a social half-hour the guests were seated at tastefully decorated tables, where a delightful turkey dinner with all the fixings was served by Murray Hunter of the Toronto Group and his efficient staff. Following the dinner short addresses were given by William Purtelle of Picton, and Claude McKnight of Napanee, who have been recently retired after serving faithfully for many years, and Claude D. Tice, who extended a welcome on behalf of the city to the out-of-town guests.

The surprise of the evening was the presentation of a handsome desk set to the district manager and a home lighter set and tray to the assistant manager. Both Mr. Jones and Mr. Cox thanked the staff for their co-operation during the year with Mr. Jones announcing that production in the district had set an all-time record. Mr. Cox thanked the staff especially for their co-operation during the strike days, and said "your effort has been much appreciated by the company."

After the dinner the company enjoyed a dance with Chuck Collins' Mixers providing the music. During the dance there were a number of spot dances and many valuable prizes were given. The Recreation committee of the company are to be congratulated on their efforts in providing an enjoyable evening.

Gifts, Prizes Feature Service Station Opening

Starting today and continuing Friday and Saturday, Bob Cox will play host at the celebrations which will mark the re-opening of his new Shell service station at Bridge and Coleman Streets.

Born in Cobourg, educated at Weston High School, Bob Cox is well known to the community of Belleville where he has lived for the past six years.

Customers will have a chance to win a boy's or girl's bicycle and a ten or 15-pound turkey with the free attendance prize draw tickets which will be given throughout the celebration. The official draw takes place on Saturday at 7.00 p.m.

There will be free Shellubrications for the first 25 customers at the pump Shells each day of the celebration and free Coca Cola, Christmas corsages for the ladies, souvenir gifts for motorists and favors for the children are all part of the fun and Bob hopes you will drive around and bring the family.

With many years experience and this completely equipped modern Shell station to back him Bob feels that he can be of real service to motorists in this district.

Mother Dies After Trying To Save 3 Children

CHESLEY, Ont. (CP)—A 28-year-old mother, severely burned Wednesday night in a fire she made an unsuccessful attempt to save one of her children from burning to death, died Wednesday night.

Mrs. John Thomson, whose three children were suffocated when fire burned through their frame home in this town 23 miles southwest of Owen Sound, lost her struggle for survival in Chesley Hospital.

She was visiting a neighbor to collect a Christmas cake Wednesday when another neighbor burst in with word that her house was on fire.

Mrs. Thomson rushed back into her burning home and carried out one of the three children trapped inside.

HUSBAND AWAY

The three, Sandra, 4, and twins Marilyn and Marlene, 18 months, were carried from the building but were dead on arrival at hospital.

Three other Thomson children were not injured. David, 8, and Kenneth, 7, were in school and Dianne, 6, was playing nearby.

Mrs. Thomson's husband, a 31-year-old truck driver, was away at nearby Walkerton when the fire broke out.

Police said they were unable to determine the cause of the fire. It was believed to have started shortly before noon in the kitchen of the house.

Obituary

HARRY R. HUBBS (Durham)

On Wednesday morning, Nov. 30, 1955, Harry Bruce Hubbs, 44, was critically injured by falling lumber at the Kroehler plant in Durham, where he was employed on the yard. He died on the way to Owen Sound Hospital.

Son of the late Rockwell Hubbs and Dora Hubbs he was born and raised on a farm in Percy, owned by his father, seven miles from Belleville. Harry's father's death he operated the farm for ten years. In 1947 he married Ruby McCullough of Norham. In the fall of 1949 he purchased the Andrew Mitchell farm in the Dundalk district where he resided until the time of his death.

The late Mr. Hubbs is survived by his wife and one daughter, Constance Elizabeth at home; by Rockwell Hubbs, one sister, Mrs Frank Hall of Belleville and by brother, Jack, all of Bloomfield; a brother, Roscoe, of Belleville, and one brother, Ernest.

The funeral was held on Saturday, Dec. 3, at 2.30 p.m., from the McMillan Funeral Home, Dundalk. The service was conducted by Rev. Douglas Bristow of St. James' Anglican Church and Rev. D. R. Sinclair of the Presbyterian Church. A comforting message was read to the sorrowing family and friends.

Relatives and friends were present from Belleville, Picton, Toronto, Durham, Dundalk and the surrounding district. Burial was placed in the mortuary at Dundalk Cemetery and will be removed to Belleville Cemetery at a later date. The bearers were Chester Fowler, Albert Fraser, Allen Green, Vern Atkinson, Rae Wilton and Seymour Landry.

JAMES GEORGE NEWMAN (Contributed)

The sudden passing on November 25th, in the Jack Johnson of Rossmore, came as a great shock to his wide circle of friends.

Born 34 years ago in Sophiasburgh the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Newman, he attended school at S.S. No. 13, Sophiasburg. At an early age he entered the dairy industry and made cheese at Northport, Cressy, Bloomfield and for many years at Rossmore side in Trenton.

A veteran of almost five years' service in World War II, he saw service in the Mediterranean and overseas, first with the R.C.A., later transferring to a paratroop unit.

His pleasing personality attracted friends everywhere. As a family man he was devoted to his wife, the former Shirley Pearsall of Sophiasburgh and his three-year-old daughter, Janice. As an athlete and sportsman, he was widely known and admired. As a friend to many, he gave unstintingly of his courage and enthusiasm to those with whom he came in contact.

Beside his widow and daughter, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Ackerman of Sophiasburgh and ten brothers and sisters, Eric, Walter, Gilbert and Harry of Picton, Mrs. Donald (Barbara (Mrs. Norman) of Picton, Muriel and Hilda (Mrs. Moore) of Belleville; Betty (Mrs. Way) of Bethesda and Patricia at home.

The high esteem in which he was held by so many was indicated by the many floral tributes and expressions of sympathy to the sorrowing relatives. The funeral was held at Bethesda Church, Dec. 29th, conducted by the Rev. D. M. Smith, a former pastor.

Bearers were the five brothers and a brother-in-law, Percy Pearsall, with interment at Glenwood cemetery.

ALLEN ASSELSTINE

Allen Asselstine, 211 Coleman St., died suddenly in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, Dec. 14th. He was in 85th year.

The deceased was born in Roblin, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Asselstine, and lived in the Quinte district all his life. He was a laborer and a member of Calvary Temple.

He is survived by his wife, the former Martha Elliott; two daughters, Mrs. Fred (Lillian) Sparks, of Kingston; Mrs. Edward (Annie) Vallincourt, of Sudbury; and three sons, Charles and George, of Belleville, and Roy, of Sudbury.

Also surviving him are a sister, Mrs. Eliza Murdock, of Toronto, and two brothers, Herman, of Napanee and Ike, of Roblin.

The body is resting at the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home, 50 Victoria Ave. at Church St. The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

JAMES GEORGE BANDY

The funeral of James George Bandy was held Wednesday, Dec. 14th, from the chapel of the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Evangelist William Belch conducted the service.

Bearers were: Joseph Buckley, Carl Hinchey, Gerald Swan, Ralph Swan, John Huffman and Edgar Bandy.

Interment took place in St. Andrew's cemetery, Gilead.

SAMUEL THORPE

The funeral of Samuel Thorpe, of Deseronto, was held Tuesday, Dec. 13th, from the White Funeral Home, Deseronto. Rev. W. F. Smith conducted the service.

Bearers were Max Hill, Andrew Sero, Harrison Sero, Joseph B. Maracle and Carl Brinklow. Interment took place in Deseronto cemetery.

The deceased was born in Sheffield, England, and lived in Toronto 41 years before taking up residence in Deseronto five months ago. He died at home on Saturday, Dec. 10th, after having been in ill health for two weeks. He was 76.

The deceased was employed for 35 years by the maintenance department of the Toronto Board of Education. He was an Anglican.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary Elizabeth Shipman; a foster daughter, Mrs. Hazel (Martha) Maracle, of Deseronto; and two sisters, Emily and Mary Ellen, both in England.

School-Crossing Guards Praised By Citizen

Christmas is a time for children and parents try to make it as one hundred percent so.

In the wide, wonderful world of a child at Christmastime there is a multitude of things to distract a youngster deeper into happiness.

The serious side of life, rightly absent from a child's thought at the least of times, couldn't be further removed from its consideration at this, the greatest festival of the year.

It is only the parents who appreciate the significance of everyday things throughout the year in ensuring the child a happy and a healthy festive tide.

Such things as a traffic light in proper working order, the attentiveness of a traffic policeman or the sailing process of a school-crossing guard.

Or do parents realize the significance of these things? At least some parents appears to, particularly the importance of the school-crossing guard.

In a letter to The Ontario Intelligencer, C. R. Pridmore writes:

"As the Christmas season draws near and we think of our friends and families, let us not forget those who have helped us through the past year. We remember the postmen, breadman, milkman, the sanitary department employees, but not often we do not think of the men who do a very good job of protecting our dearest possessions—our children.

"They are the school-crossing guards. I do not think that these men receive a salary in compare with the hours and conditions under which they have to work.

"Why not have the children give their guard a little envelope with some change for Christmas to show how much we, the parents, and the children appreciate their work."

This is the kind of letter that can be answered many times, though in only one way, in Belleville this Christmastime.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to take left behind to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father, Allen Asselstine, and for the floral tributes, Rev. E. Bowlby, for his comforting words, and to all our friends and neighbors who sent flowers and cards and for the use of their cars; the doctors and nurses of the Belleville General Hospital, the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home for their kindness and understanding sympathy; also a special thanks to the C.N.R. firemen and their wives and friends, also the Belleville Fire Department, and the Belleville police, for their generous acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy.

—Mrs. Bill (Wilson) Cleary and family.

We would like to thank all our friends and neighbors, and in particular thank you to the nurses and helpers of the 3rd floor for their kindness during my stay in the hospital; also to R.N.A. No. 382 and No. 384 for the fruit, and Foxboro W.A. for flowers; also Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Wright, Sherwood Adult Bible Class and Rev. Burke and all who sent cards and assisted us in any way, again we say thank you.

—Harry and Ethel Gerow.

To all who remembered me with treats, cards and personal calls while in the Belleville General Hospital and during my return home, also to Jay Kennedy, Dr. Cornett and nurses of 1st South 2 wing, I wish to say a sincere thank you.

—Scott Donnan.

I would like to thank all my friends and relatives for their kindness to me during my long illness. The lovely gifts of fruit, flowers and cards brightened the hours. A special thank you to Dr. Cornett and Dr. Russell Bateman, of Bateman, Toronto. A very special thanks to my special nurse, Mrs. Claudy Thompson, Rev. Percival Rev. Smith, Rev. Hillis, Rev. Davis, Rev. Middleton, Rev. Larman, and my blood donors.

—Mrs. Warner Wood.

FINED FOR CRUELTY

NEW YORK (AP) — A 49-year-old restaurant operator Wednesday was fined $75 for being cruel to his dog. A witness testified before magistrate Louis Kaplan that she saw Van Manssach kick a dachshund puppy in the stomach and then swing it on a leash against an automobile. Manssach contended he was training the dog according to a veterinarian's instructions.

BIRTHS

ATKIN. — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Atkin, 181 Albert Street, are happy to announce the birth of their daughter, Catherine Lenore, born Wednesday, December 14th, 1955, at the Belleville General Hospital.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was mixed in narrow dull first-hour trading today. Liquors and foods firmed lightly, but elsewhere the industrial list was trendless.

Canada Permanent Mortgage gained $3 at $85. Loblaws Inc. added $2 at $60. Losses were confined to fractions. Chrysler was off ⅝.

Among base metals, profit-taking caught up with Canadian Chibougamau after its recent steady climb. The stock was off ¼.

Uraniums moved sluggishly. Consolidated Denison gained 15 at $9.80. Golds changes were limited to pennies. East Malartic added 3 at $2.

Merrill Pete led improved western oils, adding 50 cents at $12.50.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Trade was at a near standstill on all classes of livestock at the Ontario stockyards today with few sales made on medium and common slaughter steers, heifers and cows at steady prices.

Receipts: cattle 24; calves 5; hogs 138; sheep and lambs 9; carryover from Wednesday 1,250 cattle.

Prices: good steers 18.50-19.50; medium 15-18; common 12-15; good heifers 17-18; mediums 14-17; common 11-14; choice fed yearlings 21-22; goods 20-21; mediums 15-19; canners and cutters 6; no sales on bulls.

Replacement cattle: medium stockers 15-17; common 13-15.

Calves 20-28 for medium vealers: commons 12-19; grass calves sold for slaughter 9-12.

Hog prices: grade A 22, one load 21.50; sows 16 dressed; stags 13 dressed.

Lambs 29 for good handyweight ewes and wethers; heavy lambs discounted 3 a hundredweight, bucks 5 per cent; medium lambs 12-16; good light sheep 10; common and heavy sheep 3.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was firm with offerings light for a good demand. Quotations, provided by the Dominion department of agriculture: eggs, in fibre cases, graded: A large 47; A medium 43; A small 40; B 40; C 36. Wholesale to retail: A large 52; A medium 48; A small 45; B 45; C 41.

Butter solids: Canada, first grade, Ontario 58; western 58½ (nominal).

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 1-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate 99 31-32 cents. Pound sterling 32.80¾, down ¼.

Suspend Sentence In Forgery Case

Pleading guilty to a charge of forgery, William Kehoe of Bancroft, was given two years' suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county magistrate's court today.

The accused was remanded for restitution of $129.74 and was ordered to pay court costs. A second charge of uttering was withdrawn.

The forged document had been passed with a Stirling merchant in payment for a diamond ring. The ring was recovered by provincial police who laid the charge.

The cheque had originally been made out by a Bancroft district mining company in payment of wages to a mine worker. The cheque, however, had disappeared from the office before being given to the worker.

Kehoe told police that he had found the cheque and that when he found it, it had already been endorsed.

In suspending sentence, Magistrate Wills warned Kehoe against any misunderstanding that "finders were keepers," and told him that such a thing could get him into serious trouble.

Toronto Driver Is Acquitted Of Negligence

Charges of criminal negligence and of careless driving against Garfield Buchanan, of Toronto, laid following the highway accident which on the early morning of October 30th, claimed the life of William Cleary, R.R. 2, Belleville, were dismissed by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in county magistrate's court this morning.

In dismissing charges against Buchanan, Magistrate Wills ruled that the Crown had failed to show where the accused was negligent or careless in the manner in which he was operating his highway transport vehicle.

Five witnesses were called by Acting Crown Attorney Ralph Graham. These were Provincial Constables F. McKenna and Gordon Oliver; two eye witnesses of the accident, John Martin and Claude Peters; and Wilbert White, garage auto mechanic.

Martin and Peters told the court they had been following the eastbound highway transport with the intention of passing when, a short distance west of the east end of the four lane highway east of the city, they saw an object fly into the air ahead of the transport. Stopping at the scene they found a car piled against a bridge abutment and the transport in the ditch west of the bridge.

They said they had seen no other vehicle on the highway ahead of the transport.

Mr. Waite told the court the right headlight of the Cleary vehicle was on when he towed the wrecked car to the garage.

Defence Counsel Mr. Haines of Toronto moved for dismissal of the charge following completion of the Crown's case, claiming that the onus was on the Crown to show how the accident occurred and that there had been negligence or even careless driving on the part of the accused. No defence was offered.

Acting Crown Attorney Ralph Graham noted that whether the lights of the Cleary vehicle were on or off, the traffic act called for lights which would show up an unlighted vehicle 200 feet away on the highway. If the lights on the transport were correct then the driver should have been able to see the object on the highway and the failure to do so was a "wanton and reckless disregard of the rights of others on the highway."

Crown Counsel submitted there was no inference that the Cleary vehicle had moved onto the highway suddenly.

Mr. Cleary was fatally injured when, while on his way to work on the railway, his car was crashed against a bridge abutment by the highway transport. He died before he reached the hospital.

CANADA'S BUTTER

The price was reported to be about 37 cents a pound, 21 cents a pound below the federal support price and involving a total loss to the federal treasury of some 16 cents a pound, including handling charges.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the annual federal-provincial agricultural conference earlier this month that the government may lose a total of some $3,000,000 this year through its butter deals.

He said the government was hoping to find markets for disposal of another 4,000,000 pounds overseas. Federal officials disclosed today that negotiations now are under way in connection with further shipments to East Germany.

It is understood the government hopes to export to the Communists about 10,000,000 pounds this year.

The world price for butter is about 40 cents a pound. Exports of dairy products are vital to the New Zealand economy. The New Zealand view is that Canada's exports are invading the European market, which is traditionally part of New Zealand's outlets, and that they are a form of "dumping" since Canada is exporting at a price below the domestic price.

At the same time Canada has imposed a ban on imports of butter which prevents New Zealand from shipping butter to this country. New Zealand's production costs are lower than those in Canada and her selling price also is lower.

However, Canada does allow small amounts of New Zealand cheddar cheese in, for entire large Canadian production and some domestic surpluses.

Canada's total stocks of creamery butter Dec. 1 amounted to 114,073,000 pounds, up from 103,027,000 a year ago.

Gas-Turbine Locomotives Coming Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Coal interests say a coal-fired gas-turbine locomotive—the industry's answer to the diesel railroad engine—will complete its test during 1956.

Col. R. B. White, chairman of the locomotive development committee of Bituminous Coal Research Inc., said the first coal-burning gas-turbine locomotive is expected to be under construction by 1957.

The new locomotive, first of its kind, uses pulverized coal, burned at high temperature. This produces a heated gas which rotates the turbine, generating electricity which powers the wheels.

The coal and railroad industries have been working on this locomotive for eight years. Some coal people have asserted that such an engine can be operated at savings of thousands of dollars a year in comparison with diesel operating costs.

Syrian Batteries Fire on Planes

DAMASCUS, Syria (Reuters) — Syrian anti-aircraft batteries Wednesday fired on three Israeli reconnaissance planes flying over the Syrian-Israeli frontier, a Syrian military spokesman announced today.

He said the planes, flying at an extremely high altitude, flew off without being hit.

Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada, chief United Nations truce supervisor who was due here today, postponed his visit for 24 hours owing to bad weather. He will discuss with Syrian officials the situation arising from last Sunday's Israeli raid on four Syrian advance posts north-east of the Sea of Galilee, in which 49 Syrians were killed.

Over 5000 Persons Attend Annual Santa Claus Parade

CAMPBELLFORD — A crowd estimated at more than 5,000 persons almost double the population of the town, turned out to watch the annual Santa Claus parade on Saturday afternoon, sponsored by the Campbellford Chamber of Commerce.

Four bands and 30 floats, as well as scores of clowns and story-book characters delighted the youngsters and oldsters alike. Santa, complete with reindeer, and his helpers, was the highlight of the parade, and after the event was over, he distributed candy to nearly 1,000 children at the community arenas.

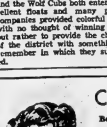
CASH PRIZE AWARDS

Cash prizes were awarded for the best entries in the parade. Judges were: the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, M.P.; Dr. Fred Robertson, M.P.; and Miss K. B. Ferris. Their choice was the Campbellford Public School Mother Goose Float, for the best in the parade. Second place went to the Trent Valley Creamery entry, depicting Little Red Riding Hood. The best group was judged to be Miss Donna Sharp's senior Majorettes, and the prize for the best individual dress went to the Snow Queen on the Kinsmen Club float.

Merchants of the town contributed funds to defray the cost, and most of them praised the efforts of the parade committee of the chamber, headed by F. G. DeCarpol.

The floats in the parade had more thought and work behind their preparation than in previous years. Some floats, although they were not in the prize money, were worthy of special mention. These included the float entered by the Campbellford School School Safety Patrol; the Snow Queen, entered by the Kinsmen Club, and the Lions Club float. The Boy Scouts and the Wolf Cubs both entered excellent floats and many private companies provided colorful floats, all with no thought of winning prizes but rather to provide the children of the district with something to remember in which they succeeded.

Goodyears Edge Brockville 5-4



Kingston Goodyears crept two points closer to the group leading Whitby Dunlops last night when they edged the third-place Brockville Magedomas by a 5-4 score.

The win gives the Goodyears 23 points, four behind the Dunlops.

Joe Levandoski was the hero of the piece scoring the winning goal with a minute or so to go in the third period.

NEW ELECTORAL LAW

ATHENS (Reuters)—The Greek Chamber of Deputies Wednesday night voted a new electoral law based partly on the majority system and partly on proportional representation. It is designed to assure the creation of strong and lasting governments. The law also fixes the number of seats in the Chamber of Deputies at 300.

TALKING TURKEY.

The most pleasant pheasant in the world is the turkey.

The turkey is a splendid bird of admirable proportions, usually featherless, medium brown in color, basted with pan drippings, packed with fragrant dressing, ringed with carrot slices and a carving set. It is seen most frequently twice a year - - at Thanksgiving and at Christmas.

Its lifespan varies according to the number of hungry relatives present. Its final fate is either determined in turkey broth or the snapping of a "wishbone."

This abbreviated biography is about all anyone cares to know about the turkey. There is, however, more to the turkey's history than the journey home from the butcher's shop.

The turkey is an American game bird of the pheasant family which formerly inhabited almost all parts of the United States, southern Canada and Mexico. Wild turkeys are now birds of the forest. They live on the ground mostly, are swift of foot and scratch out a living of nuts, seeds, insects, berries or small fruits. When hunted, they run for concealment. If forced to fly they are very strong on the wing. At night they roost in trees.

Turkeys are pompous polygamists. The males strut, preen, show off and fight furiously for a sequence of mates which lay 7 to 15 eggs in the same nest.

Domesticated turkeys are only half tame. Their ancestors were wild turkeys that Indians and New England settlers kept confined for feast days. In nearly four centuries turkeys have changed only their color and mode of living.

Because of its peculiar preference for walking even though it flies well, the turkey can be herded like sheep. Driving turkeys to market was the accepted way of moving them until buyers started going to the pens.

It is believed Franklin had had his way the national symbol of the United States would not be the bald eagle, but the turkey. Ben claimed that eagles, as predatory, were less fitting as a national symbol than turkeys which were great providers of the wants of early settlers.

Today the natural range of a turkey is either gas or electric. Grits, mash, roots. The sweetest mush this side of oven is made by a turkey drumstick. Whether you prefer dark or light meat is really child's play with turkey because the dark is light enough.

Turkeys are declining or roasting, are still one of America's greatest game birds.

U.N. VOTING PUZZLE

David Lawrence, editor of U.S. News and World Report, has suggested that if Russia insists on the admission of the Mongolian People's Republic to the United Nations, then the state of Texas should be admitted. Texans will, of course, applaud this suggestion and will rejoice with satisfaction that the U.N. has been able to make out quite a case for his proposal. The Mongolian Republic, he says, is but a puppet state dancing on Moscow-manipulated strings, while Texas was once an Independent nation and even today has the right to fly its own flag by the side of the Stars and Stripes.

The Winnipeg Free Press finds Mr. Lawrence's argument logical, and one that opens up wide possibilities. "If the Texan claim is conceded," it says, "Mr. Lawrence will certainly have to brace himself for the admission of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia, all of which are larger than Texas and equally independent."

The Free Press then erases a smile and presents a frowning face to Mr. Lawrence in the following sentence: "Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa are not only full-fledged members of the United Nations but also are part of the British Commonwealth of states, headed up by the British Crown.

"Does he perchance see the Commonwealth as a collection of Outer Mongolias?" asks the Free Press reverently.

That is not likely. Still, Mr. Lawrence has a point. Why should the United States have only one vote in the UN, while a much smaller proportion of the world's population because it is separated by thousands of miles, gets four-votes?

It is unfair—just as unfair as the fact that 9,999 people in the Belleville riding of Hastings-Madeleine elect one member to the Canadian House of Commons, while in York-South it takes 90,454 people to earn one vote in the Commons.

NO MONKEY BUSINESS, PLEASE

This is the Year of the Sheep. Better enjoy it while you can. The Year of the Monkey is coming up.

The Asiatic calendar is based on 60-year cycles, called the Cycles of Cathay, and each year has a name. The Year of the Sheep is drawing to a close. The Year of the Monkey starts on February 12, 1956.

Let's hope it does not inspire the Chinese to engage in any more monkey business. But then we suppose the Chinese Communists do not believe in older superstitions and place little faith in the Cycles of Cathay.

For those who are not sure what the Year of the Monkey is believed to be unlucky for marriages.

It is, however, a fortunate birth year. Anybody wishing to take advantage of that fact by arranging to be born next year had better clip this out and tuck it in his or her—er, diaper.

THE NEIGHBORS' PRESCRIPTIONS

The doctor tells us what to do,
And thinks that he can pull us through.

He leaves us tonics, powders, pills,
To cure us of our various ills.

But when the doctor goes away
We do what some one else may say.

A neighbor woman tells us what
Relieved her husband's pain a lot.

Aunt Emmeline comes in to tell
Just what made Uncle Jimmy well.

And some one else prescribes a cure
That is immediate and sure.

We pay the doctor's usual fee,
But seldom take his remedy.

When ill, we are a funny tribe;
We like the neighbors to prescribe.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

December 15, 1935

Belleville's three hundred or more needy families listed on the relief rolls will not be neglected during the Christmas season if the service clubs, church societies and fraternal organizations can prevent any families being overlooked. Miss H. Lynch, relief supervisor of the local office, said today that the organizations mentioned and others have the situation well in hand.

From our file copy at this time in 1885. Albert College has 130 students in attendance. Several applications have been received for rooms in the large building after Christmas.

Candidates Qualified.

From our file copy at this time in 1855: Quite a ripple of excitement was caused among aspirants to municipal honors today by the announcement that but few of the candidates possessed the required property qualifications. The same authority states that over half the members for the present year are not qualified. The qualification consists in the ownership of property assessed at $1500, or rental of property assessed at $2000.

Half the merchants got the snow they were praying for; it began yesterday and it was necessary for city engineer Charles Kent and city foreman Cliff. Matthews to round up eighteen more men to help remove the snowfall of three inches from the downtown streets.

30 YEARS AGO

Ald.-elect Eardley Wilmot went to Toronto today.

Mr. Hugh Middlemiss has returned to the city after a business trip to Brantford.

40 YEARS AGO

December 15, 1915

Last year the Belleville Curling Club had 93 members and collected $672. in fees and an additional sum of $50. from the Women's Curling Club. The ballance last year was $49.95 and the balance this year is $47.59. Prospects are bright for a more favorable and prosperous season. Curling is certainly an interesting, enjoyable and healthful sport; hereafters soon become enthusiastic players.

The Rev. A. S. Kerr, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, spent yesterday in Kingston.

At a meeting of the Royal Black Preceptory No. 853, R. B. K., which was held in the Orange Hall, the following officers were elected: preceptor, George P. Dunn; deputy preceptor, Simon Kerr; Chaplain, Everett Bell; registrar, Wm. Carlaw; treasurer, Louis Soule; first lecturer, Fred Bell; second lecturer, Simon Lemmon; first examiner, Geo. A. Reid; second censor, C.H. Boyle; first standard bearer, E. A. Adams; second standard bearer, Joseph Alexander; committee, C. B. Bonlatest; committee,— W. C. Mikel, R. J. Graham, A. R. Walker, Henry Brown, W. C. Porter, George Phillips and A. Collins, past preceptor. Wor. Sir Reid conducted the installation ceremony.

From our file copy at this time in 1885: "Mr. Sam Nesbitt of Brighton is happy. He has the largest apple store house on the continent; he has 31,000 barrels of apples in storage at the present time."

Kidding the Royal Navy

(Ottawa Journal)

Mr. Burgess, who deals with television and radio on another page of The Journal, has been hearing from indignant Navy viewers who thought it was insulting and scandalous that an American comedian should poke fun at the Royal Navy. Such expressions as "outrageous" and "very bad taste" were among the milder ones.

The complaints arise from a skit by Mr. Red Skelton, which he delivered a burlesque of a court-martial of a submarine captain. The British navy, the captain, as the story went, had been instructed to proceed to a German harbor (this during the war) and pick up a group of Canadians who wanted to work for the Allies. His instructions added that in no circumstances was he to engage any German warship he might encounter. The British ship accomplished its mission, but when he saw in his periscope a big German battleship steaming astray for it the captain couldn't resist the temptation to have a lunch of Canadians the enemy craft went down. But the captain was tried for a breach of orders.

We have an idea that Mr. Caesar's loudest laughs will have come from others in the Royal Navy who may have heard his little play.

The Navy, as it happens, has been celebrating the end of the war—and survived to fight another day. There is a German, Admiral Raeder, of the Gilbert and Sullivan team lampooned the Navy unmercifully, has been produced literally thousands of times since first it was written, and has lived to the delighted applause of audiences all over the English-speaking world.

The chief character of "Pinafore" is Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B., First Lord of the Admiralty, who sings that though elegant polish, ing of the handle of the big front door of an attorney's firm he came to be Ruler of the Queen's Navee. He advanced to the law, he went to Parliament, and he ends his song:

"Now landsmen all, whoever you may be,
If you want to rise to the top of the tree,
If your soul isn't fettered to an office stool
Be careful to be guided by this golden rule:
Stick close to your desks and never go to sea
And you all may be rulers of the Queen's Navee."

All the action of the play occurs on the quarterdeck of the "Pinafore" off Portsmouth and the stage is full of jolly tars, the sisters, cousins and aunts of Sir Joseph, the Captain and his daughter, Little Buttercup as well. The jokes are those that would grimly, with his hair plastered down and his face should scowl,
His eyes should flash with an indignant frown
And his brow with scorn be wrung;
His nostrils should be dilated and his chest should swell,
His arms should flash and his voice protrude
And this should be his customary utterance.

And lovers of "Pinafore" remember the rousing chorus of congratulation to the Captain because he was an Englishman—when—the Navy is not at odds with the French or Turk or Prussian or pervading Russ—it was generally left to its own devices.

Now Sid Caesar is no Gilbert, but he has a keen sense of humor and of the ludicrous—and the Royal Navy is human, bearable. We mustn't be thin-skinned.

Shark Jumped, Was Lassoed

(Montreal Gazette)

Man's first great civilization was in the Nile Valley. It was the first highroad to foreign lands. "The cruel sea," "of dark secrets," captured the awe and imaginations of men since before Homer's time. History has recorded or not, has built up a rich treasure of seafaring legend.

The treasure is still increasing. Item:

The Pacific Islands Monthly of Sydney, Australia, recently carried the story of Captain Harry Wan, of the good ship Delos. Near Lae in New Guinea, Lae noticed a shark was following them, one side the Delos. Then he noticed something else. The shark was jumping clear out of the water.

By that time the shark had done two jumps and was preparing for a third. Lae was ready. As it rose in the air, Wan threw a lasso around its tail.

Then Wan's wrenches to hail the shark aboard. It weighed well over a ton and measured 18 feet.

At last, there's what the Pacific Islands Monthly says.

Item:

The Canadian Fisheries Department has fitted one of its fish-cruising vessels with a modified cow-catcher for patrolling the salmon fisheries and protecting the salmon from — yes — sharks.

The device is a triangular steel ram with a sharp point and a knife-like upper edge. In one month, says a Canadian Press story, the ship bagged nearly 50 sharks; in one day it speared 18.

Canada's slipping. Why can't we teach our sharks to jump, too?

Loud Radio Could Be Banned

(Chicago Tribune)

A new anti-noise ordinance enacted by the Evanston city council prohibits the loud playing of radio and television sets between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. Any radio or TV set which can be heard more than 50 feet is considered by the law to be noisy. The Evanston ordinance also forbids the unnecessary blowing of automobile horns.

Evanston is a suburban city, and it will be more pleasant if the rest of the suburbs follow suit. Likewise the city of Chicago would be a more agreeable place if all the automobile laws were something more than words in the municipal code. Take the shark was [illegible] advertising noisiers, auction sales, [illegible] devices to attract attention by whistles, building operations at night, foundry hammers, hand organs, vehicle horns, motorcycles, pneumatic hammers, railroad whistles and switching, steam boilers and steam whistles.

There is no specific section on noisy TV or radio sets, but these presumably are covered under the ordinance against disturbing the peace. There is also a law forbidding [illegible] to operate a phonograph, sound amplifier, or similar mechanical device "upon a public way, or in any place, so near thereto that public way as to be distinctly and clearly audible upon such public way." This would seem to prohibit unnecessary din caused by radio sets in automobiles.

Evanston is pioneering when it bans radio and TV sets. The distance we think is more than generous.

SELF EDUCATION

There is one thing to be said of self education that is important, and that is that it educates himself. He does it because of a desire to know more and to gain that knowledge gratifies him and he happily. Too many boys and girls get what they receive in High School, or College, education merely by "going through" a school.

The most useful thing learned in any institution is that of learning to learn. We ought to gain early in life how to consult and criticize ourselves. We must ask of ourselves how we are doing, and are we educating ourselves beyond what we have learned. Everyone is about us is Life—the Big School—and there is no graduation. We are displayed before us for so long as we live.

It is not our business to teach others, but to tell them of what we have learned. Few people care to listen to someone whose knowledge is greater than our own. We should be our own apt student. That great bronze figure we see in Rodin, "The Thinker", is a wonderful work of art, for though still and solid, it suggests activity. Our best thoughts are those that come solely to us as individuals, or that have been gained not as in crude state for us to mold into practical form.

Emerson as a philosopher, Thoreau as a naturalist and lover of the wild, and Lafcadio Hearn, as an art gel.

Teach French By New Method

(Hamilton Spectator)

Bilingualism can be—and is—a good people. In Europe it is a good business; in England it has become a rather essential quality of the well-educated, and, in varying degrees, standard equipment of the Channel-crossing holidaymakers.

A working knowledge of another language paves the way for instance, to deeper understanding and appreciation of Anglo-France values, culture, humour and customs. To be bilingual is of undisputed commercial advantage to the French-speaking Canadian, and at least a cultural achievement, or an enhancement of character, if not exactly an economic necessity for the English-speaking Canadian.

Both are citizens of Canada, and it is hardly in the best interests that either should be at a disadvantage with the other because of language difficulty, be it at pupilage, business or tourist level.

Recent trends in starting French lessons in Grades Seven and Eight in Eastern Ontario schools, at the discretion of local education boards, are said to be encouraging, and there is optimism that the system will spread to other parts. French, incidentally, is taught in all elementary schools in England.

Now a group of English-speaking school children in Ottawa is being taught French by a new method—by listening to the language until they are ready to launch into conversations themselves, rather like the natural way a baby learns to speak. If the experiment turns out more students who can understand French, this new technique might be adopted in other Ontario schools.

Living with a language is probably the best way to master it. Hence the widespread exchange idea which has developed between English and French towns. Modern teaching methods are used in the primary schools of the respective towns, and the exchange visits enable the communities emulate each other's customs as far as possible. "Exchange" visits are also organized between scholars.

For many years exchanges have been arranged by the Visites Interprovinciales—set up to improve relations and understanding between Ontario and Quebec. But the numbers of pupils taking advantage of these are pathetically small.

As the outlook on acquiring a second language broadens, and a more positive interest develops in the learning of it develops, exchanges may become a feature of Canadian education, too, for the greater mutual understanding.

Here, in fact, is a good example of learning French (or English) Without Tears.

Personal Health Talks

The Little Stranger Is A Parasite

From the centre of the goitre district, the Great Lakes Basin, a nice kind lady writes:

"I have read your column for years, not only for information but because it is interesting and amusing as well, but frankly I have not been at all concerned about health until now.

At 40 I'm beginning to feel constantly tired, even in the morning after a good night's rest.

I have just had my first baby, after years of prayer, so perhaps I work a little more. Incidentally his father was right there when he was born. I put on more clothes on or over my baby than he likes, and I quote you when any one wonders if he doesn't need more."

To be sure of my knowledge the hospitals in the lady's community are still following the nineteenth century practice of making a major operation out of every childbirth, so I assume she had her baby at home, the safest place to have a baby.

The lady does not state whether she nurses her baby. Whether she does or not or whether she supplements natural feeding with artificial feeding, I hope she understands that throughout pregnancy her baby was a parasite, selecting from her blood stream whatever nutritional elements he required for development and growth; and since the baby's birth, if the nurses in the baby has continued to take from mother's blood, by way of breast milk, whatever he needs — provided mother's blood and milk have not become depleted.

It is easy for any expectant mother or nursing mother to maintain her own and the baby's nutritional well being by supplementing her diet with calcinated tablets daily. These tablets are food, not medicine, and they supply many essential vitamin and mineral in quantity sufficient to maintain health at top level during pregnancy and nursing.

But I imagine this lady in the Great Lakes Basin needs something in addition. I would urge her and any other lady of parts in the Basin who feels tired all the time, maybe a little melancholy and inclined to dose at odd or embarrassing moments, to take the nutritional quantity of iodine daily—far less than a medicinal quantity.

LIFE'S GRANDEUR

Many years ago a lad in England was hailed as the latest scientific wonder. He appeared to possess a mind faculty of seeing minute objects with microscopic accuracy. He had but to look at an eye disease as a child, and as he grew older, it came to be a matter of instruction if his eyes was changed in such a way that he could see microscopically the distant objects he might close at hand were magnified 500 meters.

There are plenty of people today with his microscopic vision. The little things in life are enlarged for them 500 times over. They are ready to start a quarrel over a word. They see nothing but evil in the things found about them. They denounce people of other religions. They attribute wrong motives and insincerity to those who differ with them in politics. He appeared to possess mind things that are wrong with the government, the church, the business, and labor unions.

It is interesting to note that the lad who could look at minute objects and see them magnified was a victim of an eye disease, and it is true today that the world is being harping on the weakness of humanity and the mistakes that fallible humans are sure to make — such critics are definitely suffering from a disease of the soul. Their minds and opinions have microscopic capacity. They see the little things close at hand but they miss the glory of the big things which give life its grandeur.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the young ladies of my family connection has lately come into a little — or her — own. She has moved, by [illegible] of age, into her own bachelor [illegible]ment. I visited her the other day and was thunderstruck.

The nice young lady has been brought up in the most proper and model domestic circumstances. Her father is a merchant. Her mother is a housekeeper of the highest rank. Her home is most delightful. The young woman has been surrounded by law and order, discipline, decorum, what her mother always called "decency." She was trained from childhood in everything in its place, to pick up, hang her things in closets, put everything to dust, to rid up, to, in a word, keep everything "decent." Her mother had another label for it, but I prefer "decency." She was trained in habits of neatness, cleanliness, what her mother always called "decency." She was trained in habits of neatness, cleanliness, what her mother always called "decency." She was trained in habits of neatness, cleanliness, what her mother always called "decency."

When she was eleven, she was packed off to a private school where she remained until she spent six years, again under the strictest and most rigid moral upbringing in which law, order and decency were paramount.

Well, when she opened the door of her apartment, which is in one of those new slick, steel-front-ed apartment buildings, I was thunderstruck. Sure, the furniture was all very modern, the decoration smart as the pictures in the women's magazines, the rug walls to wall broadloom the color of mushrooms and all.

But you never saw such a mess. There was a slipper in the middle of the floor, items of ladies' apparel strewn on chairs, teacups and a plate with sandwich crusts into a little — or her — bedroom, magazines flung all over, phonograph records and books heaped on the chesterfield, on the mantel piece, a scene of complete and utter disorder.

"Sit down, Uncle," she cried, "you seem to know how to knock off a stylish chair.

I was in a swivel. She went to put out a bottle on for some tea. She came back, in never a word or apology for the state of the apartment, I waited with growing concern.

Finally, I could hold out no longer.

"Look, if you ever tidy the blame place up?" I asked.

"Aw," she said. "It's so homey this way!"

Dying of Thirst

(La Voz de Espana, San Sebastian, Spain)

An Irishman back from a tour with the Foreign Legion, was relating his bizarre experiences in the Sahara pub and was washing down each episode with a bumper of whiskey.

"Ammunition, food, whisky —all had gone, and we were dying of thirst," he said.

"But wasn't there any brook or women's magazine to rig up with or wanted to know.

"Sure, there was!" the interrupted narrator replied. But this was no moment to think of bathing, man!"

Mobile Unit's Home Service Bringing New Lease on Life To District Arthritis Patients

The only good thing about rheumatism is its absence.

But where you have rheumatism, or are the victim of rheumatic disease, one of the best things that can happen to you is physiotherapy.

Physiotherapy, or controlled exercise of affected joints and muscles, is the continuing treatment that keeps the crippling disabilities of rheumatic disease at bay while making life for the patient as nearly normal as possible.

Physiotherapy is the calm, quiet, day-to-day war against the effects of rheumatic disease that gives new lease on life to rheumatic sufferers.

Preaching and practising the gospel of physiotherapy thru'-out Canada is the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society. In Belleville and district the Society's mobile unit fights the effects of rheumatic disease on the home front with a visitation service to patients.

The local units was established in February, 1955, as a golden anniversary project of the Belleville Rotary Club. Office of the unit is in the Stoble Building, 244 Pinnacle St.

All persons receiving home treatment through the unit do so on written requisition of their doctor. Treatments, at all times, are under the supervision and control.

INAUGURATED SERVICE

Miss Elizabeth Lindsay inaugurated the service in February after serving with the R.C.A.M.C. Miss Mary Martin, supervisor of physiotherapy for the Ontario division of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society took on the duties of the local unit until the appointment of Miss Phyllis Carleton in September.

Patients from Trenton, Brighton, Campbellford, Marysville, Fairbank and Shannonville are treated by the local unit.

From February until the end of November physiotherapists completed 611 visits to the homes of rheumatic patients. The unit and physiotherapists travelled 14,647 miles on their rounds. In addition 19 non-rheumatic patients were given 150 treatments.

The number of patients being treated has been increasing each month.

In November, 99 visits were made to 32 rheumatic patients and 38 treatments were given 15 non-rheumatic cases. The unit's station wagon travelled 1,405 miles in November on its errands of mercy.

The Belleville unit is one of 20 established in Ontario and the fourth sponsored by Rotary Clubs.

EQUIPMENT USED

Equipment used by the local unit includes a short wave (or) ultra heat machine, two infra-red lamps and two infra-red bakers, both a for surface heat; a set of weights so patients can exercise against resistance; an electrical stimulator to assist muscle re-education; adjustable crutches for measuring patients for permanent crutches where necessary.

Work of the unit is threefold: (1) preventive... (2) restorative; (3) palliative.

Controlled exercise of joints and muscles can prevent severe disability and deformity of rheumatic joints. This type of practical treatment can also restore, to some extent, functions restricted by deformities. Heat, massage and controlled exercise can also relieve the pain and stiffness of joints.

The unit's program is divided into three phases: (1) home care; (2) education, and (3) rehabilitation.

The home treatment phase of the work is important in that it may, in some cases, dispense with hospital care for the patient. Home care can shorten the patient's stay in hospital and give the patient the maximum chance to live as normal a life as possible.

EDUCATION PROGRAM

Education of the general public is almost as important as education of the patient.

Industry and labor once made aware of the personal, social and economic significance of the disease, can take corrective measures to lessen the impact of the disease and to combat it.

Arthritis and rheumatic disease is second only to mental disease as a human crippler. Rheumatic disease totally or partially disables 150,000 Canadians and permanently confines 30,000 to bed or to wheel chairs.

Rheumatic heart is the second leading cause of death in children and a basic cause of a large proportion of heart disease.

Arthritis and rheumatic diseases cost business in Canada $500,000 work-days a year. Rheumatism costs its victims $60,000,000 a year in lost wages. Some 35,000 workers are absent from work for all or part of each working day because of rheumatic disease. These losses are sustained by rheumatic and arthritic victims who are able to work. They do not include those who cannot work at all.

Those suffering the pain and disability of rheumatic disease can learn corrective measures. Patients and their families soon realize that simple exercises, and simple apparatus, easily made, can aid their lives and ease discomfort. Facts and proper education also insures that continuing treatment of the patient will be maintained.

Rehabilitation of the patient includes readjustment to his disability with emphasis on learning a trade so that the patient can be self sufficient.

FINANCING THE UNIT

Financing of the unit is a combination of government grant, sponsoring club's gift and patient fees.

In its inaugural year the unit receives a government grant of one-hundred and half of the $5,000 necessary to buy equipment, estimate supplies and pay the physiotherapist. The grant is discontinued after the first year.

Treatments, which must be of length according to the patient, usually average between 45 and 60 minutes. Under ideal conditions the physiotherapist can give about treatments per day. Patients are asked to pay $4 per treatment or as close to that figure as their means will allow. If treatment is discontinued and patient is unable to pay, the service is free. About 20 per cent of the amount owed for the service is expected to be lost through inability of patients to pay.

Cost of such service to an individual patient would be prohibitive. Establishment of a unit for this work makes it possible to serve a large area and thereby reduce costs to the individual.

Hospital Replies to Mayor's Queries

The texts of correspondence between His Worship Mayor Jack Bolh and Mr. A. M. Haig and Mr. J. N. Yanover, of the Board of Governors of the Belleville General Hospital, was released to the press today after a special meeting of the Board on Wednesday.

Members of the Board attending the meeting were: J. N. Yanover, A. M. Haig, Brice Lattimer, H. F. M. Cane, Dr. W. B. Beattie, J. H. Legate, Mrs. Herbert McCabe, Frank Donnelly, Arthur Whitehead, Mrs. Lennox Smith and James B. Sprackett, Warden of Hastings County and Cecil Ketcheson, Reeve of Thurlow township.

Members voted unanimously to release the letters to the press.

Following are the texts:

December 8, 1955

Mr. J. N. Yanover,
Chairman,
Belleville General Hospital Board,
Belleville General Hospital,
Belleville, Ont.
Belleville, Ontario.
Dear Mr. Yanover—

Would you kindly send me a detailed report on the progress, to date, of the construction of the new hospital wing, including the cost of total expenditures to date.

I would appreciate, very much, having this information within the week.

Yours very truly,
Jack Bolh,
Mayor.

Mr. Yanover's reply follows:

December 14, 1955

His Worship, Mayor J. Bolh,
City Hall,
Belleville, Ontario.
Dear Mr. Mayor:

Replying to your letter of December 8th, attached herewith figures you requested.

From reports given to us weekly by our Architects, the progress of the building program seems to be up to date, and well within their calculations.

Trusting this is the information that you desire, and assuring you that if you require additional information, I shall be only too glad to furnish it.

Cordially yours,
J. N. Yanover,
Chairman,
Board of Governors,
The Belleville General Hospital.

Dear Mr. Mayor:

Mr. McLean Haig,
Chairman of The Hospital Building Fund,
Belleville General Hospital,
Dundas Street, East
Belleville, Ontario.
Dear Mr. Haig:

Would you kindly send me a detailed up-to-date statement of the Hospital Building Fund, including monies received, and pledges outstanding to date, also grants from the various organizations, corporations, Governments and individuals. Also the cost of the campaign and what has been expended on this campaign since the disbontinuing of the services of John Price Jones, who was originally engaged for this project.

In accompanying your reply, the payment to John Price Jones and their expenses would be most desired.

Your immediate reply would be most appreciated.

Yours very truly,
Jack Bolh,
Mayor.

Mr. Haig's reply follows:

December 14, 1955

His Worship, Mayor Jack Bolh,
City Hall, Belleville, Ontario.

ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE BUILDING FUND as at November 30, 1955

	Pledges	Received	Balance
General Public	574,258.55	447,090.83	127,167.72
Townships, villages, townships	12,050.00	7,128.69	4,921.31
County of Hastings	200,000.00	40,000.00	160,000.00
City of Belleville	200,000.00	Nil	200,000.00

Ontario Government	156,653.33	70,166.66	86,486.67
Bank interest earned		17,471.69
	1,271,279.88	581,858.00	706,893.48

You will notice that of a total of $574,258.55 originally pledged by the General Public, $447,-091.65, or approximately 78% has already been received. You will also notice that of the total monies received at that date, $40,-000.00 of the grant from the County of Hastings is included, and I might add that a further $40,000.00 from the County has been received and this month. There has as yet been received from the city of Belleville, but I understand that arrangements have been made by your Finance Committee to advance the city's grant as it is required. I might further add that of a grant of $156,-653.33 of the Provincial Government, $70,166.66 has already been received, while no monies have been received on account of the grant from the Federal Government.

The following is a statement of the delinquent pledges as at November 30, 1955:

Non-Payment

118 pledges totalling	$8,938.00
Partially Paid
150 pledges totalling	7,433.33
	16,371.33

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

	Total Fee	Expenses
John Price Jones	2,500.00	2,500.00
Survey	21,387.14	18,200.00	3,087.14
Campaign to Dec. 31, 1953	1,947.14	1,500.00	447.14
Public Relations Program
Total	25,334.28	22,200.00	3,534.28
Salaries Office Staff	3,929.57
Advertising, pamphlets, rental lights, telephone, stationery, etc.	9,608.35
Total	39,272.70

In regard to this statement, you will notice that an amount of $2,500.00 was paid to John Price Jones Company for the original survey which was made early in 1953. This expenditure was authorized by the Board of Governors of the day to determine whether, in fact, this community was large enough to undertake to raise by way of public subscription an amount of money necessary to makes any such campaign a success. It was the opinion that this expenditure was completely independent of the actual campaign and became an obligation of the Hospital whether or not any campaign was eventually undertaken. You will also notice a payment to John Price Jones Company shown of $1,947.14. This amount of money includes fees and expenses for work done by the John Price Jones Company subsequent to the termination of the actual campaign. On the advice of John Price Jones Company, the Board of Governors decided that there should be a follow-up Public Relations Campaign to gradually improve the Hospital's prestige in the minds of the public, and John Price Jones Company retained for a very short time only to advise on the inauguration of such a program.

The Public Relations Campaign mentioned in the preceding paragraph has been consistently maintained by the Public Relations Committee of the Hospital Board under chairmanship of Mr. Arthur Whitehead to the present time, with the approval and the authority of the Board of Governors from time to time. Naturally, the maintenance of this Public Relations Campaign has resulted in some expense to the Hospital which your Board of Governors feel is well worth while. It is considered part of the routine operating expenses of the Hospital and, therefore, it is not specifically segregated on the books of the Hospital.

I think I should say too, that this Public Relations program has now reached a point where the Board of Governors has approved in principle of the idea of originating a Belleville General Hospital Endowment Fund. Mr. F. Domenico has been appointed Chairman of the Committee in this connection and it is hoped that when such a fund has been established contributions to it after the years it will be the recipient of a substantial amount of memorial and other donations to be used for hospital purposes as determined by the Board of Trust which will control the fund.

Before concluding this letter I cannot refrain from saying that I feel that much of the criticism which some of the critics have created, has been exaggerated and unfair to some of us who have worked so hard to bring the Campaign to success. There has been no remuneration or salary paid to any of those who have worked on behalf of the Campaign. Many of us have spent many hours both during and after the Campaign, and in some cases, with a considerable expense to ourselves in time, effort and out-of-pocket expense.

The Campaign already nearly $382,000.00 has been received in cash or on account of the Building Fund, of which over $447,-900.00 has been received from public sources. If the campaign was fair to assume, therefore, that if the Hospital Public Relations setup was not received, that the Campaign itself must be considered a failure.

I happen to be an appointee of the City Council to the Board of Governors, and would hesitate to tell City Council that the lack of confidence in either myself or a colleague on the Board of Governors, because if I thought for one moment such was the case, I would gladly tender my resignation immediately.

The Belleville General Hospital is probably the greatest asset which the City of Belleville has from a municipalization the hospital deficits are a severe drain on municipal revenues. During recent years the Belleville Hospital has not cost the taxpayers of the City a single cent, except the amount of payment on account of indigent patients which the city is paying in excess of the Statutory requirements. In addition to this, the Hospital has been paying to the city treasury the full amount of principal and interest on debentures which are presently issued for the hospital account. I know of no other municipality where a municipally owned hospital is doing this and therefore, feel that your Board of Governors might be congratulated on the financial condition of the Hospital which makes this possible.

In conclusion, may I say that I hope that the information that you requested has been supplied. All figures given in this letter have been supplied by the office manager and the accounting staff of the Hospital in whom we have every confidence, and with this qualification can I guarantee their accuracy.

I am taking the liberty of giving our exchange of correspondence in this connection to the Press, as I feel that since the questions have been raised that it is only fair that the public at large be completely informed in connection with the Hospital Campaign Fund.

Yours very truly,
A. McLean Haig,
Chairman General Chairman,
Hospital Campaign Fund

A CHRISTMAS STORY

The Coming of the King

by Norman Vincent Peale

HI—NO ROOM AT THE INN

It was in the month of December that Joseph and Mary set out to make their journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem. Mary rode their little donkey and Joreph walked ahead leading it by a rope halter.

You might think that there was snow on the ground and that it was very cold. But that wouldn't be true because the climate of that country is different from our own. The ride was a long and a hard one—and most of it took place under a broiling sun, which blistered and scorched them. Even though they left at first light in the morning, it was late in the evening before they came to the gates of Bethlehem. They were hot and hungry and weary.

Now, in those days, there were no hotels as we know them. And, of course, there was no such thing as a hotel reservation. People stayed with friends or relatives. If they were strangers, there were inns, meant first of all for the care of animals of the traveling merchants.

As Joseph and Mary went through the streets of Bethlehem, they noticed how crowded it was. People from all over—men, women and children —had come to Bethlehem in obedience to Caesar Augustus' decree. And when they came to the inn in Bethlehem, there was no room for them.

It would be hard for you to imagine such an inn. You see, if Bethlehem nestles among hills and mountains and, even today, it is often easier to live in a cave than to build a house. And this particular inn was a cave or a group of caves which had been made into guest rooms, public rooms, dining rooms and even a stable for the animals. Yet, even in an inn such as this, after their long and hard journey, there was no room for Mary and Joseph.

NAPANEE BELLEVILLE COBOURG

Christ Church C.C. Enjoys Yuletide Party

Members of Christ church Contact club had a gay time Monday evening at a Christmas party convened by Isabel Murray's group.

Most of the evening was spent playing games which were arranged by Catherine Roulet and Diane Settle.

A get-acquainted game started things off in a warm friendly manner. This was followed by a humming contest which was done in four groups. Next came the turtle race with Joan Ford winding up as the final winner with her turtle, Comet.

Each person was then given a list of jumbled words to unscramble, which required a great deal of concentration on the part of everyone. Alice Wonnacott proved to be the best unscrambler and Florence Lennox second.

Daisy Rosevear, Eileen Magahay and Jean MacDonald were the lucky winners of passing and unwrapping the parcels game. Parcels were passed from hand to hand while the music played and unwrapped one layer at a time by the persons holding them when the music stopped.

Putting the knitting needle in the milk bottle in a most unusual fashion was what the girls had planned next. It looked so simple at first. Prizes were awarded to the first three successful volunteers who were Frances Anderson, Margaret Wiggins and Daisy Rosevear.

RELAY RACE

Everyone lined up in four teams for the next game and a relay was under way. The first girl in each team wrapped a parcel on the floor and placed it on a chair at the end of the hall. The next girl ran up, unwrapped the parcel and put it back in its original position. Then another girl wrapped it again and so on down the line. There was much haste and cheering and everyone all thumbs when it came to tying and untying the string. Prizes were awarded to each member of the winning team.

A proverb contest with the girls again divided into four groups gave each one a chance to try her hand at art. The idea was to have one member at a time draw out the proverb she had been given and keep drawing until the other guessed the proverb.

"WHAT IS IT" CONTEST

"Who or What is it?" This contest was not so easy and there were many blank expressions all around the hall as each girl tried to remember things she had been taught at school or someone she had read about in the newspaper. Pat Herman was the clever winner.

The finale was a little ho-ha game which did not require too much intelligence, just a sober face. It brought a great deal of laughter from everyone.

Carols were sung by all present and club president, Marguerite Cooke, read "The Night Before Christmas." Then Santa's helper, Jean Flindall, took her place by the little Christmas tree and gave out gifts to all.

LOVELY TABLE

Delicious refreshments were served buffet style from a table at one end of the hall which looked pretty indeed, with its white cloth, silver candelabra with red candles and a very lovely Christmas table decoration in white with touches of red and green. The final touch to a wonderful evening.

Marguerite Cooke thanked Isabel and her group on behalf of all present for a most successful party.

The newly elected officers for 1956 were introduced and future president, Catherine Roulet, introduced her group leaders: Margaret Shappee, Margaret Wiggins, Marjorie Bunnett and Evelyn Clarke.

THANKS TENDERED

Marguerite Cooke thanked all the members and the executive for their assistance during the past year and said how much she had enjoyed being president. She wished Catherine and the new executive every success in the coming year.

Catherine in turn commended Marguerite for her fine work as president, and for the spirit of friendship which she had maintained in the club during her term of office.

Thus ended another year for the Contact club. Members were pleased to have as their guests for the evening, Archdeacon the Venerable J. B. Creeggan and Mrs. Creeggan and the Rev. and Mrs. Everett Smith.

EDEN NURSES COLD

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Eden is "still confined to his room with a temperature," 10 Downing street said today. The 58-year-old Eden is nursing a cold, though not regarded as serious, it was severe enough that he let Chancellor of the Exchequer Richard A. Butler preside at Wednesday's cabinet meeting.

American Optical Holds Yuletide Party

The lens manufacturing division of the American Optical Company Canada Limited, was host to A.O. employees and their families at the recent Christmas party.

The master of ceremonies was Mr. William Norris. Messrs. G. H. Scott, general manager of the division, and J. N. McKibbon, plant manager, welcomed the gathering.

The first number on the program was a "Dancing Doll" number and could that lady dance? Perched on a wooden board, with Mr. Walter Aselstine manipulating the controls, the little doll, with zest and rhythm topped her way through such "oldies" as "Five Foot Two", "The Sidewalks of New York," and "Darktown Strutters' Ball." This was a clever piece of entertainment and the hearty applause of the people showed how much they enjoyed the number. Mrs. Alice Reid was pianist.

DANCE ROUTINES

The second part of the program consisted of dance routines performed by Miss Barbara Thrasher and three of her pupils, Misses Janice Burley, Mary Lynn McKonkey and Sandra Barr, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Barr. Miss Thrasher is an accomplished and graceful dancer and it was also a pleasure to watch her young pupils who were so delightfully poised and well-trained.

Following the program, refreshments were served and the last ice cream cone had barely disappeared when away in the distance could be heard the tinkle of sleigh bells. Closer and closer came the sound, until before the astonished eyes of the children, Santa climbed down the fireplace. When it was quiet once again, he distributed gifts to the children and then, being a busy man, left immediately on another call.

BUYS BRITON

NEW YORK (AP) —Continental Air Lines, Denver Wednesday announced the purchase of 12 Viscount turboprop aircraft from Vickers-Armstrong Ltd., England. President Robert F. Six said the four-engine Viscounts will cost $18,150,000.

Gracious Hostess Club Discusses Items

On Wednesday evening, the Gracious Hostess Club met at the home of Mary Lou Thome.

The meeting opened with the song, "Get Acquainted," followed by secretary's report and the roll call which was exchange of file materials.

Subjects brought in for discussion were "Planning Party Refreshments," 'Serving', 'Suggested Party Menus', 'Outdoor Courtesy, and 'Hospitality in the Club.'

Group work—Set up a buffet table suitable for party.

The home assignments were given out. Each girl is to plan a party with a special theme, include invitation, entertainment, refreshments, decorations and set in the record book and refer file.

The next meeting is to be at Mrs. Murray Reid's home on December 14.

LADIES!

It was two weeks before Christmas Day,
And in walked father with his pay,
He gave it to mother to go on a spree,
Just to find presents to go under that tree.
Now, father, he was in a stew,
He said "you ladies make me blue",
The things you ask for are expensive and slick,
And with my pocket book they just don't click,
"Well," said mother, "it's like this,
I know where there's a place you must have missed,
They have all sizes and variety galore,
And their prices won't knock you through the floor".
For smartness at a price that's low, . .
It's upstairs to "Winnie's" you should go.
So one in all! Take mother's advice,
For skirts, dresses, coats, formals, don't think twice,
Remember us, we sell the best,
And we sell it to you for much less.

Christmas Buffet For Twenty-Five Costing $15.00

By Mary Moore

So many requests have come to me for Christmas party ideas, stressing buffet service, but I think I can answer quite a few of them in one swoop. Read this through and see if it fills your particular need: economy, festive atmosphere, abundant food, and a minimum of work.

I want to warn Therese that because she is inexperienced she should commandeer the help of at least two other energetic girls in the office. Caterers will never provide such a feast at 60c per person.

THE BUFFET TABLE CENTREPIECE

Long-needled evergreen formed into a garaceful elongated "S" shape is the base. Place 3 or 4 tall pillar red candles in the curves, but high enough above the greenery to be safe from igniting it. Green or red Christmas tree balls as an uneven border.

THE FOOD

Five dollars worth of extremely thinly sliced (on the narrowest setting of your butcher's slicing machine) cold meats: ham, salami, corned beef. Use whole 2 1-2 lb. choice Cheddar cheese. Two or three thinly sliced "rumpus" rye loaves. Two partially-sliced cheesed French loaves. Three lbs. coleslaw (roughly 35c lb. at most delicatessens, but half the price if made at home) or 4 large heads choice celery cut into hearts. Thin long slices large dills. Red and green jellies molded in attractively shaped molds like large stars if available. Fruit cake—3 lbs. cut into 1x2 inch fingers with good sharp knife. Generous amounts of coffee with cream which is a mixture of 1 cup each homogenized milk, evaporated milk and table cream. Use candy canes as part of your decor—their curved handles up in a small low bowl—like an umbrella-stand—and have one for everybody to take home—or taste on the spot!

There it is. Your guests may make sandwiches if they like—and the men will—or pile a plate with a variety from every choice. The two items which must be homemade are the jellies, which are child's play, and the

CHEESED FRENCH LOAF

One cup grated Canadian Cheddar cheese, 2 teaspoons caraway seed (optional), 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 French or Vienna loaf, 1-4 cup soft butter or margarine. Combine grated cheese, caraway seed (if used) and salad dressing. Cut through French loaf diagonally, almost to bottom crust, making 1-inch slices. Spread soft butter between slices, then spread cheese mixture liberally between slices. Wrap loaf in aluminum foil. Heat through in oven of 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, until piping hot. Serve at once. Yield —12 or 15 one-helping servings. The butter may be garlic-flavored if caraway is omitted. Always popular.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

LET'S JOIN THE CRUSADE TO WRITE "CHRISTMAS"

Please write "Christmas" in your Christmas messages. Please don't buy a Christmas card with 'Xmas' printed or engraved on it . . . either on the cover or in the greeting. For the past several years there has been a flourishing crusade against the use of the abbreviation 'Xmas.' And I hope you'll notice than on the 1955 cards there are comparatively few cards with 'Xmas' on them. Fewer greeting cards, fewer enclosure-cards, fewer gift-tags, fewer wrapping papers carrying the abbreviation. Good News!

Surely all of us . . . all who buy and all who sell . . . have time to give full honor to this good and great word . . . Christmas. The word is Christmas . . . the beautiful, the inspiring, the sacred word, Christmas!

CHRISTMAS SEASON HOUSEWARMING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have recently bought a new house (the first real "home" either one of us has ever had, and are we thrilled!) The furniture and furnishings we've been collecting for it are practically all in place. We're very much excited about the idea of giving a housewarming now that we are living in our new home. May we please ask you some questions about this?

1. Is it ever proper for the owners of the new home to give their own housewarming?

2. If you say it is, what would you think of our giving the housewarming sometime during the coming holiday season? And how would you suggest we send the invitations? — "Himself" and I.

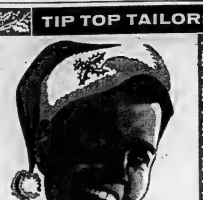
Wonderful news about your new house-and-home . . . and my deep salutations and felicitations to you. It's a grand feeling!

1. Not only is it proper, but it is customary, for the hostess and host of the new home to give the housewarming. This is the sensible and practical procedure, too, for the hosts know best when they would prefer to give the party, how they want to plan it, whom they wish to invite.

2. I think it would be a perfect plan to give your housewarming during the coming holiday season. This is a fitting time for festive parties! I suggest you give your party in the afternoon, 4 - to - 7 o'clock, or 4 - to - 6 or 5 - to - 6. It might be a simple tea - party (usually it) or at this time you might like to have it an Eggnog Party.

I suggest you write your invitations on your Christmas card . . . on the page opposite the Christmas message. Invitations for parties during the holidays are very often, and very "merrily," written on Christmas cards.

THE CASE OF THE NOT-RECEIVED WEDDING INVITATION



Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been dating this boy quite steadily for the last two years. In a short time he is going to be an usher in the wedding of one of his best friends, and one of my best friends, I might add. I was invited to, and attended, the shower given for this friend's fiancee, whom I know quite well. I also know quite well the parents of the groom-to-be.

When the wedding invitations came out last week, I did not receive one. My boyfriend's parents received an invitation, but it was addressed directly to his parents, and made no mention of me. My question is this: Should I presume that I am invited through this one invitation, or should I take it for granted that since my boyfriend is an usher I am automatically invited? I have discussed this with my boyfriend and he is inclined to think that because he is in the wedding party I should come as his guest. I feel that because I attended the shower for the bride-to-be I should have gotten a personal invitation to the wedding, which is to be a very large affair. —Reader

There seem to be so many reasons why you should have received your own individual invitation to this wedding that I am wondering if your invitation may have been lost or misplaced. In any case it would be indeed ridiculous for you to "presume" that you were invited via the invitation sent to your boyfriend's parents. That's their invitation, not yours. Also you have lost no right to "take it for granted" that, since your boyfriend is to be an usher, you are automatically invited to the wedding, or that you should go "as his guest." If you are to be invited to the wedding you should receive a direct invitation. So my advice: ask your boyfriend to ask the bride-to-be (or ask the groom-to-be to ask the bride-to-be) about your invitation, whether or not it was misplaced or possibly

You can't go ALL-OUT

If you feel ALL-IN

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. The strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" hurry-headed feeling often follows. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 33

BEAUTY

HINTS ON HOME PERMANENTS

Pin curl permanents give a soft loose curl: are ideal for bangs.

Planning to give yourself a home perm in time for Christmas? If so, why not use the opportunity to give yourself a new hair style, too? Take a good look in your mirror and see if there isn't something you can do to make a new You. It's fun, and you might be surprised at the results. Change your part and see what it does for you. Hold up a lock and see how you would look in bangs. Decide just what length your hair should be. Don't follow fashion blindly. There is a degree of length (and shortness) which is becoming to each individual type. The trick is to know Your type — and make the most of it.

If you're afraid of "going overboard" and making too drastic a change in your appearance, invite your best pal over and make the perm session a twosome. Not only will you be able to get her opinion but chances are you'll both get a big kick out of experimenting with each other's hair. And one can help the other, once styles are decided upon, in giving the actual perm.

If you're not quite sure what type of a perm you want, one prominent firm passes out a few tip switch may help you to decide. This firm recommends rod-type permanents for all lengths of hair if a firm, long-lasting wave is desired; pin curl permanents for a loose wave or for an end curl to short or medium length hair. Because the pin curl type of permanent does give this softer wave, you'll probably like it if you want to wear bangs. We're reminded, however, that the rod-type will last from three to four months; the pin curl type two to three months. However, the company says that a woman can give herself a home perm anytime she feels like it provided that her hair is in good condition and that she trims off the ends of the old perm before starting on a new one.

It may happen that a month or so after the permanent, some curls need "touch-up" waving. This doesn't mean that the permanent was not successful. Need for a "touch-up" is a natural result of hair's growing half an inch or more a month or regular trimming and thinning of the coif. On the market now is a small kit designed for just such "touch-ups" since it contains just enough lotion and neutralizer for a few curls.

Even if you have given yourself home perms before, it's always wise to read the directions on your waving kit before beginning. These are worked out carefully by the manufacturers who spend a great deal of time and money finding out how to get the best results from their products. Also, there might be some change in the product or a new and better method may have been devised. Too, there is always a chance that you have forgotten an important step. So read directions carefully.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

PERHAPS YOUR FATHER CAN HELP YOU HERE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I go with a boy I like very much, but his parents don't like me because my mother and father are separated. My mother runs around, and so does her sister, and they don't have very good reputations. The boy's mother and father take it out on me. My mother, a sister and I live with my grandparents.

My boy friend and I talked it over one night, and he said that if I would live with my father, it would make a big difference. My father is married again, and he and his new wife just had a baby. They live with his mother. Because I love my mom very much and my dad, too, this is a big problem for me. If I move away, it will hurt my mom very much, but I want to go with this boy very much, too.

If you say to live with my father, how will I put the question to him? I haven't talked to him for quite awhile, and I'm afraid to ask him if I can come.

Please tell me a way to talk to him. — P.P.P.

Dear P.P.P.:

What I think you should do is to write a letter to your father—or, if he lives near enough to you, get in touch by phone—and ask him if you can come and have a talk with him. Then tell him about the trouble you are having. If he was a good father to you, he surely would not want you to stay in a place where things are so hard for you that they are interfering with your friendships. Just tell him exactly what is on your mind, and I think you'll find it won't be difficult, after you have told him everything, to come right to the point and ask him if it would be possible for you to live with him. Or he may think of some other way to help you.

Or, if you prefer, before going to your father, you might find it helpful to talk with your priest or minister, or to some teacher you especially like at school. Perhaps one of these people has known both your father and your mother, and so would know what would be wise for you to do.

Perhaps, too, whichever person you talk to would be willing to talk, also, with your boy friend's parents, and try to make them understand that you cannot help what your mother does, and that they should be understanding enough to see that you need and should have the right kind of friends, including their son. In this case, you would not have to move away at all in order to keep seeing this boy.

Will you decide which one of these suggestions you would like to follow, then carry it out and let me know what happens? I would like to hear from you again.

H-S Assoc. Skate Sale Nets $18.85

The December meeting of Queen Alexandr Home and School Association was held in the auditorium on Tuesday, with Mrs. Jones, president in the chair.

The minutes were read by Mrs. Siemon, deputizing for the secretary, after which the president announced that $18.85 had been raised as a result of the skate sale. Also the help given to the firemen for the Santa Claus parade had been much appreciated.

Under the leadership of Mr. Burgoyne, with Mrs. Robinson as pianist, carols were sung by the members present. These were followed by two short films, "Christmas Fantasy," and "The Littlest Angel." These were most seasonal and enjoyable and the reading by Mrs. Tooth from the Readers Digest was a fitting and pleasant sequel.

Refreshments were served by the ladies.

Canniffon W.A. Re-elects Officers

The regular dinner meeting of the Canniffon W.A., was held in the Sunday school rooms.

Dinner was in charge of Mrs. George Lywood assisted by Mrs. Ralph Stewart and Mrs. Thomas Howard.

The long tables, appointed in white and centred with colored festive decorations were pretty.

A delicious meal was served to a good number. After the repast, the president, Mrs. D. Brenton, opened the meeting, with Mrs. Boyd as pianist. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read showing a successful year.

Mrs. Cole, Mrs. D. Brenton and Mrs. Furmidge were appointed to look after the Christmas baskets for the needy. Mrs. H. Empson and Mrs. H. Farnham audited the books and found them correct, to whom the president expressed her thanks. Donations were made to the Victor Mission Home; men's parsonage board; Missionary and Maintenance Fund and Albert College Building Fund. Twenty-three quilts were finished during the year.

Mrs. D. Brenton took charge of the worship service using the carol "Silent Night". Mrs. A. Holgate read the Christmas story found in St. Luke and Mrs. Furmidge gave a short reading on the origin of the carols.

Mrs. Boyd's reading was "The Origin of the Christmas Tree" and Mrs. Youdell read a lovely story about the crib.

Mrs. McRae presided during the re-election of officers for 1956.

Mrs. McRae congratulated the ladies on their successful year, and Mrs. Cole on behalf of the society moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. D. Brenton, president, for her interest and untiring efforts.

OFFICERS FOR 1956

Family Bond In Italy Closest At Christmas

By STAN SWINTON

ROME (AP)—Christmas in Italy is the day when the family bond is closest.

On Christmas Eve, before the eager eyes of the children, mother and father construct a model of the nativity scene. This "presepio" shows the Child in a wooden or rock manger. An ox and a donkey flank the manger. Around it kings and shepherds kneel in veneration. Colored lights shine on the scene.

In poor homes the presepio may be of cardboard. Among rich nobles there may be expensive hand carvings. But always there is the presepio.

Babbo Natale (Father Christmas) is known in Italy but it is the Jesu Bambino (the Infant Jesus) who lays presents beside the heads of sleeping children before they awaken Christmas morning.

RESTS AT HOME

Thus begins Christmas, the one day of the year in which every Italian is expected to rest at home with his family. Through the day the family group plays cards, talks and jokes, drinks coffee and eats candies or sweets.

Sweets vary from city to city but everyone must have panettone. This is a sweet bread with raisins and candied fruit. In Sicily, cassata, an ice cream enriched with fruit, candy and cream, is a favorite. In Cremona they eat toffee. Chocolate is popular everywhere.

There is no traditional menu for the meals. Whatever mother decides to cook is fine.

There is not much emphasis on gifts within the family. However, tradition calls for presents to those who have done you services during the year. The postman, the telegraph boy, the policeman, the parking lot attendant—all call to pay their respects before Christmas and receive the gratuities of cash present.

In homes the great day of family gifting is Jan. 6, Epiphany. Then a kind-hearted witch, called Befana walked across the roofs to present gifts to good children. Bad children get pieces of coal. Sometimes parents tease children by giving them a piece of chocolate made to look like a chunk of coal—and then present the real gifts later.

CONSIDER FLUORIDATION

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa's city council will consider next Monday a proposal for fluoridation of the city's municipal water supply. Reports said council is expected to approve it.

Keep Christ, In Christmas' Topic at N.A.

The December meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Reid, Trent Road, with an attendance of thirty members.

As this group will be celebrating its 20th birthday in January, the president, Mrs. D. F. Cameron, read the minutes of the first meeting, the list of charter members and the summary of the first year's activities.

A piano solo by Master Roger Ling and two duets "O Little Town of Bethlehem", and "Softly the Night is Falling," by Mesdames A. W. Daniels and G. L. Ackerman, was a pleasing introduction for the Christmas program which followed.

The theme of the devotional period was "the gift without the giver", is here and was in charge of Mrs. Clarence Holmes. Christmas carols were sung and Mrs. Chambers read the Christmas story.

GUEST SPEAKER

A candlelighting pageant, using the hymn "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," appropriately prepared the meeting for the guest speaker, Mrs. T. F. Townsend, Belleville. Mrs. Townsend used this hymn for her theme, and gave a challenging Christmas message and urged that Christ be not left out of Christmas.

Mrs. Townsend was introduced by Mrs. A. W. Daniels and thanked by Mrs. Everett Windover, who also made the presentation of a gift, to which Mrs. Townsend graciously replied.

The coming of Santa Claus and Mrs. Santa, caused extreme delight to the 20 children present, who were each the recipient of a gift from Santa's voluminous sack.

Refreshments, served by the hostess and the executive members, were in keeping with the Christmas season.

An exchange of Christmas gifts concluded a very pleasant afternoon.

XMAS MAIL LOST

GENOA, Italy (Reuters)—Twenty-five mail bags, containing Christmas mail from the United States and Canada, were destroyed by fire Wednesday on a barge tied up the 7,000-ton American ship Exford in Genoa harbor.

'Little Women' 4-H Club Ends 1st Five Units

The "Little Women" 4-H Club of Bethel-Zion W.I. with its nine members has completed the first five units under the leadership of Mrs. F. W. Wellman and Mrs. E. Tufts.

The club has realt with the following: duties of the hostess; the guest room; meal planning; table setting and service; afternoon teas and menus.

Demonstrations were: flower arrangements; packing a weekend bag; table manners; making of cup cakes and fancy sandwiches.

EGGLETON W.M.S. and W.A.

On Thursday afternoon the December meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Warren Harlow, with the president, Mrs. Maurice Clancy presiding over the program prepared by Mrs. Harlow.

A number of Christmas carols were sung during the meeting with Mrs. Bruce Stapley as pianist.

Mrs. Clancy spoke briefly, extending a warm welcome to all, especially the visitors and the guest speaker.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Clifford Lansing, who read for the scripture lesson St. Luke 2:15-20, giving the commentary on the lesson as well.

The prayer of general thanksgiving from the hymnary was read in unison.

Mrs. Forde Stapley, and Mrs. Robert Dashwd sang a duet, which was greatly appreciated.

Short readings were given by the Christian Stewardship secretary — Mrs. Milton Reid, and the temperance secretary — Mrs. George Jervis the W.A. president.

Mrs. William McMullen took charge for the business period.

Mrs. Clarence Pilcher offered her home for the January meeting and Mrs. Bruce Stapley volunteered to prepare the program.

Mrs. Carl Bridges was appointed to purchase quilt batt and lining for a quilt. The date of the quilting to be decided on later.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy offered her home for a meeting on Thursday evening, December 15th when the executive of Eggleton. W.M.S. and W.A. will meet to fill out the various reports for the year 1955.

Mrs. Bruce Stapley gave an interesting paper, prepared on the lost two chapters of the Study Book.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Mrs. Walter Elliott of Stirling, was then introduced and gave an inspiring address basing her message on the Christmas Story.

Mrs. Harlow, on behalf of the Society, and herself, thanked Mrs. Elliott for the splendid address, and also remarked how happy she was to have so many visitors and members present at the meeting.

Mrs. Clancy thanked Mrs. Harlow for opening her home and preparing the program; the guest speaker; and everyone who had taken part on the program.

Meeting closed with hymn "Jesus Shall Reign", and prayer by Mrs. Carl Bridges.

GIFTS PRESENTED

Mrs. Harlow brought in a large box with a number of prettily wrapped parcels with a member's name written on each parcel. However each parcel was wrapped several times, so it caused a little merriment, to find the final owner of the parcel.

The hostess served a delicious luncheon of fruit bread, sandwiches, cookies, Christmas cake, and homemade candy.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was thinking serious, saying to pop, William, there's going to be an intristing discussion at the Current Events and Bridge Club tomorrow.

Has the subject been decided on yet? pop said, and ma said, Well naturely. It's to be on the question of fairy tales and their possible and probable effects on young children. If I could remember back to that erly age I'm sure I'd still be be haunted by visions of terrible giants trampling innocent bystanders under foot, and wicked, gaasly looking witches strewing poson on the night- shr, and goodness know what all, she said.

I'm glad I cant remember back to my youngest days, pop said. After all these years of thinking that my childhood was the happiest time of my life, I might discover I was just one long picture book nightmare, he said, and ma said, That's just the hidden point, William. How do you know that fairy tales dont leave a permanent lasting mark on our character even though you cant remember anything? she said.

Well, at least Benny ought to be able ,to stretch his memory the short distance to his fairy tale days, pop said, and I said, Sure, pop, I remember perfect. Fairy tales were awful, I said.

There, you see? ma said, and I said, G, all that old stuff about witches and giants wasn't half as good as the stuff in the Atomic Comics magazine. Oh boy I cant hardly wait for the next number. There's a guy hair ways up to the planet Evilbra in a Space Jetter V-47, and he's going to blow the inhabitants all over the sky to revendge what they did to the earth. He's going to use a Zalparay machine, I said.

You're going to use your legs and go right to bed, ma said.

Danish Paper's Correspondent Tells How He Smuggled John Across East Berlin Border

Hendrik Bonde - Hendriksen, Berlin correspondent of Denmark's largest newspaper, Berlingske Tidende, sat in a parking lot in Communist East Berlin and waited. He was joined casually, very casually, by a Communist catch who had eluded his Red guards—Otto John, the former West German spy chief. This is Bonde-Hendriksen's own story.

By H. BONDE-HENDRIKSEN
Copyright 1955
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SOMEWHERE IN WEST GERMANY (AP)—It was Dec. 12 in Berlin. The house was 4:52 p.m. Behind us was the Brandenburg gate. I was driving slowly toward the West Berlin customs control post.

At my side in the car sat Dr. Otto John, slightly disguised with glasses and a pipe. It was bitterly cold and the freezing customs officers who recognized my car waved me through. Close by the victory column I stopped. Tears were streaming down Dr. John's cheeks.

"How wonderful that this nightmare is over," he said. "I couldn't stand it much longer. If we had been caught I was just hoping for a chance to commit suicide."

HOW HE LEFT WEST

I asked Dr. John what actually happened on July 20, 1954, the day when he left the West. He told this story:

"Could any of my friends believe that I had passed the sector line voluntarily? Around 8 p.m. I visited Dr. Wohlgemuth at his Uhlandstrasse clinic. He had promised to obtain a pension for a widow of one of the executed men who had resisted the Nazis. During the war Wohlgemuth had helped my brother who was later executed.

"I had tea with 'Wowo,' as we called him.

"What happened after that time I don't know. I woke up two days later in Karlshorst. There was a woman doctor at my bed. And there were Soviet intelligence agents around. I was given an injection and later another one. My head was not clear.

"After the Aug. 11 press conference in East Berlin I did a thing that I had been told I must not do. I whispered to Sefton Delmer of the (London) Daily Express: 'It stinks horribly here.'

FROWN TO MOSCOW

"At that time I honestly believed that I was free to go back to West Berlin when the press conference was over. But Soviet agents corded me off. Immediately after the conference I was flown to Moscow.

"Here I was detained for a couple of weeks and I was almost questioned to death. I didn't disclose any secrets but, naturally, I had to keep talking and telling things. I have never been good at remembering names. Fortunately so. Then I was two months on the Crimea. Twelve months ago Tuesday I was back in East Berlin and placed under surveillance of the East German security service."

Otto John began to tremble. He asked if we would reach Tempelhof in time. I told him that two seats were reserved in the 5:45 plane, one for Dr. Fischer (Otto John) and another for Dr. Vogel (Bonde-Hendriksen) and that we would be in time.

Let me disclose some facts about my connection with John.

One day I had lunch with Dr. John in the Friedrichstrasse East German Press Club. The subjects were discussed were the political situation, the chances of German reunification, etc.
